Get Ducks In A Row On Bridge

There is just a month or six weeks to get the ducks in a row on the bridge to Palm City. State road board member, Chelsie J. Senerchia, told Stuart City Manager, Joe Crowder, that he could not make a meeting of the bridge site until after August 15.

If the people of Martin County have not yet presented a unanimous package for the new bridge site to Senerchia after he arrives for the meeting.

This is the time to distribute petitions for local signatures on the prospective entrance sites. It is time to gather the local business and professional leaders together, hold several meetings, and organize a campaign to put the new Palm City bridge where it will do the most good.

The road board member will certainly appreciate coming to a meeting that can accomplish something, rather than coming here to talk to an exploratory battle. He will think kindly of Martin County if we look like we know what we are doing.

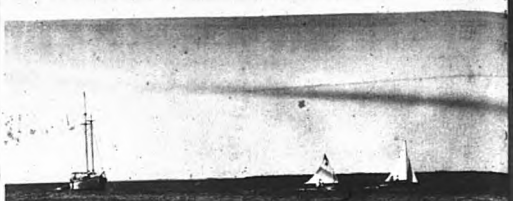
We repeat our endorsement of a location that would bring the bridge into the business heart of Stuart. This position was recently endorsed by The Stuart News, also. Many businessmen realize the loss to the business community of a site that is anywhere but in the heart of Stuart.

A local attorney said the Mirror that a cloverleaf would have to be built on the Stuart side of the river, and that the cost of rights-of-way would make it prohibitive. We say that property values will continue to go up. At some day in the future, a bridge to Palm City must be built if this county and the city of Stuart are to continue to grow. Property values are cheap today compared with tomorrow.

This is the time to forget petty politicking and think of the good of Stuart, and the good of this area.

It is also a time to pick up the tab for any rights-of-way needed to put in whatever cloverleaf necessary to get the job done.

We urge the City of Stuart to begin a program of public information, site selection and title searches for rights-of-way so that when Mr. Senerchia arrives we will be ready, willing and able to move ahead.



RESTFUL, PEACEFUL INDIAN RIVER--One can rest and dream on the Causeway in Jensen Beach and enjoy watching the boats coming and going.

Time To Tame The Co-ops

(FROM THE FIVE COUNTY FORUM)

No Federal program of assistance did more over the long haul to bring the nation's farmers out of the kerosene lamp and outhouse era than the Rural Electrification Administration. Putting power in the pumphouse and the henhouse revolutionized agriculture as thoroughly as the tractor did.

But since there are few hotholders with integrity and principle enough to recognize desirability or even the urgency, when it reaches that point, of bringing a bureaucratic endeavor to a peak or an end, REA expansion is outliving its justifiable purposes and outreaching its intended scope of operations.

The program brought low-interest Federal money into the electrification of the boondocks, simply because investors were not yet ready to put their private bucks into power lines stretching from Yeehaw and Kennaweehie, even if there were two customers. And thoughtful economists will acknowledge that REA speeded up the agricultural revolution by at least a quarter of a century, and was one of the major factors in the miraculous performance of manpower-starved farms during W.W.II.

Now is the time, however, to put the lid on more and bigger loans to the co-ops. Only as their legitimate areas of service require expansion of distribution systems, or as old plants demand replacement should there be a need for additional capital.

The co-ops operate on 2% interest money (less than two per cent), on which the general public makes up the difference, because the Federal Government can't borrow money at anything like that rate. The co-ops pay no taxes, and precious little in lieu of taxes, which probably is as it should be. They are also unregulated, and are free to charge whatever rates on whatever terms they jolly well choose. And that is questionable.

But times have changed. Rural electrification has been proved good business, and investors are ready and anxious to buy power company stock, proceeds from which the company can use to feed electric power through taxable distribution systems, at regulated rates, meeting required levels of service, at no cost to the taxpayer, but instead to his advantage, since he has a healthy business to help him carry the tax burden. By any score, except the purely theoretical socialist one, that is better than a tax-sorted, unregulated, non-productive system whose very foundations are temporary and therefore unstable.

Agriculture has outgrown, to a large extent, the handout financial support that the depression dictated for survival. It has largely shucked off the "kept" look of the prewar years, and if left to its own devices would denude itself of even more of its government-bought cladracks.

The electric co-ops should be dignified and proud enough to do the same, instead, as in too many instances, of creating straw men gleefully shooting them down. The lid should be put on, heart-rending exhortations on the professionals of the co-op business, the management class, to the contrary notwithstanding.

But Not For Me

The country is going to Hell in a hatbasket. We are moving toward a completely Socialistic state. Free enterprise is on the way out.

A book could be written in answer; as a matter of fact, several have been written and have had wide circulation.

Following the advice given in these books on how to save what's left of our free enterprise system would be like taking castor oil. Everyone knows it would be good for what ails him; but none are anxious to take it.

Free enterprise, along with all our other freedoms, is going down the drain because of the age-old love of getting something for nothing; but it's human to keep trying.

And that's what Americans have been doing for the past several decades. Individuals all across the land have been clamoring for the government to do this thing for that group and that thing for this group.

Communities, which after all are only collections of individuals, have done the same thing. Even business firms, whose owners and managers cannot see beyond tomorrow, have joined the parade asking for government handouts, to help them expand.

None of this government aid is free. Every dime the government rises, or loans, to anybody must come from one of two sources; it must be paid in one or another form of tax or it must be borrowed. If borrowed the only security offered is the promise of future taxes available.

So governmental borrowing is actually a localized theft from future generations. We rationalize away the guilt for this theft from our own children and grandchildren by thinking of all the fine things we are leaving for them---things bought with their own money. Meanwhile we have the enjoyment of spending. Seems fair enough, since they will have the honor of paying.

But, under the government has, at our own request, become involved in so many facets of what were once private affairs---free enterprise we used to call it---it follows that government will lay down the rules.

We've all heard the adage, "He who pays the fiddler calls the tune." Trouble is, we don't seem to realize how true it is.

The great majority of Americans think they believe firmly in free enterprise. But they seem to believe in it only for themselves; others should be strictly regulated. Most people want everything they can get from the government. They don't seem to remember that it isn't free.

Or perhaps they are naive enough to believe it's free to them because someone else is paying the taxes.

Martin County thinks it can get federal funds for some pet project in an amount greater than it pays in taxes. If this were true it would, of course, be at the expense of some other community. So we are back to the something for nothing philosophy.

The net result of all this abdication or responsibility for solving one's own problems is that the government is taking over, at our own request, Socialism, it's called.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Thank you very much for your splendid coverage of the annual Martin County Parade, before and aft. I believe this is the first year that each community was represented in some way, making it a truly all-county event.

We appreciate so much the many pictures. We believe publicity will encourage organizations to take part again next year. You and I know just how much work it is to build a float; we've tried it now and again.

Could we purchase for our own files copies of "Massed Colors of Veterans", page 9, and "Mr. Chairman and Mr. President", page 5.

Altogether it was a fine week-end for our County; doubtless one of the most complete programs in the State.

Cordially,
(Mrs.) Rosaleen Murray
Manager

To The Editor:

Congratulations on the wonderful job you and your staff did on taking such great pictures of the fireworks display and coverage of activities on July 4th. Your pictures and coverage of the events were excellent. We should all be very proud of having such a fine paper as yours to call our own community newspaper.

Sincerely,

Bell Finds More Junk

County Engineer Fred L. Bell, acting as zoning director, had County Judge Mallory L. Johnson issue a new criminal action against Kenneth Huggins, an alleged violator of the county zoning code.

To The Editor:

Again, through the kindness of the Jensen Beach Mirror, I would like to publicly congratulate and thank Sheriff Roy Baker and his Deputies for the terrific job they did in handling the traffic on the Causeway during the Fourth of July celebration. The ease with which they took care of this terrific traffic jam was excellent. Again, congratulations and thanks.

Albert E. Palmer

Huggins, of Fern St., Hobe Heights subdivision, was named by Bell as being in violation of the code prohibiting the accumulation of junk and junk automobiles.

According to Bell, a car with no motor in it, a motor not in a car, and other junk and debris were located on Huggins' property.

The warrant was the fourth issued in similar actions in recent weeks.

Congratulations you two on putting out such an outstanding paper. That honorable mention is well placed.

Thank you,
Your friends,

Open The Door Yourself

Men and women are now equal. There can be no distinction any more. It is the law. We cannot specify man or woman, for there is no distinction according to the Civil Rights law.

All right, men, give them a fit.

Let the ladies open the door of the car themselves. Let them move the furniture around the house, and let them pull out the chair at the table.

I tried that one day and like to got my head knocked off.

Civil rights and equality is like prostitution. It isn't gonna work. The women won't let it work.

Oh yes, there are a couple of super-intellectual career women in big cities who feel that they have been discriminated against, and their rights trampled when they get passed over for a job that goes to a lesser mind.

This lose that feeling of discrimination when they get pregnant and don't think that career is really as important as it was.

We can't legislate equality. Women are not equal to men. They are different, not equal. And, as the French say, "Vive la difference!"

We can't put the women in uniform and let them fight in wars. Imagine what would happen to the front lines. Imagine what would happen if the sergeant said, "All right, we are going into hand-to-hand combat."

The ladies would then have to put on makeup, fingernail polish, eye shadow, adjust their socks, put their hair up in pin-curlers, and hunker on the hair-dryer in their helmets. By that time the enemy, who does not believe women to be equal, will have won the whole shootin' match.

This also works for the ladies. They can say, "Fix your own darn dinner," or "This year, you have the baby."

If there was only some way we could give the woman equality on a basis that is operative today. The government, in passing the Civil Rights Bill, doesn't give enough thought to the distinct departmentalization of men and women. The bill should be broadened to include specific things.

For example: The Civil Rights Bill give women complete ownership in the following cases; childbirth, high heels, corsets, bra, dresses (except for luau), extra long silk stockings, silly hats, bridge luncheons, overdrawn checking accounts, grocery shopping, laundrying, cooking, ironing, rolling socks, looking beautiful, having doors and chairs open for them, and having cars opened for them.

In the event this is declared by the Civil Rights Bill, we will accept and live by it.

Bridge Site Meeting Will Be Held In August

Chelsie J. Senerchia, District 4 member of the State Road Board, will attend the public meeting to be held sometime soon after August 15, to discuss the feasible locations of the proposed new Palm City Bridge.

City Manager Joe D. Crowder said he had received a response to his letter to Senerchia, whom he had asked to hold such a meeting.

Senerchia had suggested two courses, one to hold a city commission sponsored meeting before August 15, or to hold one with Senerchia present after that date.

The road board member will be on vacation in North Carolina from July 16 until August 15.

Since Chenerchia placed the new million dollar bridge at the top of the State Road Department's priority list of projects, Martin County partisans have been considering the location of the new bridge. Several sites are under consideration, including one which would be an extension of Martin Grade, the Turnpike feeder road, to a point south of Stuart, and bypassing the city on just north of the present bridge; and one from a location near Lighthouse Point, formerly called Dyer Point, to a point in Stuart.

Still another would be from Palm City via Allapatta Point to cross the South Fork in Stuart, still another suggested location being between C-23 Canal and Lighthouse Point and cross the North Fork to a point in Stuart.

Council Engineer Fred L. Bell has said that the right-of-way of the site of the present bridge could be widened to accomodate a new bridge.

If the bridge is built as an extension of Martin Grade, the bridge would run from the Indian Ave. intersection, thus by-passing the business district. The Turnpike Authority has an interest in assisting financially. This latter route would bypass Palm City and put Stuart to the south.

SR 714 Work Completed

A $378,744 project to widen a six-mile segment of State Road 714 in Martin County has been completed, the State Road Department announced last Thursday.

District Four Road Board member, Chelsie Senerchia, said the project extends from SR S-76-A west approximately six miles to a point west of the Sunshine State Parkway near Stuart.

Work on the project included Widening the existing road to provide two 10-foot traffic lanes.

Dickerson, Inc., of Stuart, was the contractor on the project.

'Atlas Of Florida' Wins

The increasingly popular "Atlas of Florida" copped an award for the University of Florida Press from the recent thirteenth annual Southern Books Competition held at the University of Kentucky. The award was for excellence of typography, design, and quality of production.

Winning books will be exhibited in some fifty university and public libraries all over the country. A permanent archive of the books is maintained in the University of Kentucky library.

The "Atlas of Florida" was designed by Erwin Raisz, Helen S. Haines, and William Edwards Associates. Composition and press work was done by Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee.

Published in 1964, the "Atlas" was acclaimed to be the "first of its kind" with its colorful maps, illustrations, and cumulative information about Florida.

E. B. Horton, Director of Adult Education, has stated that the school department is seeking funds in the amount of $43,000 for the operation of an adult education program in the three R's for those with less than the 12 grades of schooling to receive credit.

Funds have been sought under a plan to be set up in December and submitted in March, under one of the titles of the Economic Opportunity Act.

Langberg House Damaged By Fire

According to R. B. Spinney, Chief of the Jensen Beach Fire Department, the fire which occurred on July 6 at the old Langberg House caused damage estimated at $8,000.

The house was built in 1928 by Mr. and Mrs. Langberg, owners of Riverside Trailer Park, and is located on the east side of Sewall's Point Road, just south of Langford's Marina.

The volunteer firemen fought the blaze from 6:30 until 10:00 p.m. Dr. L. L. Conley, the present owner, is renovating the house and was on the premises until 4 p.m.

After the fire, Chief Spinney called Deputy State Fire Marshall Stevens at his office in West Palm Beach. Marshall Stevens came to Jensen Beach to investigate the cause of the fire. He and Chief Spinney visited V. V. Wortham, Jensen Beach electrician, and assistant fire chief, who at the time was a patient at Martin Memorial Hospital, to ask his advice. Wortham said it sounded like trouble with a BX cable in the walls. Stevens and Spinney returned to the burned-out house, investigated the walls and found that Wortham was correct. The trouble apparently was caused by an old-time BX cable whose rubber had deteriorated.

The fire was a difficult one to extinguish, said Spinney, because it was between the walls and burned up into the attic. Fire Marshall Stevens commended the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department for its handling of a difficult fire, and he congratulated the men.

House Trailer Destroyed By Fire

A 34-foot house trailer was destroyed by flames on Wednesday afternoon, when escaping LP gas caught fire, igniting the wood and aluminum trailer and an attached room.

The owner, Lee Haymes Leonard of Baker Road, Rio, said his brother, Lewis, 18, who was living in the trailer, tried to light the gas stove after having the small tank re-filled, when he heard the sound of a back-fire. The tank, which was attached to the end of the vehicle, burst into flames as Lewis rushed from the trailer.

According to Chief Al Walker, both the trailer and the attached room were enveloped in flames when two trucks arrived from the Rio Fire Department.

He estimated the loss to be about $3,500.

Books By The Experts Aid Fla. Gardeners

Trees blooming with colorful flowers...bright sun rays beating down...and that special aroma that summer's greenery brings, remind Floridians of the garden they were going to plant or the garden they were going to improve.

Many questions plague the gardener----questions concerning ornamental gardening in Florida are found in "Your Florida Garden," written by John V. Watkins and Herbert S. Wolfe, University of Florida professors and experts in the field of gardening.

Suggested plans for the popular patio gardens are offered in the book along with vital information on gardening.

An endless range of gardening questions is answered in the books, "1500 Answers to Your Florida Garden Questions," written by Watkins and Wolfe in collaboration with Thomas B. Mack, professor of Florida Southern College.

Topics in the "questions books" include garden planning, soil, fertilizers, water, temperature, propagation, trees and palms, shrubs and vines, herbaceous perennials, annuals and bulbs, lawns and ground covers, fruits and garden pests.

All three books are published by the University of Florida Press.

Rev. Evans Speaks On Alcoholism

At the meeting of the Stuart Kiwanis last week, Rev. Mickey Evans told how 157 men with alcohol problems have been helped by the Dunklin Memorial Camp, Inc., which is located in Martin County's northwesterly corner. Mr. Evans founded this institution about one year ago on a 120 acre tract on Martin Grade, 20 miles west of Stuart.

The camp specifies a minimum stay of six weeks for a man, but, according to Mr. Evans, "some stay only ten days, a week or less." He reports that efforts for rehabilitation show a higher per centage than that achieved by the similar state institutions.

"Christ is the only real answer for the alcoholic," he told the group.

The camp is gradually becoming self-sustaining, says Mr. Evans, with a dormitory, dairy, kitchen, laundry, and new orange grove.

Everyone has chores to do daily, usually in some endeavor at which he is proficient. Average enrollment is 25 to 30, which is about the maximum the camp can handle at present.

Old-fashioned camp meetings are held every Friday night and sometimes attract as many as 400 people, Mr. Evans reported.

The camp has its own monthly publications, and a follow-up program for its enrollment. The latter program is conducted through "Good Samaritan Clubs," he said.

"It all starts when a man realizes his problem and voluntarily vows to whip it and find an answer for his problems in God," concluded Mr. Evans.

Florida Power & Light Company is bringing its new commercial Electric Cooking Caravan to town for demonstrations to food service operators, dieticians, hospital administrators, architects and school board members.

The 50-foot long traveling Caravan is on a six-months tour of communities in the Company's service area and will roll into Stuart on July 19th. Special meetings will also be scheduled, at which time guests will be served with food prepared on the Caravan's equipment.

According to John M. Law, Jr., Manager for Florida Power & Light Company, this is Florida's first complete commercial Cooking Caravan and has 252 square feet of kitchen space and is electrically air conditioned for year-round comfort. Over 30 pieces of the most modern electric equipment are arranged in four cooking systems----Institutional, Fast Food, Cookless and Club----which simulate typical requirements for food preparation in the smallest to the largest eating place. "We hope that every food service operator in the area will take the opportunity to visit this display, so they can see by actual operation how the various items would fit into their businesses for increased efficiency in the production of superb foods," says Mr. Law.

Vandals Pelt Hobe Sound

Damage estimated to be $1,655 was caused by vandalism over the week-end, according to Sheriff Roy C. Baker.

Sheriff Baker said five juveniles threw rocks and mangoes at windows, cars, signs and other objects while driving around Saturday night and Sunday. The investigation was almost completed late Monday.

This same group, at Port Salerno, broke windows costing $40 at Murray Junior-Senior High School.

Baker said the juveniles were all 15 and 16 years old and were from the Port Salerno area with one exception.

Protests Halt Hearings

Protests made by persons and organizations over night closing of the SR 76A bridge over the St. Lucie Canal, apparently has stopped action temporarily to hold a hearing by the U.S. Corps of Engineers, according to County Engineer Fred L. Bell.

The Corps had been asked by the county commission to permit closing of the swing span because of its poor condition during the hours the St. Lucie Locks were closed.

After this request was made, A. L. McKnight, Chief of Operations Division of the Corps, notified the county that ten organizations had protested and that further action would be held in abeyance in view of the protests.

Bell asked that a hearing be set so the county could explain that the bridge was seldom used at night, and that the county would agree to open and close it to conform with special requests for boat locking at the locks about a mile away.

Three hours notice is required to compel locks opening during the hours of 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. Eastbound boats could use the bridge during the same hours on notice, but as it stands, they can travel only about a mile in off hours before they tie up to await locks openings, Bell pointed out.

Westbound traffic is held below the locks and cannot move until the locks open.

Bell said the bridge is in such poor condition that it could be a factor in economic loss to the county and an asphalt plant, also a large farm operator, should it be out of commission for any period of time.

Bell said he would try again to convince the U.S. Corps of Engineers that a hearing should be held.

Mike Crook Stars In Legion Baseball As Stuart Sweeps Double Header

Mike Crook and Wilbur Blake, scattering six hits across two games, hurt Melbourne's chances for the District 12 playoff Sunday, as Stuart swept a double-header by 4-2 and 8-1.

The loss put Melbourne in fourth place with a record of 5-8 and four games to play. The top two teams in the district play a best-of-three series for the championship.

Crook struck out six and allowed only two hits in the first inning, after scoring a run in the fourth on a walk and two errors. Stuart came back with three runs.

Melbourne chalked up its two runs in the fourth inning on a walk, a hit and a wild pitch.

Stuart clinched the victory in the fifth by singles by Bill Mather, left-fielder Chuck and Bill Sturtz.

In the second game, Hank Sattler tripled home two runs in the third inning to go ahead 2-1. In the fifth he singled home another run and Glass doubled home the final run in the sixth.

In the last of the fifth, with two out, about 8-1, bases loaded, and a 3-0 count on the batter, Glass picked off. The Astronaut at second base.

Thursday's batting stars up on Sunday and forfeited at Melbourne to Vero Beach.

FEC Claims Martin Violated Its Rights

Martin County has 30 days in which to file a response to allegations made in a writ of certiorari made to the U. S. Supreme Court by the Florida East Coast Railway.

Notice has been received by County Attorney Dean Tucker, from the railroad, that it was arguing that its constitutional rights had been violated on at least two counts by the local Circuit Court of Florida Supreme Court in their decisions by which the county won the right to designate where it wanted to locate a grade crossing with safety signals at railroad expense.

The county had been notified in mid-June, that Sullivan and Cromwell, a New York law firm, had been granted until July 9th to file the writ to call up for review the Florida decisions.

The writ claimed violation of the 14th amendment in that the railroad was deprived of property without due process of law, a claim made in spite of the fact that the local court awarded the railroad compensation for the actual land taking because of the indicated cost of safety signals.

In its second allegation, the railroad said the forced payment of the cost of safety signals, in this case at the Allen Avenue, Rio, grade crossing, placed an undue burden on the cost of interstate commerce.

The county built the safety signal at the crossing and charged the railroad, but so far the railroad has done nothing about it. The county has also rejected two STOP signals. The railroad has rejected nothing.

Tucker said it was the apparent intent of the railroad to challenge and hope to upset the 1898 case on which the county won its case through Florida courts.

That case, Chicago B & Q Railroad Co. vs. Chicago, held that railroads should bear the cost of devices providing the public and that it was a reasonable power of government to endorse such actions.

Tucker also said the railroad's writ ignored the fact there are at least two Florida statutes regarding crossings.

Tucker said he will file a reply sooner than the 30 days time which has been allowed the county.

popular opinion, is now paying a larger proportion of taxes than home owners and apartment dwellers.

The Association was formed May 27 in Jensen Beach to protest "over-taxation" of mobile home owners. A decision of the Florida Supreme Court last February placed mobile home owners under requirements to pay personal property taxes.

Gov. Burns has signed a bill passed by the legislature that will place the issue before the public in a referendum in the forthcoming election.

Mobile home owners generally feel that the rental paid to owners provides for payment of municipal, state and county taxes.

At the meeting of the Florida Mobile Home Owners' Association this week, action was taken to institute an educational campaign in the near future for the purpose of acquainting the public with the issues involved in mobile home taxation in the hope that the constitutional amendment to be voted upon in November will be clearly understood.

The Florida Mobile Home Owner's Association represents over 600 members in eighteen parks, and is the only functioning organization acting in the expectation of becoming a state-wide organization.

Its officers are: Jim Marr, President, of Stuart; J. Edward Book, Vice President, Jensen Beach; George Gerrie, Treasurer, Pine Island; Mrs. Norma Cunningham, Secretary, Port Salerno.

County Holds The Line On Millage

Chairman of the County Commissioners, Frank A. Wachs, at a press meeting on Monday, announced a slight increase in the levy of millage for Martin County taxpayers. The prospective 1965-66 budget was previewed at the meeting.

As it now stands, the budget calls for an overall increase of less than two-tenths of a mill, or .172 mills, unless altered at an August 3rd hearing, and unless millages are added by Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District and Florida Inland Navigation District.

The budget of $1,580,581 tops the 1964-65 budget of $1,507,043 by $73,410, but the figures are misleading in view of other factors, including carry-over funds, of which about $78,000 appears to the capital outlay account.

According to funds, the budget shows:

General Fund, a 2.77 mill levy up .27 from last year's 2.50 mills, $611,015 budgeted compared to $590,438 last year.

Mosquito Control district, a .34 levy both last year and this, but amount to be raised this year is$443,227 compared to $407,700 last year. State funds provided in one fund will total $15,500, in another, $7,383 compared to $16,500 and $9,272 in 1964.

Fine and forfeiture fund, a 1.5 mills, 3 mills this year, up .30 from last year's 1.5 mills. This year the levy will bring in $393,196 compared to $292,609 last year.

Road and bridge fund, with a levy of 1.80 last year was dropped to 1.60 mills this year to raise $431,545 compared to $429,353 last year.

Capital outlay accounts for .57 mill this year compared to .35 last year, budgeting $148,134 this year compared to $87,453 last year.

Capital outlay debt service, which required .30 mill last year, to pay out $34,758 needed no levy this year, as all debt serviced by it was wiped out last year.

All known factors Monday showed a total levy by the commission, including the health unit at .15 mills down from .16 mills, and St. Lucie Inlet Authority, of 8.822 mills, up .172 mill over the 8.65 mill levy last year.

Added to this total is the FCD levy, set at .75 mill last year, but as for the new figure is not available. Wachs said it probably will be announced around Aug. 1.

FIND has requested a .10 levy, but this has not been officially announced or approved by the Department of Conservation.

The 9.522 mills tentatively proposed, plus .10 for FIND and a possible .75 for FCD would bring that portion of the tax bills to a levy of 9.672.

Also on Monday, the school board adopted a budget up 1.9 mills over last year to give a levy of 9.75 for a possible total levy of 19.422 mills on the county-wide portion of the tax bill.

Expenditures for the county jail addition were also provided for in the capital outlay budget. Bids for this addition were received last week; also a $45,000 addition to the court house, including addition of a jury box to the county commission meeting room to permit its use as a court room and $14,000 for a wall at the ocean end of Bridge Rd., Jupiter Island, a county park.

Wachs said payment of about $69,000 in St. Lucie Inlet Authority bonds would leave some $400,000 yet to be paid on the old issue.

The golf and country club account, budgeted at $33,600 was shown by Wachs to be a revolving fund, since the same figure was budgeted in income to be paid the county by the publicly-owned club.

Wachs also stated that no money was being appropriated for the club course.

He stated that $500 was being budgeted for the Committee of 100 to represent five memberships, a drop of $7,000 from last year.

Under terms of the new hospital indigent bill passed by the legislature, the figure for that use becomes $30,322, up from $15,000.

Tax Districts Are Up This Year

Levies in the special taxing districts of Martin County generally were higher for the coming fiscal year.

District A, Jensen Beach, with a budgeted figure of $47,369.29 remained the same at 1.5 mills on a $24,870,755 valuation. Highway expenditures will be for lights, $12,000; contract work, unspecified, $11,000, and fire control, $9,000.

District B, Port Salerno, will increase from 1.3 mills last year to 1.5 mills in the coming year, to raise $24,875.58 on a valuation of $16,053,240. Lights and fire control account for most of the budget.

District E, Hobe Sound, will increase from .7 mills last year to .9 mill to raise $22,193.60 on a valuation of $19,979,874. Lights, fire control and a $1,000 recreation and recreation equipment project account for most of the total.

District F, Indiantown, will increase to a full 1 mill levy from .95 mill of last year to raise $16,493 on a valuation of $16,493,868. The district valuation increased about $2 million over last year.

There will be no levy to raise $6,432.95 in the Palm City Drainage District fund budget. Listed as a carry-over, the fund actually is that because of interest receipts on a sinking fund out of which no payment was made.

Salerno Town District I & S will increase from .4 mill to .5 mill to pay interest and principal on bonds. The budget total is $1,956.75. The district valuation is $3,597,050.

District G, a new taxing district, has been set up to cover the Tropical Farms area with a valuation of $6,372,750. Budgeted was $1,210.80, of which $550 is for lights, $550 for fire control, $40 for tax assessor and $40 for tax collector, plus $30.80 for contingencies and emergencies. The levy was set at .2 mill.

St. Lucie Inlet Authority maintenance budget, which is $2,428.06, will call for a levy of .014 mill, and the interest and sinking fund budget for the authority, at $98,393.96, will call for a levy of .58 mill.

Actually, District G was set up several years ago, but no levy was ever made. It was established this year to compensate fire departments in Port Salerno and Palm City for coverage of fires numbering 14 to 16 per year, at Tropical Farms. The Farms has no fire department and depends upon the two departments nearby.

FISHING WALKS—Just a few feet off the water, three hundred feet out into the Indian River, these fishing walks will be a boon to bridge fishermen of this area. Frank A. Wachs, County Commission Chairman, shows off the walk which will be lighted for night fishing. Approach to the walk will be from the north side of the bridge, with a walkway under the bridge to the fishing walk. See page 6.

Evinrude Convalescence Home Is Speculation In Deed Granted Here

The filing of a corporation grant deed by a Beverly Hills, California, firm in the county clerk's office in Stuart revived the rumor that Ralph Andrew Evinrude (Langford) would build a rest home in the area.

The deed was from United Convalescent Hospitals, Inc., 8721 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Cal., to Chanford Enterprises, a limited partnership, of the same address.

Officers who signed were Charles Z. Wick, president, and Daniel Kivel, secretary.

State Revenue stamps for thirty cents were affixed to the deed, indicating a sale for only $100.

The property, Lots 3, 4, 5 and 6 in Block 1, Oak Park, was sold by United Convalescent Hospitals, Inc., for $47,500 to the Most Rev. Coleman F. Carroll, Bishop of the Diocese of Miami, in late October, 1962. At that time it was speculated that a rest home would be built in Stuart by Ralph Evinrude.

Wick had been Mrs. Evinrude's business advisor for many years, and at the Evinrude offices at Langford Terrace, Jensen Beach, it was admitted that the Evinrudes were principals with Wick and Kivel in the United Convalescent Hospitals, Inc.

At that time, Mrs. Evinrude stated that there were no immediate plans to build a rest home, but that eventually it would be done.

She stated that the land was ideal for the purpose, close to Martin Memorial Hospital and in the center of Stuart. Plans for similar facilities in Fort Pierce, Palm Beach and Jacksonville were discussed at that time.

The land fronts 213 feet on Osceola Ave., runs to the St. Lucie River front, 246 feet on one side, 213 on the other.

When the sale was made in 1962, it was found that St. Joseph Catholic Church parish would continue to use the house until the new rectory was built on the East 10th Street. The new rectory was completed a few months ago and has been used by church personnel since completion. The old St. Joseph Church on East Ocean Blvd. burned and the new church was built on East 10th St.

The Evinrudes at present are on the Mediterranean sea, headed for Naples, Italy, on their yacht, the Chanbirdseer, so are not available for questioning. Evinrude office personnel are on vacation so are also unavailable for comment.

A local attorney who handles some legal work for the Evinrudes said he knows nothing of the transaction.

School Budget Up 1.9 Mills

A tentative budget of $1,580,479 was adopted by the Martin County School Board at a special meeting Monday morning. This figure is up $230,436 over the 1964-65 budget and is an increase in levy of 1.9 mills, up from 7.85 to 9.75.

In District 3, the millage at .05 remains the same. A hearing will be held July 30 concerning the new budget.

As adopted by the board, the budget was broken down into four parts, including a $1,363,932 operating budget slant to turn includes local funds of $1,048,658 and state funds of $1,002,748.

Debt service funds budgeted totaled $140,589, including $69,130 of state funds, $2,189 local, and the balance in transfers or balances carried over.

The capital improvement budget totaled $267,526, and included $93,365 in state funds, and the rest in transfers and balances.

The fourth part which was adopted was labeled "contracted program funds budget", for $27,147, including Federal funds for Operation Head Start, $23,357, and local funds for that project in the amount of $3,790.

Broken down, the adopted budget was 7.75 mills in general funds and 2 mills in District 1, which also is county-wide. There was no levy for 5449 because the voters turned it down, but the monies were raised in the main budget.

A further breakdown of the budget shows that of the $1,580,479 total budget, cash carry-over was $185,721, a levy from last year's account, when $4,36,299 was carried over.

The state supplies approximately the same share toward the total budget as does the county. The state's share is $1,002,748, and county $1,187,658 in the new budget.

There was an increase in instructional salaries from $1,334,831 in the 1964-65 budget to $1,817,784 in the new one. Administrative costs increased from$57,587 to $61,973, and operation of the plant from $113,750 to $138,500.

There was a slight drop in maintenance, from $70,000 last year to $67,900 this year.

Tuition charges to Palm Beach and Okeechobee Counties increased from $33,060 to $38,098.

Debt service and SBE bond issue payments on principal and interest dropped from $197,281 last year in the budget to $140,589 this year.

There was a drop in capital outlay, from $364,347 last year to $242,226 in the new budget.

Auxiliary services and transportation costs increased from $112,800 to $139,340, and fixed charges from $35,825 to $47,425.

Other matters were considered by the board, including the adoption of a policy whereby all schools with a school-lunch program will limit the food and drinks available on the premises to pupils during the day to type A lunch, milk and full-strength juice.

According to Superintendent of Schools Thomas L. Crook, this meant that there would be no soft drinks served in the lunchrooms, only milk or orange juice at full strength, and that ice cream would be served only incidentally as dessert.

The policy, said Crook, would not apply to the high school which will be considered at a later date when the entire board is present.

Chairman Frank DeStefano, on vacation, was not present Monday. Mrs. T. R. Chambers, the vice-chairman, ran the meeting.

The regular meeting for August has been postponed from August 2 to the 16th because of DeStefano's vacation.

Four resignations were accepted, including Mrs. Rosenta Fritz, teacher at Port Salerno, who will return to Indiana; Mrs. Rosemary Lamb, who will accept an appointment as a French instructor at University of Florida; Mrs. Ruth Shepard, secretary at Hobe Sound School; and Mrs. Steve B. Allen, lunchroom worker at Warfield School, who is moving to Lake Park.

New appointments include Mrs. Ellen M. Harris to the exceptional class; Joseph Erdeky, to Junior High in mathematics; Mrs. Florence M. Clements and Mrs. Bertha Spell, to the Warfield lunchroom.

Authorization for the use of the Martin County High School gym was given to the Stuart Jaycees for the September 6 Labor Day Beauty Pageant.

Action on a request to rent the MCHS gymnatorium to the Jehovah Witnesses convention was deferred for three days in the fall for an area meeting was postponed until August's meeting. The request was made by the Rev. Frank Mallous.

Martin County By Jupiter

The proposed sale of Jupiter Island submerged lands was erroneously advertised on an Jupiter newspaper because someone at Florida Press Association bought the ad from Beach County's Jupiter was in Martin County.

County Attorney Dean Tucker wrote a letter of protest regarding the advertising of the proposed sale of 1,583 acres of submerged land just north of the county line, just off property owned by George W. Ortnet, III, in Hobe Sound, to the Internal Improvement Fund.

Robert Farker, administrator of the Internal Improvement Fund, admitted the error in a letter sent to Tucker. The legal advertising of the proposed deal appeared in the Jupiter Beacon News in Jupiter. According to A. Rees Williams, chief of the Cadastral Survey division of IIF, the Press Association rate book and date contained in it, was the locale of Jupiter in Martin County.

Williams stated that because of the error, the sale would be re-advertised in a Martin County publication, not named.

Tilton Sells P.O. Property

Title was transferred from Tilton, Inc., to Taylor Industries of Tice, Florida, on Friday, for the plot of land on which the new Jensen Beach Post Office will be built.

According to state transfer stamps, the price was $28,000.

Mirror Cooking School July 30

The second annual Mirror Cooking School will be held on Friday, July 30, according to publisher Dick Campbell. Announcing two sessions on one day, rather than the two in two days as last year, Campbell said that an afternoon session was requested by many who attended last year.

The event will be in the Jensen Beach Community Church Fellowship Hall, which is air-conditioned, and is a part of the community service program of The Mirror.

There is no admission charge to the cooking school.

Participating co-sponsors this year include Florida Power and Light Company and Publix Super Markets.

Miss Betty Stewart, home economist of Florida Power and Light, will handle the cooking section of the program, which will last about two hours. Miss Stewart announced that the program this year will feature new recipes and several dishes "for two". She will also have a program with many recipes included.

Dick Prince, meat counselor for Swift and Company, will handle the other half of the program with a short film on beef cutting, and a demonstration on meat cutting and preparation for cooking.

A new feature of the show this year will be a display of various types of electric ranges and refrigerators by local appliance dealers. The display will be set up outside the Fellowship Hall in a hallway by the church sanctuary.

Ransom Tilton, Chairman of the Board of the Community Church, said that the church was happy to make the Fellowship Hall available to any worthwhile local event. "We can seat over 450 in our hall, and we want to use it as often as possible for the public benefit", Tilton said.

Adds Three Wells

Three new wells are being readied under the city's 1965 capital improvement program in which the Stuart water treatment plant was brought to a new high capacity of two million gallons per day.

One well has been driven and capped, one is nearthat point, and a third will be dug this week in the city's move to add more wells to its field at and near the water treatment plant on Palm Beach Road at East 10th Street, according to City Manager Joe N. Crowder.

Early in the year, the city commission was told by Crowder that three new wells would provide adequate well water sources to operate the plant at full capacity.

Doug Arnold drove the first of the new wells on Palm Beach Road almost opposite the water plant, and the second one was driven on Palm Beach Road at 17th St.

Both were driven on city-owned right-of-way, just off the pavement. The third will be dug in the right-of-way at East 14th Street, according to Crowder.

Both wells were capped when driven to a depth of approximately 92 feet.

There are seven operating wells in the city well field, but three additional wells were needed to reach capacity of the plant and to permit a better system of rotated re-charging periods for individual wells.

Another Milestone Vanishes

County Knocks Over Outhouse

The County Commission and the County Health Unit was requested Thursday night by the Martin County Zoning and Planning Board to outlaw outdoor privies in all county areas.

According to County Zoning Director Fred L. Bell, the so-called ideal outhouse of Chick Sales' fame continues to gain approval of the Health Unit. Bell added that he has been involved in a "hot argument" with health officials over a permit given to a home owner in Palm Vista Subdivision, west of Palm City and south of Martin Grade.

Bell's request to forbid future construction, other than of a temporary nature at building projects, of all such structures, was backed by the planning board.

Bell said that the Health unit told him that the old-fashioned privy was more sanitary than septic tanks.

Bell argued that an area like Palm Vista was no place for primitive plumbing, as the surface water accumulates to depths of many inches in wet seasons.

Jensen Beach urban area re-zoning with in the structure of the county code was tabled once more, for the fourth time, when U.S.#1 businessmen disagreed with the board idea on whether R-3 or C-1 should be designated. The move will be reheard August 19th.

The meeting started at 7:30 and terminated at 11:00 p.m. during which much time was consumed in discussions which led to tabling motions.

Also tabled until August 19 was a move to delete R-3 residential district zoning from C-1 commercial district zoning because such zoning could result in construction of schools and churches within 2,000 feet of commercial land available for supermarkets and other business which might require liquor licenses.

Bell said that plans for a new church in Jensen Beach could stunt the growth of the commercial area of most retail food and restaurant permits through such interjection of higher zoning classifications into commercial zones.

R-4 was approved by the board as a new zoning classification to replace HR-2. It will now go to the commission for approval.

Provisions in the new classification included dropping to 1,000 square feet floor space required in single homes; from 1,000 square feet to 800 per unit in duplexes, and permits restaurants and motels only in conjunction with marinas.

After adoption of the new classification, a hearing was set for a change in Palm City in an area bounded by Cornell and the South Fork of St. Lucie River, and by Palmetto and All-American Roads.

The board voted to liberalize multiple family district zoning covered by R-3A to add mobile home and travel-trailer sales, add filling stations subject to approval by the zoning board and the county commission after public hearing, and to add professional and business offices.

Tabled until August 19 was a move to rezone Blocks 31 to 66 less tract 6 and Block 65, in St. Lucie Farms from R-2 to A-1 and A-1-A, agricultural zones. The initial applicant, a flower grower, was not present at the meeting, and two others who were there said they felt it had not been properly publicized.

Because of this, the board directed Bell to provide agendas to news media for future meetings prior to the date of the meeting.

Manning Keen of Pahokee, who applied for a permit to set up a salvage yard about nine miles northwest of Indiantown on SR 710, was turned down by the board.

Keen was not present on Thursday night, but had appeared on his own behalf at the June meeting of the board. Bell recommended the turn-down and was backed by all five members of the board.

Keen's permit to build a multiple dwelling complex in Booker Park was delayed, it was said, by a requirement that 25-foot set-back lines be established.

According to Bell, the plans as submitted called for lesser distances.

Kitty Jeffers 'Miss Clock Watcher'

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County, sponsors of the unique SIZZLER Contest, has selected Mrs. Kitty Jeffers as "Miss Clock Watcher" to reign over the throngs of contestants who will be anxiously "watching the clock" as the temperature soars up to the 96 degree mark, which will mark the culmination of one of the most original contests ever to be staged in this area.

Mrs. Jeffers resides at 901 East 14th Street, Stuart, and is employed as a Savings Counsellor at First Federal Savings of Martin County, located on U.S.#1 in Stuart.

The Sizzler contest is open to anyone who is willing to predict when the temperature, as recorded by the electronically controlled "Double TT" time and temperature display on the First Federal Time and Temperature sign will hit the 96 degree mark.

Prizes include; $100.00 - first prize; $50.00 - second prize; $25.00 - third prize.

Entry blanks can be obtained at First Federal, according to James A. Garvey, Executive Vice President of the Association. Stop by soon and pick up a couple. Say "Hello" to Miss Clock Watcher while you're there. As the temperature soars, you, too, may become a "clock watcher".

Rained Tuesday-Boy, Did It Rain!

The rains came, flooding many sections of Martin County, downing some electric and telephone lines, and causing many to mop all afternoon Tuesday as the water came down in bucket-loads.

In Jensen Beach there were short interruptions of power, flooded streets and wet business floors as rain-water washed into some stores.

Stuart had a rainstorm, but it was nothing like the north and south of the county seat.

In Hobe Sound, the community got more than its share in a stump floater that halted traffic on US 1, flooded ground level buildings and stalled cars.

Lightning knocked out the power for two and one-half hours and put out telephones on Jupiter Island as well as on the mainland.

Lightning hit a Florida Power and Light Company pole and lines east of the Florida East Coast railroad tracks at Bridge Road.

The lines dropped on railroad telegraph lines, which in turn hit other FP&L lines, which dropped to the street at the intersection of Bridge Road and A1A, halting all traffic for a time.

US 1 at Algozzini's Fruit stand was so flooded that cars were forced to detour around the puddle, and several became mired, witnesses said.

At one time, about 50 cars were pulled off the highway at the Chuck Wagon parking area.

The main, heavy shower lasted about one and a half hours, starting around Noon, but rain fell all through the afternoon, as well.

P-W Road Assures Growth

It has certainly been a long time coming. And, it still isn't here. But the State Road Department took a giant step forward in the progress of Martin County when the members voted to begin purchase of rights-of-way for the Pratt-Whitney Road, now known as State Road 711.

Perhaps the lucky numbers of seven-eleven will mean luck for Martin County. We hope so. But the future progress of the county should not depend on luck. Nor should the development of a road that holds the key to future growth of this county have its fate decided by the roll of the dice of fate.

We are proud that the road board has decided to gain rights-of-way, even though they are only to the Palm Beach County line. The fact that the state has accepted it as a state road is present enough. The naming of SR 711 means that the road will be continued to the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft plant, and that highly skilled employees of the plant who live in Martin County will have easier access to their work.

One hidden value is that many employees of P-W will probably decide to make their home in this paradise.

When the road is open, and the automobiles travel across the agricultural plains of Martin County, we must remember that the effort has been one of many years' work by the Martin County Commission, the Committee of 100, R. V. Johnson, local Realtor, and now, the State Road Board.

Thanks to all of you.

A Great Man Passes On

The death of Adlai Stevenson brought sorrow to millions of Americans. His passing was the passing of a great American.

That it should happen on a busy street in London-town, just within a stone's throw of the American Consulate, was a mark of the measure of a man dedicated to his Nation.

We cannot but miss the ringing tones of his cultured voice, telling the praises of his country with a pride he felt deeply, and the sharpened barbs of his oratory in chiding a nation that overstepped the bounds of diplomacy.

He missed the opportunity of being the President of the United States two times, defeated by another great American. He was Governor of the State of Illinois.

But his greatest moment of life was his four years as the United States ambassador to the United Nations, a floundering body of nations devoted to an ideal, to whom he gave vitality. His speeches will live, and his example will give the world an example of what the word "civilized" means.

Adlai Stevenson is dead. Long live his memory.

FIND Retribution Sinks

The counties of East Florida have felt the taste of opposition to the power of a bureaucracy. The Florida Inland Navigation District, still testy from the penalties of control imposed by the Florida Legislature, has decided to impose one-tenth of a mill tax upon the counties that comprise the district.

But the bureaucrats of FIND reckoned without the imposed restrictions of the Legislature...those that insist that the district submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, and without Martin County's Frank Wacha, watchdog of the group.

The amazing part of the story of the one-tenth mill is that it would raise one million dollars in the district.

In testimony before the Florida Legislature, FIND officials stated that they would need only $139,000 to operate this year, and that they would need only some $1.3 million for an eight-year budget.

It is evident that some official of FIND, a group that has had many years of unopposed and apathetic public attention, thought that he would punish the counties by levying a fine, or tax (call it what you will), that would show the people that the group had power after all. The watchdog, Frank Wacha, caught the millage demand and now there is an uproar along the coast.

The support of the state board for the counties in the FIND demand is welcome. It means that some state officials are not for a forgotten bureaucracy suddenly brought to life, as FIND has become.

July 15 was the deadline for the public body to get its request to the counties along the coast so that they would be able to budget its one-tenth of one mill request. The deadline is past.

We hope that the sinking of the FIND hope of retribution shows all public bodies that they are not above the public.

Summer's Violent Challenge

by J. Edgar Hoover

We can expect the coming weeks to present a stiff challenge to law enforcement. Predictions are prevailing that old the country for a "long, hot summer" because of anticipated increases of disturbances and violent crimes.

We would hope the prognosticators of these ominous conditions are wrong; we would hope that a record-breaking summer of strife and lawlessness can be averted. But in addition to the annual seasonal increase of summertime crime---crimes of passion and violence---we can also expect difficulties and violations connected with protest marches and demonstrations occurring across the Nation.

Law enforcement officials know from experience that carelessness by the individual citizen is one factor in crime causation, especially during the summer. The relaxed atmosphere and carefree living are conducive to enjoyment and pleasure, but they also provide the criminal more opportunities to strike.

Each summer, countless Americans unwittingly conduct "open houses" for thieves. They depart for vacation sites without providing proper protection of their homes while away. On return, they are aghast to find their dwellings ransacked and valuable property stolen. A few simple precautionary measures to secure the premises and leave them with an "occupied" appearance often discourage and prevent burglaries.

Crimes against property, however, are only a minor part of the problem. Far more appalling are the vicious attacks on defenseless children by sexual deviates and the murders, rapes, and aggravated assaults which register sharp rises during the summer. The unhealthy and frequent of these violations haunt every community. Law enforcement is still searching for effective preventive action against them, and certainly, negligence and public indifference do not lessen the burden.

Summer is also the season of the hitchhiker and wanderer. The motorist who stops and opens his car door to a stranger may be asking for a death ride for himself and his family. Many times, the innocent-looking young man on the roadside is a trigger-happy or knife-wielding killer. For safety's sake, drivers should exercise that part of valor considered best---discretion---and pass up hitchhikers.

Just how "long and hot" the summer will be depends on how well law enforcement and the public combine efforts to contain seasonal outbreaks. Let us hope that jointly we can make it so "hot" for all lawbreakers that the summer will be one they will "long" remember.

Martin Grade Bids Are Asked

Word was received at the Court House last week that the State Road Department has called for bids on a new portion of SR 714, so-called Martin Grade, from Allapattah Rd., newly designated SR 609, 3.895 miles in an easterly direction.

Bids will be received at Tallahassee no later than 10:30 a.m., July 27.

Last week, Charlie Seneschia, District 4 State Road Board member, announced the completion of a six-mile stretch of SR 714 from Loop Road in a westerly direction. The cost was $378,744.

This new project would reach the intersection of Allapattah Road, which has been designated SR 606 because it will eventually be the so-called Glades cut-off Road from Fort Pierce to SR 710 northwest of Indiantown.

The project is described a "federal aid, secondary" one. Work on the new portion is "extra-heavy grading, 6-1-2 inch limerock stabilized base and asphaltic concrete surface."

Also listed were small drainage structures and incidental items.

Holiday Inn Land OK'd

County Engineer Fred L. Ball said Friday that the State Road Board, at its meeting Friday morning, had OK'd release of Murphy deed land at the intersection of U.S. #1 and SR 5-A on the south side of Stuart for construction of a Holiday Inn, 75-unit motel, a convention hall, restaurant and filling station at the site.

The move was approved by the city and county commissions and District 4 SRD officials.

The release to the SRB had been sought to permit Arthur Quinn, Hot Springs, Ark., to use the lot fronting on both highways.

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, ulm expects to start construction by August 1, and the city is designing the sewer main which would connect to the city's system.

Crowder stated papers will go to the Internal Improvement Fund trustees for preparation of a deed on Monday.

It's alright to give your neighbor a mess of fish, but according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, it's unlawful to sell, offer for sale, barter, purchase or exchange any fresh water game fish.

by DICK CAMPBELL

Chops, Taters, And Gravy

When I was a kid, I remember walking a block down the alley to the little corner grocery store to get five po'k chops, four taters, and a jawbreaker for going. It was a daily ritual.

Back in the thirties, we didn't have the money to be able to buy our groceries by the week. How many remember those days?

Those were the days when my Uncle Chester sat on the front stoop after dinner. He would send me over to the corner saloon with a little pail, and a quarter. I would bring back a bucket of beer, and he would sit there and pass the pail over to my grandfather, and they would take a drink and talk about the government, the W.P.A., the P.W.A. and President Roosevelt.

Our dinners were quite an event. Everyone would sit around the table and grandmother would fill the kitchen with her good-smelling food. The table somehow looked full with the chops and taters.

At just about every meal, Grandpa would say, "Now eat those, God knows we may not have anything next week."

I wanted to be many things; a fireman, a policeman, president...just about everything. I did want to be something.

My paper route money bought some of the chops and taters. So did that of my brother's paper route. Everybody worked to make ends meet. Our family was just about as average as any family could be in the early thirties.

I remember those days very well. Times were tough and the Nation pulled itself up by the bootstraps and made do with what it had. Many people wanted to be something, while others were content with their lot. I guess this is the story of life.

Today, in Congress, there is a still pending that would allow the government to subsidize rents. This bill is one of the most dangerous things in existence today. In a day when jobs are plentiful, when a man who wants to work can do almost anything, and when people know they can, rather than wish they could, the government wants to allow people to live in a place they cannot afford, and pay for part of it.

The cold water flat we lived in in the thirties was all we could afford. I would not like to go back to those days, but I use them as an example of the drive of people to better themselves.

Today I could go back to that same building in St. Louis and find many of the same families living there. Many other families would be gone. Some went on to better their lot. Others like it where they were, and stayed there.

Today the government says to us, "You are not content with your lot. Let me help you by paying your rent. Let me give you medical care you don't have to pay for. Let me win your soul with handouts so that you will never want to work again. Then I will own you."

Politicians' interested only in getting all they can for their areas and in keeping themselves in office continue to deal and trade away the heritage of America.

The people of this land sit back on their tails and deteriorate their responsibility of vigilance to the very men they should watch, the politicians.

Whenever I hear a local citizen say, "I wanted to write a letter on that but I never did get to it," I realize that we have indeed moved into a period of dependence and apathy to government.

Socialism is the creed world society wherein all men are equal, all produce for the common good, and all work for the State.

"We are not all equal. We will never be equal men. I say I am better than any man, and any man can say he is better than me. We both must work to be better, and we must work hard to gain any measure of being better."

I produce for my good. My good produces more jobs directly and indirectly. I feel that I produce better than any man, and that man feels the same.

I will pay my taxes to the government, but, by God and by the honor and right of any free man, I will not work for the government. It works for me, and by my will.

God help this Nation if we negate the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and the Constitution by delegating responsibilities we must carry to our government.

Enclosed is a check for $1.00. Will you please run the following ad, just as you did last week, with this exception. There is only one kitten left.

NEEDED: A good home for ONE healthy kitten. May be seen at 335 Hilltop Court, Jensen Beach, Fla., or call Holly Rains, 287-6181 after 5:30 PM.

Would like to say that we had advertised our kittens via radio, where the coverage was wonderful, and in another paper, with no takers. Apparently The Mirror sells extensively, as we gave one kitten to a couple in Palm City. Also, the ads are arranged so that they hit the eye immediately.

The response was so good last week that we are counting on this next ad to find a home for our last little white kitten. Keep your ad department as it is; it certainly gets a response.

Sincerely,

FIND Files Too Late

According to County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha on Friday, Martin County will probably contest the levy of any millage by

Florida Inland Navigation District because of what he termed "a violation of the terms of the legislation governing such levies."

Under the new statute, said Wacha, FIND must submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, have it approved, set the levy desires to support the budget, get that approved, prior to July 15, at which time it must be submitted to the member counties.

"July 15 was Thursday, we have heard nothing, unless there are extenuating circumstances, I don't believe the county should levy any millage for FIND," said Wacha.

He stated he found it difficult to believe that FIND now finds it needs $1 million after saying it needed only $139,000 for the year, during the fight for its life in Tallahassee. FIND had claimed that $1.3 was needed for an eight-year budget.

Early in the week, FIND asked the counties to levy a mill. Many of the commissioners in district counties are protesting.

Prepare Your Mobile Home Now For The Hurricane Season

The time to attend to the pre-storm preparations for your mobile home is now - not after the hurricane warnings have been hoisted, suggests Hart's Mobile Home Sales. Once the storm is on its way here, the mad scramble is on.

If you haven't applied a coat of roof coating to your mobile home lately, do it now. It will preserve your roof for some time to come, but particularly insure against leaks from the driving rain of a hurricane.

And, most important in the way of local preparations, have Hart's Sales Install anchors to your home. They have two types which will do the most to keep your home right side up during a storm. Strong steel straps are placed over the roof, then secured to ground anchors by sturdy steel cables and durable turn-buckles. With four of these across the roof and frame cables attached to the same ground anchors, your mobile home should withstand quite severe winds. It does take some time to install these properly, though, so don't wait until the last minute. Have it done now, by Hart's, so they can give full attention to completing a perfect job.

If you, have unprotected windows on your mobile home, Hart's have several types of awnings that will not only prevent window breakage during a storm, but add to the beauty and comfort when the sun is shining. Stop by Hart's and see for yourself how inexpensive and durable these window awnings can be.

If you already have an awning on your home and it needs to be reinforced to prevent buckling, Hart's can take care of this, too. They maintain a complete parts department for all your awning needs - and for the entire mobile home. Their repair department is second to none in Martin County, so no matter how small or big the job may be, call on Hart's - your ONE-STOP SHOPPING CENTER for all your trailer needs.

AND MOST OF ALL - for your windstorm insurance needs, Hart's now is the agent for your mobile home insurance. You'll find them ready to serve you in any way they can - and will take care of your repairs, if needed, after the storm has passed.

Remember that during the next few months we can get a hurricane alert at any time - so don't put off doing what needs to be done. SEE HART'S TODAY FOR ALL YOUR MOBILE HOME NEEDS AND SAVE YOURSELF ENDLESS WORRY DURING THIS HURRICANE SEASON.

Race Bias May Loose Murderer

In a move to substantiate a charge made before Federal Judge Bryan Simpson, Jacksonville, that Willie Porter of Stuart did not get a fair trial because of the systematic exclusion of Negroes from juries in this area, a law student has researched Martin County juries. The law student, Michael Kyser, of Columbia University, New York, is working as a clerk in the Miami law firm of Tobias Simeon.

Mr. Kyser spent three days this week making the study and having copies made of jury lists in his attempt to substantiate the charge.

Porter, now 37, was found guilty in Circuit Court here of the machete slaying of Roberta Johns, 59-year-old mother of his girl friend, Gloria F. Johns, on Colbert Road in August, 1961.

Governor Haydon Burns, on July 7, signed Porter's death warrant. Porter had been slated to go to the electric chair next month at some undesignated time.

Portions of testimony, George Travers, of Stuart at that time, now living in Virginia, charged in April, 1962, that Negroes were excluded from the jury lists. He requested a grand jury hearing prior to the trial, and asked that the jury be drawn from a new list.

Travers' motion was denied by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge to quash the first degree murder indictment. Trowbridge said in his ruling, "It is obvious from the evidence that Negroes were not systematically excluded from the jury list, although it is equally obvious that Negroes were not selected in proportion to their voting strength."

However, he pointed out, "No law requires such proportionate selection". Travers had argued that there were 7,608 registered voters at the time he studied the list, and that 740, or 10.8 per cent of them were Negroes.

Judge Trowbridge was upheld by the State Supreme Court which reviewed the conviction.

Travers said there were only 1.2 per cent Negroes on the jury list.

Judge Simpson ordered the Raiford State Prison Warden to show by August 2 why the murder conviction should not be set aside.

Another convicted Martin County man is in death row at Raiford. He is Edward Williams who was convicted in 1962.

P-W Road Assures Growth

It has certainly been a long time coming. And, it still isn't here. But the State Road Department took a giant step forward in the progress of Martin County when the members voted to begin purchase of rights-of-way for the Pratt-Whitney Road, now known as State Road 711.

Perhaps the lucky numbers of seven-eleven will mean luck for Martin County. We hope so. But the future progress of the county should not depend on luck. Nor should the development of a road that holds the key to future growth of this county have its fate decided by the roll of the dice of fate.

We are proud that the road board has decided to gain rights-of-way, even though they are only to the Palm Beach County line. The fact that the state has accepted it as a state road is present enough. The naming of SR 711 means that the road will be continued to the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft plant, and that highly skilled employees of the plant who live in Martin County will have easier access to their work.

One hidden value is that many employees of P-W will probably decide to make their home in this paradise.

When the road is open, and the automobiles trawgl across the agricultural plains of Martin County, we must remember that the effort has been one of many years' work by the Martin County Commission, the Committee of 100, R. V. Johnson, local Realtor, and now, the State Road Board.

Thanks to all of you.

A Great Man Passes On

The death of Adlai Stevenson brought sorrow to millions of Americans. His passing was the passing of a great American.

That it should happen on a busy street in London-town, just within a stone's throw of the American Consulate, was a mark of the measure of a man dedicated to his Nation.

We cannot but miss the ringing tones of his cultured voice, telling the praises of his country with a pride he felt deeply, and the sharpened barbs of his oratory in chiding a nation that overstepped the bounds of diplomacy.

He missed the opportunity of being the President of the United States two times, defeated by another great American, He was Governor of the State of Illinois.

But his greatest moment of life was his four years as the United States ambassador to the United Nations, a flounder-ing body of nations devoted to an ideal, to whom he gave vitality. His speeches will live, and his example will give the world an example of what the word "civilized" means.

Adlai Stevenson is dead. Long live his memory.

FIND Retribution Sinks

The counties of East Florida have felt the taste of opposition to the power of a bureaucracy. The Florida Inland Navigation District, still testy from the penalties of control imposed by the Florida Legislature, has decided to impose one-tenth of a mill tax upon the counties that comprise the district.

But the bureaucrats of FIND reckoned without the imposed restrictions of the Legislature...those that insist that the district submit a budget to the State Board of Conser-vation, and without Martin County's Frank Wacha, watch-dog of the group.

The amazing part of the story of the one-tenth mill is that it would raise one million dollars in the district.

In testimony before the Florida Legislature, FIND officials stated that they would need only $139,000 to operate this year, and that they would need only some $1.3 million for an eight-year budget.

It is evident that some official of FIND, a group that has had many years of unopposed and apathetic public attention, thought that he would punish the counties by levying a fine, or tax (call it what you will), that would show the people that the group had power after all. The watchdog, Frank Wacha, caught the millage demand and now there is an uproar along the coast.

The support of the state board for the counties in the FIND demand is welcome. It means that some state officials are not for a forgotten bureaucracy suddenly brought to life, as FIND has become.

July 15 was the deadline for the public body to get its request to the counties along the coast so that they would be able to budget its one-tenth of one mill request. The deadline is past.

We hope that the sinking of the FIND hope of retribution shows all public bodies that they are not above the public.

Summer's Violent Challenge

by J. Edgar Hoover

We can expect the coming weeks to present a stiff challenge to law enforcement. Predictions are prevalent throughout the country now a "long, hot summer" because of anticipated increases of disturbances and violent crimes.

We would hope the prognosticators of these ominous conditions are wrong; we would hope that a record-breaking summer of strife and lawlessness can be averted. But in addition to the annual seasonal increase of summertime crimes---crimes of passion and violence---we can also expect difficulties and violations connected with protest marches and demonstrations occurring across the Nation.

Law enforcement officials know from experience that carelessness by the individual is one factor in crime causation, especially during the summer. The relaxed atmosphere and carefree living are conducive to enjoyment and pleasure, but they also provide the criminal more opportunities to strike.

Each summer, countless Americans unwittingly conduct "open houses" for thieves. They depart for vacation sites without providing proper protection of their homes while away. On return, they are aghast to find their dwellings ransacked and valuable property stolen. A few simple precautionary measures to secure the premises and leave them with an "occupied" appearance often discourage and prevent burglaries.

Crimes against property, however, are only a minor part of the problem. Far more appalling are the vicious attacks on defenseless children by sexual deviates and the murders, rapes, and aggravated assaults which register sharp rises during the summer. The intensity and frequency of these violations haunt every community. Law enforcement is still searching for effective preventive action against them, and certainly, negligence and public indifference do not lessen the burden.

Summer is also the season of the hitchhiker and wanderer. The motorist who stops and opens his car door to a stranger may be asking for a death ride for himself and his family. Many times, the innocent-looking young man on the roadside is a trigger-happy or knife-wielding killer. For safety's sake, drivers should exercise that part of vacation considered best---discretion---and pass up hitchhikers.

Just how "long and hot" the summer will be depends on how well law enforcement and the public combine efforts to contain seasonal outbreaks. Let us hope that jointly we can make it so "hot" for all lawbreakers that the summer will be one they will "blow" remember.

Martin Grade Bids Are Asked

Word was received at the Court House last week that the State Road Department has called for bids on a new portion of SR 714, so-called Martin Grade, from Allapattah Rd., newly designated SR 609, 3.893 miles in an easterly direction.

Bids will be received at Tallahassee no later than 10:30 a.m., July 27.

Last week, Chelsie Sense chia, District 4 State Road Board member, announced the completion of a six-mile stretch of SR 714 from Loop Road in a westerly direction. The cost was $378,744.

This new project would reach the intersection of Allapattah Road, which has been designated SR 606 because it will eventually be the so-called Glades cut-off Road from Fort Pierce to SR 76 northwest of Indiantown.

The project is described a "federal aid, secondary" one. Work on the new portion is "extra-heavy grading, 6 1 2 inch limerock cas-

Also listed were small drainage structures and incidental items.

Holiday Inn Land OK'd

County Engineer Fred L. Bell said Friday that the State Road Board, at its meeting Friday morning, had OK'd release of Murphy deed land at the intersection of U.S.#1 and SR 5-A on the south side of Stuart for construction of a Holiday Inn, 75-unit motel, a convention hall, restaurant and filling station at the site.

The move was approved by the city and county commissions and District 4 SHD officials.

The release to the SRB had been sought to permit Arthur Quinn, Hot Springs, Ark., to use the lot fronting on both highways.

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, unn expects to start construc-tion by August 1, and the city is designing the sewer main which would connect to the city's system.

Crowder stated papers will go to the Internal Improvement Fund trustees for preparation of a deed on Monday.

It's alright to give your neighbor a mess of fish, but according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, it's unlawful to sell, offer for sale, barter, purchase or exchange any fresh water game fish.

Chops, Taters, And Gravy

When I was a kid, I remember walking a block down the alley to the little corner grocery store to get five pork chops, four taters, and a jawbreaker for going. It was a daily ritual.

Back in the thirties, we didn't have the money to be able to buy our groceries by the week. How many remember those days?

Those were the days when my Uncle Chester sat on the front stoop after dinner. He would send me over to the corner saloon with a little pail, and a quarter. I would bring back a bucket of beer, and he would sit there and pass the pail over to my grandfather, and they would take a drink and talk about the government, the W.P.A., the P.W.A. and President Roosevelt.

Our dinners were quite an event. Everyone would sit around the table and grandmother would fill the kitchen with her good-smelling food. The table somehow looked full with the chops and taters.

At just about every meal, Grandpa would say, "Now eat those. God knows we may not have anything next week."

I wanted to be many things; a fireman, a policeman, president...just about everything. I did want to be something.

My paper route money bought some of the chops and taters. So did that of my brother's paper route. Everybody worked to make ends meet. Our family was just about as average as any family could be in the early thirties.

I remember those days very well. Times were tough and the Nation pulled itself up by the bootstraps and made do with what it had. Many people wanted to be something, while others were content with their lot. I guess this is the story of life.

Today, in Congress, there is a bill pending that would allow the government to subsidize rents. This bill is one of the most dangerous things in existance today. In a day when jobs are plentiful, when a man who wants to work can do almost anything, and when people know they can, rather than wish they could, the government wants to allow people to live in a place they cannot afford, and pay for part of it.

The cold water flat we lived in in the thirties was all we could afford. I would not like to go back to those days, but I use them as an example of the drive of people to better themselves.

Today I could go back to that same building at 96 Louis and find many of the same families living there. Many other families would've gone. Some went on to better their lot. Others like it where they were, and stayed there.

Today the government says to us, "You are not content with your lot. Let me help you by paying your rent. Let me give you medical care you don't have to pay for. Let me win your soul with handouts so that you will never want to work again. Then I will own you."

Politicians interested only in getting all they can for their areas and in keeping themselves in office continue to deal and trade away the heritage of America.

The people of this land sit back on their talls and delegate their responsibility of vigilance to the very men they should watch, the politicians.

Whenever I hear a local citizen say, "I wanted to write a letter on that but I never did get to it," I realize that we have indeed moved into a period of dependence and apathy to government.

Socialism is the great world society wherein all men are equal, all produce for the common good, and all work for the State.

We are not all equal. We will never be equal per. I say I am better than any man, and any man can say he is better than me. We both must work to be better, and we must work hard to gain any measure of being better.

I produce for my good. My good produces more jobs directly and indirectly. I feel that I produce better than any man, and that man feels the same.

I will pay my taxes to the government, but, by God and by the honor and right of any free man, I will not work for the government. It works for me, and by my will.

God help this Nation if we negate the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and the Constitution by delegating responsibilities we must carry to our government.

To the Editor

Enclosed is a check for $1.00. Will you please run the following ad, just as you did last week, with this exception. There is only one kitten left.

NEEDED: A good home for ONE healthy kitten. May be seen at 336 Hilltop Court, Jensen Beach, Fla., or call Holly Rains, 287-6181 after 5:30 PM.

Would like to say that we had advertised our kittens via radio, where the coverage was wonderful, and in another paper, with no takers. Apparently The Mirror sells extensively, as we gave one kitten to a couple in Palm City. Also, the ads are arranged so that they hit the eye immediately.

The response was so good last week that we are counting on this next ad to find a home for our last little white kitten. Keep your ad department as it is; it certainly gets a response.

FIND Files Too Late

According to County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha on Friday, Martin County will probably contest the levy of any millage by Florida Inland Navigation District because of what he termed "a violation of the terms of the legislation governing such levies."

Under the new statute, said Wacha, FIND must submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, have it approved, set the levy it requires to support the budget, get that approved, prior to July 15, at which time it must be submitted to the member counties.

"July 15 was Thursday, we have heard nothing, unless there are extenuating circumstances, I don't believe the county should levy any millage for FIND," said Wacha.

He stated he found it difficult to believe that FIND now finds it needs $1 million after saying it needed only $139,000 for the year, during the fight for its life in Tallahassee. FIND had claimed that $1.3 was needed for an eight-year budget.

Early in the week, FIND asked the counties in the district to levy one-tenth of a mill. Many of the commissioners in district counties are protesting.

Prepare Your Mobile Home Now For The Hurricane Season

The time to attend to the pre-storm preparations for your mobile home is now - not after the hurricane warnings have been hoisted, suggests Hart's Mobile Home Sales. Once the storm is on its way here, the mad scramble is on.

If you haven't applied a coat of roof coating to your mobile home lately, do it now. It will preserve your roof for some time to come, but particularly insure against leaks from the driving rain of a hurricane.

And, most important in the way of local preparations, have Hart's Sales install anchors to your home. They have two types which will do the most to keep your home right side up during a storm. Strong steel straps are placed over the roof, then secured to ground anchors by sturdy steel cables and durable turn-buckles. With four of these across the roof and frame cables attached to the same ground anchors, your mobile home should withstand quite severe winds. It does take some time to install these properly, though, so don't wait until the last minute. Have it done now, by Hart's, so they can give full attention to completing a perfect job.

If you have unprotected windows on your mobile home, Hart's have several types of awnings that will not only prevent window breakage during a storm, but add to the beauty and comfort when the sun is shining. Stop by Hart's and see for yourself how inexpensive and durable these window awnings can be.

If you already have an awning on your home and it needs to be reinforced to prevent buckling, Hart's can take care of this, too. They maintain a complete parts department for all your awning needs - and for the entire mobile home. Their repair department is second to none in Martin County, so no matter how small or big the job may be, call on Hart's - your ONE-STOP SHOPPING CENTER for all your trailer needs.

AND MOST OF ALL - for your windstorm insurance needs, Hart's now is the agent for your mobile home insurance. You'll find them ready to serve you in any way they can - and will take care of your repairs, if needed, after the storm has passed.

Remember that during the next few months we can get a hurricane alert at any time - so don't put off doing what needs to be done. SEE HART'S TODAY FOR ALL YOUR MOBILE HOME NEEDS AND SAVE YOURSELF ENDLESS WORRY DURING THIS HURRICANE SEASON.

Race Bias May Loose Murderer

In a move to substantiate a charge made before Federal Judge Bryan Simpson, Jacksonville, that Willie Porter of Stuart did not get a fair trial because of the systematic exclusion of Negroes from juries in this area, a law student has researched Martin County juries. The law student, Michael Kyser, of Columbia University, New York, is working as a clerk in the Miami law firm of Tobias Simon.

Mr. Kyser spent three days this week making the study, and having copies made of jury lists in his attempt to substantiate the charge.

Porter, now 37, was found guilty in Circuit Court here of the machete slaying of Roberta Johns, 59-year-old mother of his girl friend, Gloria F. Johns, on Cuthbert Road in August, 1961.

Governor Haydon Burns, on July 7, signed Porter's death warrant. Porter had been slated to go to the electric chair next week at Raiford unless stayed.

Porter's attorney, George Travers, of Stuart at that time, now living in Virginia, charged in April, 1962, that Negroes were excluded from the jury list. He requested a grand jury hearing prior to the trial, and asked that the jury be drawn from a new list.

Travers' motion was denied by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge to quash the first degree murder indictment. Trowbridge said in his ruling, "It is obvious from the evidence that Negroes were not systematically excluded from the jury list, although it is equally obvious that Negroes were not selected in proportion to their voting strength."

However, he pointed out, "No law requires such proportionate selection". Travers had argued that there were 7,608 registered voters at the time he studied the list, and that 740, or 10.8 per cent of them were Negroes.

Judge Trowbridge was upheld by the State Supreme Court which reviewed the conviction.

Travers said there were only 1.3 per cent Negroes on the jury list.

Judge Simpson ordered the Raiford State Prison Warden to show by August 2 why the murder conviction should not be set aside.

Another convicted Martin County man is in death row at Raiford. He is Edward Williams who was convicted in 1962.

Herbert Smith Address Trinity Congregation

Filling the pulpit of Trinity Methodist Church of Jensen Beach on Sunday, July 25, will be Mr. Herbert L. Smith who is a certified Lay Speaker of the Methodist Church and a member of the Trinity Methodist Church.

Mr. Smith was born in Port Chester, New York, but resided for fifty years between Hartsdale and White Plains, New York. Mr. Smith has had several years banking experience and for thirty years was a top-ranking salesman during which time he was sales manager for the Mosler Safe Company.

Mr. Smith is married to the former Iva Minnetta Lewis of Hartsdale. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have three children and six grandchildren.

Mr. Smith will speak on the subject, "Whose Kingdom?", using the scripture text "Thy Kingdom Come".

OVAL-SHAPE CHAPEL FOR NOVITIATE--Construction of the new Chapel-Multi-purpose building started July 12th, at St. Joseph's Novitiate College on Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. It will adjoin the present building.

Construction Begins On Novitiate Chapel

Construction of the new Chapel multi-purpose building at St. Joseph's Novitiate College began Monday, July 12. J. C. Crawford, chief engineer, stated that preliminary plans are under way for the lay-out of the new building which will adjoin the present building.

The Chapel, oval in shape, will be connected to the south end of the present building and will expand into an auditorium-Lecture Hall with a seating capacity of approximately 800.

Upon completion of the construction, the present Chapel area will be converted to additional classrooms to serve the increased enrollment at the College.

Courses at the two-year liberal arts college are restricted at present to young ladies in training to become future Sisters of St. Joseph's serving as teachers, nurses and social workers in Florida and Puerto Rico. The motherhouse of this religious community of sisters is in St. Augustine.

Thomas Madden is the Miami architect, and W. W. Arnold of Fort Pierce is the contractor.

New Swings Were Added At Hobe Sound

Three juvenile-size swing chairs have been added to the Hobe Sound playground at the ballpark, as improvement of the park continues.

Prior to the Independence Day celebration, new stands were built at the ballfield, using taxing district funds.

Jack Saunderson, County Commissioner, has said that lights and swings for adults probably will be added in the district budget for the new fiscal year.

P-W Road Assures Growth

It has certainly been a long time coming. And, it still isn't here. But the State Road Department took a giant step forward in the progress of Martin County when the members voted to begin purchase of rights-of-way for the Pratt-Whitney Road, now known as State Road 711.

Perhaps the lucky numbers of seven-eleven will mean luck for Martin County. We hope so. But the future progress of the county should not depend on luck. Nor should the development of a road that holds the key to future growth of this county have its fate decided by the roll of the dice of fate.

We are proud that the road board has decided to gain rights-of-way, even though they are only to the Palm Beach County line. The fact that the state has accepted it as a state road is present enough. The naming of SR 711 means that the road will be continued to the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft plant, and that highly skilled employees of the plant who live in Martin County will have easier access to their work.

One hidden value is that many employees of P-W will probably decide to make their home in this paradise.

When the road is open, and the automobiles travel across the agricultural plains of Martin County, we must remember that the effort has been one of many years' work by the Martin County Commission, the Committee of 100, R. V. Johnson, local Realtor, and now the State Road Board.

Thanks to all of you.

A Great Man Passes On

The death of Adlai Stevenson brought sorrow to millions of Americans. His passing was the passing of a great American.

That it should happen on a busy street in London-town, just within a stone's throw of the American Consulate, was a mark of the measure of a man dedicated to his Nation.

We cannot but miss the ringing tones of his cultured voice, telling the praises of his country with a pride he felt deeply, and the sharpened barbs of his oratory in chiding a nation that overstepped the bounds of diplomacy.

He missed the opportunity of being the President of the United States two times, defeated by another great American. He was Governor of the State of Illinois.

But his greatest moment of life was his four years as the United States ambassador to the United Nations, a floundering body of nations devoted to an ideal, to whom he gave vitality. His speeches will live, and his example will give the world an example of what the word "civilized" means.

Adlai Stevenson is dead. Long live his memory.

FIND Retribution Sinks

The counties of East Florida have felt the taste of opposition to the power of a bureaucracy. The Florida Inland Navigation District, still testy from the penalties of control imposed by the Florida Legislature, has decided to impose one-tenth of a mill tax upon the counties that comprise the district.

But the bureaucrats of FIND reckoned without the imposed restrictions of the Legislature...those that insist that the district submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, and without Martin County's Frank Wacha, watchdog of the group.

The amazing part of the story of the one-tenth mill is that it would raise one million dollars in the district.

In testimony before the Florida Legislature, FIND officials stated that they would need only $139,000 to operate this year, and that they would need only some $1.3 million for an eight-year budget.

It is evident that some official of FIND, a group that has had many years of unopposed and apathetic public attention, thought that he would punish the counties by levying a fine, or tax (call it what you will), that would show the people that the group had power after all. The watchdog, Frank Wacha, caught the millage demand and now there is an uproar along the coast.

The support of the state board for the counties in the FIND demand is welcome. It means that some state officials are not for a forgotten bureaucracy suddenly brought to life, as FIND has become.

July 15 was the deadline for the public body to get its request to the counties along the coast so that they would be able to budget its one-tenth of one mill request. The deadline is past.

We hope that the sinking of the FIND hope of retribution shows all public bodies that they are not above the public.

Summer's Violent Challenge

by J. Edgar Hoover

We can expect the coming weeks to present a stiff challenge to law enforcement. Predictions are prevalent throughout the country for a "long-hot summer" because of anticipated increases of disturbances and violent crimes.

We would hope the prognosticators of these ominous conditions are wrong; we would hope that a record-breaking summer of strife and lawlessness can be averted. But in addition to the annual seasonal increase of summertime crime---rimes of passion and violence---we can also expect difficulties and violations connected with protest marches and demonstrations occurring across the Nation.

Law enforcement officials know from experience that carelessness by the individual citizen is one factor in crime causation, especially during the summer. The relaxed atmosphere and carefree living are conducive to enjoyment and pleasure, but they also provide the criminal more opportunities to strike.

Each summer, countless Americans unwittingly conduct "open houses" for thieves. They leave their vacation sites without providing proper protection of their homes while away. On return, they are aghast to find their dwellings ransacked and valuable property stolen. A few simple precautionary measures to secure the premises and leave them with an "occupied" appearance often discourage and prevent burglaries.

Critics against property, however, are only a minor part of the problem. Far more appalling are the vicious attacks on defenseless children by sexual deviates and the murders, rapes, and aggravated assaults which register sharp rises during the summer. The intensity and frequency of these violations haunt every community. Law enforcement is still searching for effective preventive action against them, and certainly, neglicence and public indifference do not lessen the burden.

Summer is also the season of the hitchhiker and wanderer. The motorist who stops and opens his car door to a stranger may be asking for a death ride for himself and his family. Many times, the innocent-looking young man on the roadside is a carefree-happy or knife-wielding killer. For safety's sake, drivers should exercise that part of valor considered best---discretion---and pass up hitchhikers.

Just how "long and hot" the summer will be depends on how well law enforcement and the public combine efforts to contain seasonal outbreaks. Let us hope that jointly we can make it so "hot" for all lawbreakers that the summer will be one they will "long" remember.

Martin Grade Bids Are Asked

Word was received at the Court House last week that the State Road Department has called for bids on a new portion of SR 714, so-called Martin Grade, from Allapattah Rd. (new) designated SR 609, 3.893 miles in an easterly direction.

Bids will be received at Tallahassee no later than 10:30 a.m., July 27.

Last week, Charlie Senechia, District 4 State Road Board member, announced the completion of a six-mile stretch of SR 714 from Loop Road in a westerly direction. The cost was $378,744.

This new project would reach the intersection of Allapattah Road, which has been designated SR 606 because it will eventually be the so-called Glades cut-off Road from Fort Pierce to SR 710 northwest of Indiantown.

The project is described a "federal aid, secondary" one. Work on the new portion is "extra-heavy grading, 6-1-2 inch limerock base." Also listed were small drainage structures and incidental items.

Holiday Inn Land OK'd

County Engineer Fred L. Bell said Friday that the State Road board, at its meeting Friday morning, had OK'd release of Murphy deed land at the intersection of U.S. #1 and SR 5-A on the south side of Stuart for construction of a Holiday Inn, 75-unit motel, a convention hall, restaurant and filling station at the site.

The move was approved by the city and county commissions and District 4 SRD officials.

The release to the SRB had been sought to permit Arthur Quinn, Hot Springs, Ark., to use the lot fronting on both highways.

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, ulnn expects to start construction by August 1, and the city is designing the sewer main which would connect to the city's system.

Crowder stated papers will go to the Internal Improvement Fund trustees for preparation of a deed on Monday.

It's alright to give your neighbor a mess of fish, but according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, it's unlawful to sell, offer for sale, barter, purchase or exchange any fresh water game fish.

Chops, Taters, And Gravy

When I was a kid, I remember walking a block down the alley to the little corner grocery store to get five pork chops, four taters, and a jawbreaker for going. It was a daily ritual.

Back in the thirties, we didn't have the money to be able to buy our groceries by the week. How many remember those days?

Those were the days when my Uncle Chester sat on the front stoop after dinner. He would send me over to the corner saloon with a little pail, and a quarter. I would bring back a bucket of beer, and he would sit there and pass the pail over to my grandfather, and they would take a drink and talk about the government, the W.P.A., the P.W.A. and President Roosevelt.

Our dinners were quite an event. Everyone would sit around the table and grandmother would fill the kitchen with her good-smelling food. The table somehow looked full with the chops and taters.

At just about every meal, Grandpa would say, "How eat those, God knows we may not have anything next week."

I wanted to be many things; a fireman, a policeman, president...just about everything. I did want to be something.

My paper route money bought some of the chops and taters. So did that of my brother's paper route. Everybody worked to make ends meet. Our family was just about as average as any family could be in the early thirties.

I remember those days very well. Times were tough and the Nation pulled itself up by the bootstraps and made do with what it had. Many people wanted to be something, while others were content with their lot. I guess this is the story of life.

Today, in Congress, there is a bill pending that would allow the government to subsidize rents. This bill is one of the most dangerous things in existance today. In a day when jobs are plentiful, when a man who wants to work can do almost anything, and when people know they can, rather than wish they could, the government wants to allow people to live in a place they cannot afford, and pay for part of it.

The cold water flat we lived in in the thirties was all we could afford. I would not like to go back to those days, but I use them as an example of the drive of people to better themselves.

Today I could go back to that same building in St. Louis and find many of the same families living there. Many other families would be gone. Some went on to better their lot. Others like it where they were, and stayed there.

Today the government says to us, "You are not content with your lot. Let me help you by paying your rent. Let me give you medicare as you don't have to pay for. Let me win your soul with handouts so that you will never want to work again. Then I will own you."

Politicians interested only in getting all they can for their areas and in keeping themselves in office continue to deal and trade away the heritage of America.

The people of this land sit back on their tails and delegate their responsibility of vigilance to the very men they should watch, the politicians.

Whenever I hear a local citizen say, "I wanted to, write a letter on that but I never did get to it," I realize that we have indeed moved into a period of dependence and apathy to government.

Socialism is the great world society wherein all men are equal, all produce for the common good, and all work for the State.

We are not all equal. We will never be equal men. I say I am better than any man, and any man can say he is better than me. We both must work to be better, and we must work hard to gain any measure of being better.

I produce for my good, My good produces more jobs directly and indirectly. I feel that I produce better than any man, and that man feels the same.

I will pay my taxes to the government, but, by God and by the honor and right of any free man, I will work for the government. It works for me, and by my will.

God help this Nation if we negate the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and the Constitution by delegating responsibilities we must carry to our government.

Enclosed is a check for $1.00. Will you please run the following ad just as you did last week, with this exception. There is only one kitten left.

NEEDED; A good home for ONE healthy kitten. May be seen at 335 Hilltop Court, Jensen Beach, Fla., or call Holly Rains, 287-6181 after 5:30 P.M.

Would like to say that we had advertised our kittens via radio, where the coverage was wonderful, and in another paper, with no takers. Apparently The Mirror sells extensively, as we gave one kitten to a couple in Palm City. Also, the ads are arranged so that they hit the eye immediately.

The response was so good last week that we are counting on this next ad to find a home for our last little white kitten. Keep your ad department as it is; it certainly gets a response.

FIND Files Too Late

According to County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha on Friday, Martin County will probably contest the levy of any millage by Florida Inland Navigation District because of what he termed "a violation of the terms of the legislation governing such levies."

Under the new statute, said Wacha, FIND must submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, have it approved, set the levy it desires to support the budget, get that approved, prior to July 15, at which time it must be submitted to the member counties.

"July 15 was Thursday, we have heard nothing, unless there are extenuating circumstances, I don't believe the county should levy any millage for FIND," said Wacha.

He stated he found it difficult to believe that FIND now finds it needs $1 million after saying it needed only $139,000 for the year, during the fight for its life in Tallahassee. FIND had claimed that $1.3 was needed for an eight-year budget.

Early in the week, FIND asked the counties in the district to levy one-tenth of a mill, Many of the commissioners in district counties are protesting.

Prepare Your Mobile Home Now For The Hurricane Season

The time to attend to the pre-storm preparations for your mobile home is now - not after the hurricane warnings have been hoisted, suggests Hart's Mobile Home Sales. Once the storm is on its way here, the mad scramble is on.

If you haven't applied a coat of roof coating to your mobile home lately, do it now. It will preserve your roof for some time to come, but particularly insure against leaks from the driving rain of a hurricane.

And, most important in the way of local preparations, have Hart's Sales install anchors to your home. They have two types which will do the most to keep your home right side up during a storm. Strong steel straps are placed over the roof, then secured to ground anchors by sturdy steel cables and durable turn-buckles. With four of these across the roof and frame cables attached to the same ground anchors, your mobile home should withstand quite severe winds. It does take some time to install these properly, though, so don't wait until the last minute. Have it done now, by Hart's, so they can give full attention to completing a perfect job.

If you have unprotected windows on your mobile home, Hart's have several types of awnings that will not only prevent window breakage during a storm, but add to the beauty and comfort when the sun is shining. Stop by Hart's and see for yourself how inexpensive and durable these window awnings can be.

If you already have an awning on your home and it needs to be reinforced to prevent buckling, Hart's can take care of this, too. They maintain a complete parts department for all your awning needs - and for the entire mobile home. Their repair department is second to none in Martin County, so no matter how small or big the job may be, call on Hart's - your ONE-STOP SHOPPING CENTER for all your trailer needs.

AND MOST OF ALL - for your windstorm insurance needs, Hart's now is the agent for your mobile home insurance. You'll find them ready to serve you in any way they can - and will take care of your repairs, if needed, after the storm has passed.

Remember that during the next few months we can get a hurricane alert at any time - so don't put off doing what needs to be done. SEE HART'S TODAY FOR ALL YOUR MOBILE HOME NEEDS AND SAVE YOURSELF ENDLESS WORRY DURING THIS HURRICANE SEASON.

Race Bias May Loose Murderer

In a move to substantiate a charge made before Federal Judge Bryan Simpson, Jacksonville, that Willie Porter of Stuart did not get a fair trial because of the systematic exclusion of Negroes from juries in this area, a law student has researched Martin County juries. The law student, Michael Kyser, of Columbia University, New York, is working as a clerk in the Miami law firm of Tobias Simeon.

Mr. Kyser spent three days this week making the study and having copies made of jury lists in his attempt to substantiate the charge.

Porter, now 37, was found guilty in Circuit Court here of the ax-hatchete slaying of Roberta Johns, 59-year-old mother of his girl friend, Gloria F. Johns, on Cuthbert Road in August, 1961.

Governor Haydon Burns, on July 7, signed Porter's death warrant. Porter had been slated to go to the electric chair next week at some undesignated time.

Porter's attorney, George Travers, of Stuart at that time, now living in Virginia, charged in April, 1962, that Negroes were excluded from the jury list. He requested a grand jury hearing prior to the trial, and asked that the jury be drawn from a new list.

Travers' motion was denied by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge to quash the first degree murder indictment. Trowbridge said in his ruling, "It is obvious from the evidence that Negroes were not systematically excluded from the jury list, although it is equally obvious that Negroes were not selected in proportion to their voting strength."

However, he pointed out, "No law requires such proportionate selection". Travers had argued that there were 7,608 registered voters at the time he studied the list, and that 740, or 10.8 per cent of them were Negroes.

Judge Trowbridge was upheld by the State Supreme Court which reviewed the conviction.

Trivers said there were only 1.2 per cent Negroes on the jury list.

Judge Simpson ordered the Raiford State Prison Warden to show by August 2 why the murder conviction should not be set aside.

Another convicted Martin County man is in death row at Raiford. He is Edward Williams who was convicted in 1962.

Herbert Smith Address Trinity Congregation

Filling the pulpit of Trinity Methodist Church of Jensen Beach on Sunday, July 25, will be Mr. Herbert L. Smith who is a certified Lay Speaker of the Methodist Church and a member of the Trinity Methodist Church.

Mr. Smith was born in Fort Chester, New York, but resided for fifty years between Hartsdale and White Plains, New York. Mr. Smith has had several years banking experience and for thirty years was a top-ranking salesman during which time he was sales manager for the Mosler Safe Company.

Mr. Smith is married to the former Iva Minnetta Lewis of Hartsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Smith have three children and six grandchildren.

Mr. Smith will speak on the subject, "Whose Kingdom", using the scripture text "Thy Kingdom Come".

OVAL-SHAPE CHAPEL FOR NOVITIATE—Construction of the new Chapel-Multi-purpose building started July 12th, at St. Joseph's Novitiate College on Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. It will adjoin the present building.

Construction Begins On Novitiate Chapel

Construction of the new Chapel multi-purpose building at St. Joseph's Novitiate College began Monday, July 12, J. C. Crawford, chief engineer, stated that preliminary plans are under way for the lay-out of the new building which will adjoin the present building.

P-W Road Assures Growth

It has certainly been a long time coming. And, it still isn't here. But the State Road Department took a giant step forward in the progress of Martin County when the members voted to begin purchase of rights-of-way for the Pratt-Whitney Road, now known as State Road 711.

Perhaps the lucky numbers of seven-eleven will mean luck for Martin County. We hope so. But the future progress of the county should not depend on luck. Nor should the development of a road that holds the key to future growth of this county have its fate decided by the roll of the dice of fate.

We are proud that the road board has decided to gain rights-of-way, even though they are only to the Palm Beach County line. The fact that the state has accepted it as a state road is present enough. The naming of SR 711 means that the road will be continued to the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft plant, and that highly skilled employees of the plant who live in Martin County will have easier access to their work.

One hidden value is that many employees of P-W will probably decide to make their home in this paradise.

When the road is open, and the automobiles travel across the agricultural plains of Martin County, we must remember that the effort has been one of many years' work by the Martin County Commission, the Committee of 100, R. V. Johnson, local Realtor, and now, the State Road Board.

Thanks to all of you.

A Great Man Passes On

The death of Adlai Stevenson brought sorrow to millions of Americans. His passing was the passing of a great American.

That it should happen on a busy street in London-town, just within a stone's throw of the American Consulate, was a mark of the measure of a man dedicated to his Nation.

We cannot but miss the ringing tones of his cultured voice, telling the praises of his country with a pride he felt deeply, and the sharpened barbs of his oratory in chiding a nation that overstepped the bounds of diplomacy.

He missed the opportunity of being the President of the United States two times, defeated by another great American. He was Governor of the State of Illinois.

But his greatest moment of life was his four years as the United States ambassador to the United Nations, a floundering body of nations devoted to an ideal, to whom he gave vitality. His speeches live, and his example will give the world an example of what the word "civilized" means.

Adlai Stevenson is dead. Long live his memory.

FIND Retribution Sinks

The counties of East Florida have felt the taste of opposition to the power of a bureaucracy. The Florida Inland Navigation District, still testy from the penalties of control imposed by the Florida Legislature, has decided to impose one-tenth of a mill tax upon the counties that comprise the district.

But the bureaucrats of FIND reckoned without the imposed restrictions of the Legislature...those that insist that the district submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, and without Martin County's Frank Wacha, watchdog of the group.

The amazing part of the story of the one-tenth mill is that it would raise one million dollars in the district.

In testimony before the Florida Legislature, FIND officials stated that they would need only $139,000 to operate this year, and that they would need only some $1.3 million for an eight-year budget.

It is evident that some official of FIND, a group that has had many years of unopposed and apathetic public attention, thought that he would punish the counties by levying a fine, or tax (call it what you will), that would show the people that the group had power after all. The watchdog, Frank Wacha, caught the millage demand and now there is an uproar along the coast.

The support of the state board for the counties in the FIND demand is welcome. It means that some state officials are not for a forgotten bureaucracy suddenly brought to life, as FIND has become.

July 15 was the deadline for the public body to get its request to the counties along the coast so that they would be able to budget its one-tenth of one mill request. The deadline is past.

We hope that the sinking of the FIND hope of retribution shows all public bodies that they are not above the public.

Summer's Violent Challenge

by J. Edgar Hoover

We can expect the coming weeks to present a stiff challenge to law enforcement. Predictions are prevalent throughout the country for a "long, hot summer" because of anticipated increases of disturbances and violent crimes.

We would hope the prognosticators of these ominous conditions are wrong; we would hope that a record-breaking summer of strife and lawfulness can be averted. But in addition to the annual seasonal increase of summertime crime—crimes of passion and violence—we can also expect difficulties and violations connected with protest marches and demonstrations occurring across the Nation.

Law enforcement officials know from experience that carelessness by the individual citizen is one factor in crime causation, especially during the summer. The relaxed atmosphere and carefree living are conducive to enjoyment and pleasure, but they also provide the criminal more opportunities to strike.

Each summer, countless Americans unwittingly conduct "open houses" for thieves. They depart on vacation sites without providing proper protection of their homes while away. On return, they are aghast to find their dwellings ransacked and valuable property stolen. A few simple precautionary measures to secure the premises and leave them with an "occupied" appearance often discourage and prevent burglaries.

Crimes against property, however, are only a minor part of the problem. Far more appalling are the vicious attacks on defenseless children by sexual deviates and the murders, rapes, and aggravated assaults which register sharp rises during the summer. The intensity and frequency of these violations test every community. Law enforcement is still searching for effective preventive action against them, and certainly, negligence and public indifference do not lessen the burden.

Summer is also the season of the hitchhiker and wanderer. The motorist who stops and opens his car door to a stranger may be asking for a death ride for himself and his family. Many times, the innocent-looking young man on the roadside is a trigger-happy or knife-wielding killer. For safety's sake, drivers should exercise that part of valor considered best—discretion—and pass up hitchhikers.

Just how "long and hot" the summer will be depends on how well law enforcement and the public combine efforts to combat seasonal outbreaks. Let us hope that jointly we can make it so "hot" for all lawbreakers that the summer will be one they will "long" remember.

Martin Grade Bids Are Asked

Word was received at the Court House last week that the State Road Department has called for bids on a new portion of SR 714, so-called Martin Grade, from Allapattah Rd., newly designated SR 609, 3.893 miles (in an easterly) direction.

Bids will be received at Tallahassee no later than 10:30 a.m. July 27.

Last week, Chelste Seneschia, District 4 State Road Board member, announced the completion of a six-mile stretch of SR 714 from Loop Road in a westerly direction. The cost was $378,744.

This new project would reach the intersection of Allapattah Road, which has been designated SR 606 because it will eventually be the so-called Glades cut-off Road from Fort Pierce to SR 710 northwest of Indiantown.

The project is described a "general aid, secondary" one. Work on the new portion is "extra-heavy grading, 6-1 2 inch limerock."

Also listed were small drainage structures and incidental items.

Holiday Inn Land OK'd

County Engineer Fred L. Bell said Friday that the State Road Board, at its meeting Friday morning, had OK'd release of Murphy deed land at the intersection of U.S.#1 and SR 5-A on the south side of Stuart for construction of a Holiday Inn, first unit noted, a convention hall, restaurant and filling station at the site.

The move was approved by the city and county commissions and District SHD officials.

The release to the SRB had been sought to permit Arthur Quinn, Hot Springs, Ark., to use the lot fronting on both highways.

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, Winn expects to start construction by August 1, and the city is designing the sewer main which would connect to the city's system.

Crowder stated papers will go to the Internal Improvement Fund trustees for preparation of a deed on Monday.

It's alright to give your neighbor a mess of fish, but according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, it's unlawful to sell, offer for sale, barter, purchase or exchange any fresh water game fish.

LIVE.....and love it

by DICK CAMPBELL

Chops, Taters, And Gravy

When I was a kid, I remember walking a block down the alley to the little corner grocery store to get five pork chops, four taters, and a jawbreaker for going. It was a daily ritual.

Back in the thirties, we didn't have the money to be able to buy our groceries by the week. How many remember those days?

Those were the days when my Uncle Chester sat on the front stoop after dinner. He would send me over to the corner saloon with a little pail, and a quarter. I would bring back a bucket of beer, and he would sit there and pass the pail over to my grandfather, and they would take a drink and talk about the government, the W.P.A., the P.W.A. and President Roosevelt.

Our dinners were quite an event. Everyone would sit around the table and grandmother would fill the kitchen with her good-smelling food. The table somehow looked full with the chops and taters.

At just about every meal, Grandpa would say, "Now eat those. God knows we may not have anything next week."

I wanted to be many things; a fireman, a policeman, president...just about everything. I did want to be something.

My paper route money bought some of the chops and taters. So did that of my brother's paper route. Everybody worked to make ends meet. Our family was just about as average as any family could be in the early thirties.

I remember those days very well. Times were tough and the Nation pulled itself up by the bootstraps and made do with what it had. Many people wanted to be something, while others were content with their lot. I guess this is the story of life.

Today, in Congress, there is a bill pending that would allow the government to subsidize rents. This bill is one of the most dangerous things in existance today. In a day when jobs are plentiful, when a man who wants to work can do almost anything, and when people know they can, rather than wish they could, the government wants to allow people to live in a place they can't afford, and pay for part of it.

The cold water flat we lived in in the thirties was all we could afford. I would not like to go back to those days, but I use them as an example of the drive of people to lower themselves.

Today I could go back to that same building in St. Louis and find many of the same families living there. Many other families would be gone. Some went on to better their lot. Others like it where they were, and stayed there.

Today the government says to us, "You are not content with your lot. Let me help you by paying your rent. Let me give you medical care you don't have to pay for. Let me win your soul with handouts so that you will never want to work again. Then I will own you."

Politicians interested only in getting all they can for their areas and in keeping themselves in office continue to deal and trade away the heritage of America.

The people of this land sit back on their tails and delegate their responsibility of vigilance to the very men they should watch, the politicians.

Whenever I hear a local citizen say, "I wanted to write a letter on that but I never did get to it," I realize that we have indeed moved into a period of dependence and apathy to government.

Socialism is the great world society wherein all men are equal, all produce for the common good, and all work for the State.

We are not all equal, we will never be equal men. I say I am better than any man, and any man can say he is better than me. We both think work to be better, and we must work hard to gain any measure of being better.

I produce for my good. My good produces more jobs directly and indirectly. I feel that I produce better than any man, and that man feels the same.

I will pay my taxes to the government, but, by God and by the honor and right of any free man, I will not work for the government. It works for me, and by my will.

God help this Nation if we negate the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and the Constitution by delegating responsibilities we must carr) to our government.

Enclosed is a check for $1.00. Will you please run the following ad, just as you did last week, with this exception. There is only one kitten left.

NEEDED: A good home for ONE healthy kitten. May be seen at 30 Hilltop Court, Jensen Beach, Fla., or call Holly Rains, 287-6181 after 5:30 PM.

Would like to say that we had advertised our kittens via radio, where the coverage was wonderful, and in another paper, with no takers. Apparently The Mirror sells extensively, as we gave one kitten to a couple in Palm City. Also, the ads are arranged so that they hit the eye immediately.

The response was so good last week that we are counting on this next ad to find a home for our last little white kitten. Keep your ad department as it is; it certainly gets a response.

Sincerely,
Holly A. Rains

FIND Files Too Late

According to County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha, FIND must submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, have it approved, set the levy it desires to support the budget, get that approved, prior to July 15, at which time it must be submitted to the member counties.

"July 15 was Thursday, we have heard nothing, unless there are extenuating circumstances, I don't believe the county should levy any millage for FIND," said Mr. Wacha.

He stated he found it difficult to believe that FIND now finds it needs $1 million after saying it needed only $139,000 for the year, and the fight for its life in Tallahassee. FIND had claimed that $1.3 was needed for an eight-year budget.

Early in the week, FIND asked the counties in the district to levy one-tenth of a mill. Many of the commissioners in district counties are protesting.

Prepare Your Mobile Home Now For The Hurricane Season

The time to attend to the pre-storm preparations for your mobile home is now - not after the hurricane warnings have been hoisted, suggests Hart's Mobile Home Sales. Once the storm is on its way here, the mad scramble is on.

If you haven't applied a coat of roof coating to your mobile home lately, do it now. It will preserve your roof for some time to come, but particularly insure against leaks from the driving rain of a hurricane.

And, most important in the way of local preparations, have Hart's Sales Install anchors to your home. They have two types which will do the most to keep your home right side up during a storm. Strong steel straps are placed over the roof, then secured to ground anchors by sturdy steel cables and durable turn-buckles. With four of these across the roof and frame cables attached to the same ground anchors, your mobile home should withstand quite severe winds. It does take some time to install these properly, though, so don't wait until the last minute. Have it done now, by Hart's, so they can give full attention to completing a perfect job.

If you have unprotected windows on your mobile home, Hart's have several types of awings that will not only prevent window breakage during a storm, but add to the beauty and comfort when the sun is shining. Stop by Hart's and see for yourself how inexpensive and durable these window awnings can be.

If you already have an awning on your home and it needs to be reinforced to prevent buckling, Hart's can take care of this, too. They maintain a complete parts department for all your awning needs - and for the entire mobile home. Their repair department is second to none in Martin County, so no matter how small or big the job may be, call on Hart's - your ONE-STOP SHOPING CENTER for all your trailer needs.

AND MOST OF ALL - for your windstorm insurance needs, Hart's now is the agent for your mobile home insurance. You'll find them ready to serve you in any way they can - and will take care of your repairs, if needed, after the storm has passed.

Remember that during the next few months we can get a hurricane alert at any time - so don't put off doing what needs to be done. SEE HART'S TODAY FOR ALL YOUR MOBILE HOME NEEDS AND SAVE YOURSELF ENDLESS WORRY DURING THIS HURRICANE SEASON.

Race Bias May Loose Murderer

In a move to substantiate a charge made before Federal Judge Bryan Simpson, Jacksonville, that Willis Porter of Stuart did not get a fair trial because of the systematic exclusion of Negroes from juries in this area, a law student has researched Martin County juries. The law student, Michael Kyser, of Columbia University, New York, is working as a clerk in the Miami law firm of Tobias Simeon.

Mr. Kyser spent three days this week making the study and having copies made of jury lists in his attempt to substantiate the charge.

Porter, now 37, was found guilty in Circuit Court here of the machette slaying of Roberta Johns, 59-year-old mother of his girl friend, Gloria F. Johns, on Cuthbert Road in August, 1961.

Governor Haydon Burns, on July 7, signed Porter's death warrant. Porter had been slated to go to the electric chair next week at some undesignated time.

Porter's attorney, George Travers, of Stuart at that time, now living in Virginia, charged in April, 1962, that Negroes were excluded from the jury list. He requested a grand jury hearing prior to the trial, and asked that the jury be drawn from a new list.

Travers' motion was denied by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge to quash the first degree murder indictment. Trowbridge said in his ruling, "It is obvious from the evidence that Negroes were not systematically excluded from the jury list, although it is equally obvious that Negroes were not selected in proportion to their voting strength."

However, he pointed out, "No law requires such proportionate selection". Travers had argued that there were 7,608 registered voters at the time he studied the list, and that 740, or 10.8 per cent of them were Negroes.

Judge Trowbridge was upheld by the State Supreme Court which reviewed the conviction.

Travers said there were only 1.2 per cent Negroes on the jury list.

Judge Simpson ordered the Raiford State Prison Warden to show by August 2 why the murder conviction should not be set aside.

Another convicted Martin County man is in death row at Raiford. He is Edward Williams who was convicted in 1962.

Herbert Smith Address Trinity Congregation

Filling the pulpit of Trinity Methodist Church of Jensen Beach on Sunday, July 25, will be Mr. Herbert L. Smith who is certified Lay Speaker of the Methodist Church and a member of the Trinity Methodist Church.

Mr. Smith was born in Fort Chester, New York, but resided for fifty years between Hartsdale and White Plains, New York. Mr. Smith has had several years banking experience and for thirty years was a top-ranking salesman during which time he was sales manager for the Mosler Safe Company.

Mr. Smith is married to the former Iva Minnetia Lewis of Hartsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Smith have three children and six grandchildren.

Mr. Smith will speak on the subject, "Whose Kingdom", using the scripture text "Thy Kingdom Come".

OVAL-SHAPE CHAPEL FOR NOVITIATE---Construction of the new Chapel-Multi-purpose building started July 12th, at St. Joseph's Novitiate College on Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. It will adjoin the present building.

Construction Begins On Novitiate Chapel

Construction of the new Chapel multi-purpose building at St. Joseph's Novitiate College began Monday, July 12. J. C. Crawford, chief engineer, stated that preliminary plans are under way for the lay-out of the new building which will adjoin the present building.

The Chapel, oval in shape, will be connected to the south end of the present building and will expand into an auditorium-Lecture Hall with a seating capacity of approximately 800.

Upon completion of the construction, the present Chapel area will be converted to additional classrooms to serve the increased enrollment at the College.

Courses at the two-year liberal arts college are restricted at present to young ladies in training to become future Sisters of St. Joseph's serving as teachers, nurses and social workers in Florida and Puerto Rico. The motherhouse of this religious community of sisters is in St. Augustine.

P-W Road Assures Growth

It has certainly been a long time coming. And, it still isn't here. But the State Road Department took a giant step forward in the progress of Martin County when the members voted to begin purchase of rights-of-way for the Pratt-Whitney Road, now known as State Road 711.

Perhaps the lucky members of seven-eleven will come back for Martin County. We hope so...for the future progress of the county should not depend on luck. Nor should the development of a road that holds the key to future growth of this county have its fate decided by the roll of the dice or fate.

We are proud that the road board has decided to gain rights-of-way, even though they are only to the Palm Beach County line. The fact that the state has accepted it as a state road is present enough. The naming of SR 711 means that the road will be continued to the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft plant, and that highly skilled employees of the plant who live in Martin County will have easier access to their work.

One hidden value is that many employees of P-W will probably decide to make their home in this paradise.

When the road is open, and the communities travel across the agricultural plains of Martin County, we must remember that the effort has been one of many years' work by the Martin County Commission, the Committee, of 100, R. Y. Johnson, local Realtor, and now, the State Road Board.

Thanks to all of you.

A Great Man Passes On

The death of Adlai Stevenson brought sorrow to millions of Americans, His passing was the passing of a great American.

That it should happen on a busy street in London-town, just within a stone's throw of the American Consulate, was a mark of the measure of a man dedicated to his Nation.

We cannot but mass the ringing bones of his cultured voice, telling the graces of his country with a pride he felt deeply, and the sharpened barbs of his oratory in chiding a nation that overstepped the bounds of diplomacy.

He missed the opportunity of being the President of the United States two times, defeated by another great American, he was Governor of the State of Illinois.

But his greatest moment of life was his four years as the United States ambassador to the United Nations, a bloodless big body of nations devoted to an ideal, to which he gave vitality, His speeches will live, and his example will give the world an example of what the word "civilized" means.

Adlai Stevenson is dead, Long live his memory.

FIND Retribution Sinks

The counties of East Florida have felt the taste of opposition to the power of a bureaucracy. The Florida Inland Navigation District, still nasty from the penalties of restrictive imposed by the Florida Legislature, has decided to impose one-tenth of a mill tax upon the counties that comprise the district.

But the bureaucrats at FIND reckoned without the ingenuous restrictions of the Legislature...those that insist that the district submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, and without Martin County's Frank Wachs, watching the group.

The amazing part of the story of the one-tenth mill is that it would raise one million dollars in the district. In testimony before the Florida Legislature, FIND officials stated that they would need only $39,300 to operate this year, and that they would need only some $1.3 million for an eight-year budget.

It is evident that some official of FIND, a group that has had many years of unopposed and apathetic public attention, thought that he would punish the counties by levying a fine, or tax (call it what you will), that would show the people that the group had power after all. The watchdog, Frank Wachs, caught the millage demand and now there is no uproar along the coast.

The support of the state board for the counties in the FIND demand is welcome. It means that some state officials are not for a forgotten bureaucracy suddenly brought to life, as FIND has become.

July 15 was the deadline for the public body to get its request to the counties along the coast so that they would be able to budget its one-tenth of one mill request. The deadline is past.

We hope that the sinking of the FIND hope of retribution shows all public bodies that they are not above the public.

Summer's Violent Challenge

by J. Edgar Hoover

We can expect the coming weeks to present a stiff challenge to law enforcement. Precautions are prevalent throughout the country like a thing, oh because of malignant purposes of disorganized and violent citizens.

We would hope the prognostications of these columns conditions are wrong; we would hope that a remarkable summer of strife and violence can be averted, but in addition to the annual seasonal increase of summertime crime—crimes of passion and violence—we can add unexpect outbreaks and violations connected with protests marches and demonstrations occurring across the Nation.

Law enforcement officials know from experience that carelessness is one of the leading factors in crime resistance, especially during the summer. The relaxed attitudes of vigilance and resistance to suspicious and persons, but they also open the door to more opportunities to strike.

Each summer, countless American unwittingly conduct "open houses" for thieves. They depart for vacation time without providing proper protection of their homes while they away. On return, they are upset to find their dwellings ransacked and valuable property stolen. A few simple precautionary measures to secure the premises and leave them with an "occupied" appearance often discourage and prevent burglaries.

Crimes against property, however, are only a minor part of the problem. Far more appalling are the vicious attacks on defenseless children by sexual deviates and the murders, rapes, and senseless assaults which register sharp rises during the summer. The intensity and frequency of these violations haunt every community. Law enforcement is still searching for effective preventive action. Only constant certainty, vigilance and public indifference do not lessen the burden.

Summer is also the season of the hitchhiker and wanderer. The motorist who stops and opens his car door to a stranger may be asking for a death ride for himself and his family. Many times, the innocent-looking young man on the road side is a trigger-happy or knife-wielding killer. For safety's sake, drivers should exercise that part of valor considered as common sense and pass up hitchhikers.

Just how "long and hot" the summer will be depends on how well law enforcement and the public coordinate efforts to contain seasonal outbreaks. Let us hope that jointly we can make it so "short" for all lawbreakers that the summer will be one they will "love" remember.

Holiday Inn Land OK'd

County Engineer Fred L. Bell said Friday that the State Road Board, at its meeting Friday morning, had OK'd release of Murphy deed land at the intersection of U.S. 1 and SR 5-A on the south side of Stuart for construction of a Holiday Inn, 75-unit motel, a convention hall, restaurant and filling station at the site.

The move was approved by the city and county commissions and District 4 SRD officials.

The release to the SRB had been sought to permit Arthur Quinn, Hot Springs, Ark., to use the lot fronting on both highways.

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, Quinn expects to start construction by August 1, and, the city is designing the sewer main which would connect to the city's system.

Crowder stated papers will go to the Internal Improvement Fund trustees for preparation of a deed on Monday.

It's alright to give your neighbor a mess of fish, but according to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, it's unlawful to sell, offer for sale, barter, purchase or exchange any fresh water game fish.

LIVE.....and love it

by DICK CAMPBELL

Chops, Taters, And Gravy

When I was a kid, I remember walking a block down the alley to the little corner grocery store to get five pork chops, four taters, and a five-breaker full going. It was a daily ritual.

Back in the thirties, we didn't have the money to be able to tell our groceries by the week. How many remember those days?

Those were the days when my Uncle Chester sat on the front stoop after dinner. He would send me over to the corner saloon with a little pail, and a quarter. I would bring back a bucket of beer, and he would sit there and pass the pail over to my grandmother, and they would take a drink and talk about the government, the W.P.A., the F.W.A., and President Roosevelt.

Our dinners were quite an event. Everyone would sit around the table and grandmother would fill the kitchen with her good-smelling food. The table somehow looked full with the chops and taters.

At just about every meal, Grandpa would say, "Now eat them, God knows we may not have anything next week."

I wanted to ask many things: a fireman, a policeman, or maybe even a doctor. But everything I did want to be something.

My paper route money bought some of the chops and taters. So did that of my brother's paper route, Evangelist Morrison's mowing mail. Our family was just about as average as any family could be in the early thirties.

I remember those days very well. Times were tough and the Nation pulled itself up by the bootstraps and made do with what it had. Many people wanted to do something, while others were content with their lot. I guess this is the story of life.

Today, in Congress, there is a bill pending that would allow the government to subsidize rents. This bill is one of the most dangerous things in existance today. In a day when jobs are plentiful, when a man who wants to work can do almost anything, and when people know they can, rather than want to come, the government wants to allow people to live in a house they cannot afford, and pay for part of it.

The cold water flat we lived in in the thirties was all we could afford. I would not like to go back to those days, no! I see them as an example of the drive of people to better themselves.

Today I could go back to that same building in St. Louis and find many of the same families living there. Many other families would be gone. Some went on to better their lot. Others like it where they were, and stayed there.

Today the government says to us, "Insurance content with your lot. Let me help you by paying your rent. Let me give you medical care you don't have to pay for. Let me win your soul with handouts so that you will never want to work again. Then I will own you."

Politicians interested only in getting all they can for their areas and in keeping themselves in office continue to steal and trade away the heritage of America.

The people of this land sit back on their tails and delegate their responsibility of vigilance to the next man they should watch, the politicians.

Whenever I hear a local citizen say, "I wanted to write a letter on that but I never did get to it," I realize that we have indeed moved into a period of dependence and apathy to [illegible] concerned.

Socialism is the creed world society wherein citizens are equal, all profess for the common good, and all work for the State.

We are not all equal, we'll all never be equal now, I say. I applaud the boy, man, and any man can say he is better than me. We can work to be better, and we must work hard to gain any measure of being better.

I produce for my good, by good produces more directly and indirectly, I feel that I produce better than any man, and that man feels the same.

I will pay my taxes to the government, but, by God and by the honor and Fight of any free man, I will not work for government. It makes for me, and by all will.

God help this Nation if we negate the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, and the Constitution. Any deliberate responsibilities we must carry to our government.

FIND Files Too Late

According to County Commissioner Chairman Frank A. Wachs on Friday, Martin County still profitably contest the levy of any millage by

Florida Inland Navigation District because of what he termed "a violation of the terms of the legislation governing such levies."

Under the new statute, said Wachs, FIND must submit a budget to the State Board of Conservation, have it approved, set the levy it desires to support the budget, get that approved, prior to July 15, at which time it must be submitted to the member counties.

"July 15 was Thursday, we have heard nothing, unless there are extenuating circumstances, I don't believe the county should levy any millage for FIND," said Wachs.

He stated he found it difficult to believe that FIND now finds it needs $1 million after saying it needed only $39,000 for the year, being the fight for its life in Tallahassee. FIND had claimed that $1.3 was needed for an eight-year budget.

Early in the week, FIND asked the counties in the district to levy one-tenth of a mill, many of the county commissioners in district counties are protesting.

Prepare Your Mobile Home Now For The Hurricane Season

The time to attend to the pre-storm preparations for your mobile home is now - not after the hurricane warnings have been hoisted, suggests Hart's Mobile Home Sales. Once the storm is on its way here, the mad scramble is on.

If you haven't applied a coat of roof coating to your mobile home lately, do it now. It will preserve your roof for some time to come, but particularly insure against leaks from the driving rain of a hurricane.

And, most important in the way of local preparations, have Hart's Sales Install anchors to your home. They have two types which will do the most to keep your home right side up during a storm. Strong steel straps are placed over the roof, then secured to ground anchors by sturdy steel cables and durable turn-buckles. With four of these across the roof and frame cables attached to the same ground anchors, your mobile home should withstand quite severe winds. It does take some time to install these properly, though, so don't wait until the last minute. Have it done now, by Hart's, so they can give full attention to completing a perfect job.

If you have unprotected windows on your mobile home, Hart's have several types of awnings that will not only prevent window breakage during a storm, but add to the beauty and comfort when the sun is shining. Stop by Hart's and see for yourself how inexpensive and durable these window awnings can be.

If you already have an awning on your home and it needs to be reinforced to prevent buckling, Hart's can take care of this, too. They maintain a complete parts department for all your awning needs - and for the entire mobile home. Their repair department is second to none in Martin County, so no matter how small or big the job may be, call on Hart's - your ONE-STOP SHOPPING CENTER for all your trailer needs.

AND MOST OF ALL - for your windstorm insurance needs, Hart's now is the agent for your mobile home insurance. You'll find them ready to serve you in any way they can - and will take care of your repairs, if needed, after the storm has passed.

Remember that during the next few months we can get a" hurricane alert at any time - so don't put off doing what needs to be done. SEE HART'S TODAY FOR ALL YOUR MOBILE HOME NEEDS AND SAVE YOURSELF ENDLESS WORRY DURING THIS HURRICANE SEASON.

Race Bias May Loose Murderer

In a move to substantiate a charge made before Federal Judge Bryan Simpson, Jacksonville, that Willie Porter of Stuart did not get a fair trial because of the systematic exclusion of Negroes from juries in this area, a law student has researched Martin County juries. The law student, Michael Kyser, of Columbia University, New York, is working as a clerk in the Miami law firm of Tobias Simeon.

Mr. Kyser spent three days this week making the study and having copies made of jury lists in his attempt to substantiate the charge.

Porter, now 37, was found guilty in Circuit Court here of the machete slaying of Roberta Johns, 59-year-old mother of his girl friend, Gloria F. Johns, on Cuthbert Road in August, 1961.

Governor Haydon Burns, on July 9, signed Porter's death warrant. Porter had been aided by counsel in the trifle chair next week at some undesignated time.

Porter's attorney, George Travers, of Stuart at that time, now living in Virginia, charged in April, 1963, that Negroes were excluded from the jury list. He requested a grand jury hearing prior to the trial, and asked that the jury be drawn from a new list.

Travers' motion was denied by Judge C. Heather Trowbridge to quash the first degree murder indictment. Trowbridge said in his ruling, "It is obvious from the evidence that Negroes were not systematically excluded from the jury list, although it is equally obvious that Negroes were not selected in proportion to their voting strength."

However, he pointed out, "No law requires such proportionate selection". Travers had argued that there were 7,500 registered voters at the time he studied the list, and that 760, or 10.8 per cent of them were Negroes.

Judge Trowbridge was upheld by the State Supreme Court which reviewed the conviction.

Travers said there were only 1.3 per cent Negroes on the jury list.

Judge Simpson ordered the Raiford State Prison Warden to show by August 3 why the murder conviction should not be set aside.

Another convicted Martin County man is in death row at Raiford. He is Edward Williams who was convicted in 1957.

Farmers To Get ASCS Payments

Under the 1965 Agricultural Conservation Program, farmers and ranchers who have reported completion of approved conservation practices will soon be receiving their cost-share payments, according to Douglas Zant, ASCS county office manager.

Authority to commence making payments on July 1 has been received by the ASC County committee.

These payments represent less than one-half the total cost and are the Federal government's share of the cost of carrying out approved conservation measures.

Farmers participating in the ACP pay the balance, usually in excess of 50 per cent. ACP cost shares earned by farmers and ranchers through June 30, in Martin County, amount to approximately $11,516. Some 53 farmers and ranchers are participating in the program this year, with 28 completing at least one approved practice.

Zant said the payments would be issued by the county office in the form of Community Credit Corporation sights drafts.

Martin County Is Moving To Agricultural Greatness

According to Levi M. Johnson, county agent, twenty-seven per cent of the land area of Martin County is in improved agricultural use. Mr. Johnson pointed this out in a review of the agricultural and water control problems of the county this week.

The county's land area is 357,760 acres, 559 square miles, of which 98,100 acres are fully used for advanced agriculture.

The increase in use of the county's 200,000 acres of land flat uplands, eminently suited to highly productive agriculture, has been from a 20 per cent useage in 1961 to a 33 per cent useage at present, Johnson said.

In the winter of 1961, Johnson gave a complete lineup of land-use figures when he spoke and wrote of the need for implementation of a study of water control improvements. At that time, citrus groves covered 21,500 acres of land, including 3,000 for bearing trees, 3,500 for non-bearing young trees, and 10,000 acres being prepared for planting.

At present 47,000 acres are in use, 6,000 with bearing trees, 21,000 with young non-bearing trees and 20,000 in preparation for planting.

Today there are 35,000 acres of improved pastures for beef cattle; in 1961 there were 22,000 acres under two-way water control.

Crops of tomatoes, potatoes, peppers and cucumbers took up 3,000 acres then, compared to 6,500 acres now.

Flowers and nursery products used 500 highly developed acres then compared to 1,000 acres now.

Miscellaneous fruit trees, including avocados, mango, guava, etc., used the same number of acres, 500, then as now.

Dairy cattle now, as in 1961, ran to 8,000 improved pasture acres.

"Most of this development is recent, principally along the St. Lucie Canal, which provides adequate outlet for local drainage and unlimited year-round water supply from Lake Okeechobee," said Johnson in 1961.

"The enlargement of north county-line canal (C-23) and provision of adequate drainage control structure now under construction is accelerating development of acreage in Northern Martin County and Southern St. Lucie County. The great needs here are (1) provision for adequate dry season water supply which is a principal feature of the proposed Martin County plan now under survey by the Corps of Engineers and (2) access roads, especially paving of SR 714, Martin Grade," said Johnson in 1961.

When he spoke this week, he reiterated those statements in discussing the phenomenal growth of agriculture here.

Mr. Chelsie Senerchia, District 4 Road Board member, announced last week that Dickerson, Inc., Stuart, had completed a six-mile segment of SR 714, a $378,744 project which extends the pavement west approximately six miles from SR 76A, Loop Rd. and leaves only three miles to meet the newest addition to the state road list in the county, Allapattah Rd., the north-south link with St. Lucie County and the Indiantown area.

In 1961, Johnson referred to C-23 as "another miniature St. Lucie Canal," and pointed out that structures, control gates, would be built to permit flood waters to escape to the ocean in times of flood. This has been done.

Johnson also, at that time, called for a connection between C-23, C-24 and C-25 canals with Lake Okeechobee, the so-called MC-1, through which water could be pumped into Lake Okeechobee in times of flood, and from the Lake in times of water need in the agricultural lands throughout the agriculture belt north of the St. Lucie Canal and into St. Lucie County.

"It was a dream, a look into the future in 1961," said Johnson. "I said at that time that it would provide for vegetable, citrus, beef production and plenty of fresh drinking water to the thriving urban and city population along the coast," he added.

"Years ago, when the Everglades Drainage District dug the St. Lucie Canal, little did they realize that in the 1950's a profitable agriculture industry would flourish along the banks of this then very controversial canal," wrote Johnson in 1961.

"The results in the 1960's far surpassed the '50's and the '70's will be phenomenal if MC-1 comes out of the U.S. Corps study with a recommendation that its construction is not only desirable and feasible, but also well-needed," he said.

Johnson called attention to the fact that Martin County is "on the brink of agricultural greatness," with the so-called "Martin County Plan" study of water control improvements at or near completion by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Wacha Outlines Plans For Jensen Causeway Park

THIS HIGH- Frank Wacha shows how high the bulkhead will be at the water line. Two boat ramps will be along side the present small dock on the north side of the Causeway.

NORTH SIDE--Wacha stands at the end of the new bridge bulkhead. The line shows where the bulkhead will go, making the dockside for boats coming to the Causeway.

HANDRAILS--The handrails will be this high, says Frank Wacha, as he shows the Mirror readers the height of handrails on the new fishing catwalks on the Jensen Bridge.

A new, exciting plan for the development of the Jensen Beach Causeway was outlined this week for The Mirror by County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha. The plan includes docking facilities at a bulkhead right on the causeway, another boat ramp, beautification, and more plans for the future.

At the request of The Mirror, Wacha took a tour of the facility, now pretty well in a state of upheaval on the east end due to the work on the new Frank A. Wacha bascule span bridge, the kind of his hopes of this year and in the future.

The state road department owns some 300 feet from the center line of the road to the south side of the causeway. Wacha plans a fill in this area out to the 300 foot mark for the future, and on the site, which is already about 300 feet deep, an inexpensive or hand sheil will be built.

Worth said of his dream for the theatre, at which meetings, lectures or concerts could be held. The area would be filled and a gentle slope contain either grass or seats from a high mark near the road to the low point near the waterline.

The fill would be bulkheaded, low to the waterline, Wacha said.

The beautification project, which will get under way for the dedication of the new bridge later this year, will be headed by Grant Chamberlain, chairman of the county beautification committee.

Also, a long, low bulkhead will be built, out to a three-foot depth and the area backfilled on the north side of the causeway. The three feet of water will allow small boats to run right at the bulkhead, which will have docking rings for tiedowns.

The bulkhead will continue the present bulkhead from the new bridge to the west on the north side of the causeway to a group of trees, then jog out to the proper depth, about 25 feet from the present waterline.

The bulkhead will be low enough, Wacha said, so that the water will just wash over it when we get high water. In this way we cut down on erosion. There may be a minor backfill problem, but we will take care of that.

In the future, Wacha said, there might be finger piers extended from the bulkhead for boat docking, if the need became evident.

Wacha also toured the new bridge area, and said that fishing catwalks, below the level of the bridge, and 300 feet long or the northeast and southwest sides of the corner, would be incorporated in the bridge, which will make it possible to fish from both sides of the walk, under the bridge and to the outside, or right fisherman.

BRIDGE APPROACH--A grader spreads a base for paving the approach to the new Jensen Beach Bridge, to be called The Frank A. Wacha Bridge.

LEGISLATOR SPEAKS---A report on the 1965 legislature was given to local area Republicans by State Representative Louis (Skip) Bafalis last Wednesday night at the Yacht Club Restaurant. Leaders of Republican Clubs in the tri-county area attending were, left to right; Charles Post, first vice president of the Indian River County Young Republicans; Margaret Cwehy, president, St. Lucie County Young Republicans; Representative and Mrs. Bafalis; Mrs. Fred Epson, Republican National Committeewoman; and John Carey, Martin County Young Republicans President.

Conservationists Plan To Fight Bottomlands Sale

Three sales of river bottomlands sought of upland owners in two Martin County areas were being protested following initiating action by the Martin County Audubon Society regarding two of the proposed sales this week.

Two of the applications to purchase were filed with the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund by Sewall's Point owners, the third, an owner at the south end of the Town of Jupiter Island.

The two applicants on the Sewall's Point petitions for a hearing at 2 p.m. on July 27, are Bessemer Properties, Inc., and Richard L. Bohner.

The applicant on the Town of Jupiter Island petition is George W. Offutt, III, South Beach Road., Jupiter Island.

Bohner, who is a member of the real estate firm of Lockhart Realty, is seeking to purchase 1.87 acres of submerged lands in the Indian River north of AIA at the intersection of Sewell's Point Road, where the firm has its office.

Bohner is represented on the application by Alley, Maass, Rogers, Lindsay and Chauncey of Palm Beach.

Bessemer Properties, Inc., is seeking 2.19 acres south of AIA, and is represented by the same law firm as Bohner. Bessemer Properties, Inc., has extensive holdings in Martin County, including citrus groves west of the Turnpike and a large development on the southern tip of Sewall's Point, namely High Point.

The directors of the Martin County Audubon Society voted Tuesday night to file objections with the IIF in connection with the two Sewall's Point applications.

The Society's attorney and board member, Alton S. Beasley, has said that he was unanimous after the situation was explained by H.W. Newsome, former town manager, and vice-president of the Society.

The area north of the highway is considered one of the prime spotted sea trout fishing areas in the Indian River, and the area south of the highway is considered to be almost as good. The area has been included in the town's bulkhead line but is mostly natural riverbottom.

Newsome said the Martin County Chapter of the Izaak Walton League would follow the Audubon Society with a supporting action, and the president of the state association of Izaak Walton Leagues, Charles Kindred, said there was little doubt that the state would back up the local league in opposing the petition.

As of Wednesday, no action had been taken on the Jupiter Island situation where Offutt has applied. His application was for 1,582 acres and was presented by Brockway, Weber and Brockway of West Palm Beach.

Nathaniel P. Reed, a member of the town council of Jupiter Island, said he is opposed to the Jupiter Island application for submerged land purchase on the westerly shore of the southernmost lot in the town, on Jupiter Sound.

According to Reed, the Town of Jupiter Island has no extensions beyond high water mark for any bulkheading on any part of the island except at the Offutt property. On Jan. 7, 1963, a bulkline from two points was given to Offutt to permit straightening a cove shoreline.

Reed expressed doubt as to whether the legal advertising for the Offutt hearing was proper. It was published in the Jupiter Beacon News, a Palm Beach County publication, Chapter 253, which is a 1957 statute, indicated that such notices must be published three times in a publication of general circulation in the county where the submerged lands are located.

County Attorney Dean Tooker said he would send a copy of the advertisement to the state attorney-general for an opinion.

Reed indicated there is a long-standing feeling in the town that there should be no extensions of bulkheading beyond the natural shoreline so expects objections. Like the Indian River bottomlands at Sewall's Point, Reed says the Jupiter Sound area is a fish breeding area.

The cove in question has been a favorite spot for water skiers from Martin and Palm Beach Counties as there are no dwellings nearby.

Also advertised for a July 22 hearing is an application for a Palm Beach County purchase of .74 acres of bottomland in the Jupiter Sound, made by James D. Carlton, Inc., West Palm Beach, in behalf of Harold Chamberlain.

It is believed that this plot is adjacent to the Offutt plot.

Beach Conditions Are Another Mirror First

A weekly report on the conditions at Jensen Beaches will begin this week in the Mirror. The report is designed to add another service to the people of Martin County, who read The Mirror each week, and is another first in The Mirror program of providing the best news coverage of this area.

The report is due to the cooperation of Jack Cammack, head lifeguard of Martin County, and will feature important items of beach conditions, including attendance, tides, surf, temperature and a weekly informative item on beach safety.

The trends of weather on the beach will give local people an opportunity to predict their weekend beach conditions by coupling them with local weather reports.

The reports will feature information from the main lifeguard station at Jensen Beach. Information on the conditions at other Martin County beaches, generally the same, will be included as special circumstances arise.

Public Beach Grows Despite Vandalism

County officials are going ahead with plans to make a better park of Stuart Beach, in spite of attempts of vandals to spoil it for normal people.

Chairman of the County Commission, Frank A. Wacha, in whose district the site lies, announced that the program will go forward. He and Commissioner J. E. Brymer had announced the improvement program late in June.

Last week more vandalism occurred at the Hutchinson Island recreation area where the public owns 1,000 feet of frontage from the Atlantic Ocean to the Indian River. The dunes are being filled and leveled to provide a 75-foot wide picnic and recreation area for people without cars who want to see the ocean.

The borrow pit, on the west side of SR A1A on the county property, will be dug to a width of 70 feet, 25 feet deep, and when finished, it will provide a small boat basin and landing area with access to and from the Indian River a few yards north of the Ernest Lyons Bridge causeway on the island.

According to County Engineer Fred L. Bell, a good grade of shell and sand is being removed from the first cut by a dragline. He said two openes will be made, cutting the landward stretch of the planned canal first. He said the water would be about 12 feet deep in the canal when it was completed at the river end.

The vandalism reported to Park Superintendent Jessie Griffis last Monday included damage to a row of low-fronted sea grape used as a divider between two sections of said road as the beach parking area.

According to the trunks left by the vehicle or vehicles which drove over the bushes more than once, bulldozer wheel tracks and buggies were used.

The county park department, at the suggestion of the Garden Club of Stuart, were working on an over-all landscaping scheme, and the bushes were a step in this direction.

Vandals have hit this area many times before, and apparently are heavy drinkers. Park personnel are required to clean up beer cans and bottles after most weekends. A crew which cleaned up the vandalism done on Saturday night loaded a dump truck with refuse and damaged bushes.

In earlier raids, concrete picnic tables were smashed and plantings rooted.

The county intends to continue to improve recreation facilities there, according to Wacha.

A six-in-place hard surfaced parking lot will be built above the esplanade level, with three sets of steps leading to the top level, as soon as the surf wash has done by county crews.

Further parking areas will be added as needed.

Beach Park Investigation Was Held

A representative of the State Board of Parks and Historic Memorials inspected the land on Northern Jupiter Island Monday where the county commission hopes to establish a state ocean-beach park.

Director James A. Cooke, Miami district of Public Parks, which includes southern Florida as far south as Fort Pierce, discussed the proposed park and plans for its development with County Commissioner Jack Saunderson, County Engineer Fred L. Bell, and flew over the area, according to the court house.

Saunderson and County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha had planned to go to Tallahassee in the near future to inquire into the status of the park, which has been considered for several years under terms of a vote taken by the County Commission on July 24.

Cook had formerly served a stint somewhat like the Park Board in North Florida before his transfer to the Miami district. He is quoted as saying, "The area in question has a good potential for outstanding beachfront parks."

He returned to Miami with maps, maps, facts and figures on the proposed project.

The area in question is where the state and the St. Lucie County have been dickering with a land-swap in mind.

Florida Inland Navigation District recently leased to the state, for 99 years, three small spoil islands there which had been the cause of the initial argument between the Martin County Commission and the District.

The initial argument, held over a 325-acre tract of sub-spoil area island, because of a request by FIND for a figure in excess of $200,000, led to the investigation of FIND's accounting and budget procedures, which finally led to the Legislature's move to put FIND under Department of Conservation control.

Reports from Tallahassee since late January have indicated the state was nearly ready to swap public lands near Bean City in Palm Beach County with lands owned on Jupiter Island by St. Lucie-Jupiter Co.

The property on Jupiter Island was appraised at $1,260,000, and the state-owned farm lands was appraised at $1,360,000.

According to Saunderson, the trip to Tallahassee will be delayed briefly awaiting word of Cooke's report on the Island-beach park.

SEASHELLS BY THE SEASHORE---A favorite hobby for visitors and natives alike is collecting shells along the Jensen beaches. Many interesting shells are to found and are yours to gather.

Bruner Praised For Bridge Efforts

There was a lot more talk than met the eye, or the ear, when County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha reported to the members of the commission and the public that one million dollars had been allocated for the Palm City Bridge, and approved by the State Road Board.

"It is too bad that Mr. (Herb) Bruner isn't here. We could congratulate him for isolating that the million dollars be included in the requested budget two years ago," Wacha said.

When asked about the comment, Wacha said that county commissioner Ed Miller, who represents the district that includes Palm City, had opposed the inclusion of the new bridge in the budget, Miller told the commissioners belatedly that only a few repairs were needed at the Roosevelt Bridge causeway.

Miller editor remembered the meeting, and the comment, when commissioner Herb Bruner insisted that the bridge be left in the budget in spite of Miller's comments.)

Wacha said this week that if the bridge had not been requested at that time it would have been delayed several years.

Tooker Releases Brief On Crossing

Opposition to the Florida East Coast Railway's petition for hearing of the Alice Ave. grade crossing suit won by Martin County was filed in a printed brief which was made available to the press at the county commission meeting Tuesday by County Attorney Dean Tooker.

The county won its suit against the railroad in the local circuit court before Judge C. Pfeiffer Travenbridge, and before the State Supreme Court, contending that as a political subdivision it could designate where grade crossings should be located and won a decision which included the levying of the cost of safety signals against the railroad.

Tooker argued, in the brief, that the U. S. Supreme Court does not have jurisdiction because the judgment of the State Supreme Court rested on state or non-federal grounds, independent of any federal ground adequate to support it, and that the petitioning railroad did not raise a substantial federal question.

However, Tooker conceded that if the court determined that a substantial federal question was involved, that the proper provisions of the U. S. Constitution were involved, Cited by Tooker were seven U. S. Supreme Court decisions and three Florida statutes and the state constitution in contending the county's position is sound.

He charged in the brief that the petitioning railroad raised points, the validity of which the railroad failed to mention in the state courts, referred to these as "inconsistencies," and asks, "is the respondent to believe that one who acquiesces to a particular burden on hundreds of crossings but rebels against it on one particular crossing, has gratuitously raised a constitutional question?"

The brief was sent to the railroad's counsel in the petition, David W. Peck and Roy H. Harper, New York, on Monday.

Cooking School Is Friday

County Zoning Changes

The zoning from fourteen to an agricultural classification in Blocks 31 to 60, St. Lucie Inlet Farms, was changed by the county commission, affirming action taken by the Martin County Zoning and Planning Board at its June 17th meeting. This action concurred the one taken on the same topic at its July meeting.

The board agreed temporarily to table all action on the zoning change when County Zoning Director Fred L. Bell asked that the proposed change in zoning be tabled pending further action by the zoning board.

The board took the action to re-zone the lots lying east of SR 76, seeing the new classification at R-3-A and four wide along the highway and A1A in the balance of the area, when it was pointed out that the zoning board had not legally advertised such a change in the action it took June 17.

Action was urged by Wm. P. Clifford, present at the meeting, who had asked for agricultural zoning for a flower farm in the area. He made this request because of earlier moves by the zoning board.

The balance of the area, on the west side of SR 76, will be considered at the next meeting of the zoning board.

Other action was taken by the commission.

A portion of Tract 10, Booker Park, was re-zoned from interim to R-3-A to permit construction of a multiple dwelling as requested by the prospective builder and as recommended by the zoning board.

The board voted to advertising public hearings for the following reasons: To add three uses to R-3-A classification; to add the new R-4 classification for land uses; and, under the general code, to outlaw out-houses or privies, all changes adopted by the zoning board.

Hearings were set for August 24 at 9:30 A.M.

In other moves, the commission established a fireline load limit on Savanna Rd. south of SR 707-A and ordered Sahl to post it at once and notify the Sheriff for strict enforcement.

BEAUTY OF A ROAD—Ten miles of undeveloped, virgin territory will be opened to the public August 6 when the State Road Department opens A-1-A from Jensen Beach to Fort Pierce on Hutchinson Island. The road is the result of work by Jensen Beach and Fort Pierce citizens since 1962, and will be one of the most longed-for spurs to the development of the island.

Summer School Activities Had 740 Attendance

According to Jack Simonse, general coordinator of the Martin County summer school system's summer program, 740 pupils spent 43,181 hours in non-academic activities in the summer schools.

There were 1,077 students enrolled in the academic program, and they spent 91,241 hours studying subjects such as remedial reading, typing, English, social studies, mathematics and science.

Elementary non-credit academic students numbered 360, while secondary teachers had 83 students in credit courses.

Total pupils registered in the program was 1,427, and they spent 84,726 hours.

Operation Head Start preschoolers were not included in the totals. That program ends Friday.

In the non-academic program, physical education activities led the total with 688 pupils spending 28,620 hours.

Swimming and boating occupied 4,117 hours by 409 pupils, and the hiking program had 72 pupils for 2,612 hours.

Vocal and general music drew 176 pupils, while band and other instrumental music had 176 pupils with 8,271 hours.

Migrant Children Day Care Group Gets EOC Research

The proper location for establishment of a day-care school for the pre-school children of migrant farm workers is being sought by a committee in Indiantown.

A meeting was held at Seminole Inn last Thursday to discuss establishment of such a school under the provision of the Economic Opportunity Act.

Mrs. Nina Taylor, former school teacher, was named chairman. Serving with her will be Mrs. Jeanette Odom, school board member; Dr. Neill Miller, county health unit director; and Rev. James X. Henry, parish priest at Okeechobee and Holy Cross Chapel in Indiantown.

County Commissioner Tilmer Powars headed the meeting which was attended by Mrs. Lillian Dassori, county-wide school supervisor, and Miss Margaret Taylor, of the Community Service Foundation, which is administering portions of the EOA in Palm Beach and in Martin Counties.

Miss Taylor, who will renew her residency here, outlined the needs of the physical plant and said that the accommodation would be open ten hours a day.

No fees would be charged to children of migrant families of the pre-school ages, which included youngsters as young as those still on formula feedings, she said.

Each unit of up to 45 children will have one director-teacher and three teacher assistants.

The sought-for building must provide 20 square feet of space per child, both inside and in playground areas outside, she said.

A meeting of the building sub-committee will take place before the next scheduled meeting of the group, which was set for August 4.

Garden Club To Hold Coffee-Card Party

Meeting time has been changed to 9:30 A.M.

Hostesses are Mrs. Ethel Koman, Mrs. Frances Backman and Mrs. Rachel Zajic.

For reservations please call Mrs. Wheeler, 287-2012.

Witham Returns From Costa Rica

Mr. Ross Witham has returned from three weeks in Costa Rica where he made a survey on spiney lobsters.

Mr. Witham is in charge of the local research program on Florida lobsters for the Department of Conservation.

The survey was made at the request of Dr. Archie Carr of the University of Florida.

According to Witham, preliminary observations are that conditions probably are ideal for raising the lobsters along the coast in some areas. They have a limited reef, but the area could be highly productive, Witham said his suggestion would take a great deal of study and observation.

When large numbers of lobsters are caught, the heads and residue are dumped overboard on the reef. This will create a low catch for about three years, but the fourth year should again be productive.

Mr. Witham had a conference with Dr. Luis L. Devasconcelos, International Director for fish planning for Central America for the United Nations. He was much impressed and interested in Mr. Witham's suggestions and asked if he would be available for consultation on the subject.

Countywide Sirens Will Be Tested

All county communities participating in the Civil Defense network will sound their fire sirens at 12:05 p.m. every Saturday in a test, the county commission decided on Tuesday.

At a cost of $1,678.50, the county wide alert system was recently installed.

It was questioned as to whether it should be used only as a single station reporting system or on a county-wide basis. The commission ruled that not only should the county-wide system be tested each Saturday, but also that the control station at CD headquarters should automatically sound the siren in the area of a fire.

In the event of a structure fire, the alert will be sounded in each area at all times, and for any fire between the hours of 8:30 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Other fires during daytime hours will be reported by local use of the sirens in the various fire stations.

Only outlaying stations in Jensen Beach, Palm City, Port Salerno and Indiantown will be affected immediately. Stuart is not included in the system.

The button will be pushed at Stuart control for fires between 8:30 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Mirror Cooking School Has Help

It takes community cooperation to make a community grow, and the Mirror Cooking School is an example of that cooperation.

To put on the cooking school it is necessary to call on many local businesses to support and assist in putting the show on the road. Those businesses include, of course, Florida Power and Light Company, and Publix Markets, who furnished the show, with Betty Stewart, FPL home economist, handling the cooking and recipe end, and Dick Prince, Swift and Company meat representative, putting on a demonstration of meat cutting and an explanation of different cuts of meat.

The Jensen Beach Community Church made its fellowship hall available for the show, seating over 400 people at each event. Also, local businesses helped to promote the housewares and white goods events with a display of stoves, refrigerators and other items necessary in a good kitchen.

All these things put together make the Mirror Cooking School, which will be held this Friday in an afternoon and evening session.

We are proud of, and salute, all those who had a part in the big cooking school, now in its second year in Martin County. We hope that all residents of the county will attend.

The Right To Own A Gun

The Congress of the United States is getting ready to remove one more right, one more freedom, from the public domain. It is the right to have a gun.

A law to limit the sale of guns through the mails, and to keep citizens from owning guns unless they are registered with the government, is on its way to passage.

It is difficult to assess the value of this bill because most people do not own guns. They do not think of them as sporting weapons. They think of guns as, in the words of a Miami resident, "instruments of death and tragedy".

This same person stated, "Look at the record. Your newspaper is filled with stories of neighbor killing neighbor, children killing playmates, brother killing brother, accidental shooting, malicious murders, holdups, bank robberies and so on."

Scaremongers such as these do not think of guns at all except as weapons of death and tragedy. I doubt very much that they have any idea of one end of a gun from another.

It is the right of an American to keep a gun for defense of his home. If all guns were registered with the government, and a foreign power conquered America, a ready-made list would allow the collection of weapons that might free America.

The many educated sportsmen who use guns as sporting weapons have a right to pursue their sport.

The place where the Congress should go is to the source of trouble. The gangsters and hoodlums who use guns for holdups and murder would be the likely place to start.

J. Edgar Hoover has the right idea in making it a Federal crime to use a gun in any crime against society. That hits right at the belt of crime, and affects the criminal directly. Even a 'filling' station holdup would be a Federal crime if such a law was passed and the criminal used a gun.

Our laws should protect society from those who would break the law, not from innocent, law abiding citizens.

Poverty And The Indians

From: Ramona (Calif.,) Sentinel

Why not a Poverty Program for the Indians?

We often hear of the dismal, impoverished state of the Navajo Indians of Arizona, and most of us experience at least a momentary twinge of remorse that Americans must live this way. But to see for oneself the appalling conditions there is an unnerving experience. In this present revolution, wherein the upthrust of the nation's conscience has caused it to finally recognize the exploitation of minority races and to plan appropriate restitution, one wonders why a project is not forthcoming to pull the prostrate Navajo to his feet.

Just last week end the staff had occasion to cross Navajoland, in Northern Arizona. The party entered the reservation at Glen Canyon Dam and traveled 125 miles through it from north to south. The land is bleak and rocky. As we traveled south, Indian mut huts, hogans, were seen in the floor of the sand canyons. The scene to this writer was one of devastating impact---American people living in a hole in the ground covered with twigs and baked mud. These are not people living in huts in the remoteness of Yemen, Uganda or Pakistan, these are Americans in the year 1965, living within the borders of the richest nation in the history of human remembering.

There were no water wells visible. There was no plumbing, no livestock, no transportation-- just mud huts in a barren land of unbelievable expanse. Out of perhaps 150 mud huts, two or three autos were seen of ancient vintage. The few Indians that were observed were walking aimlessly down long stretches of highway, going nowhere in particular, because there is no place to go.

Of course, the perennial excuse is proffered by those uncaring, that these Indians are too lazy to work, too dense to learn, and do not wish to change their lot anyway. But I cannot so easily dismiss them from my mind. Could any one of us rise so above so dispiriting an atmosphere as a life lived in an earthen hole in the center of a parched desert?

How can we help them? Educate them and absorb them into our civilized society, of course. We are committed to $1 billion in aid to Southeast Asia. Thirty million to enrich the lives of our First Americans, in a program of education and vocational training would be a relatively small amount by comparison. And, we owe them this moral debt for having appropriated their lands in the first place.

Secession Was The Answer

---From: Claxton (Ga.) Enterprise

Just over a hundred years ago our forefathers, convinced that a strong federal government was reducing their individual and states' rights to nothing, decided that the only answer was to secede from the union, and form a government of their own.

Today a strong federal government has directed that each state disregard its constitution, and divide itself according to a court-ordered formula in the structure of its legislature.

Today a federal law, that if passed, will set up voting qualifications in every town, village and city in every state, is being fostered by the administration.

Today federal officials direct who shall attend the schools maintained by the taxpayers of the state.

Today businessmen are told by a federal bureau what qualifications they may set up for employing workmen in their factories and businesses. Others are told whom they may serve, and under what circumstances.

And the trend is toward more and more of this same federal control, that will deprive individuals of more and more of their freedom, and take away more and more of the authority of the state and the county and the town....leaving them only administrative shells.

There seems, under the existing circumstances, only one alternative....secede from the Union, join the United Nations, and apply to the U. S. for foreign aid.

Those countries that have set up an "emerging" country are living off the taxpayers of America, and running their business as they please. They can even tell Uncle Sam to "go jump in the river" (as one dictator has done), and get more attention than before....they are even "forced" to take the foreign aid.

If this be treason....then make the most of it.

One Million Dollars

Monahan Bridge Dedication Will Be Held August 7

When the new, high-level million-dollar St. Lucie Canal Bridge on SR 710, Indiantown, is dedicated, State Road Board Chairman Floyd Bowen will make the dedication remarks at 11 a.m. on August 7.

John H. Monahan, former District 4 State Road Board member, for whom the bridge will be named at the ceremony, and his family, will be honored guests.

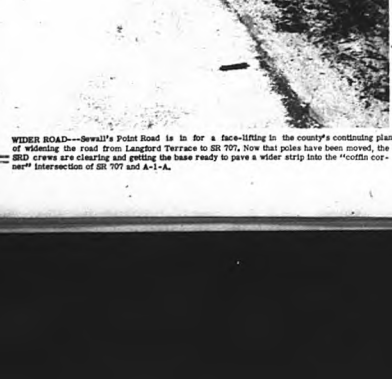
Since June 22, the bridge has been open to traffic. At that time Cleary Brothers Construction Co. of West Palm Beach and Dickerson, Inc., chief subcontractor, completed the project which eliminated an old, single-lane swing bridge across the canal.

The present SRB District 4 member, Chelsie J. Sencrbia, will attend the ceremonies.

The bridge, which at once removes a pair of dangerous curves from SR 710 and provides a high-level crossing over the canal, was started late in May, 1964.

The bridge portion of the 1.4 mile stretch of highway is 1,951 feet long.

The state legislature followed a resolution adopted by the county commission in designating it the Big John Monahan Bridge.



WIDER ROAD---Sewall's Point Road is in for a face-lifting in the county's continuing plan of widening the road from Langford Terrace to SR 707. Now that poles have been moved, the SRD crews are clearing and getting the base ready to pave a wider strip into the "coffin corner" intersection of SR 707 and A-1-A.

Apathetic People Get The Blame For Bad Resources

Charles H. Kindred told the Stuart Kiwanians Thursday afternoon that the general public, which is so directly affected, should dispel its apathy and consider finding the answers for water pollution and shortage problems.

Water problems are on the increase, said Kindred, and other natural resources are fading to the point where preservation efforts must be stepped up if we are to avoid losing these assets.

Kindred is president of the Florida division of the Izaak Walton League.

Water shortage is accentuated by pollution of the waterways, and as the state's population rises, so does the pollution, he explained.

The League is interested in conservation and proper useage of all resources, and does not concentrate its efforts on problems inherent to fishing. It is interested in all natural resources which includes hunting, waterways, trees, and fishing.

Kindred pointed out that the League cooperates with other similar organizations, such as the National Forestry Association, National Wildlife League and National Audubon Society.

"Anyone interested in working to stop losses of natural resources and the beauty of our nation will get help from this league," said Kindred.

The league was founded in Chicago in 1922 and now has a dozen chapters in Florida.

Brakes failed last Thursday afternoon, and a Stuart mother and her three children took an unexpected dip into the Indian River.

Mrs. Dorothy K. Hanaford, 30, of 821 East 14th St., Stuart, was driving on the Jensen Beach Causeway when the foot brake failed, as did the emergency brake.

Mrs. Hanaford and three children, Thomas, 8; John W., 10, and Ruth May, 11, made a wet and hurried exit

Who Needs A Cooking Lesson?

Maybe these women around here need a cooking lesson, bib not me, I am one of those enterprising, devil-may-care gourmets of the olde school.

To be able to eat well, you must know how to prepare food properly. To know how to prepare food properly, you must have practice. To practice, you must cook. I cook.

Ask me anything. Go ahead. Ask me how to prepare.... say....bacon and eggs. Well, being the epicure that I am, I know how to prepare bacon and eggs. Only, I do not call them bacon and eggs. That is too crass....too common. The gourmand would not appreciate plain old bacon and eggs, so I will give you an old Campbell recipe, handed down through the years....family to family from my great ancestor, Robert Burns.

Since the Mirror Cooking School is this week, I hope that this will not dampen the spirit of our demonstrators too much, for home economist Betty Stewart certainly knows a lot about cooking. But then, I digress. One does not "cook" this famous dish, called "Campbell Souffle", one gives birth to it, or life, as the little old winemaker places his magic touch to the vintage.

Hence, A Campbell Souffle.

The first thing to do is arise at about 11 o'clock in the morning. As the French appreciate the right and disdain anything in the early hours except to come home by them, so we Scottish are a languorous crew in the ayem. Once having learned to appreciate the opening of one's eyes in the forenoon, we can go one step forward and say you are ready to prepare the souffle. It serves three.

Saute eight slices of bacon until crisp. When the point of crispness prevails burning, drain and place them in a preheated oven. It would be best if there was a linen napkin on the plate to further drain the bacon in the heat of the oven.

Heat one pint of oysters in their own juice until plump. Drain them. Keep the juice. Put one cup of cream and one-third cup of oyster sauce in a double boiler. Add three tablespoons of bacon fat. Heat to boiling.

Add the oysters when boiling. Reduce the heat and add three beaten egg yolks. Stir as you permit the egg yolks to harden (about one minute).

Combine one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, one-eighth teaspoon marjoram, one tablespoon of lemon juice, three egg whites, beaten stiff. Fold them into the mixture quickly.

Bake the souffle in a greased baking dish (2 inches) in a moderate oven (325 degrees) until firm, about 30 to 40 minutes. Pour the slices of bacon, cut, the souffle, plus some of the juice fried in bacon fat. ...Voila', A Campbell Souffle.

Holiday Deed OK

According to County Engineer Fred L. Bell, the Murphy deed needed for the go-ahead of construction of a new Holiday Inn Motel in Stuart arrived here from Tallahassee last Thursday.

Bell said that Attorney Evans Crary, Jr., received the deed for Arnold Bauer, who will sell the land for the motel to Arthur Quinn, Hot Springs, Ark. Quinn will build the motel, convention hall and filling station.

Local county and city officials asked speedy action of the State Road Board and the trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund in getting the actual paper to Stuart.

Paper Drive

The Jensen Beach Lions Club is discontinuing its collection of newspapers for the Pioneer Center in Port Salerno until September, according to Llon Ed Miller.

The Club has been collecting old newspapers at the R.R. Warehouse and transporting them to the Center.

Economy Ahead Of 1964

Florida's economy ahead of last year stood well ahead as measured by the principal devices, the Florida Chamber of Commerce pointed out in its weekly Business Review this week.

"Jobs held and wages earned showed the most significant increases. Employment of all types was up 4 per cent over a year ago, personal income was rising at an annual rate of 8 per cent over last year.

"Bank debits, a good measure of business activity, showed an 8 per cent increase. Total bank deposits were up about the same degree.

"Sales tax collections were 12 per cent over last year and gasoline sales showed a 5 per cent more.

"Real as these gains are, there were some disappointing features of the state economy at mid-1965. New business incorporations were formed at a rate about a thousand a month registering only one per cent over 1964. Business failures, the other soft spot, were up 9 per cent and their liabilities were almost double as reported by Dun & Bradstreet."

Sugar Cane Will Grind In Martin County

Martin County's first sugar cane grinding agreement of public record was filed at the court house last Wednesday.

Fifty acres of cane for Camayan for costs, plus 10 per cent for the 1965-66 crop and for 17 more years, will be processed by Osceola Farms Company at its sugar car Factory, near Canal Point.

Camayan Cattle Co. has 6,000 acres under lease from Alberto Arrietta Negron, as administrator of the Puerto Rican Arrietta Interests in far-western Martin County.

Rafael E. Sanchez, President of Camayan, who signed the sugar agreement which has been filed, said that up to 400 acres of cane would be planted in parts of two sections bordering on U.S. 441, north of Port Mayaca.

Alfonso Fanjul, Jr., Vice-president, signed the lease for the Osceola interests.

It works on a national scale.

SMALL SUBDIVISION—One of the signs of future development on Hutchinson Island is this new subdivision. Delayed by the development of water to the island, the pipes for water are now in and city water is flowing to all lots. Three lots have been sold, and one house built on speculation of sale. The road is due to be paved this week.

County Roads-Bridges

County Engineer Fred L. Reid said the bid of Dickerson, Inc., of $24,148.20, was well within his estimate, which ran from $24,000 to $28,000 for the project. A figure of $23,000 had been

Waterways Traffic Dropped

Traffic on the Okeechobee Waterway dropped considerably last year from 1965, according to data supplied by the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Jacksonville.

The total tonnage for 1965 was 404,555 while last year, by the calendar, tonnage was only 303,848, measured in short tons.

Dickerson, Inc., was sole and successful bidder on a project to widen the Indian Ave. Bridge over a waterway at Port Sewall.

On Reid's recommendation, the commission awarded the contract.

Bids will be advertised by the board for a one-inch leveling and widening course on East Coconut St., Hobe Hills, bids to be opened at a special meeting agreed upon by the commissioners, on August 15.

Also to be advertised are bids on driving and capping reinforced concrete sheet piling at the easterly approach to the Jensen Beach Causeway. The county will supply the piling. Bids will be opened August 15.

The county billboard north of Stuart on U.S. 1 will be used for another year, at a discounted price of $600, according to the commission. City Sign Service agreed to deduct $40 for the contract if pre-paid.

Carl Snyder was named to the board of adjustment by Commissioner Tomer Powers, to fill a vacancy in District 5.

Chairman Frank A. Wachs announced that the commission had received a deed for a mile of the so-called Pratt Whitney Road in Palm Beach County.

The 200-foot right-of-way

Jacksonville to Miami also dropped.

In 1965, 892,127 tons moved on that stretch, while in 1964, only 991,977 tons were waterborne there.

Historical Society Named In Suit

Ray Lorenz, who has contested the state's right to grant leases of the ocean bottom to treasure-hunters has instituted a suit in which the Martin County Historical Society will be named a defendant.

Judge Hugh Taylor of Lake County Circuit Court ordered the inclusion of the society in the suit, according to Carroll Duncombe, attorney for Lorenz, who appeared before the judge at a hearing on the suit.

The attorney has contended that the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund had no right to issue the leases, and has sought a summary judgement.

Judge Taylor had ordered the state, represented by Attorney General Earl Faircloth and two assistants, J. Kenneth Ballinger and Larry Levy, to show that the trustees had the authority.

Judge Taylor commented during Tuesday's hour-and-a-half hearing that he did not believe the state had the right to issue them, but held up on issuing a summary judgement because he wanted the historical society brought into the case, according to Duncombe.

Lorenz had contended a lease granted to the society for ten years, No. 1667, barred him from searching for treasure in the area.

Lorenz had tried to show in the case that the IIF trustees had no right to give leases under any law.

Judge Taylor had pinpointed the action toward the specific local lease, in two hearings, and ordered Lorenz at one time to state specifically that he had been barred by the lease grant from searching in the specific area off the House of Refuge.

In early July, the defense contended the lease was exclusive to the society.

Duncombe said he would notify the society of its position, probably would cite Roland Merrill as its president.

Meanwhile, Expeditions unlimited, which was granted a search contract of the society's leasehold, continues to search for treasure. So far, apparently, the quest has been in vain.

The Mirror this week features many of the models that will be shown by local appliance dealers. The shopping list is designed to demonstrate to local people the wide range of appliances available at local stores. Local banks are also advertising their low-cost appliance loans, designed to keep financing of kitchen aids here in Martin County.

The fellowship hall of the Community Church seats 400 in air-conditioned comfort. Following an attendance of over 700 in the show last year, Mirror publisher Dick Campbell reports that this year should be a "standing room only" event, and urged that all persons coming to the shows arrive early.

Porpoises Mating Seen By Charter Group Here

A picture story of the birth of a baby porpoise at Marineland, Florida, was featured in Sunday's All-Florida Magazine. Also on Sunday, a group of people in a charter boat watched a small school of very large porpoises mated.

Guests aboard the charter boat, Bilbe, skippered by Smarty Maier, William P. Tott, watched in awe as porpoises as long as 12 feet met in what appeared to be marital combat, racing, slashing through the water, rolling, and quirking the cover.

One magnificent bull, at least 12 feet long, flew into the air at least his length, possibly higher.

Another time, a big bull tossed a small cow into the air with his snout.

The mating process was accompanied not only by what appeared to be a counterpart of an osculation act, but at significant times, the bulls pounded the surface of the sea for seconds at a time with their forked tails.

The school tried constantly to evade the boat, but occasionally a pair would sound under the craft, the female rolling to show her white underside, the male following her down to perhaps a depth of 80 to 90 feet, then into the darkness below the boat.

Mrs. Ruth Richards Died Monday

Mrs. Ruth E. Richards, 51, of Eden, died in Martin Memorial Hospital Monday after a brief illness. A native of Centerville, Iowa, she had lived in this area for the past 20 years.

Mrs. Richards was corresponding secretary of the Walton-Eden Property Owners Club.

Survivors include her husband, Charles O., of Eden, four daughters, Mrs. Cora Rumsmoot of Lake Charles, La., Mrs. Ann King of Flint, Mich., and twin daughters living in California; and one son, Charles Brown.

Funeral services will be held in Johns Funeral Home Chapel Friday at 2 P.M. with Rev. Robert Greenwood, Pastor of Christian Church of Christ, Jensen Beach, officiating. Burial will be in the Eden Cemetery.

Friends may call at Johns Chapel Thursday, 7 to 9 P.M.

Grade Nears Completion

Nearing completion is the highway, named for Martin County, that will link two county seats, serve as a farm-to-market road and open up back county areas.

Called Martin Grade, it was put on the State Road Department lists as a state highway when Gov. John W. Martin was in office, between 1925 and 1929. The Governor, for whom the county was named when it was established in May, 1925, earned a reputation as having been impetus to the state's road building program which opened the state to tourists.

Martin Grade carried its state road designation for many years, but it was finally dropped from the list of state highways. In later years, even the sand trail became obliterated in some stretches.

During the rainy season, it was often under water, and muddy even in dry weather. The road had little future until the 1961-65 county commission revived original plans to open the back county areas because of the citrus boom there. Through the State Road Board's member, John Monahan, the commission got the first new contract for construction.

That job, completed by Dickerson, Inc., low bidder, was finished early this month at a cost of $378,744 for a six-mile segment.

Beach Report

Jensen Beach's head lifeguard, Jack Cammack, has been on duty at the Jensen beach since October 3, 1962, at which time he had retired and moved to Martin County. He is a veteran of 23 years combined service in the armed forces: U.S. Army Air Force, the Army and the Navy. He has taught swimming for many years and estimates the number of children taught and on record with the American Red Cross in Washington to be 8,000. He has two sons, 13 and 18, living in Chicago. His brother, Bob, is also a lifeguard at Jensen Beach, and their parents expect to make Jensen their permanent home in November of this year.

Because of the increase in population in Martin County, the County Commission has provided more safety on the beaches, Jensen Beach has had a lifeguard since 1962. There is now a full-time lifeguard, Richard Rice, II, Indian River Jr. College student, at the Stuart Beach during the summer. Also on duty there during the weekends is David Harshburger, recently discharged Navy veteran.

A third beach, located south of the Jensen Beach, operates on weekends only, with lifeguard Lonnie Langston in charge.

Beach Conditions Were Excellent In Past Week

by Jack Cammack

For the benefit of newly-arrived residents and visitors, I would like to list the designations of flags flown at the beaches;

White; Excellent surf conditions.

Blue; Slight chop to surf, good swimming.

Red; Danger, rough surf, undertow, caution.

Gold; Surfing flag, located according to the wind.

No flag; No lifeguard in attendance.

Hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, except Monday when there is no lifeguard on duty and one swims at his own risk. We ask that persons swim only in the protected areas and obey the lifeguards as they are there for your protection.

It is very important, when swimming, to listen for the lifeguard's whistle; it may be FOR YOU.

All stations have adequate first aid, and two of the stations have resuscitators for emergency use. There is also a telephone on each beach for emergency use only.

Because of recent showers and thunderstorms, there is a lot of electricity in the air accompanying the storms. We ask the public to please leave the water and come up off the beach and DRY yourself. The human body is a conductor when wet. There was a recent death in Palm Beach County due to the above situation.

No dogs are permitted on the beaches between the controlled areas of swimming. Skid boards are not allowed on the protected beaches. No beach buggies are permitted at any time during swimming hours.

Beach conditions Tuesday, 20th, through Tuesday, 27th, were good to excellent except for one day when flags went from white to red in less than 3 hours. There was an exceptionally strong undertow. Seas were running from 3 to 6' above normal.

Attendance has been on the increase, around 80 during the week and up to 250 on weekends at each beach.

Tides were normal except for one day. Surf temperature averaged 77 degrees.

Generally clean water. Five of seven days water was free of seaweed.

No accidents on any beach except minor skin abrasions incurred along the reef.

A black flag is flown in the event of sharks in the area. However, none have been seen along the beaches since Memorial Day. We have binoculars, which we use constantly, and adequate warning is given.

Learn to be aware of and listen for the lifeguard's whistle.

A daily report is given over WSTU at noon and frequently during afternoons.

The Martin County Commissioners and all lifeguards welcome any outside interest and suggestions. We may be contacted by calling 287-0211 or by letter addressed to Jack Cammack, Head Lifeguard, Jensen Beach, Fla.

The lifeguards hope the above information has been helpful and that you will practice the safety suggestions and avail yourselves of the protection offered.

Guard Rails Are Planned For SR 76

A danger spot between SR 76 and the St. Lucie Canal has been inspected by Dan F. Turnbull, safety engineer for the State Road Department. Turnbull is expected to recommend construction of guard rails under the new state-county South Florida effort to curb canal fatalities.

Turnbull had inspected the stretch between the old low-level bridge across the canal and a point about a half mile west of the new high-level bridge.

Governor Haydon Burns endorsed the guard rail program after a review of canal deaths, particularly in Palm Beach County. Cost of the rails would be borne by the State Road Department.

Turnbull's inspection of the narrow strip of land between the thoroughfare and the canal, at best a few feet wide, borders a steep embankment. There have been accidents in the past, including one in which three drowned when a car rolled into the canal Dec. 30, 1960.

GED Test To Be Given Next Week

Correction

Property for the new post office site reported sold by W. B. Tilton last week for $28,000 in The Mirror was sold for only $18,000. The typographical error cost Tilton $10,000, who said, "I wish I had sold it for that much."

A General Educational Development Test (High School Equivalency) will be given at the Indian River Junior College on the evenings of August 4, 5, and 6, according to Charles W. Sample, Dean of Student Personnel at the College.

Individuals applying for this test must be citizens of the State of Florida, be 20 years of age or older, and have successfully completed one credit in United States History and Government. Those persons wishing to take this test - other than those students currently enrolled in the G.E.D. course at the College - must apply at the College. The fee for the battery of five (5) tests is $7.50.

Damaged Schoolbooks Destroyed

About 500 school textbooks were sent to the municipal dump Friday, according to Supt. of Schools, Thomas L. Crook.

The books had been wet by a 1964 hurricane but have been replaced by up-to-date issues in science and literature. The damaged books had been kept for possible emergency use.

The junior high school grades books had been stored at the old high school at the time they were damaged.

About 25 cartons were involved.

Cunningham Named "Operation Dominican" Head

Bob Cunningham has been named chairman of Operation Dominican by Don Bowden, President of the Stuart Junior Chamber of Commerce. The Operation seeks contributions for children, especially those orphaned because of present conditions in the Dominican Republic.

Collections of infant and children's clothes, as well as non-perishable foods such as rice, cubed beans, canned oily fish, canned baby food, canned and powdered milk, are being made by the Stuart Jaycees.

Publix Supermarket in Stuart is the contributions center where food and clothing may be taken, thereby on of the collected clothing and food is under the direction of the 82nd Airborne Division Chaplain.

Contributions will be accepted through Saturday, said Bowden.

Tiltons Return

Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Tilton and Mrs. Anita T. Wacha have just returned from a week's visit to Mrs. W. B. Tilton on Lookout Mountain, Cloudland, Ga.

Mr. Tilton's daughter, Robin, has been attending Valley View Ranch on Lookout Mountain for four weeks and is now visiting with her mother, Mrs. Betty Tabor in New Jersey. They expect to visit the World's Fair.

Budget Up Only .18 Mill

The County Commission, after a half-hour hearing, adopted a 1965-66 budget levy less than one-fifth of a mill over last year's levy, to forestall the possibility of an even break with last year's levy, depending on what Central and South Florida Flood Control District does at its meeting Friday. The adopted levy was 8.83 mills, up from last year's 8.65 mills, or an increase of .18 mill.

Approximately $1,682,000 is expected to be raised by the levy, and this tops the 1964-65 budget by about $140,000. This is not a true comparison, as carryover funds vary from year to year. As adopted, the levy calls for 4.77 mills in the general fund, 1.48 mills in the fine and forfeiture fund, .34 mill in the mosquito control district, 1.6 in road and bridge fund, .57 in the capital outlay fund and .15 for health fund.

A levy of .02 mill for the Jupiter Inlet authority for maintenance fund and a levy of .58 for interest and sinking fund of the authority, completed the local levy. According to Chairman Paul A. Wachs, Randolph Sims, director of the State Department of Conservation, had taken official written notice of the withdrawal of Florida Inland Navigation District's one-tenth mill levy request, and he pointed out that the FCD levy, promised for Friday, could cut the slight increase in the local levy to match last year's levy.

Henry Beckman, Jr., requested that $3,000 deleted from the budget in the county judge's budget, the amount to be used for a secretary for Beckman, be returned to the budget. No change was made.

An increase was requested by Ray Lorenz, Chairman of the Museum Commission, for $3,000 to take care of the museum's budget. The addition was not made.

Wachs carefully detailed the civil defense budget figures to show that Federal participation would increase from $11,043 last year to $16,970 this year, to offset what appeared to be an increase, but which really was only a realignment of funds budgeted in different places last year.

According to Wachs, County Assessor A. Clyde Courson and County Tax Collector Alvin N. Andrews have asked that the initial levy of

Dredging Project Unsatisfactory

Frank A. Wachs, County Commission Chairman, said today he hoped to confer with Lt. Col. Paul G. Hoffman, USA, District engineer for the U.S. Corps of Engineers, Jacksonville, in the very near future, on the problem shoaling of the St. Lucie Inlet.

The U.S. representative stated several times in recent months that he considers it to have an interest seeing to it that the Inlet project is completed as planned.

Boatsmen have said that their craft are hitting bottom in the inlet inside the area known as the inlet. They claim that the channel on the south point of the inlet, along the beach near the Hole in the Wall, is filling from drifting sand to the north side.

They have also pointed out that some of the markers have been removed by the U.S. Coast Guard are not in the deepest channel areas, tending to confuse boatsmen not familiar with the area.

Charter boatsmen and others using the inlet have continued to complain over the dredging project done there last winter and spring and Wachs said he is still dissatisfied with conflicting reports and deeds made by Corps personnel following the completion of the project.

Upon complaints from boatsmen, the Corps sent a team to make a hurried survey of conditions, found them as declared by the dredge personnel at the end of the project.

A further check by the Corps accompanied by three local charter boat skippers and the press found one of shoal water where the Corps had said it was deep water.

Wachs said that airviews taken of the inlet Thursday would be taken to Jacksonville and sent to Rep. Rogers.

NEW ROAD—Crews place the final gravel topping and level the widened Bevel]'s Point Road from St. Joseph's Novitiate to the junction Highway 707. The road should be completed soon.

Bridge Dedication Saturday

The principal speaker at the dedication of the new million-dollar high level bridge over the St. Lucie Canal on SR 710 at 11 A.M. Saturday will be State Road Board Chairman Floyd Brown.

Former SRB District 4 member, John K. Monahan, for whom the bridge will be named, and his family, will be honored guests at the public dedication ceremonies at the north approach to the new bridge.

There will be a brief flag ceremony conducted by the color guard of Raymond E. Darling, Jr., Post Veterans of Foreign Wars. This will be followed by the invocation by Rev. James E. Henry, and a brief welcoming speech by County Commissioner Thomas Powers.

Chester J. Benarchis, State Road Board member from the fourth district will be introduced, and he in turn will introduce Brown.

Martin County flowers will be presented to Mrs. Monahan and her daughter by members of the Girl Scouts.

Cleary Bros. Construction Co. of West Palm Beach was prime contractor and Dickerson, Inc., of Stuart, was chief sub-contractor for the bridge which was completed in time for use on June 22. It replaced the old single-lane swing bridge over the canal, is 1,961 feet long in a stretch of the 1.4 mile long highway.

The bridge was built at a cost of approximately $1 million.

The 1965 state legislature designated the name "Big John Monahan Bridge" at the request of the Martin County Commission. Rep. William E. Owens introduced the bill at local request.

A luncheon for invited guests will follow the ceremonies, and will be held at Seminole Inn by Minute Maid Grove, luncheon host.

Platform guests will include Clarence Davidson, District 4 SRD engineer; William Sheer, resident engineer on the project; Walter S. Crowell of Dickerson, Inc.; a representative of Cleary Bros. Construction Co.; Senators Irlo Bronson, John McCarty and Murrill Burton; and Rep. Wm. Owens. Also members of the Martin County Commission.

The "official party" will include State's City Manager Joe S. Crowder, Mayor Wm. F. Todt and the city commissioners; Town Manager of Jupiter Island, Richard Turgis; Mayor Grissom Bethea of Jupiter Island; Mayor J. A. Marquette, Sewall's Point; and Mayor Harry Hoke of Ocean Breeze Park.

Also included will be former county commissioners living in the county, county commission delegates from Okeechobee, Palm Beach and St. Lucie Counties, and legislators from those counties.

Others will be Chester Underhill, President of the Martin County Cattlemen's Association; Albert Krueger, President of the Farm Bureau; Lawrence Horton, President of the Martin County Committee of 100, Also Sheriff Roy C. Baker, Circuit Court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge; County Clerk Dorothy Pierce; County Assessor A. Clyde Courson; County Tax Collector Alvin N. Andrews; County Prosecutor William A. Oughterson; County Judge Mallory L. Johnson; County

Holds Special Meet

At a special meeting Tuesday, the County Commission voted to transfer $1,000 from the contingency fund to the Foster home Account; authorized the State Road Department to use secondary gas tax funds of the county for right-of-way on Pratt Whitney Road, and authorized the appointment by Commissioner Jack Saunderson of Morton Lee Hurst, Hobe Sound, as recreation activities administrator at the Banner Lake playground.

The board also voted to hold a public hearing of a Palm City zoning change from HR-2 to R-4 on August 24, to hold a hearing on a suggested change in the general contractors' code on the same date, and to advertise for bids for sale of the county garage, to be opened Aug. 30.

Yet, The Story Was True

Mister, You're Crazy Miller Tells Editor

County Commissioner Ed Miller, in a telephone conversation with Jensen Beach Mirror editor Dick Campbell, said, "Mister, you're crazy" in reference to the story in The Mirror last week which told of Miller's opposition to the inclusion of the Palm City bridge funds in a resolution to the State Road Board two years ago.

Miller said that he did not say that he opposed the new bridge funds, and that the article was "a lie".

Miller asked the editor who had told him that he had opposed the bridge funds. "Who, me," said Campbell, "I was standing there when you said you didn't want it included in the resolution."

Also in the county commissioner's room at the finance were commissioners Frank A. Wachs, Herb Bruner, Jack Saunderson and Jack Williamson, and newspaper reporters Jim Minter of the Miami Herald, Ray McClure of the Stuart News, and County Engineer Fred Bell.

Commissioner Herb Bruner at that time insisted that the funds be left in the budget, calling the need for the bridge above petty politics, or words to that effect.

Following the telephone conversation with The Mirror editor, the following morning Ed Miller read a statement at the budget hearing of the commission, a special meeting. The statement is reprinted on this page, and in it Miller denies that he had opposed the new bridge.

When contacted by The Mirror, the persons attending the resolution meeting, held on March 18, 1964, at the office of the county commission, gave the following comments:

Jim Minter, Miami Herald reporter, said, "As I remember it, Mr. Miller did not want the Palm City bridge to be included in the primary road budget in that coming year. He said that it wasn't needed. It was at the insistance of Mr. Bruner that the funds for the new Palm City Bridge were included in the resolution to the road board.

Jack Saunderson, County Commissioner, remembers the incident, saying that Bruner was very upset at the fact that Miller would not allow the bridge funds put into the request for allocations by the State Road Department. Saunderson added that he had voted to put the bridge into the request to the SRD.

Herb Bruner told The Mirror that he had read the article and thought it was very nice of Wachs to praise him for his efforts. "I remember," Bruner said, "I had said that I had been under the hot rays many times and had seen that it needed replacement. Miller said he was under the hot rays many times than I and that he did not want it in the allocation.

"I was amazed and angered by the action of Miller." Bruner added, "It was then," he said, "that I insisted that the new bridge funds be included in the request to the State Road Board."

Frank Wachs refused to comment to The Mirror following Miller's news release Tuesday morning. It was Wachs who had announced in the commission meeting the previous week, "It is too bad Mr. Bruner isn't here. We could congratulate him for insisting that the million dollars (for the new bridge) be included in the requested budget two years ago."

Ed Miller's Statement

I HAVE BEEN INFORMED that one paper said, that I, Ed Miller, was not in favor of getting a replacement for the Palm City Bridge in 1963 from the State Road Board.

I made the trip to Fort Lauderdale State Road Department in 1963 and 1964, and requested that a replacement for the Palm City Bridge, also the widening of the Hump Back Bridge at Poppaton Creek be included in the budget.

I did say in 1963 that I believe that it was a mistake to have put the entrance of the Sunshine Parkway where it is now instead of on #76, for by doing so it is necessary to have trucks cross the Palm City Bridge to get to the City of Stuart. If it was on road #76 it would not be necessary to cross the Palm City Bridge.

In 1965 before I arranged a meeting with our District Road Board Chairman in Miami, I convinced him that the Palm City Bridge replacement was an emergency, I was promised this would get top priority for our county. This I told to Mr. Bell. I they arranged to have our Road Board Chairman meet with you, The Commissioners, at a time he told me his calendar would permit him to do so. I then was to be well satisfied with the results of that meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Senarchis have been our house guests and on one occasion we took a boat trip to look over different suggested locations for a new Palm City Bridge.

One reason I do not intend to take part in the location is that I own property in many places in our county, and I do not want anyone to say I have requested one location over the other. However, I am happy to feel I helped in getting our county this million dollar bridge, and I want this known to the Press. I also realize that if anything happened to the Palm City Bridge due to the heavy trucking that the residents in Palm City would be put to a serious disadvantage.

THE RAIN CAME—This photo, taken through the window of a car sitting in the middle of the famous Highway 707 waterhole, shows the depth of the water covering the road after a 20-minute downpour Tuesday afternoon.

Wacha Comments On FIND Defeat

County commission chairman Frank A. Wacha commented Friday that "vindictive measures to levy a tax without reason seem to have reached against Florida Inland Navigation District."

Wacha, who urged a study of FIND's accounting methods some time ago, had this to say of FIND's announcement that it had decided not to force a one-tenth mill levy on the 100 counties in the district.

St. Lucie, Dade and Martin counties had objected when FIND sent out a notice directing the levy.

Wacha said, "When they found out that they hadn't abided by the laws under which the 1965 legislature placed them, they had nothing but a weak kneed excuse as a reason for backing down.

As soon as Governor Hayden Burns appoints new personnel to the district, the sooner the counties in the district will get down to the task of completing the project," added Wacha.

Those objecting to the tax levy pointed out that the one-tenth mill would have given the district $1 million more than its expenses justified, and no budget to back it up.

Cuba Asks For Data On Lobster Research

Ross Witham, researcher into the habits of the Florida lobster, or crawfish, has been asked by Dr. Robert Ingle, assistant director of the State Department of Conservation, and its research chief, to forward to Cuba a pamphlet written by Witham on lobster research.

Interest in trapping the Florida lobster apparently surrounds the problems of International Communism and the Cuban Revolution, as the pamphlet has been requested by Rose J. Dunes, a Cuban "investigator" into the habits of the crawfish on the south coast of Cuba.

The letter indicated that Dunes had found baby lobsters in a search area and wanted more information.

It was also revealed that there have been other exchanges of such information between Florida and Cuban authorities.

Gold Find Is Not

A rumor spread through the area Tuesday after a metropolitan newspaper and a Miami radio station said that pieces of gold had been found in a wreck off Stuart.

Norman Scott, leader of Expeditions Unlimited, denied that his group had struck gold.

"I heard the broadcast," said Scott at Expeditions Unlimited home base at Pompano Beach, "but it was entirely false."

Expeditions Unlimited is searching for 1715 Spanish fleet gold in the Martin Co. Historical Society's lease area off the House of Refuge.

"We have found four wrecks, none of which do we have the slightest interest to us. None of them are plate fleet wrecks, nor do they have any value to us," said Scott.

It had been rumored locally that Scott's boats had found one of the wrecks being sought by his organization under contract from Martin County Historical Society.

Scott said that absolutely nothing had been found of value, although the rumor was that the initial find had been of three unidentified gold coins.

"Not so," said Scott.

First Train Stops Here

Ross Philbrick, executive secretary of the Committee of 100; Mrs. Rosaleen Murray, manager of the Stuart Chamber of Commerce; and Roland G. Linder, representing the county's realtors, flagged the first passenger train to go through this area in two and a half years on Monday.

They made the trip as far north as Melbourne on the 11 a.m. train, and returned on the first southbound train which went through Jensen Beach at 5:00 p.m.

The northbound train was made up of three cars named Stuart, St. Augustine and St. Lucie Scouts.

Coon Hound Hootenanny To Be Held In Daytona

A "Coon Hunting Hootenanny" is hound dogs and humans, accompanied by the music of banjos and guitars. The "Florida Championship Inboard Coon Hound Field Trial" is a coon hunting hootenanny at its very best and probably one of the most unusual hound dog events in the nation.

This year's hootenanny and field trial sponsored by the Halifax Hunting and Fishing Club and staged by the Dunes and Fresh Water Fish Commission, is scheduled for Daytona Beach, August 14. The musical hound dog event will be held in the 1,500 seat open air theater of the Daytona Beach Bandshell and is the 15th annual renewal of the popular "Wildlife Night".

Wildlife night at the Daytona Beach bandshell is an evening with emphasis on hunting, fishing and wildlife conservation and breaks a wintertime routine of musical concerts. Last year's "wildlife night" was cancelled due to an untimely Atlantic hurricane.

Music for this year's hootenanny will be provided by the "Wildlife Boys", a group of guitar playing, folk singing, wildlife personnel of the Game and Fish Commission. The hounds will be provided by individual coon hunters who feel their hound dog good enough to compete for the title of Florida Inboard Field Trial Champion.

Complete information regarding the Coon Hunting Hootenanny and Florida Championship Inboard Field Trial may be obtained by contacting the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, Department of Information-Education, Ocala, Fla., or the Daytona Beach Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 2169, Daytona Beach, Florida.

Swimming Excellent Except For Showers

Beach Report

by Jack Cammack

Since last week we have noticed at the Stuart beach that the beginning of additional landscaping is in progress under the direction of County Engineer, Fred Bell. Thanks to those who are endeavoring to improve this beach.

Water temperatures averages between 78 and 80 at both beaches since last Tuesday. The white flag was down each day which made excellent swimming except for occasional thunder showers.

There were many cars noticed with tags other than Martin County.

Showers occurred daily mostly in the afternoon from Wednesday on. The life guards noticed that most of the bathers and surfers came to the beach in the morning as low tide was generally in the afternoons this week. Tides at Jensen and Stuart are exceptionally low this year. This is the opinion of people who live in this area. In the four years I have been here, this is the lowest I have seen it.

Dr. Thomas and his family are visiting in this area from Gandsaline, Texas. On July 27, he caught a 6" 10" sailfish. The Thomas children are Dwight, 3; Mike, 5, and Karol Ann, 12.

Mr. Harper of WEAT, Ch. 12, took pictures of surfers on Wednesday and they are shown that same evening on Ch. 12.

The color of the water this week was real muddy probably because of the overflow from Lake Okeechobee. Because of heavy rains, the water is let into the St. Lucie Inlet.

On July 31 at the Stuart Beach a large mastaray was seen about 100 yards off the beach.

Surfing conditions on both beaches were poor all week due to the real low tides and very calm surf.

The Jensen Beach Pony League held a picnic on August 1. About 30 or 40 people attended.

Attendance at the beaches during the week was generally above normal, increasing to about 300 on Sunday.

Visitors to Jensen Beach for three weeks are my good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gemza. Accompanying the Gemzas are Mr. and Mrs. John Molnar. They are all from Ohio.

Two pairs of girls shoes were found at the Stuart Beach. The owner may claim by calling 287-0530.

Safety Tip: Although this is the middle of the swimming season, it is apparent that many people do not realize the times that they are too far off shore. Overexertion which creates fatigue sometimes leaves the person in deep water in trouble. It then becomes apparent that they do not have enough energy to get back to shore. This can be prevented by using common sense and swimming within the prescribed limits. There have been recent drownings reported in other counties nearby. These could have been prevented by swimming in the patrolled areas. There is protection on both beaches and they are protrolled daily by life guards except on Mondays, when swimmers must proceed at their own risk.

Next week there will be a discussion on tides and currents.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith and daughter, Helen Kay, have returned from vacationing in Columbus, Ohio, to their home in Jensen Beach.

Budget

,012 for St. Lucie Inlet District & Port Authority maintenance fund be increased to ,02 mill to avoid tax billing problems. The change was made.

Chairman of the County Republican Executive Committee and a member of the School Board, Henry Gunn, read a statement which congratulated the commission for keeping the increase to a low level, and criticized it for not spending more money on improvements for blight areas.

He asked for an increase in funds for mosquito control, more policing of unincorporated areas by the sheriff's department, an increase in funds for the library, and criticized the 50 per cent increase of salaries of the county commissioners, however, he voted only last week to increase his own salary on the school board by 50 per cent.

Wacha explained that the sheriff's budget was what the sheriff had requested, and that the library had agreed to and was getting a flat millage budget.

He did not comment on the salary increase.

The salary increase was also criticized by Commissioner Ed Miller, not only for the commissioners but for the supervisor of elections and the county attorney's secretary.

He stated that the CD budget was increasing out of control and requested that Martin County be compared with other counties as to the sheriff's budget, county attorney's salary, and the mosquito control fund.

When Gunn questioned the health unit office, Wacha explained that plans for the building were in the making, as apart from an old age home, in the capital outlay budget, and that plans were on the boards for adding to the Courthouse.

"We hope to square off the front of the building to provide more office space for the registrar and the law library, which is about ready to go through the second floor," said Wacha.

He also stated that a jury box will be added to the commission meeting room to provide a better second court room than it is at present.

Fair Fishing Reported

According to reports from the Snook Nook, fishing was good last week but rather slow over the weekend. Some trout, snook and bottom fish were among the catches.

Clint Webb caught 5 trout and 2 snook while Al Kroll netted 4 snook and 1 blue-fish. Other catches were: Reg Darvill, 15 trout; Martin and Hank Walter, 50 sheepshead; Bob Robinson, 40 trout and 4 snapper; Fred Reynolds, 30 croakers; Irving Fisher, 5 trout; Harry Clark, 4 trout and Jack Akers, 2 snook and 1 trout.

Also, Steven Stevens, Walter Bangi and Doc Schall caught 12 channel bass.

President of the Martin County Historical Society, Rolland Merrell, was served on Tuesday with papers in the Raymond Lorenz suit in which the latter has contested the state's right to grant leases of the ocean bottom to treasure hunters.

The Society has been made a co-defendant in Lorenz' suit against the members of the board of trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund, at the order of Judge Hugh Taylor of Leon County Circuit Court.

According to Lorenz, the newly named antiquities board also has asked to be made a party to the suit, but the move is not expected to be approved by Judge Taylor.

Hands Across The Border

Another route opens between Martin and St. Lucie Counties with the dedication of A1A on Hutchinson Island August 6th. The opening marks another step forward in the ties between the two counties.

We have, for a long time, been associated politically. We will see even more political association under the new apportionment plan approved by the state legislature in the spring of the year. The opening of this road will offer new opportunities for the expansion of our ties.

The completion of the road also fulfills a promise many years old. The work of many men to accomplish the project should be noted. Of all who participated in the planning of the new road, and of all who worked and cooperated in the work, one name stands out as a keynote, or driving force of the new road. That name is Gene Dyer, former resident of Sewall's Point, now a resident of Palm Beach.

Dyer's organizational efforts were responsible for the road being there today. He not only gave much of the land right of way, but also pushed and cajoled, and convinced others to do likewise. Now the State Road Department has a road that goes from Fort Pierce to the Martin County line at Jensen Beach, inland, as they demand. The county of St. Lucie has 800' of access to the beach for the use of the public. The public has a road that is one of the most beautiful drives in the area, completely undeveloped.

Now the growth and progress of Hutchinson Island is assured. All we need now is capital investment. With city water, good roads and all the natural beauty that Hutchinson Island has, we cannot see how it can be kept from growing into another Miami Beach.

We welcome this additional tie to St. Lucie County, and salute the St. Lucie County Commission, who made it possible, the Martin County Commission, who assisted in gaining the project, Gene Dyer, who did most of the organization to bring the road into being, and all who participated in putting it there.

Cooking School A Success

Another example of the community spirit of the Martin County people was expressed in the cooperation of local citizens and merchants in the second annual Mirror Cooking School. It was a complete success.

Over 500 men and women from many homes in Martin County came to learn more about the art of cookery from representatives of Florida Power and Light Company and Publix Markets.

The cooperation of Florida Power and Light and Publix Markets, co-sponsors of the event, coupled with the cooperation of many local appliance dealers and shops made the cooking school a success. It is assured that it will be held again next year.

Perhaps the most important aspect of the cooking school was the participation of all major appliance dealers. They showed that they had the appliances for local purchase. Most of them would assure any local buyer a price that will compete with any major dealer in any big city.

Prize winners of the many door prizes given to the cooking school by local merchants were pleased with their gifts. Over one hundred winners were announced at the completion of the two sessions of the school. Many gifts were given by local businesses to make certain that the school was a success, and their help made the program outstanding.

The Mirror is proud to be a part of such a community service program. We will continue to do as much as humanly possible to make Martin County a better place in which to live.

LIVE.....and love it by DICK CAMPBELL

From May To December

It is a long, long time, from May to December. How well we remember.

Really, how well do we remember?

I have compiled a list of things from memory, and with the help of those who remember along with me. These are items that no longer exist, to my knowledge. Yet, they have a nostalgic meaning in my memory.

Do you remember the sign we used to put in the window? It had a big ICE in the center, with four slides that had a big 25, 50, 75 and 100 to tell the iceman how much we needed that day. And do you remember the pan that filled to overflowing, and the mess when you forgot to empty it that evening?

When I was a kid, during the summer we would follow the ice truck, and when it would stop the man would cut off a piece of ice and carry it to the house, while he was gone we would pick up the chips of ice from the water-logged, wood plank truck bed.

Remember sitting on the curb in the summer waiting for the firemen to come along and turn on the fire hydrants into the street? We would have a haven of water splashing, following slivers of wood and pieces of paper down the stream in the gutter to the sewer. There we would watch the water disappear into the cavern of mystery.

Who remembers banking a fire in the coal stove at night? Or the scoop-type of coal bucket that we used to carry in the coals and haul out the ashes....or sprinkling the sidewalk with ashes in winter.

And, the tank up near the ceiling that made such a loud noise when the chain was pulled in the bathroom. It had a little wooden knob on it that was attractively designed on a lathe.

The razor strop is just about out of existence, except in barber shops. So is the straight edge razor grandpa used.

Remember the stickers on car windows in World War Two? The A sticker was a status symbol, meaning you were pretty important.

What about the rumble seat in cars? Or, the hand crank, or the wonder of a Cord convertible with headlights that were covered?

Remember the Saturday afternoon movie for a dime, and Buck Jones, Tom Mix, Ken Maynard and Flash Gordon?

What about the "big-little books"?

Little-Lord Fauntleroy shirts on boys, and the dread of going to a dentist who used no pain killer.

And how about the ten days in the hospital when the baby was born, Now they have you out in a couple of days.

The hearing aid horn that grandma used to hear. The spittoon that grandpa had by the fireplace.

Yes, it's a long, long time from May to December.

The Chain Of Progress

Another link in the chain of Martin County progress will be forged this Saturday at 11 a.m., in Bethesda. At that time the dedication of the new, million dollar "Big John Monahan Bridge" will be held on the north approach to the bridge.

The new bridge replaces the old, one-way, rickity, hand-operated bridge, the site of many accidents in the past ten years of Martin County growth. It is a high level bridge, making the raising and lowering of a draw span outmoded, and giving motorists the opportunity to pass over the St. Lucie Canal without fear of life.

The new bridge is also a part of the planned promise of progress of the Martin County Commission over the past five years.

There are several people to gain great credit for this moment of glory in the life of our community area. The first, of course is the namesake of the bridge, "Big John" Monahan. He was the State Road Board member from our district when the plans and the allocation of funds for the bridge were approved.

John Monahan is not from Martin County, but he did treat our county as if it was his own. He helped us in many ways, including the four-laning of U.S. 1, the removal of tolls from the bridges in the ocean, and many road projects, too numerous to mention.

The man who gives Monahan most of the credit, and deserves a great deal of the credit along with Big John, is Frank A. Wacha, chairman of the county commission. He, along with former commissioner Jack Williamson, Jack Saunderson and Herb Bruner did a great deal of work on getting this for our county.

We have every right to be proud of this moment of achievement. It is our growth that is the interest of our public officials. They have given us evidence of their interest in their excellent projects.

We look forward to the completion of the next planned measure of growth, the Palm City Bridge, another on the list of progress items of the Martin County Commission.

Rogers Blasts Allies Aiding Hanoi

Congressman Paul Rogers said that continuing allied aid to North Viet Nam "cannot be tolerated" alongside the build-up in American troops fighting the Viet Cong.

Rogers said, "Americans are going it alone in South Viet Nam. Our major allies are too busy doing business with Hanoi."

The Florida Congressman released figures showing the latest free world ship trade to Viet Cong ports. He said that from January to June British, Greek, Norwegian, Lebanese, Dutch, and Japanese flagships called in North Viet Nam 74 times.

He said that these figures reflect only part of the free world trade with Hanoi. In some cases he said that goods involved may be transported between North Viet Nam and free world nations by Communist ships. Rogers noted that continual bombing of overland supply routes in North Viet Nam has forced Hanoi to place increased importance on port facilities in Haiphong and Port Campha.

"From January thru April of this year alone, Hanoi's trade with our allies totals over $10 million, and includes metals, foodstuffs, minerals, and fabrics. With North Viet Nam's total resources geared toward fighting in South Viet Nam, these items take on a military significance. The income Viet Cong agents receive from selling other items to free world buyers also adds to the welfare of the communist war effort.

"Many of these allies are repeat offenders, and there is a definite pattern in this trade. In light of the latest circumstances, these free world traders are traitors to freedom," Congressman Rogers said.

Perhaps a ban on goods of those nations dealing with the Communist camp would be the answer. In the meantime, we urge the President to use every possible measure of support to our congressman who fights so hard for freedom.

Sabotage Of First Train Fails Near Port Salerno

Railroad track workers at the scene said the removal of about three dozen spikes along a 60-foot length of rails about a mile south of Port Salerno would not have caused a train wreck on the Florida East Coast southbound tracks.

One worker said, "This is the work of someone who either planned to return to finish the job, or who wanted to make a stir because of the newly reopened passenger service."

"If sabotage was really planned," said one railroad, "they'd either be planning to come back and unbolt the rails or put something under them."

Robert Patterson, of Miami, who was waiting for his foreman, Charles Dorr was said by Sheriff Roy C. Baker to have found the spikes missing.

The FBI, three men from the Fort Pierce office and three from a special rail sabotage detachment working throughout the state, were called to the scene at about 10:44 a.m., which was the same time that the local sheriff's department was notified of the incident.

Railmen at the scene said the spikes could have been removed at any time over a period of up to several weeks.

The FBI was on the scene because it had been given jurisdiction under the Railway Sabotage Act.

Sheriff Baker confirmed that a full length heavy freight had traveled over the spot shortly before 7 a.m. Monday, without incident.

THANKS—Sam Rhodes, right, received a large plaque engraved with "In appreciation of your untiring efforts on our behalf" from the Anchorage Yacht Club last Saturday night. Channel Partially Closed At Jensen

There will be a temporary, partial blocking of the Intracoastal Waterway channel at the new SR 707-A bridge under construction linking the causeways in Jensen Beach on dates in August, according to the U.S. Corps of Engineers District Office.

Starting August 5 until the 6th, the west span will remain in lowered position.

Beginning August 17 and continuing through the 23rd, the east span will remain in a lowered position.

One half of the channel will be available at all times for passage of navigation. This is approximately 45 degrees horizontal clearance.

All vessels are advised to use extreme caution in approaching the bridge during these periods, said C.S. Ivy, Table, district engineer.

There were 199 children in the Smokey Bear club and 163 in the American Heritage club. Certificates were given to 160 readers of 10 books or more.

During the program, Mrs. Harris read at the main library for two hours each Wednesday. She also read at the Booker Park School.

Indiantown Land Sold

Title to 320 acres of land in Indiantown was transferred to William N. and Verena P. Myers at a price indicated by state transfer stamps of just over $90,000.

Myers is in the citrus nursery business.

A mortgage note, signed by the Myers to Travelers Insurance Company, was for $157,000.

Head Start Paid Off

Most of the tab for Operation Head Start in Martin County has been paid off by the Federal government, as it had promised.

A check for $13,347 has been received from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to make a total of $33,367 received, said Supt. of Schools Thomas L. Crook last week.

The local school system was charged with ten per cent of the cost of the program; the total program had been estimated at $36,700.

The local program was for six weeks and ended last Friday.

About 280 children took part in the project.

Because the county inte-gration plan for schools had not been accepted by Washington at that time, two weeks were lost at the start of the program.

Your Social Security

Q. I am a widow 60 years old. My husband died 8 years ago. I was able to support myself until last fall when I had a bad stroke. Now I can't do anything, since my left side is paralyzed. Can I get my widow's checks now, since I can't work at all?

A. You can't get widow's checks. But it seems that you might get disability payments on your own work under social security.

Q. My son had been supporting me when he was killed last year. He was in military service, and all the funeral expenses were paid by the service. I'm only 55 years old. Is there anything I should do now about social security?

A. We need proof that he furnished over one-half of your support at the time of his death. You must furnish this evidence within two years of the date he died. Your social security office will help you in filing this proof of support.

Bridge Closing Decision Soon

Martin County Engineer Fred L. Bell announced last week that the U. S. Corps of Engineers at Jacksonville, through A. L. McKnight, Chief of the Operations Division, had promised an early decision in the Arundel Bridge closing problem.

Permission of the Corps had been asked by the county to close the bridge from 5 p.m. until 7 a.m. daily which are almost the same closing hours as St. Lucie Locks, less than a mile away.

When the Corps asked for comment, the Okeechobee Waterway Association had filed a protest.

IRJC Budget Approved

Indian River Junior College's total operational budget amounts to $597,433, while the capital improvement budget amounts to $140,910.

The Indian River Junior College Advisory Board has approved the 1965-66 junior college budget and recommended its acceptance by the St. Lucie County School Board.

The majority of the income of the college comes from state sources. Student fees and tuition will bring into the budget $100,000 and St. Lucie County will contribute $40,478. Indian River $26,982, Martin County will contribute $19,820, and Okeechobee County $8,046. The great majority of the operational budget will be expended for salaries for all personnel.

According to projections made by the college and presented to the Board by College President Maxwell King, approximately 800 to 900 students will be enrolled in the college this fall. Of that number, approximately 460 will be full-time freshmen students and 150 full-time sophomores. The remaining enrollment will be made up of part-time students.

In other action this Advisory Board approved a tentative priority list for future construction to include the following: (1) physical education building, (2) swimming pool, (4) site improvement and acquisition, (5) vocational-technical building, (6) fine arts auditorium, and (8) expansion of the present eating cafeteria. The proposed tentative project list would carry the college through the five years of operation.

Bottomland Sold Despite Protest

According to word received last week, the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund had overruled objections of local conservation groups to authorize the sale of two areas of bottomlands in the Indian River, north and south of the bridge causeway on the eastern shore of Sewall's Point.

The Martin County Izaak Walton League and the Martin County Audubon Society had filed objections.

The 1,87 acres of bottomland were sold to Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Bohner, local real estate developers, and 2,19 acres were sold to Beasemer Properties, Inc., a Palm Beach County development corporation.

Involved in both sales were releases of rights-of-way held by the State Road Dept.

Conservation groups will fight applications to dredge and fill, said Charles H. Kindred, president of the State group of Izaak Walton Leagues.

The areas in question are prime breeding grounds of fish, including the spotted sea trout.

No price has been announced.

Also approved at the meeting in Talahassee was the sale of .75 acre of submerged land in Jupiter Sound, Palm Beach County, to Harold Chamberlain for $1,934.50 per acre.

The IIF Board approved advertising for objections to new applications for purchase, one filed by John R. Wolf, Sr., at Rio, where the Anchorage Yacht Club Marina seeks expansion rights, and the other by Barnet R. Ehrlich, in Stuart.

Ocean Breeze Park Expands With FEC Land Purchase

The Town of Ocean Breeze Park has expanded to within 180 feet of Commercial Street in Jensen Beach as Mayor Harry Hoke announced the purchase of the FEC right of way 481 feet north of the present city line.

The new town limit included the right of way property to the north line of adjacent Mary Jones property. The purchase includes some 26,881.5 square feet of land.

Hoke said he plans to pave a road 18 feet wide to the north limit of the town's new property. The road will straighten the old road, bringing it in some twenty feet to the east.

The new property does not include the FEC depot. The road will open the back area of the town to auto traffic, Hoke said, relieving the traffic congestion off Highway 707.

The road to be paved will start at the center of Ocean Breeze Park and continue to the north line of the new property acquisition.

The town has been one of the most active towns in expansion in Martin County over the past few years. It was in August of 1963 that the A.A. Hendry property was purchased and improved to handle 40 new mobile home units. Previous to that the Backus property was developed to add new area to the town.

Surveyors began staking out the road last Monday, and Ocean Breeze Park officials hope to have the new access completed before next month. Under the terms of the purchase, the town will maintain the road, which runs in front of the FEC Depot.

NEW ROAD---Dotted lines indicate approximate area of a new road to be built by the Town of Ocean Breeze Park. The area from the center of the dotted lines north toward Commercial Street indicate the new expansion of the Park. The new 18 foot wide road will end 180 feet from Commercial Street, as shown in this Mirror aerial photo taken Tuesday morning over Jensen Beach.

Causeway Road Will Be Widened

Jensen Causeway road will be widened and re-surfaced from its west end at Indian River Drive to the approach to the new high level bridge nearing completion, County Commission Chairman Frank Wacha said Friday.

The cost of the project, about a half-mile, was estimated at $20,000 and the money would come from the bond issue which covered construction of the new bridge, he said.

He said savings in the bridge project have resulted in a balance of funds in the bond account with the State Road Department.

"It must be used on the project, cannot be used on any other project, and if not spent, goes back to help pay off the bond account," said Wacha.

He said the roadway would be 24 feet wide at the bridge, and at present is only 18 and 19 feet wide along the balance of the west side of the causeway.

The entire stretch will be widened to the 24 feet.

The roadway on the bridge is 30 feet wide, he said.

Funds for the bridge came from the $900,000 surplus which resulted when a $2.7 million Martin County bond issue was sold in May 1964 by the Florida Development Commission to redeem $1.71 million in outstanding bonds from the original toll bridge issue of $3.2 million.

The original issue paid for the construction of the bridges over the St. Lucie and Indian Rivers from Stuart to Hutchinson Island.

Tolls were added to the Jensen bridge when all three were in operating order. In June, 1963, tolls were removed from all three bridges.

The contract for the new Jensen Bridge was let in early 1964 to Scott Construction Co. of Thomasville, Ga. at a low bid of $765,999.33. Completion is expected late this summer.

Commission Meet Hears Problems

At the Tuesday County Commission meeting, the county road maintenance and construction program as discussed for several months was adopted in a 4-1 vote, with Commissioner Ed Miller opposing because of allocations in District 4.

Miller said a program in which West Murphy Road was included at a cost of $7,900 for the 1965-66 fiscal year instead of surfacing of Murphy Road where Miller owns a bridge, set for 1966-67, was not good.

He also questioned the estimate on the .8 mile of Murphy Road and after the meeting said he would not attempt to develop or build on his island development to which he has built two private bridges at his own cost until the .8 mile is surfaced.

Frank Wacha said that the costs were estimates and that the West Murphy Road included the bridge built at Flood Control District cost.

Miller said he was "putting in a $16,000 road," and added that most of the West Murphy Road traffic came from fishermen casting for snook in C-23 canal.

Commissioner Jack Saunderson pointed out that people on West Murphy Rd. had lots to sell, too.

When Wacha called for a vote to set up widening and resurfacing the Jensen Beach causeway bridge approach under the bridge bond issue, Miller abstained in the voting after opposing the move in discussion.

County Asks Erosion Job Of Engineers

A "letter of intent" resolution was adopted by the county commission asking the U. S. Corps of Engineers to consider the county a likely sponsor of three erosion control projects north of St. Lucie Inlet in the future.

Last Friday, Chairman Frank A. Wacha described the projects as the pumping of sand from Indian River across Hutchinson Island at three points, 1500 at Jensen Beach, 1000 at Stuart Beach, and 600 feet south of the House of Refuge on privately owned property.

Total cost of the three projects was estimated by the Corps as $370,000, of which $174,500 would be considered local, subject to a split between the county and possibly available state erosion control funds.

Not all three projects would have to be accepted, Wacha pointed out, but it appears to be the best move to do it now, subject to later confirmation.

Engineers at work on erosion control on Jupiter Island challenged the suggestion by the Corps that dumping sand on the three stretches of ocean beach would not only control erosion but would accrete sand.

However, Wacha pointed out that tentative approval of the Corps project permitted a continuing study of the problem, and that the funds would not be available for about three years. Possibly the next omnibus civic works finance bill will not reach the Congress until 1967.

School Timetable Is Set For Month

A pre-school meeting of all Martin County teachers will be held at Martin County High School Auditorium on August 18 at 9 a.m.

Guest speaker will be Braulio Alonsa, principal of King High School of Tampa, a past president of the Florida Education Association, and a director for Florida in the National Education Association.

According to Mrs. Lillian Dassori, general school supervisor, it will be an all-day meeting.

Superintendent of Schools Thomas L. Crook will review plans and policies with the teachers, and following his discussion, the Classroom Teachers Association will meet at 11:15 a.m.

The afternoon will be devoted to a panel on services available to the schools, including the public library, audio visual library, and other outside services.

At 3 p.m. the teachers' credit union will meet.

A series of workshops for the teachers will be held on August 19th.

On August 23, there will be a District 11 FEA meeting at Vero Beach High School at 9 a.m. It will be attended by Martin County members.

County Acts Quickly To Make Lake Safe

On Tuesday County Engineer Fred L. Bell was authorized by the County Commission to put county crews and machinery to work at a pond in Palm Lake Park, scene of a drowning incident last week, to remove hazards, level the bottom, and do anything else necessary to eliminate what residents of the area have called "a death trap."

Fred Falk, president of the Palm Lake Park Civic Association had appeared before the board to ask that the board drain and clean the lake, equalize the depth of the seven-acre body of water, and put a drag line there to level the banks.

He said the pond had been under county supervision for eight years and would be a fine playground area for children. However, this is impossible in its present state.

Chairman of the County Commission, Frank A. Wacha, pointed out that although the subdivision developer had "dedicated?" the pond as a public park, it had not been accepted by any commission.

"Just because a piece of paper says it is a public park, the county is not responsible. The roads, or most of them, and the lake were never accepted by the county," said Wacha.

The problem will be studied, particularly from a legal view.

Harry Donley, acting county attorney in the absence of Dean Tooker, who was on vacation, said the development had suffered from lack of capital from the outset, had been investigated by Federal authorities because of its mail order sales, and was found to be not properly dedicated to the county at the time.

He said a fence around the pond was "not an answer, because kids will climb it and compound the problem."

"There was some thought of having a large throng of residents of the area at this meeting," said Falk, then he pointed out that the thought was abandoned in favor of sending a delegation which included himself and Joe Geary.

"There are 225 families in Palm Lake Park seeking some action," said Falk.

The possibility of draining and filling the rain-fed pond were also discussed. Commissioner Jack Saunderson pointed out that a youngster could drown in six inches of water.

"We want to minimize the danger, and we believe by eliminating the deep holes which can panic even a man, the hazard would be less severe," said Geary.

The vote taken specified that the county would do the work as an emergency measure to aid the residents o the area, but that the move would not be construed as an acceptance of the pond and area around it as a county park, the responsibility of the county.

According to Bell, work will start as soon as equipment can be moved into the area.

DREAMS OF GREATNESS- Donald Morgan Knott, two weeks old son of high school coach Donald Knott and Mrs. Knott, dreamed of his future as a little league star, with one of the Peanut team trophies in his lap. Amid all the confusion of the little league picnic last Sunday at Causeway Park, Donald found his time to rest.

The post office began daily delivery of mail last Monday to all homes in the park...and of course, it had to rain. The 656 homes in the park will receive mail delivery under the new mailbox plan.

Report On Head Start Program

E.B. Horton, director of adult education in the school system, reported on the Head Start project Thursday, outlining statistics on the federal project to Supt. of Schools, Thomas L. Crook.

According to Horton, 13 instructors were employed as were 13 teacher-aides for 13 classes in five centers for 257 children.

Hot lunches were served in some centers while others served packed lunches. Milk, orange juice and cookies were served during the day. Medical examinations were provided each child with psychological tests being given each third child during the summer.

"The test findings will be made available to first grade teachers when school begins in the fall," said Horton.

A' NEW GREEN TAKES SHAPE do the 10th hole at Martin County Golf Course. This is only one phase of the overall construction program being conducted to enlarge and improve the course. A new green for No. 1 is also being built and the tee for No. 2 is being moved back to extend the hole to a par five. When completed Martin County will have one of the finest courses on the east coast.

Repubs Were Asking For Local Action

Dr. William G. Myers, local Republican spokesman, said last Thursday that the statement in which three county Republican organizations were quoted as seeking the earmarking of area transient programs, was not a plea for Federal funds under Economic Opportunity Act programs or any other program.

Dr. Myers said, "We seek enforcement of our own codes, including zoning and building." He added, "We ask implementation of the comprehensive planning and development report made in a long study of Martin County by the Florida Development Commission."

"We want the county commission to provide leadership where there are no community groups to do it. Hibiscus Park and North River Shores, for instance are not incorporated areas, but their people provide the leadership which shows in the way these places are kept up and policed," he continued.

Dr. Myers also pointed out that the FDC report had called attention to what it called "blighted areas," where lack of street paving programs, poor lot patterns, housing problems and lack of communication facilities led to an overall county problem that could be cleared up by good leadership.

"Voluntary community action involves no public acquisition of property, go large-scale public construction contracts, as Federal or State condos and so large governmental administrative bureaus," said Dr. Myers. He said that the words came right out of the FDC comprehensive plan, to show that it was "non-partisan."

Dr. Myers said he brought this point up at the county commission budget hearing because many communities had been able to provide public-official leadership for privately-financed development and improvement plans, particularly using no public funds.

Residents Featured In Magazine

Local residents Dick and Ellen Coleman who have been well-known in show circles for the past 50 year's were profiled in a recent issue of "Amusement Business". The magazine, 59 pages in all, contains an article about the Coleman's along with tributes from former associates. A picture of part of the Coleman show starts on the front page of the magazine.

The golden wedding anniversary of Dick and Ellen Coleman was marked last year by an unprecedented display of affection by 240 friends in the Johnstown, (N.Y.) Motor Inn. Scores of fair executives, businessmen and midway families pulled off a surprise fete that is still being talked about.

The Coleman name has been prominent in New England show circles ever since Dick Coleman bought a steam-powered Merry-Go-Round in Middletown, Conn., 50 years ago. In the family title's 50th year on the road, it glistens, untarnished, with a brilliance enviable in the outdoor fun industry. For the most part the reputation has been built on dependability, truthfulness and square dealing.

Coleman Bros. Shows tours a fleet of well maintained trucks and an assortment of stable rides, and has seen many other carnivals come and go. Dick Coleman's list of concessionaires and ride operators has included many men who graduated to owning their own shows. But rather than viewing these as competitors he has welcomed them well and even extended a helping hand. It's an easy thing to do for a showman whose office doesn't even have an original or copy of a contract. A handshake suffices to nail down and guarantee an agreement.

The carnival has played some engagements for fantastic lengths of time---18 years in Rochester, N.H., 36 years in Greenfield, Mass., and about 33 years in Altamont, N.Y.

"I don't have a single piece of paper on any of our dates," silver-haired Dick explains, "I'd have to type up fancy contracts and everything. It's too much trouble. If we have to start dickering about clauses it means we really don't trust each other."

The Coleman Bros. Shows' origin was a broken-down "Jenny" owned by the John Rogers Truck Co. The bolted was rotted and the organ was in pitiful shape, Dick and brother Tom got it for $250 "providing we'got it out of their warehouse in a hurry."

During those days there was no such thing as competition or precedent. They pulled their equipment onto the fairgrounds in Portland, Conn., where the fair people were so glad to see the ride they all pitched in to get it installed. At a nickle a ride it grossed more than it cost, and the brothers were off to the races. Other fairs pleaded for the Colemans to appear and offered to provide the transportation and labor costs.

"We moved in boxcars and baggage cars because there were no trucks. During those first years, we were often routed, but nobody would know it ezz apt myself. Sometimes, we'd always wiggle out of it."

The modern version of the carnival moves largely on Chevrolets, GMC's and Whites---about 30 tractors and straight-job trucks being unvovered.

Mileage accrued by these units is not excessive, as the carnival's jumps range from a short one of 20 miles to a maximum of 250 miles.

During the early years the brothers would build their equipment at the end of the season, then go to work in a clothing store for the winter to help the family budget.

Dick is the firm's major domo---brother Tom having died and another brother, Tim, being a concessionaire with another show---and much of the work and administration is shouldered by two dedicated sons. These sons have launched a third generation of ste children who pitch in where needed.

The Coleman midway is a good one so youngsters is be around. It has some notable homes that most carnivals, and home-cooking smells mingle with those of the cookhouse. The atmosphere, many feel, has contributed to a general uplifting of the industry wherever the midway has played. It has been a benefit to the industry's image.

In 1962 an impressive structure was built, being 82 feet long, 50 wide and 18 in height. It is a clear-span shape, has a concrete floor and all-steel sides and roof. It is heated and equipped with three-phase electrical power.

Also in quarters are five 110' buildings which enable all equipment to be placed indoors for the winter. Much welding, painting and mechanical work are done then.

As for Dick Coleman, at the age of 72 he takes the winters pretty easy, making the convention scene but otherwise relaxing at Miami Beach, Fla.

The combination of good route and business tactics serves to attract help and concessionaires who return year after year, silent testimony to the money they earn and the treatment they receive by Coleman Bros. Shows.

Some aides have been with Dick Coleman since early in this century.

Until this year the "diner" was in a trailer flanked by stools and tables. Now a tent stretches to cover a traditional midway cookhouse operation, complete with table service. In addition to courtesy and prompt service, every price for every item sold at the carnival restaurant is posted.

Any knowledgeable visitor to show lots can pinpoint this carnival as a family show, a village of mobile homes. As soon as school lets out the place is populated by boys and girls who get along famously.

Many children were born to couples who are active with the Colemans, and kids parties are numerous.

One girl, age 14, is the operator of her own stand.

The Coleman Bros. Shows publicity account is handled by Al Martin of Hobbs, Miss., who is a Jensen Beach winter visitor.

Crowder Seeks Federal Funds For City Water

City Manager Joe N. Crowder met with officials of the Community Facilities Division of the Housing and Home Finance Agency at Atlanta, Wednesday to investigate the advisability of applying for federal funds with which to enlarge the city's water and sewage facilities.

Crowder told the city commission Monday night he had been in touch with Sen. George A. Smathers and Rep. Paul G. Rogers in connection with bills recently passed by Congress permitting total federal aid in such projects in some circumstances.

He said the city needed force mains and lift stations and some plant work in the sewer division.

State Broadens Choice

Florida residents considering employment in state agencies will find a broad range of examinations open for inspection in an announcement just released to the local offices of the Florida State Employment Service, according to Merit System Director, Gerald L. Howell.

Varied amounts of administrative experience and college training are essential in some positions filled by competitive examination, such as social workers, employment counselors, and sanitarians, but in the schedule for September 4 many titles listed will increase high school graduates who have gained experience in office skills, computer work, or technical fields. Secretaries and stenographers should make early arrangements for performance tests ahead of the August 18 application closing date, the director said. Application blanks, a complete examination schedule, and information about each position are available at State Employment Service offices, or may be obtained directly from the Florida Merit System, Carlton Building, Tallahassee.

Snatches A Child's Small Dog

A candidate for the world's meanest thief snatched a small pedigreed dog from the arms of a six-year old girl Monday in front of a supermarket and fled with it in a car.

The child, Deborah Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lyons of Stuart, was with her sister, Mary, 4, in the family car parked in front of Publix Supermarket.

As Mrs. Lyons emerged from the store, she saw a green car driven by a white man with black hair leave the shopping center.

The dog is a toy dachshund, about half the size of the common dachshund and is called "Shotsie."

NAACP Will Hold Meet

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, over 300 members of the NAACP from areas other than here are expected here August 13 and 14.

Crowder said Ralph Clark, president of the Stuart Chapter NAACP, had outlined a program for the meeting to him and had said the demonstrations would be peaceful.

Biologists Look At Dead Whale

Three marine biologists from the Marine Laboratory, University of Miami, hacked away at a 34-foot sperm whale last week, trying to determine what it had been eating recently, what several enemies had in common and why it had come ashore on the Jupiter Island beach 1.5 miles north of Bridge Road.

The three biologists were Vic Young, Clyde Roper and Ted LaRoe.

Treasure Hunters Delay Ocean Search

Norman Scott, vice president and executive director of Expeditions Unlimited, said Friday night his outfit would suspend operations for several weeks.

"We have had a contract with Treasure Salvors, Mel Fisher's outfit out of Vero Beach, to do some magnometer work for us, and the state has asked us to delay operations pending their approval of the contract," Scott said.

Scott said that Treasure Salvors had done one day's work in a four-square-mile search area off the Hutchinson Island beaches north of the St. Lucie Inlet but had been called off the job because of the request made by management officials of the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund.

Church Group Buys New Site

The trustees of the East Presbytery, Synod of Florida, United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., acquired title to property on Oceanway according to a deed from Beaumar Properties, Inc., filed Wednesday.

State transfers stamps indicated the sale of a sected Presbyterian church was sold for $30,000.

Civil Defense Directors Tour Cape Kennedy

Hiltz Entertain Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hiltz of 314 South Street, Jensen Beach entertained guests from Stratford, Connecticut recently. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick DeCesare and daughter, Patricia, Barbara Lumb, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schasiman and daughter, Alice and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Basset were among the guests.

Barbara Lumb, on a fishing trip aboard Capt. Ray Young's, "Spray III", caught her first sailfish.

The Bassets have a summer home on Maureen Court in Jensen Beach.

While the thousands of space scientists and skilled technicians at the Cape Kennedy "moonport" near Cocoa Beach have their eyes on the stars, they also have their feet firmly planted on the ground where Civil Defense is concerned.

That was apparent 65 members of the Florida Civil Defense Association who toured the huge John F. Kennedy Space Center north of Cocoa Beach last week as guestsof the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

County and City Civil Defense Directors composing the Association noted that roads and streets in the 88,000 acre facility were carefully marked with Civil Defense emergency route signs, and that a number of structures dotted about the Space Center bore the familiar Civil Defense "fallout shelter" sign. In the party touring the facility was Al Keaton, Civil Defense Director for Martin County, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew D. Berkey and Elmer Goebel, who are members of the county Civil Defense staff. "We were really impressed," Mr. Keaton said, "to see such interest in Civil Defense at the Space Center."

Approximately 128 delegates and visitors attended the Florida State Civil Defense Association Conference held at the Ramada Inn, which ended Friday afternoon, August 6.

"Principal purpose of the Association's Midsummer Conference was to review Civil Defense disaster planning, with particular reference to hurricane warning and control," said Wes Gunn of Bartow, Polk County Civil Defense Director and Association President.

Another Labor Day

The months and the seasons roll by fast. Soon Labor Day will be here, bringing with it another long and welcome holiday weekend.

It is among the newer of our national holidays, but it is universally observed within this country. It was established to celebrate and to commemorate the tremendous contributions the working people have made to the progress, strength and development of this nation. That is still its purpose, though that purpose has become somewhat obscured as the Day has become more and more a time for fun and a momentary escape from the serious matters of life.

Over the years, American labor has gone far indeed. Tremendous advances have been made in wages, working conditions, job security and all other labor benefits. Labor's status is a high one nowadays. That is as it should be. At the same time, the nation is entitled to demand an equally high sense of responsibility on labor's part. It must demand that labor's powers be used with restraint, and with the national interest always in mind. This, certainly, has not always been the case.

After all, the legitimate goals of labor, organized or unorganized, are the same as those of all other groups within the country--a better life, under a system which guarantees the maximum freedom to the individual. That is what we should determine to strive for this Labor Day.

Where The Court Of Appeals?

The logical location of the new court of appeals, according to the Palm Beach Post, is West Palm Beach.

The Post believes that justice will be fast and sure, for most of the cases involved would come from Broward and Palm Beach Counties.

The Post also believes that access to the finest law library in the state is another reason for the location.

We urge the committee seeking the location to look at Martin County. We believe it to be the better of a choice between West Palm Beach and Martin County.

How can you get access to a law library when it is so difficult to get there?

We have driven into the metropolis of West Palm Beach, and found the streets choked with automobiles and very little access to be found in the downtown.

Residents of Broward and Palm Beach Counties will find Martin County easy to get to on the new Sunshine Parkway.

The Second Generation

In the news recently was the story of the son of Al Capone being picked up for shop-lifting in a North Miami supermarket.

Albert "Sonny" Capone was booked on a charge of lifting two bottles of asperins and one transistor radio battery, with a total value of $3.50. Capone was released on $500 bail.

The weakening of the blood line in the second generation. We can see waiting to follow in the footsteps of father, but this is a very poor beginning.

Citizens Have Responsibilities

Some years ago, J. C. Penney, founder of the great retail system which bears his name, said this: "Most of us today are thinking in terms of national and international developments. We need and want a strong nation--spiritually, physically, militarily, and economically; but we can have a strong nation only with the active cooperation of the people in their relationships within the states and local communities...

"The American way of life will not automatically continue to function by itself. Real effort on the part of all will be needed constantly to preserve our system and expand it further. Our own self-interest is ultimately dependent upon an all-out, aggressive movement that encourages individual initiative, citizen responsibility, and community self-reliance."

The need that Mr. Penney thus outlined is greater now than at any time in the past. We have witnessed an unprecedented expansion of federal powers and prerogatives at the expense of the rights and obligations of the states and local governments. With it there has been a steady erosion of local pride in achievement and of the desire and the will to deal with local problems at that level.

It is very easy to sit back and wait for an all-powerful central government to take over. But when we do that, we surrender liberties and responsibilities which are difficult to recapture and are absolutely basic to our existence as a free and self-reliant people.

Bleak Outlook

Washinton Report, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, points out that a 10 per cent combined social security tax rate, half paid by the employee and half by the employer, long has been regarded as a ceiling. This belief is based on the assumption "...that a higher tax would generate resistance on the part of the workers paying it, with eventual jeopardy to the whole social security system."

Under present law, the rate is scheduled to reach a minimum of 9.25 per cent in 1968--just under that 10 per cent ceiling. However, things will turn out very differently if a pending bill becomes law. Under it, the combined tax rate would rise to 11 per cent by 1973 and to 11.50 per cent by 1987. On top of that, maximum earnings subject to this tax, now fixed at $4800 a year, would be increased to the $6600 level in 1966.

How much resistance this will create on the part of workers is a matter of conjecture. But there can be no question that the much publicized, much-applauded income and excise tax cuts will be made meaningless to millions of people. The increase in the social security tax made necessary by increased benefits will cancel them out or more.

Moreover, there is no guarantee that even the heavy increases in the pending bill would be all. It is common experience that forecasts of future spending are almost invariably too low, and that more and more revenues must be obtained.

If current philosophies dominant in government are perpetuated, the outlook for the taxpayers is a bleak one.

That Misleading Yardstick

The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association recently ran a magazine advertisement in which it pointed out that the cost of power is an element in the price charged for just about everything we buy. It then said that the "consumers" electric yardstick" which the co-ops and other publicly-owned systems provide"...make it possible for us to know the true cost of providing electric service..." and help to hold that cost down.

This, no doubt, presents an appealing picture to consumers who aren't conversant with the whole story. And it is a story which deserves constant telling and retelling. The substance of it is that the public-power systems, of whatever kind, do not run on a business basis. They are subsidized directly, indirectly, or both--by the taxpayers at large. The REA co-ops, for instance, are able to borrow money from the Treasury at a two per cent interest rate, whereas the Treasury must pay about twice that much on its borrowings to get the money to loan them. These co-ops, further, are free of the federal income tax and pay much less in other taxes than do the investor-owned companies with which they compete. The importance of this is reflected in the fact that the investor-owned companies pay an average of about 25 per cent of their revenues in taxes and, in some cases, substantially more.

The co-ops' position would be tenable if, and only if, they operated on precisely the same financial basis as the investor-owned utilities. Only Congress can compel them to do that--and to eliminate a so-called yardstick which is totally misleading.

Local Labor Can't Help

Many a housewife, shopping this summer for fruits and vegetables in her neighborhood supermarket, has been the source of loud and continuing complaints. In many instances, she finds, prices have skyrocketed--in some cases to as much as twice their former levels. Sometimes the quality is poor. All this makes neither rhyme or reason to her. Frequently, the grocer is the recipient of the blame--after all, she has her direct contact with him, and he's a close and easy target.

In this instance, however, the housewife, if that happens to be her attitude, is wrong. The problem is beyond the grocer's control--just as it is beyond hers. And back of it lies a story of which much has been heard lately, and much more is due to be heard in the future.

The story illustrates the fact that well-meant, superficially constructive legislation can sometimes boomerang and produce results that were entirely unanticipated. It runs like this:

Back in 1951, Congress approved a program for bringing numbers of Mexican farm workers, known as braceros, into this country during the crop-picking season. Their wages had to be as good as those of American workers, and after the picking season the workers returned home. There was never any lack of braceros and the quotas were quickly filled.

But this year the program ended. The theory was that the work should be done by Americans, and particularly our worrisome numbers of unemployed. To many people, this seemed perfectly logical and desirable. But the result has turned out to be very different from the anticipation.

The substance of it is that American workers, in sufficient numbers, are unable or unwilling to perform the stoop labor under a hot sun that this kind of harvesting requires. In a recent Newsweek column, Raymond Moley tells what has happened in California, one of the hardest hit states. According to him, the unions, which are strongly interested in signing up agricultural workers and urged the termination of the bracero program, have been unable to provide the necessary workers. A Department of Labor effort to supply teams of high-school students also has failed--most of them gave up after a brief try. So it has gone. Mr. Moley recounts a case where 300 Dakota Indians were flown to California at a cost of $6,400 to the growers. After a few days only 20 were left.

Thus, a large part of some crops have simply rotted in the fields, and the prices for those available in the stores has soared. That is not all, as Mr. Moley points out. Some large California growers are taking up land leases in Mexico, where the necessary labor is available. And, he adds, "The termination of the bracero program has hacked away the livelihood of tens of thousands of Mexican workers, for this visit to the north had come to be their way of life. Their feelings can well be imagined."

Whether the program will be reconstituted remains to be seen. Powerful forces are at work on both sides. Meanwhile, it is evident that a great deal of damage has been done and its effect will be felt for some time to come, no matter what late remedial steps may be taken.

A LOT OF JUNK--This large 35 foot Chinese junk, the Sue Foo, passed through Martin County last Sunday, stopping overnight at the Anchorage Yacht Club. The brightly decorated junk was built in Hong Kong in 1960, and brought to America in 1961. Powered by a 50 hp diesel engine, the junk is being sailed and motored by Roger and Marlene Hoffler and Helge and Kathryn Pearson, of Duluth, Minn. to New Orleans this summer. Hoffler, a counselor of education, and Pearson, a furrier, plan to take the boat up the Mississippi to Lake Peppin next year. Their trip started in Fort Lauderdale, where the Hoffers bought the junk.

LIVE.....and love it by DICK CAMPBELL

What Price Beauty?

I guess every young lady makes up her mind in the beginning. It comes with love...real love.

My sister decided it when she was seventeen. She would set the alarm early in the morning, arise before her husband, and battle, powder and comb her hair, put on makeup and jump back into her p-j's.

Then she would waken her husband. I doubt very much if he knew that this radiant beauty he married was doing this, but I am sure that he appreciated it.

I realize that under the Great Society we are becoming more and more equal, what with men and women striving for the equality that I'm not so sure Lincoln had in mind for the sexes. But I am afraid that some women are taking advantage of this new equality.

There are just a few things that a newspaperman should not criticize. One of them is women.

How do you say, nicely, that women should stop going out in public with pin-curlers, rollers, brush rollers and scotch-tape waving on their hair?

I could do it this way. Men don't go out in public with them. Ergo....

Or, I could say, nicely, that there are some exciting looking head coverings which hide heads full of those terrible weapons.

I realize that this is a foolish idea, for I am striking a match in a world of darkness. But I feel strongly about it, and I am sure that if the women realized what this head full of pins and brushes looks like, they wouldn't do it.

In Africa, some of the women wear bones in their noses. That is in Africa, and the bone is a decorative emblem, much as our women wear earrings.

Perhaps the greatest offenders of this public display of personal paraphernalia are high school girls. Their gigantic rollers with bristles sticking out of them make them look like Mars-women, or people with big bumps on their heads.

I plan to shave on a street corner one of these days. I'll strip off to the waist, lather up, and shave. That is about the same as pin curlers and rollers.

Before all of you women begin to beat me up and burn crosses on my lawn, or hang me in the town square (if we had one), think about it.

What price beauty, if we men must suffer the live long day for it. I believe in women being allowed out in the world without a veil, but pin curlers, rollers, girdles and other personal items belong either covered up or in the privacy of one's home.

Rogers Testifies On Ocean Study

Congressman Paul Rogers testified August 3 before the House Subcommittee on Oceanography on his bill to intensify U. S. ocean research.

Rogers told his fellow Subcommittee members "Even though we're in a race for first place in outer space, our very survival may ultimately hinge on how we utilize the oceans.

"Water covers 3/4's of the earth's surface, yet right now we know more about outer space than we do the earth's 'wet spaces'."

The Florida Congressman has proposed legislation setting up a 15 member National Commission on Oceanography. The panel would have a temporary life of 2 years, and be made up of 5 members from industries interested in ocean research, 5 from universities and laboratories engaged in the field, and 5 from appropriate Government Agencies.

The Commission would make a survey of total ocean research programs underway in the United States. Just before the Commission expired, it would make specific recommendations to the President and the Congress establishing national goals in oceanography, assessing present programs in light of those goals, and proposing the financial support needed for reaching the goals.

Rogers said that U.S. oceanography efforts could be more effective because the U.S. Government's programs are now scattered in 18 separate agencies spending a total of $14 million. He urges closer concentration of the Government's ocean research as one of the main points of the Commission's investigation.

"The United States and Soviet Russia are quietly racing for conquest of the world's oceans, and right now they are running neck-to-neck. Russia's knowledge of fishing techniques alone has put the communists in second place among the world's fishing nations. Dramatic increases in commercial fishing knowledge has caused Russia to move massive numbers of vessels and men into the waters around the eastern U. S. The importance of Cuba as a research base facilitated the Soviet move into the fertile sea near Florida.

"It is known fact that the Russians have expanded their operations into the rich Gulf Stream, where July 15th, the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey also began full scale studies, concentrating in the area off Miami."

The Florida Congressman noted that intensified U.S. ocean research is needed for submarine warfare, underwater mining knowledge, determination of offshore petroleum reserves, improved weather control, particularly in hurricane research, as well as utilization of resources such as fish and vegetation.

"This new science is fast becoming critically important to our national security," Rogers emphasized to his colleagues.

The station reported it had rained 25 days out of the 31 in the month for a total of 7.65 inches.

Jaycees Oppose Burns' Road Bond Proposal

Stuart Jaycees, along with Florida Jaycees, are opposing Gov. Haydon Burns' $300 million road bond proposal, according to George Keith, local Jaycee, who said Monday he would head a committee which will oppose the issue locally.

The issue is subject to a general election referendum question on November 2.

The state-wide organization of Jaycees, voted 115 to 101 to defeat a resolution offered by Tallahassee Jaycees which would have led to state-wide support of the bond issue plan to four-lane highways through much of the state.

The vote was taken at Lakeland Sunday, at the annual summer conference of the State Jaycee organization representing 140 cities in the state.

Beach Report

by Jack Cammack

Perfect Weather

In the absence of this reporter who is on a short vacation, the news of the beaches are for the past week rather than this week. The water temperature has been between 75 and 80 degrees on both beaches. An average attendance of about 50 to 60 people daily has been noted. Many out of state cars as far as California cars as far west as California and as far north as upper New England can be found.

On August 3, Miss Becky Walter, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Calvin Walter, caught her first fish in the surf. Becky is only six years old so this was quite a thrill to her--it was a pompano.

The life guards would like to thank the staff of WSTU for the fine comments about the beaches and the daily weather reports. A special thanks to Bill Britton and Maxine on the Trading Post.

Safety tip: In view of the recent drowning in Martin County, parents are urged to be sure they know where their children are playing. A child can drown easily in fresh or salt water within two to three minutes if not rescued. If your child cannot swim, it is advisable on an early age to sign up with an American Red Cross swimming class or seek private lessons. Lessons may prevent a tragedy, especially in Florida where there are so many bodies of water. Next week, the latest in mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration.

Fallout Shelter Is Improved

A well and pumphouse has been installed at the fallout shelter, County alternate Emergency Operating Center, located at Jonathan Dickenson State Park, Hobe Sound.

A baffle entranceway will be built in the near future and an auxiliary generator will be installed. This will complete all major improvements that were planned, leaving just inside flashing to be done.

The shelter has a protection factor in excess of 100, and has a capacity of 200 spaces.

We will have an updating fallout shelter survey to locate buildings with a protection factor of 40 or more. This survey has been scheduled for this month by the Corps of Engineers.

Scout Council Drive

The Gulf Stream Council of Boys Scouts of America announced plans for the largest enrollment of new members ever conducted in the seven county area it serves.

"The fall Round-Up" of new members and new Cub Packs, Scout Troops and Explorer Units is expected to extend the Scouting opportunity to an additional twelve hundred boys," said C. M. Gasking, Scout Executive.

Bowen Praises Monahan At Bridge Dedication

STATE ROAD BOARD CHAIRMAN--Floyd Bowen gave the dedication address at the new high-level bridge in Indiantown.

Floyd B. Bowen, chairman of the State Road Board, in his dedication address at the new high-level bridge in Indiantown on Saturday, highly praised John H. Monahan, former District 4 Road Board member and Chelsie J. Senerchia, present member.

Bowen also promised to include State Road 76 in the road department's new Canal Safety Hazard program and made a plea for support at the polls in November of Gov. Haydon Burns' $300 million road bond program.

Of the bond program he said, "It will add 1,241 miles of four-laning to the state's primary system. The program was overwhelmingly endorsed by the 1965 Legislature".

"The bond issue, without additional taxes, will provide additional fourlaned mileage in Florida. The four-year, four-laning program, initiated during the Bryant administration was the first step in the right direction of providing continuous rather than piecemeal four-laned segments," he added, citing safety statistics, he said.

Bowen praised Monahan for ably representing the State Road Board in the nine-county Fourth District during the last administration, and called attention to his double duty on the SRB and the turnpike authority. He commended him for performing ably with limited funds.

Bowen outlined the new fiscal year state primary and secondary road program in the county, praised the county commissioners for good planning and cooperation with the road district officials in allocating secondary funds to assist in primary projects.

The 1,261-foot bridge spans the St. Lucie Canal, linking straight stretches of SR 710, part of which is the Bee-Line Highway in Palm Beach County, plus the Warfield Blvd. north of the canal in Martin County.

County Commissioner Tilmar Powers was master of ceremonies and Rev. James Henry gave the invocation.

Powers introduced platform guests who included members of the county commission, district road board officials, the county engineer, Sen. John McCarty and the Monahan family.

A luncheon, sponsored by the Minute Maid Groves Corp. followed the ceremonies.

MASTER OF CEREMONIES--Timer Powers introduced platform guests at the dedication ceremonies of the "Big" John Monahan Bridge at Indiantown on Saturday.

DISTRICT FOUR ROAD BOARD MEMBER--Chelsie J. Senerchia was praised by Bowen for his works on the State road board.

Monahan Praised All Who Helped On The New Bridge

John H. Monahan, State Road Board district four member under Gov. Farris Bryant, thanked those responsible for the naming of the new high-level, $1 million bridge over the St. Lucie Canal and SR76 for him in dedication ceremonies held Saturday.

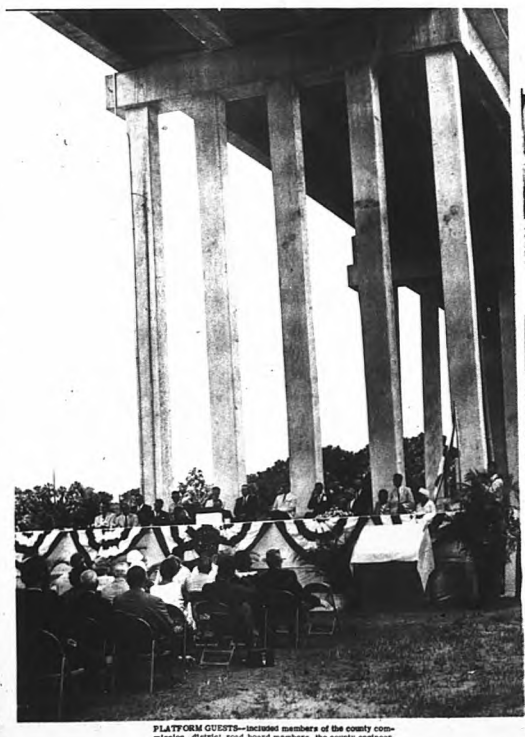
"I'm all choked up, I've just returned from a two month vacation trip with Mrs. Monahan and Suzan, and that was wonderful, but this certainly is a glorious way to end a two months vacation", he said.

He called attention to other projects done in the road program under Gov. Bryant and backed Gov. Haydon Burns' $900 million road bond program. He said, "It should be $600 million, and I'm not so sure it won't be extended to that before it's over."

Of former county commissioner Jack Williamson, Monahan said, "That man stayed on my back for two years, deserved more credit than almost any man in the audience."

A JOB WELL DONE--Floyd B. Bowen, chairman of the State Road Board, shakes hands with "Big" John Monahan at dedication ceremonies at Indiantown on Saturday.

A GLORIOUS DAY-- for "Big" John Monahan when the new high-level "Big" John Monahan bridge was dedicated at ceremonies in Indiantown on Saturday.



PLATFORM GUESTS--included members of the county commission, district road board members, the county engineer,

A FRIENDLY GREETING--Ransom Tilton and former county commissioner Jack Williamson, who was praised by John Monahan for his efforts to have the "Big" John Monahan bridge constructed, exchange greetings with other spectators at the dedication ceremonies at Indiantown on Saturday.

LADIES OF THE OFFICIAL PARTY--who witnessed the dedication of the "Big" John Monahan bridge at Indiantown were, left to right, Mrs. Jack Samderson, Mrs. Herbert Bruner, Mrs. Fred Bell, Mrs. Frank Wachs and Mrs. Richard Campbell.

PART OF THE CROWD--who attended the dedication ceremonies of the "Big" John Monahan bridge at Indiantown on Saturday.

Shortly after 11 a.m., the relief engine arrived from Fort Pierce.

Luggage Was Found On Road

Sheriff Roy C. Baker is looking for the person who addressed a post card to Kim Clark, 12920 Barrow, Juno, Florida.

A card showing a picture of the horses, Man-o-War was found in one of two pieces of luggage found on US 1 near Fort Salerno last week by Deputy Sheriff Jack Curry.

The bags contained clothing and a dog's leash with the name Jenny Foster, J186196.

Baker said there was a canvas covering with the two bags.

The Jack Scrantons have returned from a three weeks trip to Lake Ontario in New York State.

Bridge May Be Ready October 1

The new Frank A. Wachs bridge may be opened to the public by October 1, according to bridge officials, if none of the project being 30 days ahead of schedule was received with enthusiasm by local merchants.

Official confirmation of the opening date on the bridge is expected in a few weeks, but barring unexpected delays, the foreman of the project said that the bridge should be ready to be opened by the end of September."

Workmen were getting the final section of concrete floor ready to pour on Wednesday, and only two guard rail sections remained to be completed and poured with concrete.

As one group of workers completed that project, several others were polishing the concrete along the approaches to the bascule span. Another both sections of the span were down, and it was possible for many motorcycle superintendents" to walk all the way across the bridge checking the work. On Tuesday, the spans were down again, getting ready to pour with concrete.

One workman was finishing the bridge tender's house on Tuesday.

The approaches to the new bridge are packed and need very little work before paving begins.

Jensen Beach and Stuart businessmen can look forward to a winter season with all bridges open and ready to receive the many visitors and residents in this area.

Negro Riot Try Ended; 16 Arrested

Nearly a dozen youths pled "not guilty!" Tuesday in county and city court appearances as a result of Sunday night's demonstration in the Negro district.

Rocks were thrown at Rogers Store, and a bottle was hurled at Dixie Bar, both causing damages.

Both business establishments are owned by white men.

The incipient riot that led to the arrest of 16 youths, some of them juveniles later released, took place in the Negro quarter area, at the intersection of East 7th and East Streets.

The predominance of out-of-towners led authorities to conclude there was outside interest in creating trouble in Martin County.

County Redistrict Is Being Studied

Martin County reapportionment will be studied between now and November 3, but action on realigning county commission districts and the possible addition of new precincts will be deferred until that date.

A special county commission meeting was held Tuesday at which time this decision was made. The reason for deferment was due partly to the absence of Commissioner J. H. Bruner who had been called to Georgia because of the illness of his father.

George Grimm, assistant to County Engineer Fred L. Bell, gathered population figures which were reviewed and compared to official figures used by state services. These showed wide imbalance in representation.

By commission districts, populations were shown as follows:

District 1, 5,77; District 2, 3,770; District 3, 7,080; District 4, 3,663; and District 5, 2,110.

District 5 now covers approximately 333 square miles of Martin County's total of 576 square miles.

Chairman Frank A. Wachs said that the population figures used by the State Board of Health and Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District is 22,400.

He pointed out that Grimm had come up with a figure of 22,800, using figures supplied by the tax assessor's office to compute population by square mile sections throughout the county, figuring the number of houses multiplied by an average occupancy of three people.

"I believe the figures are close enough for reapportionment purposes," Wachs said.

"The Florida Development Commission estimates 20,600 people in the county, but their estimates are proportionate by the same district," said Wachs.

According to Wachs, if the board decides to go ahead with reapportionment, District 5 obviously had to be enlarged, possibly taking in the southeast areas of the county including county-line developments and Hobe Sound.

He said another suggestion might be to extend District 4 westerly in a strip district.

Wachs asked the public to express views prior to November 3, the day after the state-wide election, if action be taken then, the change will be legally advertised for action a couple of weeks later.

O'Kelly-Randolph Plan A December Wedding

Lynne Ann O'Kelly

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Allyn O'Kelly, 321 Martin Avenue, Stuart, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynne Ann, to Robert Jerry Randolph, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Randolph of 834 E. Ocean Blvd., Stuart.

Miss O'Kelly is a graduate of Martin County Senior High and attended Florida State University where she was a pledge of Delta Zeta social sorority. She will attend Indian River Junior College in the Fall.

Mr. Randolph is a graduate of Martin County High School. He attended Wake Forest (N.C.) and Old Dominion Colleges (Norfolk, Va.), where he was a member of Alpha Kappa Psi, business fraternity, and Sigma, Chi, social fraternity. He will be a student at the Stetson School of Law in St. Petersburg in September.

The wedding will take place December 19.

Heli's Pass Here On Way

Four U. S. Navy helicopters flew south, down the Indian River, last Tuesday afternoon, probably headed for Miami and assignment to the coming Gemini space flight.

The copters, flying in formation, stopped traffic on Indian River Drive all the way through town. They flew right down the center of the Indian River.

Asks Palm City Bridge Near Present River Site

NEW ROAD---Workmen place stakes for the new Ocean Breeze Park westward extension road on the newly purchased Florida East Coast right-of-way. The road extends Ocean Breeze Park to within 180 feet of Commercial Street.

The steering committee of The Martin County Committee of 100 will ask the State Road Department to follow as closely as possible the location of the present Palm City Bridge when it builds a new crossing on the South Fork of the St. Lucie River.

The steering committee, which met Tuesday morning, favored the route which would cross, the river just north of the present bridge, using all of a colony-owned right-of-way at Danforth Creek, with added right-of-way there as needed, on the Palm City end.

The eastern end of the bridge would be close to the present eastern location and would align with Monterey Road.

A second choice was adopted, that of a route following the continuation line of 12th St., the present SR 714 extension easterly of Martin Grade. This latter route would require the crossing of a bay as well as the Okeechobee Waterway.

Present at the meeting were Lawrence M. Horton, president of the Committee, Ross Philbrick, executive director, and the following steering committee members: Roland G. Lueder, Walter C. Crowell, Ernest Lyons, Joseph Greenlees, Frederick L. Bell, James Garvey, Thomas Thurlow and Robert Greene.

It was also agreed to ask a review of plans for I-95 in the three-county area, including St. Lucie, Palm Beach and Martin Counties.

"There has been little discussion of an I-95 route in Martin County, other than as an extra-use for the turnpike," said Philbrick, following the meeting.

"However," he added, "the turnpike is already crowded in this vicinity, and would have to be widened, at any rate. We felt the time to raise the question was, now, when a river crossing is being discussed."

On August 24 there will be a meeting with Chelsie J. Senerchia, SRD District 4 member, and Philbrick said committee members will try to meet with representatives of the two adjoining counties prior to that date.

Matheson Rescue Checked

An investigation will be made for the Carnegie Foundation which could lead to a hero's medal for William J. Matheson.

Recently Matheson dove into a Palm Beach County canal to rescue two victims of a car plunge accident. One victim pulled from the sunken car later died.

An unidentified Palm Beach County attorney made the initial move to seek a citation for Matheson. The latter has had no comment on the incident since disappearing from the scene of the wreck near 20-Mile Bend.

Matheson, a Palm City rancher and former chairman of the Martin Memorial Hospital board, and still a member of the board, was identified only through an honorary deputy sheriff's badge he had with him at the time of the rescue.

Paul Rogers Questionaire OK's Medicare—Viet Nam

Congressman Paul Rogers has announced the results of his Annual Questionnaire.

The poll is taken each year by Rogers to sample the views of constituents in the 6th Congressional District of Florida on matters of national interest.

"More than 56,000 people replied this year, and the number demonstrates the rapidly growing interest in the nation's affairs" the Congressman stated.

The results announced by the Congressman are as follows:

Question	Yes	No	Undecided
Are you in favor of a Government-supported medical care plan for the aged?	58.9%	34.8%	6.3%
If your answer to the above question was YES, please answer one of the following:
(1-A) Do you favor "Medicare" financed by Social Security taxes?	53.7%
(1-B) Do you favor "Eldercare" financed by matching Federal-State taxes?	39.6%
2. Do you approve a reduction in excise taxes this year?	71.7%	21.3%	7%
3. Should Foreign Aid be cut?	86%	9.7%	4.3%
4. Do you favor repeal of Section 14-(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which now permits the states to have "Right-to-Work" laws?	25.6%	67%	7.6%
5. Do you approve increased Federal aid to education?	49.2%	45.1%	5.7%
6. Do you favor my bill to raise the "outside income" limitation from $1500 to $2400 for those drawing Social Security benefits?	88.9%	9.6%	1.7%
7. Do you support United States military activity in Viet Nam?	55.9%	36.9%	7.6%

Rogers said, "The response in this year's questionnaire is the largest received in the 11 years while I have served in the Congress.

"These answers reflect the feelings of the people of our area, and are most helpful to me in representing their views on the issues before the Congress.

"I want to take this opportunity to thank those who took the time and effort to let me have their feelings on these matters."

Lyric Theatre Has New Lobby

The Lyric Theatre building has been remodeled with new plate glass doors leading into the lobby where a new box office and concession stand have been completed, according to Tommy Thompson, manager.

The building has been repainted inside and future plans call for carpeting of the lobby, new seats, a new screen and a new floor in the auditorium.

Thompson came to Stuart in March from Jacksonville Beach where he managed a theater for the Kent chain, owners of the Lyric.

Coming attractions include "Art of Love," "The Train," "Cat Ballou," "In Harm's Way," and "Sons of Katie Elder."

also gave out-of-town addresses.

Monday morning, Chief of Police Jesse J. Taylor, for the city police, and Deputy Sheriff Tom Wyatt, for Sheriff Roy C. Baker, questioned, mugged and fingerprinted the group.

Damage done over night in the jail cells was estimated at "several hundreds of dollars" by Baker.

Baker said walls had been scratched, bottles pulled from trash barrels had been broken, mattresses destroyed, windows broken, screens pushed out and ruined.

The youths were placed in one lock-up corridor of the jail where they were kept until about 3:30 P.M. Monday, when they agreed to be quiet if fed.

They were returned to the cells awaiting further action.

Only Ralph Clark, 23 year old Stuart NAACP president was bailed out, by his mother, shortly after 1 P.M.

Mayor William F. Todt said Monday night he was convinced the trouble in Little Dixie was due to out-of-county people.

He pointed to the arrest list which, among the adults, counted seven out-of-town-ers compared with three local people.

NAACP state and national leaders were not moving to provide bond for those involved in an outlaw movement.

Mayor Todt pointed out that with the outsiders in jail, there were few places in the state quieter than Little Dixie, and his words were backed up by Sheriff Roy C. Baker, who said nothing was astir.

Authorities said Tuesday a visit here by an unidentified but high-level state NAACP leader Monday night probably foretold a period of lessened tension in Little Dixie.

Mayor William F. Todt, who pointed out Tuesday that Negroes here had been successful in getting community problems settled by calling on the city's bi-racial committee, also said he had been told by leaders in the community that the State NAACP had called on Ralph Clark, Stuart Chapter, NAACP, and other officers and members of the chapter, to halt demonstrations and desist in making statements to the press concerning NAACP matters.

"We were told they want no more trouble here, that the state organization fears the local chapter is speeding the new, but unspecified, policy of the NAACP," Todt said.

Clark refused to comment when asked about a meeting held at St. Paul's African Methodist Episcopal Church Monday night, and even refused to give the name of a state NAACP officer who attended.

A witness had said that threats of future action were being buried when the state officer walked in.

"He told them off, in no uncertain words, including a directive to make a study of what their rights really were," said the witness.

Those arrested pleaded not guilty to charges of destroying county property, charges which were levied because of damage done to the county jail.

BULKHEADING SOON--The extension of the present bridge approach bulkhead as is shown above will make it possible to short draft boats to dock at Jensen's Causeway.

THE LOBBY--Showing off the new concession stand and ticket booth at the remodeled entrance to the Lyric Theatre is manager Tommy Thompson, who is in the process of renovating the entire theatre.

Social Security

Q. I am planning to retire on September 1st, this year, since I will become 65 in August. By that time I will have earned about $4800. Does this mean that I won't be able to collect my social security checks until next year?

A. Assuming that you will have earnings of $100 or less per month after August, you may receive your monthly benefits beginning with September. The social security law provides for this, even though total earnings for the year are quite substantial.

Q. My wife never worked under social security, but she is receiving monthly checks on my social security account. Now, she has been offered a job which will pay her about $900. I have kept my own earnings at $1200 a year since I retired. If she takes the job, making our combined earnings about $2100, does this mean that some of our monthly benefits will be lost?

A. No. The social security law provides that each beneficiary may have earnings of $1200 in 1965 without forfeiting any benefits.

Norris Tilton To Command Next Gemini Capsule Run

WILL THIS BE THE ONE?--Commander Norris Tilton stands in the doorway of one of the helicopters from the U.S.S. Lake Champlain where he is Executive Officer. This helicopter may be the one which will pick up the Gemini capsule.

Cmdr. Norris Tilton, in charge of the helicopter squadron aboard the aircraft carrier Lake Champlaine, will command the helicopter that will pluck the next Gemini capsule from the sea, it was learned this week.

Tilton, at home on a short leave, was picked up Tuesday morning by a Navy helicopter to be flown to Jacksonville, where he will transfer to another heli to fly to his carrier.

This will be the second time that Tilton's squadron will handle the delicate operation of picking up the capsule.

Last week, according to Tilton, television cameras took color pictures of a simulated pickup, pictures that will be used during the actual pickup by television stations on all networks. The pictures will be broadcast all over the world.

Jensen Beach can feel proud that the world will view the capsule pickup, commanded by one of our local men.

County Waits For Attorney To Answer FEC

Martin County will make no reply to the tax money offer made by the Florida East Coast Railway until County Attorney Dean Tucker returns from vacation at the end of August, a move by the county commission indicated Friday.

"There are a lot of unanswered questions, some of them concerning payment of interest and penalties," said Chairman Frank A. Wacha.

The railroad offers the county $43,124.93 which, it claims, is the sum total of what it owes for taxes. The county claims the FEC owes over $136,472.43.

FEC Steps Forward

Action by the Florida East Coast Railroad in taking a step to relieve the economic burden of Florida counties by doing partial payment of taxes while the problem of railroad property assessments is in litigation is an honorable one. The railroad has recognized the problems faced by the cities, and has offered to pay a portion of its taxes, while doing certain that the counties realize that in accepting money they do not jeopardize their case in court.

The money has been needed by the counties, as is shown Martin County by trimmed budgets and slowed programs acted by the lack of revenue from one of the county's great taxpayers.

The failure of the FEC to pay, and the litigation of the railroad assessments, is part of a nationwide program.

Most discussions of the problems that bedevil the railroads are concerned with federal regulatory laws, policies and actices which have been branded as obsolete and destructive high-level investigative body after high-level investigative ly.

But in 24 of the states, the railroads suffer from another serious inequity. In these states, railroad property is valued for tax purposes at a much higher figure than other and comparable commercial property. As a result, the railroads say, railroads ad valorem taxes are $112 million a year too high.

This points to the importance of a recent decision of the Illinois Supreme Court. It ordered an Illinois county to refund $330,837 to a railroad which, it held, had been overtaxed that amount in 1957. The ruling opened the door to further suits by this and 32 other railroads and involving tax collections for other years of some $34 million to $40 million.

The Illinois finding, of course, affects only railroad property within that state. But, it is reported, experts feel that it may speed the rate at which other state tax officials are correcting in equities.

It is to be hoped that is the case. Overtaxation of railroads—like the obsolete regulatory practices—go back to the day when the railroads had a near monopoly of transportation and were considered an easy and suitable target for tax discrimination. That day has gone. Simple honesty demands that all commercial property be treated alike by assessor and tax collector.

Who Pays For Government?

Suppose you work the standard eight hour day and are in average income bracket. How much of that time goes pay for elements that make up your cost of living? here are some examples: Food and tobacco cost one r and 18 minutes; clothing and related items 30 minutes; creation 19 minutes; transportation 39 minutes; medical nses 21 minutes.

ind there's another item that is bigger than any of these, is taxes. They account for two hours and 20 minutes of ur working time—more than a quarter of the whole. To put it another way, it means that you must work more n three months of each year before you begin earning money you can spend as you wish. Taxes take all that you make during that three-months-plus period.

The chances are that this will come as news to a great number of people. They have small knowledge of the size and scope of the tax bill, the primary reasons being that many taxes are hidden in the cost of the goods and services we buy and that most individual income taxes are paid through the withholding system, rather than being personally paid to the government by the earner. But, realize it or not, they are the biggest single item of expense to most of us.

In sum—who pays for big and wasteful government? You do!

Agreed: Disagree

(Editor's note: This comment by the Miami Herald's John Knight, publisher, an impressed as to its explanation of honest difference of opinion between readers and newspaperman, we decided it should be run as a guest editorial in the Mirror.)

IREED: Disagree

The Rule of the press is first to provide accurate news d interpretative background so that readers may understand "what" as well as the "when and where" of a new story. Commentary is the privilege reserved for the editor, the luminate and best of all, the readers.

Some letter writers fail to understand why an editor who pported Lyndon Johnson in 1964 is at times critical of the sident's actions.

The simple answer is that a conscientious editor should never fear to disagree with his best friend, nor even the President of the United States.

Nor would it be fair to blame President Johnson for all of the nation's ills. Among other things, he inherited the Vietnam mess, the outflow of gold from our shores, and a not too efficiently managed federal government.

But journalistic sycophants and Washington "house colonialists" poorly serve the President's best interests.

When Lyndon Johnson first became President, he said something to the effect that he sought not unanimity, but wolesome differences of opinion.

That is precisely what he is getting from this editor who, in turn, welcomes the same treatment from his readers.

Private Electric Is Better

Negotiations are under way for the City of Fort Pierce to ll its municipal electric power system to private enterise. This would give the city a big chunk of money and old put the property on the tax rolls—being a publicly-ned operation it is now tax exempt. The sale would also suit in better operation.

Whether anything ever comes of this idea or not, it's a od one. And Fort Pierce would have plenty of precedent r the move. Over the years, municipalities in all parts the country have sold their plants to investor-owned lities. Disillusion with public ownership has come from ried sources. The loss of the tax revenue that private nership would pay is certainly one. So is the fact that many instances the municipal plants have been run on a deficit basis, thus further penalizing the taxpayers. Inefficient and overly-costly operation has been still another factor. And so has the tendency to give political considerations priority over economic criteria.

There are, of course, well run municipal power systems for which no apology is in order. But they are often a burden rather than an asset to the community. And when cities and towns everywhere are desperately searching for more tax revenue, the case for taxpaying private enterprise in this or any other field is overwhelmingly strong.

The same thing applies to the great federal systems. They too are wholly or largely tax free and are frequently tax subsidized to boot. Selling them, if that is politically possible, would be a boon to all the taxpayers.

Nothing Is Free

Numbers of people, apparently, believe the government its its money out of thin air or from some mysterious source at has little to do with themselves.

This, basically, was the thought of Congressman Lipscomb California when he said: "It should come as no surprise anyone that the money the federal government spends must ltimately come from the people, though all too often it eems that this fact is overlooked or ignored."

One reason for this is that except for income and property vies, most of the taxes we pay are hidden. Everything we y, from an article so small as a loaf of bread to one so rge as an automobile, carries a multitude of taxes levied at the raw material, manufacturing, processing, transporting, retailing and other levels. And those taxes, like all the other costs that enter into the production of goods and services, must be paid by the consumer.

These are truisms that should be known to every schoolchild. But they tend to become lost in the face of the widespread belief that government "gives" us things. The truth is that government can "give" nothing. It can only take the money from the people, now or on some future date, to pay the costs—and, also, it tacks on handsome sums to cover the administrative and bureaucratic overhead.

Nothing material in this world is free—government least of all.

Funds Outlook Good' For Stuart

City Manager Joe N. rowder as well as Mayor illiam P. Todt and Ed lasscock, public works irector, tax assessor and xecutive director of the tuart Housing Authority, eturned from Atlanta afr visiting the Community acilities Division of the ousing and Home Finance gency with "plenty of ptimism."

Crowder and Todt discussed the feasibility of pplying for federal funds ith which to carry out imrovements to the city water nd sewer main system and o make improvements in the sewage treatment plant.

Glasscock conferred with Housing Officials on a recreation project at the local authority's project on East 10th Street.

Both Todt and Crowder were optimistic over chances of obtaining federal funds which will be made available in several weeks, it was predicted in Atlanta.

I was duly impressed when an old whang-hide cowpoke showed dexterity at rolling his own cigarettes, "Rollin' them don't take much skill," he explained shyly. "The main trick is getting the filler in."

Mobile Home Owners To Meet In OBP

The Florida Mobile Home Owners Ass'n. will meet in Ocean Breeze Park on Thursday, according to John J. Marr, president of the organization.

Mobile home owners are invited to attend the meeting which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Marr said Friday over 700 people had joined the organization since its formation early in the summer. The meetings are being held to inform all mobile home owners of the program which will be initiated in the near future to seek adoption of a referendum which will appear on the November 2 ballot and would provide a new schedule for taxation of mobile home owners.

Marr said 35 mobile home dealers have gone bankrupt in this state since the old state licensing system for home owners was dropped.

Miss Linda Boylan, 11, of London, Canada returned to her home after a five week visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ledgley, Palmer Road, Jensen Beach.

The 'Freedom To Serve' Is A Newspaper's Symbol

One of the truly great freedoms that made this nation strong is one you don't hear much about. It's the "freedom to serve" in a community, according to the national Newspaper Public Information Committee which has released the following statement:

From the hazy pioneer days to the present, free people have developed a tradition of helping one another on a voluntary basis. They like the warmth that comes from being personally involved instead of sitting back and saying, "Let the government do it. I pay my taxes."

Just as the schoolhouse is the symbol of America's tradition of a free public education for all and the courthouse the symbol of the right to a fair trial for all, so the newspaper office, either in the smallest country town or the largest metropolitan city, is the symbol of this "freedom to serve."

A stranger going into any community in the nation will find all newspaper editors and publishers alike in one major respect. They all take themselves only with news and opinion, or have become the slaves of government. They don't feel responsibility to serve their readers and the communities in which their readers live.

Can you imagine an American community without a newspaper to run pictures, editorials and news stories about the United Fund Drive, of the Boy Scout campaign, or the Heart Fund? Or a community without a newspaper to urge you to get out and vote or that shames you into cleaning up your property?

Take a new look at your own local newspaper and see how much space it devotes day in and day out, week in and week out, to making your town a better place in which to live. You may not agree with all of the things the paper wants done, but you'll have to agree that the paper is not sitting back and waiting for "George to do it."

In most nations newspapers are political party organs, or censored by them, or else they themselves only with news and opinion, or have become the slaves of government. They don't feel responsibility to serve their readers and the communities in which their readers live.

Can you imagine an American community without a newspaper to run pictures, editorials and news stories about the United Fund Drive, of the Boy Scout campaign, or the Heart Fund? Or a community without a newspaper to urge you to get out and vote or that shames you into cleaning up your property?

How About The Other Side?

We sometimes wonder a little about our own clan of newspapermen. Everyone is entitled to a little worry about his profession once in awhile.

Recently, the Mirror printed a story which came from the county commissioners meeting. The story was one in which Herb Brunar was praised by the chairman of the county commission for insisting that the $1 million Palm City Bridge be included in the State Road Board resolution back in early 1966.

Following the printing of the story, county commissioner Ed Miller said that he had not asked that the Palm City Bridge money be included. Miller even prepared a statement for the press, which he handed out at a meeting.

Several newspapers reprinted the Miller release with no comment as to the criticism, and no comment on the facts behind his statement.

The same week that the Miller statement was released, The Mirror published a list of four persons

Kelly Files For Governor

Ex-Senator Scott Kelly, a Lakeland realtor, builder and insurance executive, formally entered the governor's race with an attack on administration of Gov. Haydon Burns.

Kelly, who was number three man in the last gubernatorial campaign, challenged the present administration's record of progress for the state. He said Burns had relegated education to a secondary role and called the $300 million road bond building program a "political emergency".

The newly announced candidate said that education, roads, traffic safety, needs of senior citizens and the "adherence of the incumbent to the principle that to the victor belongs the spoils" will be major issues in his campaign.

PBJC Shows 25% Increase

A total of 2,336 day student applications now on hand at Palm Beach Junior College promises a student body of one fourth larger than last year, Dr. Harold C. Manor, President, said today.

"Applications show a gain of 41% or better than 25 per cent, ahead of the total of 1,923 last year," Dr. Manor said. Final date for applications was Monday afternoon, and records have just been completed.

Public May Comment On PC Bridge Site

Chelsie J. Senerchia, District 4 State Road Board member, said Friday he would be at the county commission meeting rooms on August 24 at 3:30 p.m. to hear comments by Martin County residents on where they would like to see the proposed $3 million new Palm City bridge located.

City manager Joe N. Crowder had asked Senerchia to come here before engineering studies were started, to get local public opinion on the proposed locations.

Treasure Hunting Operations Suspended

Martin County Historical Society may have been left without a treasure search party for the balance of a contract period and possibly the the year.

Norman Scott, vice-president and executive director of Expedition Unlimited, under contract to the society to search for Spanish galleons in a four square mile area off Hutchinson Island north of St. Lucie Inlet, said last Friday he was suspending operations for "perhaps a month."

"The state has asked us to delay operations pending their approval of the contract we have with Treasure Salvers, Inc., of Vero Beach, to do some magnometer work for us," said Scott.

A check with responsible officials at Tallahassee, including the office of the attorney-general, revealed no such request had been filed.

Elmer Goebel, who was delegated by the historical society to ride the Expeditions Unlimited boats while they sought treasure here, said Friday he had stopped the work at the close of the original 90-day contract.

The contract was extended by mutual agreement between the historical society and the treasure hunters, when the search turned up nothing but old valuables wrecks, probably of World War II vintage.

"My only interest was watching out for the society's rights," said Goebel Friday.

"When they started to run the boat up to Fort Pierce and even as far as Sebastian to do search work, I quit," he said.

Both he and William Alloway, curator of the House of Refuge Bar referred to statements by Scott to the effect that he had to "make a showing" on a contract elsewhere.

Goebel said he hadn't been out with the search boats since the middle of July because they weren't doing enough work to warrant a trip.

Neither Scott nor his staff could be reached Friday.

Facts make a newspaper. Handout statements, especially those involving controversy, should be checked, at least with the principals involved.

Printing a statement such as Miller released is good reporting, but when the statement is in error, which the Mirror has proven, the correction should be made. The public deserves both sides of controversy, is all newspapers.

ASCS Ballots Were Mailed To Area Voters

Ballots were mailed to each eligible voter on the rolls in Martin County in the annual election of members of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, according to A. Dean Smiley.

The following nominees will be on the ballot: George Boydston, T. F. Clements, Walter Hupfel, Judson Krueger, Judson Minear, Harvey Moore, Joe Pennington, Cleveland Preston and Marked ballots must be mailed or returned in person to the county office at the Levi M. Johnson Agricultural Building on A1A or mailed to P.O. Box 1426, Stuart.

Smiley, Hupfel and Clements are incumbent regular members while Krueger and Moore are incumbent alternates.

The new committee will take office October 1 and will serve for one year. Last year, ballots went to 160 eligible voters.

Stuart Chamber Plans Bridge Location Survey

Stuart Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors at its monthly meeting on Thursday, voted to survey members of the Chamber as to their preference of location for the proposed new Palm City bridge. Replies will be tabulated and presented to officials involved.

The Chamber will participate in a new Okeechobee Waterway Annual Guide for which each Chamber of Commerce is providing material on where to go and what to see from the standpoint of a boating man. The publication will endorse "Florida's Great Circle Route" telling how to make the fabulous circle tour on the Okeechobee Waterway, the Intracoastal and the Gulf Coast. It will explain how to make the trip with ease and safety and is intended to stimulate travel around the route. It was reported to the Board that the Okeechobee Waterway Association also has plans to publish a monthly association newsletter, reporting waterway activities and events in South Florida.

Chamber manager Rosalee Murray reported on the new Chamber of Commerce Accreditation plan, sponsored by the local Chamber Service Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce. To attain accreditation, Chambers will be required to achieve and maintain high standards in operation and program. They will receive recognition for effective operation and be listed in a printed directory of accredited Chambers of Commerce. The plan is similar to accreditation of hospitals and educational institutions. The Board will study the report further and favored taking steps toward this goal in the new fiscal year which starts October 1.

Navitsky Is Named Vice Principal Here

Vincent J. Navitsky, Stuart Junior High School physical education teacher, was named assistant principal of the school by the school board Monday morning.

Navitsky was recommended by Joseph McCoy, school principal and by Supt. of Schools Thomas L. Crook. William T. Moore, a social studies teacher, will take over many of Navitsky's teaching duties, it was said.

State rules dictate that a school with 25 or more teachers must have an assistant principal or a supervisor, Crook said. There are 27 full time teachers and one part time teacher at the junior high, he said.

Smith Wins Sea Wall Contract

Charles L. Smith, local marine contractor, was low bidder on a unit-price bid to construct a 400-foot sea wall on the northeast corner of the west causeway of the Jensen Beach series of causeways.

The Smith bid was $8 a running foot, the county to supply the reinforced concrete sheet piling and the contractor place and cap them.

Bids were opened at the special meeting of the county commission Friday morning.

Other bids ranged from $13 to over $20 per running foot. The site is at the west end of the new high level bridge slated for completion this summer.

Chairman Frank A. Wacha said money for the project was budgeted.

A special meeting was held Tuesday to tackle the redistricting problem in an effort to re-apportion the commission districts which are out of balance by up to 1,200 voters.

The possibility of establishing new precincts was discussed.

Another special commission meeting was set for Friday at which time bids will be opened on the county garage property sale.

New Social Security Office To Open

A new Social Security Administration office will be opened in Fort Pierce in the near future, Robert M. Ball, Commissioner of Social Security, announced in Washington.

The new office will serve residents of Martin, Okeechobee and St. Lucie Counties and will be a branch of the West Palm Beach District Office.

Mr. Ball said that the Fort Pierce office is one of 71 new social security offices to be opened in various parts of the United States, all of which will be branches of existing district offices.

These offices are designed to provide better service to people covered by the social security program, many of whom now have to travel considerable distance to reach a social security office. As with the other 7 locations, the decision to open a social security office in Fort Pierce was based largely upon the anticipated need for additional service in these communities arising from changes in the social security program brought about by the introduction of "medicare." Population growth and changes in its pattern also were factors in deciding upon the location of the branch offices, Mr. Ball pointed out.

The new office will be staffed to answer inquiries about the new health insurance and voluntary supplementary medical insurance program of medicare, as well as to help people apply for social security benefits and to adjust inquiries about other aspects of the social security program.

Salerno Girls Win Softball Championship

...SO TEAM--Pictured above are the members of the ...girls' softball league champions, the Salerno team. ...ner Henry Crane kneels in front. The team won in a down to the wire, three way finish between Stuart, Salerno and Jensen Beach.

The Martin County Girls' Softball League finished a successful season Sunday evening August 15th with the presentation of the trophy awards and an All-star team defeating the pennant winners, Port Salerno, by the score of 10 to 9.

The Jensen Beach Mirror donated the sponsor trophy to Henry Crane of the Salerno team and the president of the league, Earl Meadows, presented each of the winning team players with a trophy and also presented a trophy to the winning coach, also Crane.

The league consisted of four teams and it was a battle up to the end. The pennant winners were decided on the last league game, and was a question of either Salerno, Stuart or Jensen Beach coming out on top. The fourth team, Palm City, with Earl Neyhouse as coach, is planning on building a winning team next year.

The 60 girls taking part in this sports programmed fine sportsmanship, and the officers of the league are looking forward to as good a season or even better next year.

The officers this year were; president, Earl Meadows; vice president, Martin Wahl and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Earl Meadows.

THE WINNER--League president Earl Meadows, left, presents the first place team trophy and manager's trophy to girls' softball league champion Henry Crane, who led the Salerno girls team to victory in the Sunday night league at Stuart. The team trophy was presented by the Jensen Beach Mirror.

District Four Road Member Chelsie Sesserhis said the project extends from the Martin County line north 5.5 miles.

The project included construction of a two-laned roadway with 18-foot traffic lanes.

Work is expected to be completed by Friday, August 20 on an adjoining job. This $563,287 project extends from the termination of the completed project in a northerly direction 4.5 miles.

Seek To Quash Charges

Charges against Cell L. Ramey, Palm City, and John N. Mann, Stuart, have been delayed by the filing of quashing motions, and the trial was not set. They had been charged with violating a zoning ordinance, and trial was to have been set by County Judge Mallory L. Johnson on Tuesday.

Ramey and Mann were cited by the county through information filed by County Prosecutor William A. Oughterson on June 22. The two men, allegedly, were involved in the operation of a junk yard at Palm City.

They claim the operation is a used car lot, permissable in the zoning classification in force, and they seek dismissal on these grounds.

Senerchia Hears Bridge Advocates

The County Commission meeting room was jammed with about 125 people Tuesday afternoon who came to tell how they felt about the new Palm City bridge.

District 1 State Road Board member, Chelsie J. Senerchia, listened patiently at about two dozen spokesmen gave their views. Some spoke as individuals, some for as many as 328 petitioners.

Two routes gained the most backing. Most often mentioned was a route which would follow the present general location of the bridge. Also mentioned was a 12th Street route, which would be an extension of SR 714, the present turnpike feeder road.

A lagging third choice appeared to be a route which would link Arbou Point on the Palm City side of the South Fork of the St. Lucie River, and West Ocean Blvd, at Sheppard Park in Stuart.

Accompanying Senerchia at the hearing was R. A. Johnson, assistant engineer of the Fourth District, County Commission Chairman, Frank A. Wacha conducted the hearing. Also present were County Commissioners Jack Sanderson, Ed Miller and J. H. Bruner. In the audience were Rep. William E. Evens and former Commissioner Jack H. Williamson. Two St. Lucie County Commissioners, William R. McCain and Cody Bailey were also present.

Senerchia complimented the group on being orderly, polite and promised to see that the facts were analyzed and studied, both as to economics and engineering.

"I'm in agreement that the present Palm City bridge needs replacement at the earliest practical moment," Senerchia commented.

Those who spoke were: City Manager Joe N. Crowder, Stuart: "...locate it as close to this city as financially and engineering wise feasible, but in no way further south than the present location."

Rony Nelson, speaking for the Stuart Chamber of Commerce: "...of those replying to our questionaire, 49% in favor of location near the present bridge; 19% for general area of Arbou Point and Ocean Blvd., in Stuart, and 22% for extension of SR 714 onto 12th Street."

V. R. Watts, President of the Palm City Civic Ass'n: "...176 petitioners want it at its present location or at 12th St., and 328 Palm City petitioners urgently request only that it be located at the present site."

Ross Philbrick, executive director of the Committee of 100: "...slightly to the north of its present location; second choice, at 12th St."

Howard Underwood, Pelican Cove resident and Stuart businessman: "...It will cost money if you put it where it should go, but it should go there anyway....Add an extension of 12th St."

Ed Mapp, 50-year resident of South Fork area of Palm City: "...should be at present site or at 12th St., but not directly into the heart of Stuart."

Elbe H. Girard, Jr., "90 per cent favor old bridge location" said the Palm City surveyor.

Mrs. Susan Krauss, Palm City housewife: "...should last 30 years ahead, build at 12th St. location."

Mrs. Nellie Penrod, Stuart and Palm City landowner: "...If it goes anywhere else than 12th St. or its present location, I predict Stuart will become a ghost town."

Andy Zaplatosch, several times past-president of the Palm City Civic Ass'n: "It should go where you can get it best...we've asked for it for many years."

R. V. Johnson, president of Lighthouse Point: "...at Arbou Point in West Ocean Blvd., or as close to present location as possible, either of which would serve greater numbers of people both in Palm City and in Stuart, Rio and Jensen Beach. I oppose 12th St. which would bypass both Palm City and Stuart at the same time."

Richard Rupfel, Palm City grove grower: "...the entire right-of-way to the piles via the Arbou Point route into Stuart would be damned."

Norwood Simmons, Palm City resident of 20 years: "...If it goes the 12th St. route, 12 to 14 miles of new waterfront will be opened up and the right-of-way all the way to U.S. 1 would be donated."

Larry Timon, Rio businessman: "...12th St. not so good."

Philbrick also added: "While there are differences of opinion, 99 1/2 people of 100 in Martin County will be happy if you'll just build a bridge."

Senerchia assured him that it would be.

The informal hearing lasted about an hour and a half.

Jensen Zoning Plan Was Amended And Approved

The Martin County Zoning and Planning Board Thursday night ended its months of hearings and meetings with the adoption of a resolution including the Jensen Beach urban area into the county-wide zoning plan.

Adoption came only after a long discussion over commercial zoning on US 1 from the Stuart city limits to the Jensen Beach cut off road.

The zoning board changed its stand, which had been to zone the stretch in a modified business zone, 600 feet deep on both sides of the four-laned highway, but in changed it to commercial C-1 zoning, after opposition and a petition by businessmen in the area. The change calls for only 200 feet deep off the highway.

A move to change the board's plan to zone Rio waterfront areas to permit construction of efficiencies, hotels, motels, and the area was kept in a residential zone.

The US 1 change was made by a motion by Frank Forsberg, who turned the chairmanship over to Donald Ward to permit him to make it.

The motion was seconded by Paul Shafker with a vote of 5-1 by the board. Howard Haid was the only member opposing the change.

The US 1 provision provides 600-feet deep commercial shopping area zones in the area just north of the Stuart city limits and at the intersection of US 1 and Jensen Cut Off Road.

Jensen Beach zoning, as an area plan, had been in force since 1959, the board was told, and this was one of the reasons why the many hearings were held on the changeover.

In a meeting which lasted past 11 p.m., other actions included:

Adoption of a change from interim zoning in RT zoning to permit a mobile home subdivision in parts of two sections in an area between Cove Rd., and Paulson Rd. on the South Fork of the St. Lucie River.

The change was asked by Edward M. Kirkhart, vice-president of Fors River, Inc.

Adoption of a change from interim zoning to C-1 commercial on a 600-foot stretch of US 1 south of Salerno Rd., where M. Sonny Nilson, the applicant, said a shopping center will be planned.

Adoption of a modification of the present non-conforming use provisions of the zoning code to permit some changes which would either not change the character or would improve it in non-conforming areas provisions nuisances were not to be enlarged.

No additional vehicular traffic was part of the result, and screening fences and buffers were requirements included to provide maximum protection to abutters.

Under the change, public hearings would be held, property owners within 250 feet from the property in question would be notified in writing of pending changes and board approval would have to be obtained.

Adoption of a change in the provisions of the present C-1 commercial zone which now permits R-3-A and other better zoning classification in order to keep business or commercial sections apart from better zones.

County zoning director Fred L. Ball described the present code as "sponsoring urban sprawl," by permitting even the construction of houses in commercial districts to the detriment of both.

A specific exception was made in an amendment to permit church organizations owning property in present commercial zones to build churches in those zones if they do it within the next five years.

The Rev. Jack Fernandes, pastor of the Baptist Church, which plans to build a church in a commercial zone led the fight for the exception.

One of the chief reasons for the change was to permit supermarkets and drug stores selling wine and beer to off premises use to retain the character of the businesses. County beverage ordinance prohibits the establishment of a liquor establishment within 2,000 feet of a church but does not forbid a church from building within that distance of an existing liquor license.

In the only other action, Ward asked and got support of an amendment which would permit the construction of motels and motels in C-1 areas.

A hearing will be held. The date was not set.

All of the actions of the zoning board are subject to hearings and review by the county commission prior to becoming law.

County Zoning

Changes adopted by the planning board last Thursday and recommended to the commission for its adoption were set for public hearings on September 14.

Included were zoning of Jensen Beach, establishment of a RT zone between Cove Rd. and Paulson Rd. on the South Fork of the St. Lucie River; establishment of a C-1 commercial zone on US 1 near Port Salerno; a change in non-conforming use provisions of the code, and more changes in the R-3-A zone classifications.

There was no opposition to the county zoning regulation changes when the County Commission met at its regular session Tuesday morning. This contributed to the setting of a probable new record for speedy conclusion of county business.

There were two zoning classification changes which included changes in the R-3-A land use category to add mobile home sales, trailer sales, filling stations and professional and business offices; also addition of a new classification, R-4, a new multiple family dwelling group. A change of classification under this new code also delayed pending scheduling of a planning board hearing to cover a vast area of Palm City.

An amendment to the general contractors code was adopted, and county health regulations were altered slightly to forbid outdoor

Mobile Home Owners Support Question 5

A meeting of the Florida Mobile Home Owners' Association was held Thursday evening, August 19, at the Recreation Hall of Ocean Breeze Park with about 100 members and guest attending.

A newly proposed method of taxation for mobile homes was discussed. The method, according to J. J. Marr, president of the group, is approved by the legislature for submission to the voters. It provides a graduated state tax based on mobile home lengths. If adopted, it is estimated that the state will receive $2 million annually which it does not now receive. A constitutional amendment, designated Question 5 on the voting machines, is the medium by which the Florida electorate will vote either for or against adoption.

Speakers at the meeting included George Gerrie, treasurer of the Florida Mobile Home Owner's Association, Mr. Arthur Johnson, chairman of the Ocean Breeze Park campaign and John Marr, president of F.M.H.O.A.A.

Firemen Training Scheduled

A fire training program is scheduled for Monday, August 30 for the Jensen Beach Fire Department.

Safe Boating Is More Fun

Seamanship For Small Boats

The Jensen Beach Mirror will feature a series of articles on safe boating in the Sports Section of the paper. Since there are so many boating enthusiasts in this area, we are hopeful that they will govern both intersailing and helpful.

As is unusually popular new family sport is rising rapidly all over the nation. Small and large boats of all types and descriptions, full of boating, waving people, are getting the waters wherever the depths are beyond wading level. The American family has taken to boating in a big way.

Most of the new skippers enjoying this safest of all family recreations do not seem to know that they are responsible for the welfare of their passengers and the protection of their boats, for the wise boatman is careful how he steps aboard a boat, how he loads it, and how he pilots it.

Good seamanship is a mixture of experience and knowledge. The knowledge can be obtained in many ways, including attending free classes in small boat handling given by your local Power Squadron, a unit of the United States Power Squadrons, national non-profit educational organization of civic minded men, but the experience can be gotten by diligent practice and self-discipline.

Most new outboard boats contain a decal which indicates the recommended maximum horsepower for the motor used on that particular boat. Don't exceed this maximum! In getting into a small boat, step carefully into the middle of the boat, keeping low and steadying yourself on the pier as you do. Don't step on the gunnels (upper sides) of the boat, and don't jump into the boat.

Get them all aboard first, then lift your gear, motor, and any other equipment into the boat from the pier. Distribute the weight evenly, letting passengers, and last supplies down. A stern-heavy boat will labor when under way and it is dangerous and difficult to control when making sharp turns. The skipper and his friends can protect themselves as well as the boat's gunnels from rubbing by wearing non-slip, soft soled shoes instead of the usual hard leather street wear.

Unfortunately, overloading a boat is too common a practice, although this may lead to swamping the boat or unusual strain on the physical capacity of the motor. For many do not know, the law requires a life preserver for each passenger.

In moving away from a pier, remember that the turning circle of a boat swings the stern to the left as the boat turns right, and vice versa. Shove the boat away from the pier before starting the turn to make certain the boat will be free and clear.

Although it sounds elementary, don't go out to be a boat. This applies equally well to the owner of a 16-footer and a 40 boat. Lakes and coastal waters are fearsome in a storm. Even skilled seamen dread foul weather whenever they may be afloat.

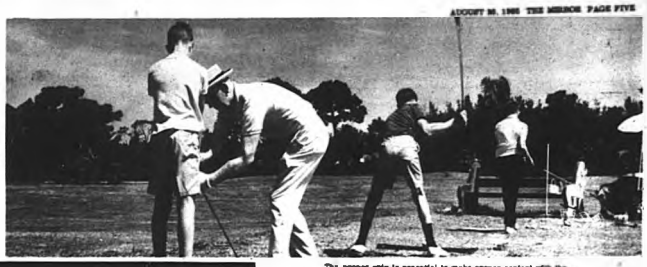
Outboard motors have the convenience of power, fuel economy, and low cost. They also create certain problems. For one thing, the smart skipper fastens his outboard motor to the transom with a chain or sturdy line. If the clamps slip, the motor will not be lost.

Once underway in a small boat, do not speed around sharp turns. Keep your craft under control, and stay alert to spot other boats, water skiers, and stay alert to spot other boats, or swimmers, or floating material which could damage your boat or propeller.

The skillful skipper can be spotted as he returns to the pier. He comes in slowly, stops his motor to let the wind or tide drift him into the pier, and has fenders and a bow line ready.

Seamanship is emphasized in the USPS boating courses. For information about free classes in this vicinity, write National Headquarters, United States Power Squadrons, P. O. Box 830, Englewood, N. J.

Sports In The Mirror



The proper grip is essential to make proper contact with the golf ball, and Matt Moore checks this closely with a local youth.

THE OUTLAWS--Pictured above are the members of The Outlaws, the team that led the league most of the season and was a top contender for the championship of the summer slow pitch league.

Youth Tourney August 26th

A back-to-school golf tournament for the Junior Golfers of Martin County Golf Club has been scheduled for this Thursday, August 25.

Competing will be all the youngsters who have been attending the golf clinics held by Pro Matt Moore. They will be paired according to age groups.

Prizes for this event have been donated by the Stuart Department Store, and will be awarded to the winners in the various groups.

Tee-off time for the first foursome will be at 9:30 a.m. and all groups should be back to the clubhouse by noon, at that time the awards will be presented.

Two Eagles Are Scored

Two eagles were scored within the last week at Martin County Golf and Country Club.

The first was done by Eugene Fortress, chipped in from off the green. Playing in a foursome that included Bobby Joe Jolly, Frank Richmond and Jack Fortress, the eagle was scored on the No. 8 hole, 270 yards long, par 5. The other was a 30 foot putt by Ron Allison playing in a foursome with pro Matt Moore, Mrs. Moore and Kelly Childs.

Grad Course

A graduate course in education will be offered at J.D. Parker School during the fall trimester through the Florida Atlantic University Office of Continuing Education as part of an initial program which covers eight counties.

The course, called EDLA 527, Exploring Reading Elem. School I, is to be given from 4 to 7 p.m. on Mondays beginning Sept. 12.

Beach Report

by Jack Cammack

Surf Temperature High

The beach report for the week of August 17 through August 24 is as follows:

Exceptionally high temperatures in the surf ranging from 83 to 86. There have been occasional showers on a few days but not enough rain to spoil the swimming at the beaches. The white and blue flags flew alternately throughout the week.

We had a group of children visit the beach on Thursday from North Palm Beach. They call themselves—the Kinder-Kollege. There were 30 youngsters ranging in age from 2 to 14. They were supervised under the direction of Mrs. June Bulkley as well as by teachers from the school. This was the second time the group had visited Jensen Beach, Mrs. Bulkley said the reason they come to Jensen was because it was "adequately supervised and a nice, clean place to swim."

On Saturday a U.S. Air Force plane flew low over the Stuart beach and dropped a message to the life guards of the beach warning them of sharks which were headed for that area. The life guards went into action and the U.S.A.F. for this information.

Next week we will feature an article on artificial respiration.

Kid's Fishing Tournament Is Planned For Labor Day

The first Kid's Fishing Tournament in several years in Jensen Beach will be held on Labor Day, September 6, at the Jensen Beach Causeway from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The event is sponsored by The Jensen Beach Mirror, and is open to youngsters from the ages of two to sixteen years.

Co-sponsors of the event are Publix Markets of Stuart and Fort Pierce, donating hot dogs and soda for all the participants, and Palmer's Variety Store, donator of the awards in various categories.

Prizes will be awarded for the largest fish, the smallest fish, the oddest fish, the longest fish and for six other categories.

Cane poles will be furnished by the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce, and bait will be supplied to the fishermen.

The fishing will take place on the causeway fishing pier.

The contest is open to all youngsters of the south St. Lucie and Martin County areas. Registration will be held at the causeway fishing pier entrance. Tickets will be given to each contestant, to be used for the hot dog and soda concession. 500 hot dogs and sodas will be available for the two hour fishing tournament.

Persons desiring to bring their own rods must follow the rule of no casting, as the danger to others is too great, according to Mirror editor Dick Campbell, chairman of the tourney.

Prizes will includes rods and reels, fishing tackle, fishing gear and lures.

Old Timers Meet Pony Champs Saturday Night

The coaches aren't talking, but there are many surprises in store for Martin County sports fans on Saturday night as the Jensen Lion's pony league champs meet the Jensen "Old-Timers" at Langford Hall Park at 8 p.m. in a baseball game.

The Jensen Mirror sponsored game is free to all, but the hat will be passed to raise money for the Langford Hall Park Association activities the night of the game.

Coach and manager Harold Salzler has announced the starting lineup on the Lion's team. At third base will be Cliff Jones, and is left field is Ricky Dailey, Tom Wyatt bats third and is the catcher. Dave Heaton will be at shortstop, followed by Keith Lambie in center field, Curtis Sprague plays first base, Walter Elchen at second base and Gordon Proctor will be in right field.

Salzler said that he would have two men to choose from for mound chores, Neil Hardwick or Randy Schoenner will face the old-timers of Jensen.

Dick Campbell, field manager of the Jensen Old-Timers, also announced a lineup. He said that the starting lineup would necessarily fluctuate, as the old-timers are not certain how many innings they will be able to play.

"One thing is certain," Campbell said, "We will have Phil Baker as third base coach and the umpires will be Ralph Norkin at first base and Ed Menninger calling balls and strikes."

As for the team, Campbell said that while the lineup lacked depth, the spirit of the old men was "excellent". He named the starting lineup and batting order as follows:

The coach said that Rinaldi would pitch as long as his arm held out, and added that every man on the team was absolutely unqualified as a pitcher, ready to step in and relieve if necessary.

In reserve will be Frank DeStefano and Dick Campbell, plus several other persons not yet committed to play.

Both teams will use pony league gear for the game. There will be several doctors on the field during the game.

Old Timer Practice

The Jensen Old-Timers will practice for the Saturday night baseball game with the Jensen Lion's championship pony league team on Saturday afternoon, starting at 5:30 p.m. Batting practice will be held. All old timers have been notified to bring proper equipment.

County Will Press For Beach Park

The county commission is attempting to acquire a 600-foot piece of beach front property on Jupiter Island about three-quarters of a mile north of Indian Rd.

At a special meeting of the commission held Tuesday, Chairman Frank A. Wacha requested that he and Commissioner Jack F. Saunderson be given permission to try to acquire the beach front which was formerly a part of the U.S. Coast Guard Loran station.

Wacha said that the State Park Service is using the old Coast Guard buildings on the south 300 feet of a 900-foot stretch of beach.

The portion the county is seeking has no buildings on it.

Wacha and Saunderson were given permission to "explore all means of acquisition...for public purposes," and travel expenses were authorized.

In other business, the commission agreed to advertise a swap of right-of-way between the county and Warner B. Tilton, to permit the laying out of South Savanna Rd. in the Jensen-Rio area.

Commissioner J. H. Bruner was authorized to spend $2,000 in cash plus the use of machinery estimated at a cost of $500 to aid the city's youth center expansion project.

County and city officials have been regarding the project which will start in a few days. City Manager Joe Crowder said the expansion program would amount to about $5,000 with the city and county sharing responsibilities.

CHOW TIME--Everyone seems interested in the first steak off the charcoal as the girls of Epsilon Zeta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and their men turned out for a steak cookout on Jensen Causeway last Saturday night. The steak was excellent.

Bids On Water Thursday

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, nine contractors have asked for plans and specifications on the proposed sewer main and street surfacing assessment project in Bessey Addition and a portion of Pine Manor. Bids will be opened Thursday at 2 p.m. at city hall.

The project, which could run to $135,000 and which had been rejected over two years ago by taxpayers in the same area, was revived this spring by petitioning residents of the neighborhood.

The project would be paid for by reverse certificates borrowing which would be issued under an assessment plan under which owners would pay an estimated two-thirds of the cost.

The street surfacing portion of the project will include two streets in Pine Manor, Pine Drive and Manor Drive, from Palm City Road to Tract A.

The paving portion of the overall project was estimated to be $55,586.60.

Sewer main costs were estimated at $80,297.51. The costs, broken down for estimate uses at a hearing held in July, were set at $2.80 a running foot for paving and drainage and $3.20 for sewer mains. Payments could be made one-third at a time for three years with interest at 6 per cent.

At a hearing on July 6, about 75 residents of the areas plus other residents argued the pros and cons of the improvements for about two hours.

A straw ballot taken at that time appeared to be slightly in favor of the project. Residents of the two Pine Manor streets were 100 per cent in favor of the surfacing project.

In the Bessey Addition portion of the project, streets include St. Lucie Crescent from U.S.1 to Indianola; Cleveland, Bryant, Pine, Riverdale, and Indianola from St. Lucie Crescent to the river.

The city commission, following these meetings, voted unanimously to seek bids on both portions of the project.

W. B. TILTON PRESENTS
Words To Make Your Life A Better Place To Live

RIGHT

The world is a difficult world indeed,
And the people are hard to suit,
And the man who plays on the violin
Is a bore to the man with a flute.

And I myself have often thought,
How very much better 'twould be
If every one of the folks that I know
Would only agree with me.

But since they will not, the very best way
To make the world look bright,
Is never to mind what others say,
But do what you think is right.

Niagara Therapy Scholarships In Ballet Classes Planned

Chris Jacobo, director of [illegible] of Ballet Theatre, has announced that a series of partial scholarships in ballet classes for young people have been made available through a grant by Niagara Therapy Manufacturing Co. [illegible] area.

The scholarships will be based first on the need of the youngster, the interest of the parents, willingness to participate, and talent potential, according to Miss Jacobo.

The scholarships will pay approximately 40% of the monthly tuition to ballet classes.

Herbert Haltmeyer, southeastern United States manager of the Niagara Therapy, who lives in Port Salerno, said the scholarships would fit into the therapeutic plan of physical fitness that is stressed by Niagara Therapy. Ballet is known to have special therapeutic exercises that help students achieve faster, safer and greater degrees of physical progress.

Niagara operates a clinic for crippled children in Meadville, Pa., called the Fairyland Clinic, the center helps the crippled children use muscles with colorful play items featuring the therapeutic Niagara Cyclo-Massage units built in, such as a Mother Goose chair.

Haltmeyer said, "We hope to help young people in any way we can. These scholarships are being made available to the parents who cannot fit the price of ballet lessons into their budget. Also, the children must have ability and desire."

Beach Report

Turtle Season Opens

Opening day for the 1965-66 season to take oysters and turtles from Florida waters is September 1, according to Randolph Hodges, Director of the Florida Board of Conservation. The season will close on these two species on April 30, 1966 except in Martin County where the turtle season opens on September 16, 1965 and closes on April 15, 1966.

According to W. B. Richards, Director of Sanitation of the Tri-County Health Unit, a survey was made recently of the Indian River from the St. Lucie County line to the House of Refuge on the east side of the river. The department has approved this area for shell fish harvesting.

The unit is presently conducting another survey on the St. Lucie River.

Knowledge May Be A Lifesaver

The Beach Report for the week indicates surf temperatures ranging from 82 to 85 degrees. The white flag was flown on every day with the exception of one day when a blue one was called for. Attendance at the beaches has been average with a crowd of 300 on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bragan, newcomers to the Jensen Beach area, have been visiting the beaches quite frequently with their family since arriving here on July 20th.

This week we are featuring an article on artificial respiration, entitled, "Be Prepared To Save A Life."

When breathing has been stopped by drowning, electric shock, smoke or gas inhalation, drug or chemical poisoning, convulsions and carding, arrest, start artificial respiration at once either by use of a Resusitube (a plastic tube) or by mouth.

Important: Always Keep Victim's Head Tilted Back and Pull Chin Upward.

(1) Place the victim on back (Face up). Clean the throat if necessary. If the jaw is tightly closed, insert your index finger between cheek and teeth. Wedge it behind back teeth and pry jaw open.

(2) Approach victim's head from left. Grasp lower jaw with both hands just in front of earlobes. Tilt head back and pull chin up. Push lower lip toward chin with your thumbs. Then pinch nose with your thumbs. Never let chin sag - as air forced into victim can escape and you do not create a tight airway.

(3) Take a deep breath and place your mouth tightly over victims and blow. Important: When chest rises, take your mouth off and let the victim exhale. Repeat every 2 to 5 seconds. Also, if victim is a young child, blow gently and cover nose and mouth.

Caution: Never give artificial respiration to a person who is unconscious but still breathing. Keep head tilted back and pull chin upward until conscious.

Game Plentiful For 1965-66 Season

The outlook for a successful 1965-66 hunting season is good. The status of Florida's game birds and animals at mid-summer may be classified as healthy and robust, however, nature holds the key that will determine if Florida wildlife passes a complete fall physical.

According to O.E. Frye, director, Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, it is difficult to make an accurate forecast at this time as much wildlife data remains to be gathered and many unforeseen factors may slip into the game. With favorable weather and suitable habitat, wildlife will generally replenish its own and the hunter may look for a good harvest.

Deer: Apparently thriving throughout the State and more numerous than ever, hunters are expected to exceed last seasons harvest of an estimated 19,000 buck deer.

Turkey: A good hatch in most sections and if the young poults are not damaged by adverse weather, the wild turkey will again be a prime target for the sportsmen. Areas with low population last season due to weather conditions have recovered with a good reproduction.

Quail: Generally plentiful with successful early and mid-summer hatches. Success of late hatches and fall weather will probably make the difference between a high or average harvest.

Squirrel: The mid-summer status is good, the fall population will depend on the condition of the acron and other mast crops. With suitable hardwood areas the squirrel carf be expected to hold its own under most conditions.

Dove: Hunter may anticipate about the same conditions as experienced last season. Bag limit ref-ins at 12 per day.

Duck: Ideal nesting conditions in the North indicate that this might be the best duck hunting season in a number of years.

"It now looks like another good season," Frye said. "But as every hunter knows, this is a critical time and a great deal depends on weather conditions from now until opening day. We just never know until the summer is over and the hurricane season is past."

Gross sales in Martin County increased by 3.3 percent during the month of July in comparison with the same month in 1964. Sales in July of this year totaled $2,127,609.52 while the sales reported in 1964 were $2,449,667.56.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Sewalls Point have returned from a week's vacation at New Smyrna.

The Smiths also visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Smith in Orlando.

BACK TO SCHOOL tournament held last Thursday at the Martin County Golf and Country Club was a huge success. Winners in the boys' division were Peter Pauley, Rick Pauley, Tommy Thomas and Kelly Childs, shown here with Pro Matt Moore. Prizes were awarded by the Stuart Department Store to winners in all age divisions.

THE GIRLS, TOO, had their day at the Martin County Golf Club and the winner was Debbie DeStefano, shown here with Pro Matt Moore, and runner-up Pam Hartzell. Prizes were given by the Stuart Department Store.

These three young belters are putting their drives well down the fairway, a result of expert instruction from Matt Moore, local Club pro.

Youth shows very good form as he prepares to drive a golf ball from the practice tee at Martin County Golf Course. He is one of the numerous members of Matt Moore's golf class.

Your Social Security

Starting with June, of course, your earnings would not affect your right to a full check.

Q. Did Congress extend the age limit for child's benefits?

A. Yes. If a child was receiving benefits on either parent's social security account and those benefits were stopped when the child reached age 18, they may be restarted now, provided the child is a full-time student and under 22 years of age.

Q. I became 72 in June of this year. As I understand it, I may earn as much as I want to during the year without any charge against my social security checks. Am I right?

A. Not exactly. You were 71 for the first five months of the year. According to the provisions of the social security law, any earnings over $1200 during the present calendar year will be charged against your benefits for the months of January through May, unless you can earn only $100 (or less) in any of these months.

Before You Leave The Dock

Nothing exceeds the pride of a man for his new boat. The skipper stands at the pier, admiring every smooth curving inch of the hull, and the gleaming fittings.

Naturally, he is anxious to pile the family aboard and take them for that first exhilarating spin in the new boat. And, under most present regulations, all the skipper has to do is collect the family, start the motor, and take off. Unless he carries passengers for hire, no license or operating permit is usually required. No test of ability or knowledge precedes that first voyage.

However, there are many things every skipper should know, especially newcomers to the sport of boating, before he leaves the dock for the first time. Such things include the equipment required by law, common sense equipment, marlinespike seamanship, anchoring, and a number of other topics, all of which are taught in the free piloting classes offered by units of the United States Power Squadrons, a national private boating organization --a group of men who teach and practice safety in boating.

For instance, depending on the size of the vessel, the law requires that all boats operated on Federal waters have aboard in working condition: certain lights, fire extinguishing equipment, life preservers and flame arrestors on inboard gasoline engines.

Believe it or not, anchors are not required by law, and even more unbelievable, some skippers actually take small boats out without them. But every boat needs an anchor, and two are better than one. The size and type of anchor will depend on how large your boat may be and the type of bottom on which you will drop the anchor. It's wise to have one anchor handy, already shackled to a line, the other end of which is made fast to a cleat or bitt. You can imagine the results of running an anchor line out to the "bitter" end, and yet people have done it to their dismay.

You can't avoid tying knots when you have a boat, so you might as well learn the proper way of doing it. The simplest way to make a small boat fast to a pier is with two lines, one extending from the bow and the other from the stern. Each should be attached to a piling or bollard on the pier with a clove hitch, and aboard the boat the lines should be fastened to cleats. Of course "Spring lines" are best.

Don't forget to carry certain spare parts and tools. Mechanics are hard to find offshore and out of sight of land. Spark plugs, coils, condensers, distributor points, extra lines, flashlights (in working order). And for many outboards, extra shear pins are necessary items. Also include screw drivers, pliers, wrenches, hammers, and other simple tools.

A small hand bilge pump or a good sized bailing can will make bailing easier if you spring a leak or ship water from a wave. Flares are helpful in emergencies, and a small basic first aid kit, with a good manual, can literally be a life-saver. If you carry a small stove aboard, make certain it is a bolt-down type. Do not use a gasoline stove or a portable unit on a boat. Check your food locker before leaving to make sure you have everything needed for a happy day afloat, and have plenty of fresh drinking water.

Specific information on equipment required by law can be obtained from Government publications or by attending a Power Squadron class.

Hurricane Betsy Hammers South Florida With High Winds, Rains And High Tides As Preparations In Martin County Reach A Peak Of Activity

HURRICANE FLAGS--were hoisted at Stuart Tackle and Marine Monday morning as Hurricane Betsy reversed her course and headed south toward the Bahamas. U. S. 1 was obscured as high winds and rain squalls covered Martin County.

Martin County braced itself for a repeat performance of Hurricane Cleo and Isbell last year, as Hurricane Betsy, a fickle lady who changes her course as she changes her mind slammed through the Bahama Islands and headed westward toward the southern tip of Florida.

Any possible change in the course of Betsy, which was over 250 miles southeast of Stuart at 11 a.m. Monday, might bring her through South Florida in a winding path reminiscent of Hurricane Isbell, which, in 1964, sped in and out of Florida in an unpredictable path of destruction.

Miami weathermen said that the storm was acting in a "treakish manner", making it impossible to suggest where, if at all, it would hit the mainland.

In Martin County, people began preparations for the possibility of a hurricane. Shops were boarded up and hurricane awnings were in evidence throughout the county.

Boaters began taking their boats up the north and south forks of the St. Lucie River in preparation of high tides that accompany the storms.

Gale force winds were predicted tonight, (Monday).

Hurricane shelters will be opened when and if the county goes on a hurricane alert. In the meantime, residents are asked by Civil Defense director Al Keaton to keep tuned to radio station WITU and WMCF-FM to keep posted with local conditions, and make all preparations for the hurricane.

"It would be difficult to put up hurricane awnings in gale winds, so I hope that by tonight (Monday) everyone has awnings and boards up," Keaton said.

On the beaches along Hutchinson Island, squalls and winds blew as waves broke across the sidewalks in Stuart and Jensen beaches.

Stores closed for the Labor Day holiday reopened to serve the public. A run on batteries, canned meats, bread and transistor batteries, as well as on hurricane lamps, was shown as people began the preparedness battle with time.

Fickle Betsy still slammed through the Bahamas, hitting Great Abaco with full 125-mile-per-hour winds during the afternoon and morning hours Monday.

In the Civil Defense headquarters, director Al Keaton sat at his telephone setting up the mechanics of assisting the county if a hurricane should come. He told the Mirror that he had all the area directors on alert, ready to report to posts if the warning becomes an alert.

In the Mirror office, members of the Mirror staff gave up a holiday to offer to report to work to prepare this "extra" edition, Newsboys answered the call to deliver this emergency edition of The Mirror throughout the county in late evening hours.

In the event Hurricane Betsy hits Martin County, city, county, civil defense and Red Cross officials will be ready.

Advisory On Betsy

Hurricane Betsy was located at 5 p.m. Monday afternoon at 26.0 north latitude and 76.7 longitude, which is 250 miles east of Ft. Lauderdale, moving southwest at 8 miles per hour.

The hurricane was photographed this morning and places reported that the eye was the largest ever photographed in the history of hurricane photography.

Winds on the Florida east coast were gusting 30 to 35 miles per hour.

Evacuation of coastal areas was not eminent, according to Miami weather officials.

Hurricane Shelters Are Designated

With hurricane Betsy posing a threat to Martin County, the American Red Cross has designated the following places to serve as shelters. Each of the shelters will have a person in charge of that particular shelter.

These places will be opened at the time that Martin County goes on hurricane alert, when and if, and will remain open until the danger is over.

In the Stuart area, the Elks Club with Mr. and Mrs. Hal Weber in charge; the Southern Methodist Church with Rev. D. Knight; Stuart Civic Center with Richard McHardy and the Cherokee Motel with Robert Hall.

The Palm City Baptist Church will be under the direction of Rev. Henry Tatum.

The Port Salerno Church of God will be a shelter under the direction of Rev. J. Anderson.

In the Hobe Sound area, the Tropical Farms Baptist Church will be under the direction of James Clendenin. The elementary school and the Seaboard Railway Station will also be used.

In the Jensen Beach area, Bruce Gobbel will be in charge of the Jensen Beach Elementary School; Pierce Hopkins at St. Joseph and William DeLancy at the Community Church.

The Hobe Sound Presbyterian Church will be under the direction of Rev. Dickson and the Banner Lake Club will have George Hauch in charge.

Surfers Couldn't

Over 100 surfers appeared on Hutchinson Island Sunday and Monday to try to battle the surf generated by Hurricane Betsy.

Only one lad, Bruce Pearson, 19, of Hollywood was able to get beyond the breakers line and make successful runs to the beach. He said he had learned to surf in the Pacific at San Clemente, where big swells are common. He made two trips out, two in, and then bid asleep from exhaustion.

Others making the trip were unable to even "hang ten" which means in surfers' language "getting your feet and toes locked onto the board."

Surfers came from as far south as Miami and Homestead and as far north as Cocoa and the Cape Kennedy area.

The surf was estimated to be between 10 and 12 feet high on most of Sunday and some of Monday.

Hurricane Precautions

Hurricane Season Has Come Around; Take Precautions If A Storm Threatens

High Winds, Torrential Rain; Hurricane

Hurricane season has [illegible] around again, and during the summer and early fall persons living in the Atlantic seaboard states and in the Gulf Coast should be alert to the weather and keep weather forecasts [illegible]. And the American Insurance Association advised [illegible].

Summer vacationers at seaside resorts in particular should remember that the normal course of hurricanes is up the Atlantic coast and precautions should be taken for personal safety if a hurricane threatens.

A hurricane warning system already has been set up in Miami, Florida by the United States Weather Bureau to keep constant watch on storms and to track their course.

Last year there were six hurricanes, and four of these moved onshore causing heavy property damage, most of which was covered by insurance.

However, most insurance policies do not cover damages caused by wave wash, rising water and flooding, the Association said.

Three of the 1964 hurricanes struck Florida. They were Cleo on August 26, general damage $60 million); Dora on September 10, (general damage $12 million); and Isbel on October 16, (general damage $2 million). Another hurricane, Hilda, struck the Louisiana coast on October 3 causing general losses totaling $25 million.

These storms hit the United States after two years of 1962 and 1963 -- in which there were no hurricanes to strike our coast.

A hurricane is a tropical storm, or tropical cyclone, carrying sustained winds of over 75 miles per hour in velocity.

In the last 50 years, 96 hurricanes reached the continental United States, an average of almost two a year.

In each of four years -- 1906, 1933, 1954 and last year -- the United States mainland was hit by four hurricanes.

One of the most costly hurricanes from the standpoint of property damage in the past dozen years was Hurricane Carol, which struck New York (Long Island), New Jersey, and several New England states in 1954. After this storm, insurance companies paid $129,700,000 in losses.

Also, in 1954, Hurricane Hazel swept up the Atlantic coast causing insured losses totaling $122,950,000.

In 1961, Carla rushed into Texas and Louisiana causing insured property damage losses totaling $100,000,000.

Back in 1957, Audrey struck the Gulf Coast and caused 395 fatalities, although insured property losses were only $32,000,000.

Since then, hurricanes have taken some lives each year, but, thanks to advance warning by hurricane watchers the loss of life has been much smaller.

There were two hurricane fatalities in 1958, 24 in 1959, 65 in 1960, 46 in 1961, four in 1962, 11 in 1963 and 49 last year.

Obviously specific, precautions should be taken when a hurricane threatens, because a windstorm blowing at more than 75 miles per hour can pack a lethal punch.

In preparing for a hurricane, the first step is to know what they are, how they act and how often they occur.

The dangerous tropical storms which occasionally lash Florida produce a lot of wind and water. Native Floridians have weathered many storms but hurricanes can be a threat to human life if preparation is not made before one strikes, according to state climatologist Keith Butson who is with the Florida Agricultural Experiment Stations. Because of modern detection and tracking devices, the U. S. Weather Bureau can provide advance notice so Floridians can prepare for the storm.

Hurricanes begin in the Caribbean Sea, the Gulf of Mexico and the tropical North Atlantic Ocean, said Butson. About 60 per cent of them form during August and September.

The intense heat of the sun on a low-pressure area known as an easterly wave are the factors necessary to start a tropical storm.

The sun's heat energy is converted into rotating winds, spinning in a counter-clock-wise direction. At the center of this is the "eye", an area of calm 5 to 25 miles in diameter.

A squall easterly wave can become a storm if conditions are right, and will build up wind velocity as it intensifies.

A tropical disturbance officially reaches hurricane status when its sustained wind speed is 75 miles per hour. Winds of 90 to 100 miles an hour are common in mature hurricanes, says Butson.

Although rare, the highest recorded hurricane wind was 186 miles an hour in New England in 1938.

Heavy rainfall usually accompanies a hurricane. The average amount varies from 5 to 10 inches, but 20 inches and more have been observed over a 24-hour period. In September, 1950, the "Cedar Key" hurricane poured nearly 39 inches of rain in one day and night on Yankeetown on Florida's Gulf coast.

This was the greatest 24-hour rainfall on a small area ever known in the U. S. The area was flooded for several weeks.

Tides from 3 to 10 feet above normal are common when storms hit the mainland. Sometimes, tides are higher and flood low-lying inland areas.

Butson pointed out that hurricanes can cover a large region. The storms may generate dangerous squalls 250 miles from the center. Winds in these squalls can be very destructive.

A hurricane has two types of motion.

One is the rapid rotation around the center where strongest winds blow. The second is the forward motion of the entire body, which ranges from about 5 to 15 miles an hour. The combination of the two will usually produce the strongest winds in the storm's forward right quadrant. The weakest winds are usually found directly opposite this zone.

It is advisable to keep the radio tuned to your local station when a hurricane appears to be imminent. Your television set will also be helpful in providing the latest available information.

HAVING AN ENJOYABLE TIME in the turbulent surf at Jensen Beach, these youngsters were playing in the bulkheaded area as the waters rose above the protected wall.

DESERTED STREETS were prevalent as Martin County residents prepared their homes for torrential rains and high winds as hurricane Betsy changed her course and headed toward the southern tip of Florida.

CIVIL DEFENSE COMMUNICATIONS COORDINATOR--Rex Andrews was on hand at Civil Defense Headquarters assisting in the installation of emergency hurricane equipment in the event the storm should strike in this area. Residents are urged to keep tuned to radio station WSTU and WMCF-FM to keep posted with local conditions.

What To Do During Hurricane

Stay inside the building. Keep your radio tuned to a local station for bulletins as to where the storm is and in which direction it is moving.

When hurricane winds begin blowing, one or more windows in the house on the lee side - the side opposite from which the wind is blowing - should be kept open to provide ventilation and to prevent wind damage under certain conditions. If hurricane force winds should blow a hole in the windward side of the building or drive a flying object through the side of the house, wind pressure will build up inside the structure. However, if you adjust the windows on the lee side this will allow the pressure to escape and reduce the possibility of having wind pressure lift the roof or push out the walls.

Be careful with fire, if oil lamps or candles are used for lighting, make sure they are not in a place where they will tip over.

After A Hurricane

Don't leave the house, except in extreme emergency, until you know roads and streets are clear, and free of rubble and fallen electric wires.

Stay home so you will not hinder first aid or rescue work. If you are not qualified to render important emergency assistance, stay away from areas heavily hit by the storm.

If you have to drive your automobile immediately after a storm, drive carefully and watch for fallen wires and tree branches. Near swollen streams or flooded inlets, keep watch for washouts and undermined pavements. Rescue workers as well as ordinary residents should drive with extreme care and be ready to cope with any contingency.

Never, under any circumstances, touch fallen or dangling power lines or electric wires and keep away from all wires and steel fences. In a violent hurricane, live power lines can become entangled with metal fences, telephone and other wires, and contact could be fatal.

If your water service is affected, boil drinking water until you have been told service has been restored and your local Health Department says that the water is safe to drink.

Always be careful with fire during and after a storm. Your telephone service could be disrupted by the hurricane, and you might find it impossible to phone the fire department. And, if you are successful in reaching the department, the response of fire apparatus could be delayed if the streets are filled with uprooted trees, fallen limbs, or rubble left by the storm. And, if the water service has been damaged, low water pressure could make fire fighting difficult.

Above all, keep calm.

In addition to the Everglades National Park, southern Florida has another large Everglades wildlife sanctuary under federal control. This is Conservation Area One of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District in Palm Beach County. It is also known as the Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge and covers 221 square miles.

Sanitary Measures Advised By State

The Florida State Board of Health has advised regional and county sanitary engineers and all water and waste treatment plant operators to check equipment and supplies immediately for emergency use in view of the new hurricane season.

David B. Lee, director of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, especially warned that a minimum supply of fuel to operate auxiliary and standby equipment for a minimum of 10 to 14 days should be on hand. He said several points were caught last year with only 5 hours' fuel supply.

Lee suggested that all equipment, including stand-by equipment, be re-checked immediately and kept in good repair; that critical parts be adequately stocked; that supplies of chlorine, hydrochlorine solution and other chemicals be adequate to prevent any untreated waste from being discharged to streams without added chlorine.

He said emergency communications should be established without delay

What To Do Before A Storm

If a storm threatens anywhere from the Caribbean to the U. S. mainland, your radio or television set will give you the latest information from the Weather Bureau. When a hurricane is born, U. S. Weather Bureau observers usually track it before the storm hits the continent. Observation planes are sent up to fly around and through the storm to gather first hand information as to the intensity of its winds. When a hurricane appears to be moving toward land, radio and television stations will break in with special bulletins telling of its position and the direction it is moving. Your newspaper will also keep you informed.

If you have a battery-powered radio, keep it equipped with fresh batteries for use in an emergency because hurricanes frequently knock down electric transmission lines, causing power failures.

If you live or are vacationing near a seashore, go inland if a hurricane is about to strike the area, and pick a place to stay on high ground. Hurricanes churn up the sea and when they hit, beaches and low waterfront areas may become flooded or swept by storm waves. And, high tides usually accompany them.

Go inland early, the experts advise, if your passage to safety is over a road that is likely to be under water with high tides. Rising tides frequently occur several hours before a hurricane hits, so move to higher land well in advance of the arrival of the storm. Travel during a hurricane is dangerous.

When you leave the low-lying area, take plenty of food and water in thermos bottles or jugs with you. In particular, stock food that can be eaten without cooking.

If you are faced with riding out a hurricane in a house which is well-built and away from the water, that's possibly the best place for you to stay. Be sure you have a stock of food ample for several meals. Sterilize and fill pitchers, kettles, pans, and thermos bottles with water for drinking - frequently the normal water supply is contaminated after a hurricane, and not safe for drinking. In many homes in coastal areas, residents also fill the bath tub with water for an extra supply.

Stock food that not only can be eaten with little or no cooking, but also food that can be kept without refrigeration. Your refrigerator will not be working if the electric power goes off.

Bring into the house or store in the garage any movable items such as porch furniture, lawn furniture, lawn swings, barbecue grills, garbage pails and other objects. A lawn chair, picked up by hurricane force winds, could easily be blown through a large picture window, possibly causing injury to a person or persons inside the house. Movable awnings should either be raised and tied securely or removed entirely. As a matter of course in hurricane areas, trees close to buildings should be kept pruned. Hurricane force winds can blow down dead or over-hanging branches, and when these fall, they can break windows or cause roof damage.

If you have storm shutters which can be put in place over windows, put them up well in advance of the storm. In area frequently ripped by hurricanes, some homeowners have a television service man take down TV aerials until after the blow. Be sure garage doors are closed.

Betsy Blew, And Blew, And Blew

Martin County was prepared when Hurricane Betsy blew, and only light damage from high tides and blowing water has reported throughout the county. It was not the powerhouse of destruction expected. The people were ready, and Betsy could not blow down a well prepared house.

All efforts were bent to gain as good a condition as possible Tuesday to face the expected onslaught of Hurricane Betsy, when at 2 p.m., Stuart was officially included in the Hurricane Warning area by the Miami office of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

By then, winds had peaked By then, winds had peaked at 60 miles an hour at the House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island, and there was extensive flooding of lowland areas in the entire tidal basin of the St. Lucie River, both North and South Forks, and in the Indian River both north and south of St. Lucie Inlet.

A palm tree on Highway 707 was snapped in two early in the storm.

Damages were reported at wide spread places, particularly along the oceanfront and in the Indian River.

Five State Road Department trucks and crews, plus a crew of working prisoners, were rushed into action at the west side of the west relief bridge in the Ernest Lyons Causeway series of bridges over the Indian River when constant pounding from waves driven by several days of northeasterlies caused a washout of backfill.

At the Jensen Beach Causeway, the main pavilion building was in danger of toppling into the river when erosion of the north side of the main western causeway sucked the sand from under the building.

The new wall at Jensen Beach pavilion faced an erosion situation at its south end.

At Destitute Tom's, a refreshment stand next to the pavilion, a small building blew apart and a walkway was washed into the ocean.

The draw spans of the under-construction Jensen Beach high level bridge were lowered into down position to avoid high wind damage.

At the Palm City Bridge, the tug Bayou Gal with a barge loaded with two big draglines, was halted by the bridge tender, and spent the storm in St. Lucie Locks.

John Law, district manager for Florida Power and Light Co. said interruptions of service through the day were mostly due to falling branches.

The roof of a cabana at the pool at Sunrise Inn put out power in that area for several hours and Golden Gate and Port Sewell experienced longer interruptions than other areas through Tuesday.

At high tide Tuesday night, several roads, state highways were flooded and either closed by practical reasons or by action of Sheriff Roy C. Baker.

SR 707 just outside the city limits of Stuart, was flooded by a small creek on the St. Lucie River.

The road from Langford Marina near St. Joseph's Novitiate, to Oceanway, in Sewalls Point was closed by water driving across from the Indian River.

DOWN SHE GOES--The fishing boat owned by Gene and Ina Rike sits on the bottom of the Ocean Breeze Park marina, a victim of hurricane Betsy. The marina itself was almost washed out in the Indian River, as tidal action tore almost twenty feet of fill from the bulkhead to the river. Note the tree at the rear of the boat, awash in the high tide.

SAND LOSS-- The great amount of sand lost from Jensen Beach is shown above in this picture taken from the bulkheaded portion of the beach. Wind and waves cut the sand line back to the road.

EROSION AT THE BEACH--Six feet of sand at Jensen Beach was washed away by Hurricane Betsy, which took th e boardwalk at "Destitute Tom's Restaurant" and washed it out to sea. Extensive erosion at the beach dropped the sad level some six to ten feet in places.

DOCK BROKEN--This fishing dock at Poinciana Cottages on Indian River Drive was completely topped by Hurricane Betsy's tidal action. Waves tore the boards right off the top of the pier.

Rogers Was Concerned

Rep. Paul G. Rogers called from Washington, D. C. Tuesday afternoon to inquire as to the well being of Martin Countians and the hurricane conditions at mid-afternoon, according to County Comission Chairman Frank A. Wacha.

Wacha said Rogers offered the full help of Federal agencies in the event there proved to be such a need.

Flower Farmers Were Prepared

Flower farmers moved fast Tuesday to haul down the "crop" which covers about 60 per cent of 250 acres of land under high-cost cultivation.

Dallas Luce, president of the Martin County Flower Growers Ass'n. said the growers had suffered little damage.

Tournament Was Postponed

The Mirror Fishing Tournament for kids in Martin County was postponed by Hurricane Betsy last Monday.

The tournament will be rescheduled for a later date when the weather is more settled, according to Mirror publisher Dick Campbell, Bridge Celebration Set

Ross Philbrick, American Red Cross Chapter chairman, ordered all Martin County Red Cross shelters open at 6 p.m. Tuesday evening. They were open through the night.

Fireworks Donations May Bring Television Set At Dedication Of New Frank Wacha Bridge

A celebration of the opening of the new Frank Wacha Bridge at Jensen Beach is being planned by the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce and the Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen, according to information received today. A meeting to begin planning the big event, which will be in the latter part of October, will be held at the Jensen Chamber of Commerce Thursday, September 9, at 7:30 p.m.

Highlight of the dedication, which will be attended by many state officials, will be the award of a 16" television set. Mirror editor Dick Campbell purchased the first book of tickets, which are listed as donations to the fireworks fund, after they were printed. Firemen and interested volunteer citizens will set up teams to collect money for a "bang-up" display at the dedication of the bridge. Dill Yurillo, local fireworks expert, will be in charge of the show.

COMMENDED--Local Postmaster Allen Kendall has been commended by William H. Neal, National Director of the U.S. Savings Bond Division, for his leadership and service to the Treasury's School Savings Program.

Roads Flooded

Sewalls Point Road from the Kiplinger estate to High Point was flooded and impassable.

SR AIA to Hutchinson Island was barred to motorists because of flooding in the causeways.

Although at times it was possible to reach the island, access to Seminole Shores which is the James Rand development, was not reachable because of high surf which crossed the road about a mile south of the House of Refuge.

BEACH DAMAGE--The south pavilion at Jensen Beach was undermined, and sand cut out from behind the bulkhead offering this picture of the fantastic strength of Hurricane Betsy. This picture was taken from the edge of the road, also undermined.

The board of directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce will meet on Monday, September 13th at 8:00 p.m.

One Of Our Boys Made It Surfing

The Mirror got a correction this week. In a story printed in the "extra" edition on Monday, our reports told of only one boy, a young man from Pompano, making it out into the surf for a surfboard ride to the beach.

Tuesday morning, Frankie Wacha called to tell the Mirror that Ren Tilton had made three attempts, and succeeded twice in getting a ride to shore. In the conversation, an education in surfer language was obtained.

"Ren Tilton got out beyond the surf three times," said Frankie Wacha. "He got three rides."

"Well, good," said the reporter. "What happened?"

"The first time," said Wacha, "he got a ride and kicked out." (This means he went back out after riding the surfboard to shore.)

"The second time a wave wiped him out." (This means he didn't make the scene, and was knocked off the board by a wave when he got on the back side of it.) (I think.)

"The third time Ren got a good left." (Translated, this means that Ren Tilton went to the left on the wave coming and wasn't wiped out as he rode it all the way to shore.)

So, down with Pompano. Our boys are just as good,

CRACKED SLAB--The undermined slab of Jensen Beach Causeway's main pavilion cracked in half under the pressure of Hurricane Betsy's tidal waves. Water washed over the top of the pavilion floor at the end of the fishing pier to the causeway.

DECK AWASH--Water breaks over the Jensen Beach Causeway pavilion, where the concrete slab broke in half after being undermined by the wave action Tuesday night. Note that the fishing pier is under water at its entrance.

ERODED ROAD--Betsy's fury was displayed at the west bridge as waves breaking over a temporary bulkhead washed away roadbase to the edge of the road. When the erosion was discovered, the road to the causeway was closed.

Western Union Service Curtailment Is Protested

Strong protests are expected over curtailment of hours at the Western Union Telegraph office in Stuart, it was learned Friday.

The county commission will protest directly to the Federal Communications Commission before Tuesday, deadline for filing protests.

The city commission will take similar action. The members of the commission polled themselves Friday afternoon to ascertain their feelings on the proposed reduction of hours. Two members of the board felt this move by Western Union would eventually lead to complete closing of the office.

According to Ralph Brasher of West Palm Beach, district manager for the utility in this vicinity, the change in service was "expansion, not curtailment."

The firm wants to reduce its hours of operation especially during winter months when tourism, vegetable and flower growing, horse racing and citrus activities are at their peak.

Presently, the office is open from 8 a.m., until 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday and from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Sundays from December 15 to March 31.

The new schedule calls for operations from 8:30 a.m. until 12 noon and from 1 to 5:30 p.m. on Mondays through Fridays and from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Saturdays with the office being closed on Sundays.

The balance of the year which is now operated on a schedule of from 8:30 a.m. until 12 noon and 1 until 5:30 p.m. six days a week and from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Sunday, would match the new year-round schedule of hours.

Off-hour service would be provided at a new sub-station at Harvey Piley's City Service Station at 704 South Federal Highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eichen and sons, Walter, Jr., and Eddie, of Jensen Beach, have returned from a month's vacation in New York where they visited relatives and the World's Fair.

Park Program Expands As State Interest Is Shown By Governor

Frank A. Wacha, County Commission chairman, said the newest word on the park front was received from Ney C. Landrum Thursday in a letter in which new moves in acquiring the 220 acre Jensen Savannas area held by th State Board of Education in Section 16 title were hinted.

Landrom visited the savanna area with Wachs in February and, at that time, he was enthusiastic about use of the area "as a natural park to be improved with access road and rest room facilities.

Landrom is the director of the State Outdoor Recreation Council.

The State Dept. of Education has 220 acres left of its once full Section 16 lands there, and two private owners hold title to acreage in the area, Wacha said.

"One of the private owners has expressed willingness to give land for state park use, the other has refused, indicated a 60-high purchase price when it acquired the land," Wacha said.

At present, in northeastern Martin County, the county owns 1,448 feet of oceanfront beach at Jensen Beach; 1,150 feet in beach-to-river land at Stuart Beach where the Elliott Museum is located; 760-foot of ocean-to-river land at the House of Refuge Museum, plus one 50-foot street end in the old Yacht Club Beach subdivision, for a total of 3,388 in beach frontage.

In the southern part of the county, Reed Wilderness Beach with 4,290 feet of ocean frontage, is a Florida Audubon Society sanctuary but is not actually a public park.

There are nine street ends from the road to the ocean north of Beach Rd. on Jupiter Island with a total of 255 feet of ocean beach and another 142 feet in frontage from Bridge Rd. south to the county line, including the 67-foot stretch used for swimming at Bridge Rd.

Because of lack of beach frontage, Wachs and Commissioner Jack Saunderson requested and got permission from the commission last Tuesday to try to acquire a 600-foot stretch of beach at the old U. S. Coast Guard Loran station north of Bridge Rd. on Jupiter Island.

The county has many parks away from the ocean.

Jonathan Dickinson State Park contains about 18 square miles and Port Salerno is the site of Sandsprit Park. Palm City Park is used for picnicking as is the youth Center Park in downtown Stuart.

In Stuart, there is Shepard Park on Frazier Creek and Memorial Park in the center of Stuart.

There is also Phipps Park close to the St. Lucie Locks.

"We're optimistic about developments on Island state park Gov. Burns listed on Tuesday," said Wachs.

That 285-acre ocean tract with about 1,3 miles on the water, plus the 325-acre waterway tract that backs it up, held by IFF under dedication from FIND may, in the not too distant future, become a state park.

"The time to move is now, and we're trying to do it," said Wachs.

Words To Make Your Life A Better Place To Live
WHAT IS GOOD

"What is the real good?"
I asked in musing mood.
"Order," said the law court;
"Knowledge," said the school;
"Truth," said the wise man;
"Pleasure," said the fool;
"Love," said the maiden;
"Beauty," said the page;
"Freedom," said the dreamer;
"Home," said the sage;
"Fame," said the soldier;
"Equity," the seer.
Spake my heart full sadly
"The answer is not here."
Then within my bosom
Softly this I heard:
"Each heart holds the secret, Kindness is the word."

Andy Zglinicki, president of the Palm City Civic Association, will amend the suit he filed against Martin County and its five commissioners, it was learned recently.

ONE, TWO, THREE STRIKES YOU'RE OUT--Jim Nartisky, catcher for the Old-Timers helped the team in winning the game with the Pony League champions on Saturday night at Langford Ball Park. The score was 20-8.

Old Timers Swamp Jensen Pony Team

The Jensen Beach Old-Timers were too much for the pony league champion team, the Jensen Lions, as they coasted to a 20-8 victory last Saturday night at Langford Ball Park. The game, sponsored by The Mirror, went eight innings, and was called after eleven p.m.

Old Timer Dennis Rinaldi, a former professional pitcher, struck out the first three batters to face him, and in the Old Timers half of the first inning eleven runs were scored, including a grand-slam home run by county commission chairman Frank Wachs.

After Rinaldi found he couldn't slow his pitching down to give the pony league team a chance to hit, he was pulled in the third inning in favor of Frank Wachs, who pitched two innings and turned the second over to Wallace Fletcher, local C.P.A. Fletcher relieved for several innings and then Vince Bocchino pitched.

The pony leaguers never did get hold of the ball, but played excellent ball in the field after first inning jitters were off.

The stands were packed with fans, cheering mainly for the youngsters, who fought a good fight to get runs in the game after the first inning. Pitching for the pony league were Neil Hardwick, Randy Schemmer and Clifford Jones.

Date Palm Destroyed

A $500 date palm was destroyed early Friday by an automobile on US 1 300-feet north of the city limits.

Driver of the car, Stanley Blake Arnold, 20, 217 Hickory Rd., Jensen Beach, was charged with failure to have his vehicle under control.

Deputy Sheriff Morgan Sprott said Arnold was traveling south at a high rate of speed when his car left the highway, traveled in the median strip for about 135 feet before striking the palm.

The force with which the car hit the tree bent the lower trunk, broke off the top of the tree and hurled it another 25 feet beyond the point of impact.

The tree was one which had been transplanted from Shepard Park when US 1 was four-laned a year ago.

City park superintendent William Ambler said Friday that a different species of tree would be used to replace the date palm.

Damages to the car were set at $400 which was considered a near-total loss.

Hodges Inspects Erosion In County

Rudolph Hodges, director of the State Board of Conservation was in Martin County Wednesday morning to inspect Hutchinson Island beach erosion.

Rep. William E. Owens called Hodges in hopes of bringing him here to inspect damage. He came.

Rep. Owens, who made an inspection trip of the island last week when the beaches could be reached, said he was shocked at the amount of erosion damage done by Hurricane Betsy.

He pointed out that the 1965 session of the Legislature had set up a $500,000 erosion control account as a starter for the state in such activities, and added he hoped some of it could be used here.

He said he asked Hodges to make such a tour and see if funds for erosion control can be earmarked for this county.

"I don't know what will result," said Rep. Owens, "but I do know the time has arrived to do something here, and possibly the state fund can be used to help."

The half-million dollar fund was named a Beach and Shore Conservation and Restoration Program," by the last legislature.

Rep. Owens said he had also contacted Adm. Richard Tuggle, (USN,Ret) town manager at Jupiter Island, and would probably take Hodges there to show him what the foreshore protection program on the island is accomplishing.

In addition to private expenditures on seawalls, which are almost completely lacking on Hutchinson Island, the Town of Jupiter Island sponsors the sand reclagation project whereby sand is brought from offshore bars and dumped on the beach.

The program has played an important part in saving both walls and beach in the past several years.

At one county road end, the county installed a revetment wall in the only use of public funds for walls on the island.

At county beach, at the end of Beach Road, occured one of the contradictions of erosion, during Betsy. The beach accumulated sand, although un-guarded and un-walled.

County officials were expected to accompany Rep. Owens and Hodges on the inspection tour.

Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission

Marsh hen hunters opened Florida's 1965-66 hunting season at sunrise Saturday, September 11, according to W.B. Copeland, Chairman, Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. The day's hunting will end at sunset.

Hunting the migratory rails and gallinules (marsh hens) will be allowed for 65 consecutive days ending November 19th. Bag limit for all rails and gallinules is 15 for a day's bag and 30 for total possession.

Bridge Dedication Planned For Oct.

Plans are underway for the dedication of the Frank A. Wacha Bridge, according to Al Palmer, president of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. Local units who will be cooperating are the American Legion, Volunteer Firemen, Lions Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

A dinner will be served by the Jensen Beach Firemen, fireworks will be displayed under the direction of Bill Yurilla, a soap box derby will take place, and a fishing tournament will take place. Other events planned are a track meet, games and races, boat races, a dance and a fashion show.

Grand prize of the day is a 16" portable TV donated by the Jensen Beach Bank. One thousand books of tickets have been printed. It is hoped that all books will be sold by September 30 and proceeds will pay for fireworks on dedication day.

The dedication is expected to take place sometime in the latter part of October.

Phil Baker will be co-chairman of the Bridge Dedication Committee for the Chamber.

Dick Campbell, edtior of The Mirror bought the first book of tickets.

Representatives of the State Road Department, Rep. William Owens and Phil Baker of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce met Wednesday at the courthouse to make arrangements for dedication ceremonies at the new Jensen Beach Causeway bridge.

The dedication will take place in late October with the SRD and local representatives cooperating.

The name of the causeway will be made official at the time of the dedication, although it was named by legislative act for County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha some time ago.

Jensen Zoning Is Adopted

Final adoption of the county-wide zoning plan for the Jensen Beach area was voted in the county commission meeting Tuesday.

Except for one change, the plan was accepted as recommended to the commission by the county zoning and planning board. That change was to prevent setting up a non-conforming use in the area near the intersection of Temporary A1A and SR707.

Included in the overall county area was everything from the St. Lucie River North Fork to the Indian River south of the county line, to the Stuart city limits, to the Sewall's Point town limits and to the boundaries of the Town of Ocean Breeze Park.

Four other zoning change hearings at the commission meeting were adopted as presented by the zoning board.

The Jensen Beach change-over had been the most controversial, and during the past six months hearings had been held at Jensen Beach, Rio, several times at the court house. In addition to many work-sessions by the zoning board.

As finally adopted, US 1 commercial zoning was left at 200 feet deep off each side of the right-of-way. Protests had been lodged asking 600 feet, three times that which had been in effect in the old code, which had been in effect since 1954.

An industrial zone was provided in the general Rio area, and deeper commercial zones were provided at the intersection of US 1 and SR707-A and at SR707.

The board adopted a change in the C-1 classification which deleted some R-3 uses formerly permitted in C-1, the one exception being churches and schools, which would be permitted to build in C-1 areas for no longer than five years.

A modification in the non-conforming uses section of the zoning code was also adopted, which generally will permit enlargement of some non-conforming uses after zoning board public hearings.

Detailed were prohibitions of increased traffic, undesirable changes in view of the neighborhood, buffer areas, and a denial of reuse of non-conforming properties abandoned for six months.

A zoning board change from interim to C-1 commercial on a 660-foot stretch of US 1 south of Salerno Rd., requested by Ronny Nelson, applicant, was approved.

Dean Tooker, County Attorney, asked if it was spot zoning, but County Zoning Director Fred L. Bell said all of the area eventually will be in commercial use, according to the general plan.

The Nelson property is about 650 feet south of Salerno Road on the east side of the highway.

Edward M. Kinhart, vice-president of Fork River, Inc., had applied for a mobile home subdivision permit in parts of two sections in an area between Cove Road and Paulson Road on the South Fork of the St. Lucie River. Final zoning change adopted was from interim to RT to permit this mobile home subdivision.

Supper Will Benefit Hospital

There will be a covered dish supper followed by a games party at the Walton Community Hall, Friday, September 17 beginning at 7 P.M.

Mrs. Charles Moehle, in charge of arrangements, requests those attending to bring a covered dish and table service. All proceeds will go for hospital work, Mrs. Moehle, who will be assisted by the members of the Honey Creepers Coottiette Club 540, pointed out that the public was invited.

STEEL UP--The steel is up and the beam about ready to pour on the new Jensen Beach Post Office, now under way at the rear of the present site.

Construct Portable Classroom

The construction of a new portable classroom at the Jensen Beach School was opposed by Mrs. Owen Lockwood, owner of adjacent property.

Mrs. Lockwood said the classroom was too close to the lot line and that both winter residents of Poinciana Cottages and the school children would suffer by the proximity.

The room is being constructed on the south side of the main school structure, facing the river.

The location was chosen after considering all factors. Noise from physical education classes prevented the room from being constructed in the rear of the present school building.

The school board refused to make any change in the location.

County Actions

The regular meeting of the commission will be postponed from Sept. 28 to Sept. 30 because of a three-day convention of the State Association of County Commissioners, set for Miami on September 26 to 28.

On Tuesday the board voted to make the change and asked that all persons interested in hearings or other business set for Sept. 28 be notified of the change.

The board announced a right-of-way hearing and a zoning change were on the agenda.

A representative of the Palm Lake Park Civic Association told the commission county officials and the press they were welcome to attend its meetings the third Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the First National Bank.

In the suit by Andy Zgliczki vs. the county and its commissioners, the commissioners were notified that they would be called for depositions at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 20, that County Engineer Fred L. Bell will be subpoenaed.

Frank A. Wacha, Chairman of the Commission, reviewed the Western Union hour-limiting action at the Stuart office. He and Dean Tooker were authorized to take action as deemed necessary, including contacting U.S. Rep. Paul G. Rogers.

According to Wacha, the Federal Communications Commission had not yet replied to the commission's protest, but he said action was taken by the FCC before the county knew of the plans to limit hours at the telegraph office.

Hospital Estimates

At their annual budget session held this week, the Directors of the Martin Memorial Hospital foresaw a new fiscal year budget deficit of $31,000 and hoped that contributions and endowments would make up the difference.

Total patient revenue was estimated at approximately $851,000 less approved charity and bad debts of approximately $85,000.

Expenses were estimated at approximately $797,000.

The directors said in a written report, "Even though new legislation provides a quarter-mill for hospitalization of the county's indigents, it is anticipated that the hospital will absorb an additional cost in excess of $16,000 for the care of all indigent patients during the coming year."

Anticipated services during this 12 month period from October, 1965 to Sept. 1966 are as follows: 2,728 patients admitted for a total of 16,367 days of care; 365 babies delivered for a total of 1278 days of care and approximately 4,500 persons treated through the hospital emergency room. No staff increases wer anticipated.

Retarded Variety Show Is Planned

Robert Batterman, president of the Martin County Association for Retarded Children, has announced the 1966 edition of the Benefit Variety Show, presented annually will be held January 28 and 29 in the gymnatorium of Martin County High School.

Auditions will be held at J. D. Parker School December 1 and 2.

This year the director will be Pete Hand, assisted by Mrs. Laura Stuckey, Rev. Donald K. Schroeder will be Master of Ceremonies, and stage manager will be Jim Hopkins, art teacher at Martin County High School.

Application blanks are available at many places in the city including the Post-Times Bureau Office at 410 West Ocean Blvd.

Application blanks may also be obtained by telephoning 287-0912. They may be submitted for any type of performance by mailing to Variety Show, P. O. Box 205, Stuart, Fla.

G. A. Wins Garage Bid

Low bidder of three seeking the contract to build a new county garage at the A1A site of the present Mosquito Control department was G-A Construction Co., of Stuart, of which George Apostolopoulus is chief officer.

Low bid was $26,534.82, start to begin in ten days after written notice and completion in 90 days.

Second low-bidder, with $29,485, was Martinique Construction, Inc., of Indiantown, for which Paul Stefker appeared.

The third, and high, bid was $31,584 by Nutto Construction, Inc., of Vero Beach.

County Engineer, Fred L. Bell, recommended acceptance of the low bid and the commission awarded the contract.

Dickerson, Inc., of Stuart, was sole and low bidder on two other projects, the first for a one-inch wearing surface on part of Sewall's Point Road, at $2,195; the other, a one-inch leveling course in two streets in Poinciana Gardens, $2,145.30.

As recommended by Bell, the commission certified to the owners of Jupiter River Estates, All-American Industries, a John D. MacArthur Company, that Cleary Bros., Inc., had completed a bridge over a branch of the Loxhatchee River to county standards and satisfaction.

COLOR GUARD--A color guard team with snap and finesse was this crew who performed for the combined Stuart and Jensen Beach American Legion Posts Monday night. The girls came from Melbourne and Eau Gallie to present their colors.

Federal Aid Sought For Adult Education

A $54,370 Adult Basic Education plan was adopted by the board of public Instruction under the provisions of Title II of the Economic Opportunity act at the regular meeting of the board held last Monday morning.

Several major changes in the present night school for adults would have to be made to permit acceptance of the new Federal program, according to Supt. of Schools Thomas L. Crook.

Six classrooms in the front area of the old high school building on East Ocean Blvd., now the Instructional Center, will have to be air conditioned, he said, additional personnel hired and new equipment purchased, all at Federal expense.

It was pointed out in a side report made on the topic that there are 6,000 persons with less than $3,000 annual income in the county; 4,000 grade school adults in a population of 22,200.

According to the report, the Indiantown area has concentrations of farm and migrant labor; Stuart a high unemployment list and many of low incomes; Hobe Sound, a high drop-out rate and the same at Fort Salerno.

Betsy Proved Savanna Road Need

The flooding Indian and St. Lucie River during Hurricane Betsy proved the need for Savanna Road to Jensen Beach.

Sewall's Point Road was impassable for most of its three mile length from Tuesday night to Wednesday morning. Highway 707 from Jensen Beach to Stuart was closed off for a day west of Rio.

If the waves of Betsy had undercut Indian River Drive to the point of collapse, we would have had a town completely cut off from the outside.

It is a big if, but the possibility exists. One road is not enough to take care of the town of Jensen Beach and Rio.

Savanna Road is the answer. It would be west of the Florida East coast railroad tracks. It would be on high ground. It would offer an outlet to Stuart and to U.S. 1 not affected by the river.

The county commission has an opportunity to do a great service to the people of this area by making Savanna Road one of its primary road projects in the coming year.

We urge the completion of the road, already started, with rights-of-way given free by property owners, in the near future.

WST And You

We are certainly proud of the excellent job of information handling during Hurricane Betsy. But it would be amiss not to salute the management personnel of the hurricane by W.S.T.U. - W.M.C.F.-FM in Stuart.

The regular service, twenty-four hours a day during the hot-right part of the storm, kept the people informed, making it possible to be prepared for the storm, road conditions, and civil defense information.

Bill Britton, general manager, and his staff of hard working radiomen and women deserve every praise.

We, too, do the many who reported trees and wires down, traffic problems and public service information to the station, which gave freely to be sure all the people were informed at all times.

When we have the team, we can be sure our county is in safe hands during a hurricane or other natural disaster. Our team came through. We salute them with a "Well done".

Martin County Was Prepared

As he leaned back in his chair, the white hair slightly tossled, John Law looked tired. As the head of Florida Power and Light Company in Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River Counties, Law had been working day and night to keep electrical service on, trees off the power lines and hot wires off the streets of his district during Hurricane Betsy. Everyone at FPL had completed the job.

He penciled a note on a piece of paper and looked up. "This county was prepared this time," he said. "All the trees that gave us so much trouble last year are gone, and the people had cleared out branches and trees during the past year that might have given us more trouble.

"Our only bad one was the Jensen Beach service, out for five hours. But no one called until two hours after it went out, at 6 a.m. We got to it and had the line repaired in three hours;;; he added.

FPL crews hop skotched the county keeping lines repaired and power on in an effort that won praise from throughout the area.

Al Keaton stirred a cup of coffee at Broward Drug, looking tired. "We had the team set up, and they did their job," he said. "We know now what preparedness means." Keaton heads Martin County Civil Defense. He had his disaster crews ready and working in each phase of the storm. All had done just what needed to be done.

Fred Bell, county engineer. "The damage was slight," he said. "The only place we hurt was in recreation damage to the beaches and causeways." Bell's crews had saved the Indian River Causeway with sandbags and dump trucks filled with dirt when it almost washed out by windblown waves of Betsy. They were ready, and worked hard.

Red Cross shelters were ready throughout the county. They took care of many refugees from high winds and rising tide. The volunteers deserve a pat on the back for a fine job.

Hurricane Betsy hit Martin County with high winds. Last year the storm would have done extensive damage. This year we were ready.

We'll Swim The Deepest Ocean

A boy was talking to a girl on the telephone. "Darling," he said. "I would swim the deepest ocean to be at your side. I would climb the highest mountain for a touch of your hand. I would slay a dozen dragons just for you if you would give me one word of encouragement."

"That is sweet," said the girl. "Are you coming over to the house this afternoon?"

"Ah, no," said the boy. "You see, it's drizzling outside."

Whatever happened to the old post office saying that "neither rain or snow, sleet or dark of night, will keep the postman from his rounds...", or something like that.

Main service all over the southern part of Florida was cancelled during the storm "Betsy". Even in the fringe area of Martin County, the mail service was cancelled.

Florida is famous for the barefoot mailman, who walked the beaches to get the mail through in fair wind or foul.

Back in the days of James A. Farley, postmaster general during the Roosevelt administration, if a postman could not make his appointed rounds they found someone to do it. The Post Office Department employees are now organized into one of the most effective unions in the country. The pride of the department is no longer there, and America has lost one more great institution.

Postmen walked. Now they ride. The postman was one of the favorite good-will ambassadors of all towns. Now the illusion of gladness slips one step further into the decay, making possible another chapter in the decline and fall of the great American dream.

Editorials Make People Think

It is not easy to understand how free Americans can sharply criticize editorial comment (or free speech in print) in newspapers, but it is done regularly and often with heated feelings, steaming enthusiasm and exploding tempers.

These extreme reactions are not really necessary, points out the National Newspaper Public Information Committee, since the major reason for editorial comment is merely to make readers think and act as reasonably as human nature will allow.

Editorials, columnists' comments, local signed columns, editorial cartoons and letters to the editor are all designed to provide "thinking material" for readers, both adult and student. Use of newspapers in classrooms is growing fast, NPIC stated, and one of the most challenging parts of any newspaper is the editorial comment which encourages students to study, evaluate and challenge the thinking of experts on varied matters. Teachers, too, benefit.

Editorial opinion in newspapers also gives "personality" to these publications, since readers become identified with their favorite columnists or take favorable or opposite side with the opinions and views expressed by their daily and weekly newspapers.

The value of editorial or personal opinion in newspapers is to encourage logical and sound thinking as the basis for reasonable and considered action, or reaction, to the views in a newspaper.

In a democracy, NPIC states, the public is endowed with free speech and free assembly. A free press guarantees that varied views and opinions on important local, state, national and international issues will be provided for readers.

Only a well-informed, thinking public can do what is needed to preserve a free society and freedom for the individual, especially when issues and controversies are put up to a vote of the people.

Editorials and personal comment in newspapers provide a broad platform on which all readers can stand and take part by reading and either agreeing or disagreeing, calmly and thoughtfully, with a newspaper's views. Most newspapers provide both the opportunity for challenging thought about key issues of the day and the chance for readers to "talk back" to the newspaper and to other readers by printing letters or seeking comments on a specific topic or issue.

This is truly "democracy in action."

This is also wise newspaper leadership for community and citizen good.

This is why editorials and other opinion-stating views are in newspapers to stimulate reader thinking and action.

Society And The Criminal

Young thugs and teenage criminals may be pressing their luck by increasing their violent escapades while blaming society for their faults.

It appears that the public is beginning to gag on the steady sociological diet of excusing the conduct of teenage hoodlums because "society failed them." Resort communities racked by senseless riots and citizens who cannot venture from their homes without being assaulted and beaten are getting fed up with pampered and insolent youth gangs.

Some courts in the troubled areas are taking a more realistic approach in handling those involved in these outbreaks. New laws providing stiffer penalties are being enacted in a few places. We can only hope that authorities everywhere will follow this trend. Certainly, the mere desire of young miscreants to have a "blast" or to "get off steam" is no excuse to ravage a community and to maim and terrorize its residents.

That holiday riots and similar antics by carousing youths have evoked widespread concern is not surprising. It is surprising, however, that strong public reaction did not come sooner. For several years, the increasing volume of criminal acts by young people spurred on by the lenient treatment rendered has presented a clear basis for a reading of what we are now witnessing. For instance, from 1950 through 1964, the percentage of young age-group arrests for homicide, forcible rape, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, larceny, and auto theft more than doubled the population increase percentage of the same group. Arrests of persons under 18 for simple assault rose 79 percent, drunkenness and related violations 29 percent, disorderly conduct 18 percent, and concealed weapons 17 percent during the same 5 years. In the light of this shameful picture, we cannot say that we were not forewarned.

The immediate objective, of course, is to put a stop to these rumbles and mass vandalism. Meanwhile, the question puzzling most people is what caused the principles and morals of some of the youth to degenerate to near animal level. Recognizing the problem comes much easier than its solution. However, of all the factors involved, I am convinced one of the most damaging is the false teaching which tends to blame society for all the frustrations, woes, and inconveniences, real or imaginary, visited upon our young people. Teenagers, and many parents, have been subjected to a foolhardy theory which condones rebellious conduct against authority, law and order, or any regulatory measures which restrict their whims, wishes, desires, and activities. This astonishing belief has spread into the schoolroom, the living room, the courtroom, and now into the streets of our nation in the form of wild, drunken brawls.

No doubt, society has failed our youth, but not in the way many seem to think. Rather, the dereliction has been in the failure to teach them the meaning of discipline, restraint, self-respect, and respect for law and order and the rights of others. Consequently, the lesson now is both painful and costly.

SIGNS OF FALL: One sign of fall is children going back to school. Other signs remind motorists that there are near a school. "Watch for the children and obey the signs," urges Carol Lane, women's travel director of Shell Oil Company, who devotes much of her work to traffic safety. "Help make the season safe for children."

LIVE.....and love it by DICK CAMPBELL

Alaskan Chuck Steaks, 69¢ A Pound

Unfolding the newspaper, I opened it to a grocery advertisement. I folded the paper over so that the name was hidden and asked Sam Rhodes what he thought of the prices. He looked it over and said, "Not bad."

The newspaper was the Ketchikan, Alaska, Daily News.

When Sam saw that, he said, "I thought all prices up there were supposed to be so high."

Many people live under the assumption that Alaska is still the frozen north, the "icebox" of Seward's purchase from Russia. I told Sam that Alaska was a lot like Florida, and he scoffed.

"Look at the temperatures," I said, off the top of my head, hoping that they compared with ours. We searched out the weather and found that temperatures in August were 83 degrees in Fairbanks (about 1,000 miles north of Ketchikan), and 79 in Anchorage.

As for prices in Ketchikan markets, chuck steaks were 69 cents a pound, rib steaks 99 cents a pound, coffee 85 cents a pound and cucumbers two for 19 cents. Seedless grapes were 29 cents a pound and short ribs were 49 a pound.

Six twelve ounce bottles of soda pop were 69 cents, and you could get 10 packages of jello for 98 cents.

In other parts of the newspaper, the "frozen north" was to hear the "new Christy Minstrels" at the Ketchikan high school gym, and first run movies were showing at the two theatres in the town of less than 10,000. Local television programs are on closed circuit tv, or are picked up from a broadcast station in Prince Rupert, B.C.

Ketchikan is celebrating its 65th year of incorporation, and is one of the most active and promotional towns in the 49th State.

Every year the Ketchikan Salmon Derby draws fishing fans to fish for the fighting king salmon. The town's Chamber of Commerce promotes just everything, from tourism to industry. The first pulp mill in the state was established there, and the Metlakatla Indian tribe has a reservation just outside the town on an island.

Ketchikan prides itself on new business districts, and homes built on the side of a mountain. Its little league is great, and Ketchikan boasts that the weather is so good they sometimes don't get their first snow until past Christmas.

The only bad thing about the town is that it rains there for days on end, and there are very few days of sunshine. The summers are beautiful in the island community, and a trip to Black Sand Beach is worth a trip to the Northlagd for its beauty.

Everyone someday should make a trip there by car, driving up the Hart Highway from Seattle, through British Columbia, to Prince Rupert, B.C. There is a new overseas highway, a ferry line, that takes the car to Ketchikan. You drive off the boat, enjoy as much time as you wish in the town, then get back on for a trip to other Southeast Alaska towns, like Wrangel, a small fishing port, Petersburg, a little white town that looks like a picture postcard from Norway, Juneau, the capital city, Skagway, first Russian capital of Alaska, Haines, where Chilkat Indian dancers welcome the driver to the access road to the north, and Skagway, the gold-rush town, where the people welcome tourists with a gay-nineties show in a clapboard boom town.

All the way up there, where a haircut cost $5, and a steak cost $50 in the gold rush days, you can now get chuck steak for 69 cents a pound.

Sizzler Contest Fizzled, Money Given To Charity

A check for $175.00 was written this week and handed to an unnamed local charity by James A. Garvey, Executive Vice President of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County, as Garvey announced the end of the Sizzler Contest being conducted by the Association.

"The Sizzler was a fizzler", said Garvey. The public tried to guess when the temperature would reach 96 degrees on the new time and temperature clock at First Federal. The contest was opened in July, and through the hottest months of the year, Martin County's highest temperature was 94 degrees.

"We are giving a check for $175.00, the total prize money in the contest, to a local charity." In this way, all Martin County will benefit, Garvey said.

Sweetheart Nominee

Miss Donna McConnell, a visitor in Jensen Beach for the past three summers, is a nominee for Sweetheart of the Key Club of Miami Shrine's Senior High School.

Donna is a charter member of the Archer Club which is the sister club of the Key Club. She is a member of the National Spanish Honor Society, has served on the student government for the past eight years and on the Jordan Marsh Teen Advisory Board for four years. She attended the Stuart Methodist Church while she and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David McConnell, Sr., visited Mrs. McConnell's sister, Mrs. Eva Caulder of Crossroads Cottage Colony in Jensen Beach.

Conner Praises Fishing Guide

Cabinet member Doyle Conner has contacted Al Palmer, president of the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce, thanking him for a member of the Jensen Beach Fishing Guides, congratulating him on the contest, and asserting him that they are prominently displayed in Conner's offices in Tallahassee. Palmer sent several copies of the booklets to cabinet officers in Tallahassee.

The value of Martin Memorial Hospital, (new and original buildings), plus air-conditioning plant, is set at approximately $1,850,000. Inventory of equipment at Martin Memorial Hospital is assessed at $343,000,00.

Fla. Real Estate Values Jump

The continuing demand for Florida real estate has resulted in a 208 per cent increase in the average per acre value of farmlands during the past ten years, the Florida State Chamber of Commerce pointed out in its Weekly Business Review released yesterday.

"This long-term gain was the largest in the nation and compares with a 72 per cent national average increase. The Florida increase over 1954 was 9 per cent and the nation's gain was 6 per cent.

"Based on actual sales, Florida farm lands, including buildings and improvements, had an average per acre value of $333 as of March this year. Five years ago sales showed a market value of $217 and ten years ago, $108.

"Florida's population growth also needed room for the state's expanding manufacturing economy affect agricultural land prices directly although it is only 4.6 per cent of the total. All types of land are included, from bearing citrus groves and forested lands to raw acreage."

Sales Tax Collections Up

Sales tax collections in Martin County have increased by 2.32 percent during the month of August as compared with the same month last year. In August of 1964 sales totaled $40,548.84 while in 1965 they totaled $41,406.91. July's sales were $44,276.94.

School Lights Get Short As Fire Is Called

A short in the ceiling light of the first grade room at Jensen Beach Elementary School brought a fire call and quick action on the part of local firemen, teachers and school children.

Fire chief Randolph Sikes says he appreciated the teachers and school children who responded quickly to the alarm and offered full cooperation to local firemen, who arrived on the scene following the electrical short to check for possible short circuit. It may have gone into the attic of the school.

Changes Postponed

The board of public instruction postponed the adoption of a series of official policies after a lengthy discussion at the regular board meeting Monday.

Board members felt they would need more time and legal aid in adopting the change necessary to conform to the U. S. Supreme Court ruling that daily reading of the Bible was unconstitutional.

The group also sought more information on a change dictated by the State Dept. of Education on credits earned toward graduation in both junior and senior high schools.

Methodist Men Meet Thursday

The Methodist Men's Club of Trinity Methodist Church will have its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, September 16 at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McGinness on Indian River Drive. It will be a dinner meeting with the wives of the members invited.

A business meeting will follow the dinner under the leadership of Lloyd Chase, president of the Methodist Men's Club.

The Naomi Circle of the Trinity Methodist W.S.C.S. will meet on September 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Roland York, 209 Sunview Road, Jensen Beach.

A NEW ADDITION--to the Outrigger Restaurant will be the cocktail lounge which is now under construction at the Polynesian restaurant owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evinrude.

APPROACHING THE FINISH--The new approach to the new Frank A. Wacha Bridge is just about ready to be finished as these heavy machines ready the earth and rock base for the topping. The Bridge is set for opening in the middle or end of October. The date will be set soon.

The September meeting of the Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen's Auxiliary has been cancelled.

The next meeting will be held October 4th.

Techniques Are Demonstrated

The latest techniques to help rehabilitate the stroke patient were demonstrated to about 50 nurses at Martin Memorial Hospital in two sessions.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Janet Lavery, R.N., director of nursing at the hospital and Miss Virginia McVey, executive director of the Heart Association of Palm Beach and Martin Counties.

Mrs. Grace N. Lanning, R.N. of the Florida Heart Association presented the program.

According to the Heart Association, an estimated two million Americans now living have survived a stroke. Prompt medical treatment including attention to rehabilitation can lessen the amount of damage caused by the stroke.

"Through the use of simple techniques properly applied, and equipment available in every home and hospital, many stroke patients are able to lead useful and productive lives," Mrs. Lanning said.

Most strokes are caused by blood clots that interfere with the flow of blood to vital brain areas. Obstructions may be caused by blood clots, narrowing of the brain arteries, pressure on an artery or bursting of arteries, resulting in hemorrhage.

Liquor License Renewed

Dr. and Mrs. Russell Wright of Detroit will built a $12,000 CBS liquor store as a result of his former liquor license being renewed by the city commission. The Wrights had to abandon their place of business to permit US 1 to be four-laned north of Roosevelt bridge.

Jerry Smith, owner of two of the city's six licenses, objected to the renewal. City attorney T. T. Oughterson said the reason the State Liquor Commission had been lenient in the renewal of the old Lighthouse license, was because its liquor business was erased by removal of the building to permit construction of the four-laned US 1.

Dr. Wright's license was the only one which had not been renewed at a previous meeting.

Fishing Is Back To Normal

Surf fishing, which had been off for a week, was back in order again, although the water was sandy.

At Peet's Lake, Spanish mackerel, blues and kings, at long-cast range, maybe closer this week. Blues are quite plentiful right up the coast from there.

Snook are plentiful in the St. Lucie River, both North and South Forks, elusive to be sure, but many anglers with their limit of four in early morning fishing, some in late afternoon. Few lunkers, but many in the eight to 18 pound class.

Indian River grassy areas loaded with good-sized spotted sea trout or spotted weakfish, your choice of name. Area came through hurricane in good condition and fish stayed put, in spite of rough waters.

Bottom fishermen in the St. Lucie area doing well, although there haven't been many of them due to so many boat-faultgs for Betsy. Also, many of the anglers who would fish outside have been doing some inside work on the Intracoastal Waterway from the Crossroads south to Peet's Lake, with luck.

Next the agenda will be the Ligat Tackle Sailfish Tournament of the Stuart Sailfish Club set for December 10, 11, 12 and 13. More on that later.

Palm City Power Fail

Palm City was without electrical power for two five-hour periods over the weekend as waterborne traffic on the Okeechobee Waterway tore down two sets of high-line 13,000 volt lines in a 24-hour period.

A tug and tow combination struck the high lines which cross the South Fork of the St. Lucie River north of the Palm City bridge at 5 p.m. Saturday.

A Jacksonville tug called the "Hellance" was involved in the first break Saturday when two of the high lines were struck by an antenna at the tip of the A-frame on the dredge.

A spokesman at St. Lucie Locks said the tow was so large it took seven lockings to get the entire outfit through the installation.

The Palm City bridge was in open position for five hours after the Saturday break.

The Dixie Girl, a two masted schooner owned by Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Conrad, Stuart, struck the wires with a 52 foot mast on Sunday.

Florida Power and Light Co. personnel had to be brought in from Fort Pierce as well as Stuart, Sunday when about 10 men did the job using boats as well as trucks.

A dozen men worked on the job Saturday night.

Palm City residents, annoyed with the situation, pointed out the need of a new bridge.

City To Protest New WU Hours

The city commission will seek the aid of Rep. Paul G. Rogers in protesting the reduction of hours of the local Western Union office, it was decided Tuesday.

The commission directed City Manager Joe N. Crowder to enlist the aid of Jupiter Island Town Manager Richard Tuggle.

The Federal Communications Commission had already told Western Union it could reduce the hours at the office before the utility firm posted notice that it wanted the change and had applied for FCC permission.

The notice was posted at the local office on August 25. According to the West Palm Beach office, complaints were to be filed with the FCC on or before September 8.

Complainants, including the city commission, received responses to their complaints from secretary of the FCC at Washington dated September 16. The new hours were posted September 18.

The letters, signed by Ben F. Waple said Western Union filed an informal application on August 2, seeking authority to reduce the hours at the office.

He also said that the FCC had granted the new hours on August 18, if FCC will hold authority for six months in which it could restore previously held services here if the new substitute service at a US 1 service station does not prove satisfactory.

Again. Again.

Social Security: Increase In Monthly Benefits

This is the 2nd of a series of articles by R. C. Pearse, Jr., social security district manager in West Palm Beach, telling what the social security amendments of 1965 mean to you and your family.

In my first column on the many changes made in the social security law, I told you about them in a general way. In this and later columns I will discuss each of the changes in more detail.

Today, I will tell about the increase in the benefit rate and how it will affect people who get monthly benefits.

First, the monthly rate was increased 7 percent for most people effective January 1965. This means that starting with checks due in October, local residents will get more money each month. In September, people will get an extra check. This check will be for the difference between the new and old benefit rates from January through August.

There is no need for anyone to come into the district office in order to get his benefits increased. This will be done automatically.

The minimum rate for workers who start getting benefits when they are 65 or older was increased from $40 to $44 a month. The maximum monthly payment for those now getting benefits was increased from $127 to $135.90.

Since the minimum increase was $4 a month, those people whose benefit was between $40 and $56 a month actually are getting more than a 7 percent increase. Those now getting benefits of $57 or more a month will receive a 7 percent increase.

A worker who now gets $60 a month will get $64.20; one who now receives $76 will get $80.30; a person receiving $100 will have a new rate of $107; and a person now getting $120 will get $128.40 each month.

Family groups now get maximum benefits between $60 and $254 a month depending on the worker's rate. Under the new law, families will receive maximum benefits between $66 and $309.20.

The wage base on which social security taxes are paid and on which benefits are figured will increase to $6,600 in 1966.

The changes made in the law will permit workers who retire in the future with average earnings of $550 a month (equivalent to $6,600 a year) to get $168 a month, but this amount will not be payable for some years.

As the worker's rate increases because of the new $6,600 wage base, so the maximum amount payable to a family will increase to as much as $368 a month.

Another change made provides for the automatic refiguring of a worker's benefit if he works after he has become eligible for benefits and has additional covered earnings which may increase his benefit. It will no longer be necessary for a worker to file an application to have his benefit refigured. Each year, after earnings are posted to a person's record, it will be checked. If, with the additional earnings, the benefit can be increased, this will be done automatically, effective with January of the year after the amounts were earned. However, because of the necessary time lag in posting items to a person's earnings record, the actual refiguring of the benefit will not take place until several months after the end of the year; any increased benefit amount, though, will be payable retroactively to January.

Another feature of the 1965 amendments to the social security law will be discussed in my next column.

Safe Boating Is More Fun!

Outboard Cruising

Outboard cruising is a great sport for the entire family. It gives Mom and Dad, and the children too, a luxurious feeling at costs the average family can afford. And its fun whether the boat is idling or in a group of two or twenty.

Cruising isn't confined to the larger boats -- even open runabouts can take part by carefully planning short trips. And outboards can explore little creeks, lakes and coves where larger craft could never go.

The secret is planning. Don't attempt cruising beyond the shallow physical capacity of your craft, and do not go into dangerous or extremely shallow waters. Boat handling and safe cruising techniques are taught in free piloting classes by the United States Power Squadrons a national educational yachting organization interested in safety and pleasure with small boats.

The fun of cruising is in the going, not in getting to as many places as possible. So lay out a leisurely trip, with plenty of "lazy" time and long meal times. If you're going through lock canals, figure half an hour lost time at each lock. In good weather 60 miles is an average daily trip barring locks, speed limit areas, and bad weather.

Examine charts to determine supply ports and piers or anchorages. Overnight camping can be fun, but some prefer the comfort of motels near yacht clubs or small communities along the way. Boating people are friendly people, and local people always are willing to help you find a place to sleep. Most cruisers, and some runabouts can be set up for comfortable sleeping, however, so, this may not be a problem.

The basic piloting instruments are a reliable non-metal compass, local charts, a pair of dividers, and a protractor. Its easier, more fun and safer to plot a course from point to point than it is to judge your travels by eye when cruising in strange waters. Don't forget boat cleaning equipment, a horn, paddle, and a lock and chain for the motor. In addition, you'll probably need extra gas cans -- make sure they're the safety type.

For the kids, bring along beach balls and sand buckets and if it is a long trip figure on several stops a day where they can use those tranquilizers. While under way, children are useful in performing certain simple tasks such as getting away equipment and coiling lines, which are games to them.

Never throw garbage, empty cans or other refuse overboard in harbors, or in lakes used for drinking water. Wait until you get ashore. Then depending on facilities, place it in steel refuse containers or burn it.

Cruising can be fun if you know how. For information about piloting classes in this area, write, United States Power Squadrons, P. O. Box 510, Englewood, N.J.

Damage By Betsy Estimated At $30,000

Martin County upped its estimate of damages to county owned works last week to $30,000.

County Engineer Fred L. Bell said the increase for the most part was due to damages to the Mosquito Control District ditches on Hutchinson Island and to some extent on Northern Jupiter Island, where drifting sands filled the ditches and tree limbs and other debris added to damages.

Beach and dune erosion on Hutchinson Island was tremendous, according to Roland G. Lueder, local appraiser and realtor.

Lueder said beachfront on the Island has sold for from $150 to $225 per front foot on narrow stretches of the Island, and from $600 to $600 a front foot in wider sections from ocean to river.

Lowlands along the South Fork of the St. Lucie River were flooded by high waters caused by Betsy's northeast blow. Leighton Park at the west end of Palm City bridge was underwater at all high tides for two days, and waterfront property along the entire shore line suffered flooding of from three to four feet.

On the North Fork, Lighthouse Point suffered from high water but damages were not extensive, authorities said.

County recreation facilities were hardest hit of all installations, D. Jensen Beach, formerly damaged by erosion was the north side of the Jensen Beach causeway, and the sidewall area of the westernmost bridge in the causeway series.

The toilet facilities and pavilion on the causeway and the concrete floor under them were lost to the storm, according to County Engineer Fred L. Bell.

At the beach front, the pavilion was ready to fall into the surf and erosion had cleaned away some of the sand behind the seawall built about a year ago.

Limb damage was high throughout the area, and tree losses along the Causeway on both sides, was high.

At Destinde Tom's at Jensen Beach, eroding beach took a walkway with it and contributed to the loss of a refreshment stand.

A boat, owned by the county through Civil Defense and assigned to the Town of Ocean Breeze Park was lost through sinking at the Ocean Breeze Park marina on the Indian River. CD Director Al Keaton said when the boat was turned over to the town CD leader, Richard Hinks, it was in poor condition.

"Hinks must have put $50,000 into reconditioning it," said Keaton.

Flower and cliffe ar... ers said damage was negligible.

Florida Power and Light Com said salt was shorting out facilities in some areas, which broke her moorings.

A small boat owned by J. H. Thomason drifted away when a small dock in the St. Lucie River collapsed and it was smashed on rocks.

A small row boat owned by L. W. Hawkes was smashed in a similar incident.

The pier at Hildebrad Park toppled, unable to withstand the northeast gales.

A small cruiser sank south of Evans Crary Bridge over the St. Lucie, but its owner was not identified.

Hospital Will Sponsor Blood Drive September 28

Martin Memorial Hospital has received approval of its application for institutional membership in the American Association of Blood Banks, according to Guy S. Crosswell, administrator of the hospital.

Approval followed an inspection by a representative of the association and means that the hospital is deemed to maintain a blood bank to the highest established techniques of blood bank performance and that the policies and practices are exercised with medical direction in accordance with accepted ethics and standards of the medical profession.

The hospital, in conjunction with the Palm Beach Blood Bank, is sponsoring a blood drive Sept. 28th from 1:2 noon to 6 p.m., according to Crosswell. This drive is being held to help replace blood given to indigent patients who cannot pay for nor replace blood given them.

In most blood drives held here, donors have a choice of accounts to which the blood credit may be deposited.

"Blood is given when needed and is always immediately available. However, the hospital must pay for it whether we receive money for it or not," said Crosswell.

The expense for blood given indigent patients was anticipated in the new year's budget at $3,000 or 42.5 per cent of the total expected to be used.

Donors must be at least 21 and under 65 years of age. Persons with a medical history of hepatitis, malaria, diabetes, anemia and heart disease along with other disabilities are not eligible to donate blood.

Blood groups as typed in the United States and the number of persons who have each are as follows:

O (Rh positive) one in three; O (Rh negative) one in 15; A (Rh positive) one in three; A (Rh negative) one in 16; B (Rh positive) one in 12; B (Rh negative) one in 67; AB (Rh positive) one in 29 and AB (Rh negative) one in 167.

Rogers Will Speak At Bridge Dedication

Congressman Paul Rogers will be the principal speaker at the dedication of the new Frank A. Wacha Bridge, planned for October 23, according to Al Palmer, president of the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce. Palmer said the only "hitch" in Rogers' acceptance, received by letter, was that he might not be able to speak if the Congress is still in session.

Palmer made his report at the Monday night meeting of committee heads for the celebration. Present at the meeting were Phillip M. Baker and Mrs. Ruth Bowman, co-chairmen of the event, Palmer, Gene Grimm, Willis Bowman, Ernest Stanfield, Al Walker, Jack Lucas and Dick Campbell.

The return of local boating enthusiasts was assured when Standfish reported that he and Herman Reitz, owner of Stuart Tackle and Bottle, would be co-chairmen of the boat race. Standfish said that the races would be a "two feet" of boats, without too much emphasis on professional racing. A 30 and one-half hour marathon race will be held about five in the afternoon of the celebration.

The big day will begin with the Jensen Mirror's Kid's Fishing Tournament, to begin at 10:30 a.m. at the new fishing walks alongside the bridge. The awarding of prizes will be held at the end of the tournament, just after noon.

The dedication ceremony is set for 1:30 p.m., and the Martin County High School Band will be one of the featured portions of the show. State Representative William Owens is slated to be master of ceremonies, to be introduced by Chamber President Al Palmer, who will welcome the people to Jensen Beach. Other dedication ceremonies will follow, with the program completed by 2:30 p.m., when a fashion show is slated.

Following the fashion show will be boat races. Then the Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen will serve chicken dinners, until the fireworks program at 7 p.m. The fireworks, designed by Bill "Boom-Boom" Yurtille, will feature a bridge with a drawspan that will open, all in fireworks. The bridge is being built locally, as are all the exhibits in the show, which is expected to cost about $1,000.

Many local civic groups are expected to take part in the day-long event. It is not yet known if any state officials, such as the governor, or chairman of the road board, will be able to attend the event. Word on invitation acceptance is expected in the next week, Baker said.

PTA PROGRAM—John Teeter, Martin County band teacher, spoke on music in the public schools as a program for Jensen Beach Elementary School P.T.A.'s first meeting of the year. The program also recognized all teachers. Left to right, Mrs. Jackie Hall, President, and Mrs. JoAnne Martz, Vice President and membership chairman, Teeter, and Principal Ernest Varvil.

Kids Day Saturday

The Kiwanis Club of Stuart will hold its annual Kids' Day Saturday, September 25 at 9 a.m.

At 10:45 a.m. 100 helium filled, personally identified balloons will be sent skyward. According to Stu Lund, chairman, the first 100 kids to register at his store at 223 East Ocean Blvd. or all kids up to that number who register prior to the evening of Sept. 24 would have their names and addresses in a balloon, which will be released for hopefor future pick up and mailing back to the club secretary, William A. Oughterson. Both kids with names in the balloons and those who take the time to pick them up and mail them back, will stand to win prizes, based on distance the balloons go from Stuart.

Members of the Order of the Arrow will perform Indian Dances at 9 a.m.

Other features will be refreshments and a free movie at 11 a.m.

Kiwanians finance the day by selling peanuts the day before the annual affair. This year, on Sept. 24, Kiwanians will be selling them at City Hall, the Stuart Post Office, at all the banks and all the supermarkets in town.

Mr. and Mrs. George McComb of Lilida and Flora Drives, Jensen Beach, have returned from a vacation in the north visiting their two daughters.

While making the trip, Mr. McComb became ill and was hospitalized. He is happy to report he is now feeling very well.

First Mortgage Closes

3 Offices; Suit Is Filed

A half-million dollars may be lost to savings account holders in Stuart alone, and the loss to depositors and some classes of stockholders may total as much as $1.5 million in the Martin-St. Lucie-Indian River County area, through the closing of the First Mortgage Corp. of Stuart.

These estimates were made by Elton Schwarz, attorney for A. O. Hunsinger, Detroit in a suit which seeks an accounting of the financial affairs of principals in the organization.

Schwarz, who also is representing William J. Lininger, who was named receiver of the mortgage firm by Circuit Court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge late Monday, said flatly he didn't know where it would all end, in an interview given Tuesday morning.

At that time he was attempting to get a $250,000 bond for Lininger approved at the home office in Atlanta of one of the largest bonding companies in the country.

Lininger, of 805 Riverside Drive, Stuart, was manager of the mortgage firm which had 700 depositors with from $1 to $75,000 in the firm when it closed its doors.

He estimated the losses to local people at the half-million mark and said "half a million would be the holdings of the small depositors, 600 of them, the $1 million by large depositors of stockholders.

Two of the directors of the firm were Attorney Harry Donley, a local lawyer, who has been on the board since the firm started in 1958, and Lininger, who came here as the office manager when that time and was made a director.

Lininger said that he, nor Donley, had reason to believe the President, R. C. Fernon, was not investing the money of the firm in the best interests of the company until Fernon failed to produce the collateral requested by the Florida Securities Commission last week.

Fernon was a principal stockholder in the corporation, and Fred Koep, of Tampa, and Mrs. Fernon were both officers in the corporation and heavy stockholders.

According to Schwarz, firms in which the three had majority interests, which may become involved in the proceedings here, included Consumer Credit Corp., Financial Corporation of Florida, Tower Realty Building Corp., Tower Realty of Florida Corp., Central Factors, Inc., and Tower Credit Corp., most of them with offices in Tampa.

Fernon was president of most of them, and Koep was vice-president.

At least one of them, Consumer Credit Corp., ran small loan offices in Tampa, Clearwater, Vero Beach, Jupiter, Palm Beach Gardens, Pinellas Park and New Port Richey.

According to Schwarz, apparent assets of the corporation amounted to $135,000 in collectible but unpaid balances due on real estate mortgages, plus about $5,000 in cash.

Outstanding are investment certificates held by creditors totaling about $1.5 million. There is an unknown amount of paper owed the company including notes for cash not on hand.

According to Schwarz, a complete audit by competent certified public accountants will be made at once under the supervision of the S.E.C.

The suit which initiated action was filed in the name of A. O. Hunsinger against the First Mortgage Corp. of Stuart, but Lininger said that the only reason it was filed that way was because Hunsinger, a local electrician, held a substantial number of shares of stock, both class A & B, as well as a substantial amount of investment certificates.

"It was felt that his position was representative of all other parties concerned," said Lininger.

Lininger said, in a prepared statement, that he did not anticipate liquidation of the company would be necessary or advisable.

At that time, he was awaiting an answer on an application for the $250,000 receiver's bond ordered by Judge Trowbridge.

Schwarz said he had been able to contact Koep at Tampa late Monday, but attempts to reach Fernon had failed for a week.

The suit was filed after depositors were turned away last Friday, but the situation was not brought to light until Monday. At that time the three offices of the mortgage firm, Stuart, Fort Pierce and Vero Beach, failed to open and telephone calls revealed only that the offices were closed.

Officials Join Protest

When filed, the suit charged violation of financial obligations to the company on the part of Fernon.

Robert J. Randolph, attorney with an office in the same building, who has represented the mortgage firm and also Fernon, said Tuesday he had no idea where Fernon was.

Assets of the whole corporate structure appeared to be $8,246,532 as of early in September, as indicated by statements filed with the Hunsinger suit, but the situation on liabilities was not as apparent.

Mayor William P. Todt and regional supervisor for Western Union Telegraph Co., Donald W. Wyllie met Monday at city hall to discuss the closing of the local telegraph office.

At that time, Wyllie admitted that the company netted $3,700 in spite of the claims made that it lost money.

The mayor and city commission joined the county commission, flower growers and other businessmen in protesting a change in hours at the office.

NEA Representatives Study Martin County Education

Two representatives of the National Education Ass'n. visited Martin County Monday to talk to teachers, educators and Rep. William E. Owens, a two-term member of the Legislature's committee on education. The men came at the request of the Florida Education Ass'n.

They were Dr. John Miller, superintendent of schools in Great Neck, Long Island, New York and Ernest F. Anderson, a research assistant for the board of educational research, Univ. of Illinois at Champagne, Ill.

The representatives were sent to "look at public education and the political climate in connection with it," in four counties, including Martin, Highlands, Putnam and Madison.

Both of the men talked to Mrs. Roger Chaney, vice-president of the Martin County Classroom Teachers Ass'n. and to Eli Howell, president of the county branch of the Florida State Teacher's Ass'n.

Rep. Owens reported that at a private meeting, the men were told that until the counties decided to raise assessment levels and taxes and pay their share of the costs of education, there was little hope that pressures by FEA or NEA would produce a better budget on the state level for education.

He also told them that there were only six counties in the state paying more than half the educational costs in the counties, and that Martin County was one of them.

Rep. Owens told the men he resented the request and threat by FEA and that no effort was made to "improve" education until the $50 million pay bill was turned down.

"Then FEA asked for NEW assistance, but only then," said Rep. Owens.

"Some counties pay as little as 12 per cent of school costs, and until they equalize with counties like mine, I'm opposed to passing out more money at Tallahassee," said the representative.

When questioned at length on their statement that they were exploring the political climate in regards to education, the two visitors backed off and took another course.

The men stated that educational questions such as pupil personnel supervision, guidance services, instructional practices, instructional equipment and available facilities were asked.

Girl Scout leaders in Martin County will meet Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Stuart Youth Center to acquaint parents with scouting and to register Brownie, Junior and Cadette Scouts for the year.

Mrs. Lola Pflueger celebrated her 84th birthday Tuesday at the Spring Lake Rest Manor.

Guest included Mrs. Willard Fredrickson, Susie Hershberger, Mike Hines, and Gladys Dickensheet.

EDITORIAL

YankNEA Go Home

While we would never pretend to be insulting to any visitor to our state, we feel somewhat irked by the present investigation of the "political and educational climate" of the state by the National Education Association.

This investigation was originally instituted as a blackjack to be used against the 1965 Florida Legislature by the executive committee of the Florida Education Association and the Florida Teachers Association. The FTA-FEA wanted a raise, and if they didn't get it they would run to "uncle" and have the bad-old-state legislature investigated.

The appearance of the investigating team in Florida is a slap in the face of a fine group of dedicated men, our state representatives, who pledged themselves to hold the line on taxation.

We do not believe that this investigation is the result of a desire of Florida teachers for vengeance. After all, the executive board of the FEA had to come around to explain what they had done after they had done it.

We do believe that Florida teachers should go back to being educators, control their state officers, and leave politicking to the professionals.

There is more in the budget of the State of Florida than schools appropriations. Our state legislature is quite capable of discovering where the need is the greatest.

Again we say, not to insult our visitors from the North, but to let them know how we feel, "YankNEA, Go Home".

Local Woman Charged With Manslaughter

Mrs. Edith I. Segerstrom of Jensen Beach will be charged with manslaughter in connection with the highway death of Norton Baron, 16, ElPortel, Miami, who died in a wrong-way driving wreck on US 1 Sunday at 6:03 A.M.

According to Assistant State Attorney Spencer Gilbert, culpable negligence was involved.

A preliminary hearing will be held but so far a date has not been set. The warrant was obtained from County Judge Mallory L. Johnson.

Garvey Is J.B. Lanes Receiver

Jensen Beach Lanes, Inc., is sole defendant in a foreclosure suit instituted by First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County, holder of the first mortgage, according to information received from the circuit court today.

The first mortgage amounts to $167,400.

The suit was filed last Saturday, and Wednesday morning circuit court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge named James A. Garvey, executive vice president of First Federal of Martin County, the receiver, Garvey said that he would operate the bowling lanes while the suit is under way.

Spray For Skeeters

Air Fog Is Answer?

Mark Witham, director of the Martin County Mosquito Control District said he believed the only quick solution for the mosquito problem that has existed since Hurricane Betsy was an airplane spray project which would cover the eastern part of the county from the Palm Beach county line to the St. Lucie County line.

According to the County Commissioners office, Bert Clements of Indiantown was successful bidder Tuesday on the post-Betsy mosquito spray project to be done by airplane.

Witham said the 15 and 20 mile-an-hour winds that have prevailed at night since Hurricane Betsy have prevented effective ground fogging or spraying.

At that time, he was awaiting an answer on application for the $250,000 receiver's bond ordered by Judge Trowbridge.

RAINBOW GIRLS INSTALLATION--was held at the Masonic Hall Sunday afternoon with the following elected officers being installed; Merrilee Hollison, Worthy Advisor; Pat Proper, Worthy Martin, Charity; Sharon Baker, Hope and Sharon Whalen, Faith.

Words To Make Your Life Better
THREE GATES
If I am tempted to reveal
A tale someone to me has told
About another, let it pass,
Before I speak, three gates of gold,
Three narrow gates; First, is it true?
Then, is it needful? In my mind
Give truthful answer, and the next
Is last and narrowest. Is it kind?
And if, to reach my lips at last,
It passes through these gateways, three
Then I may tell the tale, nor fear
What the result of speech may be.

Nation Needs Taxpayers Now

News reports tell us that next year the rural electric cooperatives will ask Congress to approve new means to finance larger power plants and other facilities. According to The Wall Street Journal, directors of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association are recommending longer-term and less-restrictive government loans along with use of private capital. By 1980, says an association spokesman, the co-ops will need $700 million in new capital a year, as compared with the $350 million in new federal lending authority that the Administration has recommended for the fiscal year that started July 1, 1965.

These projected expenditures are requested at a time when rural electrification in this country is almost totally complete. And it is an undeniable fact that co-ops enjoying tax exemptions in more and more instances, have moved or sought to move into service areas which are nonrural and which are adequately and economically served by taxpaying investor-owned utilities. This is an attempt to expand in a manner that never was thought of when the REA movement began back in depression times.

Numbers of members of Congress have shown signs of restiveness at the co-ops now being given government loans at below-cost interest rates and, also, with their freedom from various taxes—the federal income tax included. At the very least now that the co-ops have become big business, it is time that Congress turned a critical eye on requests for more funds that eliminate taxpaying enterprise—and, also, that it force the co-ops to operate on the same financial basis as the investor-owned companies with which they compete.

Right-To-Vote And Work?

Some of the most important and far-reaching legislation the current Congress is still considering has to do with labor.

At the top of the list is the drive to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartly Act which permits states, if they so choose, to enact Right-to-Work laws. This has passed the House and is now in the Senate. If the Senate succumbs to the powerful, even ruthless, political pressures which demand repeal, rank-and-file working people will be deprived of an economic essential right and protection. No matter what their beliefs and wants, they will be forced to join and pay dues to private organization, a union, or lose their jobs. This is an unthinkable as if Congress passed a law denying a man the right to join a union.

Along with this, another vital issue is at stake. It is the Right-to-Vote. This simply means that no union should be certified as bargaining agent for employees without a secret ballot election supervised by the National Labor Relations Board. As of now, certification can be gained on the basis of a card count. The weaknesses in this are glaring. As the Cincinnati Enquirer has said, "Certification of a union as the bargaining agent for a group of employees should not be made on the basis of signatures to cards, as pressures conceivably could be used to obtain them that would not be operative in a secret election....Nor should there be a recognition simply on the basis of a contract between employer and union leader because there have been cases where so-called sweetheart contracts crushed the back of the employer and the union boss but sold out the working man."

The weary charge that Right-to-Work and Right-to-Vote laws are "antiunion" is as phony as a three dollar bill. They are, instead, protections against exploitation and misrepresentation of the desires and beliefs of the working man who should have freedom of choice.

How To Keep Out Of Trouble

If children were taught in the home by their parents and in the schools and Sunday schools by their teachers, one simple little rule of action, think of the sorrow and suffering it would save, not to mention the countless millions in dollars.

This rule of action wouldn't require any new laws, it wouldn't cost a dime of taxpayers money, and it would reduce the cost of law enforcement and court trials. Respect for the rule would eventually become automatic with most children as they grew up.

There wouldn't be so many news reports on murder, robbery, kidnapping, rape, purse snatching, automobile stealing, etc., etc., etc.

And what is the rule of action that would reduce our vicious crime record, if it became part of the thinking of children when it was taught to them daily by their parents and schools, along with suitable illustrations of what it meant?

Rule—"Keep your hands off other people and other people's property." It's that simple to keep out of trouble.

A New Despotism

Herbert Spencer, the great English philosopher, wrote a book in 1851 which dealt with the "conditions of human happiness". In it he made clear the fundamental principle that society should be organized on the basis of voluntary cooperation, not on the basis of compulsory cooperation. He established the principle of individualism as against Statism under which the citizen has no rights which the State is bound to respect.

David Lawrence, writing in U. S. News & World Report, observes that Herbert Spencer's book reads as if it were written and published this year. He then says, "...we must recognize that an age-old but still unsolved controversy on fundamental law is affecting the lives of all of us. Whether it be in the field of 'civil rights', where conformity by coercion is considered, or whether it concerns the bill that may be passed at this or the next session of Congress compelling, in effect, a worker to join a union in order to be eligible for a job in America, the basic approach is the same—compulsion rather than volition."

The great irony is that the compulsion being imposed today are advocated by so-called liberals. Mr. Lawrence quotes a passage from Herbert Spencer's work of more than a century ago which applies with haunting accuracy to the contemporary scene: "...Liberalism has to do its increasing extent adopted the policy of dictating the actions of citizens, and, by consequence, diminishing the range throughout which their actions remain free...."

These words were used by the author in tracing fundamental differences between the political parties in the England of his time. As David Lawrence concluded, "There is today a struggle in England over these same issues, and in the United States we see the Congress exercising unprecedented powers in disregard of our written Constitution, as the members go along with what they think is the tide. We see also the Supreme Court justices upholding the doctrines of expediency, as they themselves undertake to amend the Constitution without the consent of the people, who alone should ratify or reject any proposed change. We can see the handwriting on the wall- a new despotism. It will last until the people themselves rise up to recover their inherent and inalienable rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

National 4-H Club Week

Whatever you're doing and wherever you live—during the week of September 25 through October 2—you should give attention, interest and support to an observance that will take place at that time. It is National 4-H Club Week.

It would be difficult to praise the 4-H movement too highly. Because of it, great numbers of boys and girls are helped to learn the fundamentals of farming—and farming, in these days, is a combination of business, art and craft. The ancient virtues that are an implicit element in land and nature are combined with the technology of today.

We live in an increasingly urbanized society. Inevitable as that may be, a very great deal of the strength and the character of this nation is found in the rural side of its life. The land, and those who work the land, feed and clothe and sustain us. And there, away from the congested cities with all their problems, is the strongly beating heart of America.

There are no juvenile delinquents in the ranks of 4-H. They carry on those traditions—pride of purpose, fair dealing, independence, consideration for others- that are so vital to that heartbeat.

Not So Many Cookies

It is probable that no subject of an economic nature is more generally misunderstood than what happens to the income taken in by this country's major industries. There is a particularly flagrant lack of knowledge about the size of the profits that are earned.

So a breakdown of the experience of the nation's 100 largest manufacturers during a recent year may be of value. Here it is:

Of each dollar received from customers, 51 cents went to pay for goods and services bought from others.

Five cents was consumed by the cost of tools wearing out—that is, obsolescence.

Taxes accounted for nine cents.

The cost of human energy—wages and other payroll items—took 27 cents.

After all these bills were met, seven cents remained. This was the profit. But only about half of it was paid in the form ofdividends to the owners of these businesses. The other half was used for reinvestment within the businesses themselves—that is, for expansion, new tools, and all the other things that are necessary if any enterprise is to keep its place in the sun in a competitive economy.

Those who still think that the hand of the stockholders goes deep into the cookie jar had best think again.

Chamber Asks For Route Signs

The Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce has requested the State Road Board toerect signs at the Northeast and Southwest corners of the intersection of A1A and the Jensen Beach Causeway Road showing Jensen Beach-Rio direction across the Causeway to what is now Temporary A1A and to designate Temporary A1A as Alternate A1A from Fort Pierce to East Ocean Blvd.

The Chamber has asked that the signs be erected prior to the dedication of the Frank Wacha Bridge.

Park Study Under Way

County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha, Commissioner Jack Saunderson, County Engineer Fred L. Bell and N. Earl Jones, member of the State Board of Parks and Historic Monuments visited the U.S. Coast Guard's former Loran Station on Jupiter Island last week.

Jones had attended a meeting of the Park Board at which Wacha and Saunderson were present, to forward their requests to make part of the former Loran station a state beachfront park.

Jones also looked over Sandspit Park and the Long Island areas where the county hopes to have a state park.

Mrs. Mary Byers told police that her hair was stolen right off her head in a Kansas City restaurant. She said another woman snatched her wig that was worth $165.

The South And Mint Juleps

Jews Cary, publisher of the Jupiter Courier-Highlights, held a wooden spoon in his hand and tamped the mint vigorously in the bottom of the glass.

"I have never been able to buy a mint julep south of St. Louis," he said, "Perhaps it is because they take so long to make."

He finished the glass after about five minutes of mashing the mint in the bottom of the glass. Then he reversed the spoon and rubbed the crushed mint around the sides of the glass. He scraped the mint out of the glass into a strainer, when the glass was clean he put the glass in the freezer and took out another glass. Three sprigs of mint went into the next glass. About fifteen minutes were needed to get all four glasses properly minted and back in the freezer.

Then the first glass came out again. One teaspoon of powdered sugar and a few drops of water were muddled in the bottom of the glass. Then a straw was placed in the glass and the glass filled with crushed ice.

A measuring glass was filled with the crushed mint and its sides rinsed cleaned and the glass filled with bourbon. The first glass then received its three ounces of bourbon (Kentucky bourbon, that is, sah) poured lightly over the ice.

Then Cary finished the other three glasses in the same manner.

The glasses were put on the counters. We took our first sip.

I am going to grow my own mint.

Indiantown Next Project Of Zoning Board

Next on the list of projects to be undertaken by the County Zoning and Planning Board will be zoning in Indiantown. The board just finished the complicated Jensen Beach re-zoning project.

In the past Indiantown zoning has been non-exhat like that of Jensen Beach with a zoning code of its own in a very limited in-town area. About the only areas covered are the residential districts almost in the center of the community and the Warfield Blvd. area of the business section.

Zoning areas will be enlarged to include Booker Park on the west, the rodeo bowl on the east, St. Lucie Canal on the south and an area about a half-mile from the present community limits on the north.

Goal of the zoning board is to encompass all local district zoning areas, except those in incorporated areas, into the county-wide plan.

An area in Palm City bounded by Palmetto Street north to All American Way and Cornell Avenue, east to the South Fork of the St. Lucie River was rezoned from HR-2 to R-4.

The R-4 multiple family dwelling district was created to solve the problem of Palm City zoning. Under R-4, smaller units of many types, both in houses and multiple family structures may be built.

C-1 zoning, commercial, was opened up to include construction of motels and hotels.

The reason given was to permit construction of these facilities along main highways, most of which are zoned commercially 200 feet back from the right of way and in which, motels would be compatible.

The changes will go to the county commission for hearing and probable adoption.

Those present at the meeting were County Zoning Director Fred L. Bell, his assistant, George Grimm and board members Frank Forsberg, Donald Ward, Paul Siefker and Richard Pryor. Howard Haid was out of town on business.

Don't Steal Coquina Rock

The public has been asked by County Engineer Fred L. Bell to stop taking huge quantities of coquina rock from the Hutchinson Island beaches.

According to Bell, he became aware that the rocks were being taken when a local trucker called to ask if he could pick up a truckload for delivery somewhere.

He investigated and found that people were taking the bed rock, the backbone of the island, which is one of the major hopes in a sand recovery program.

Bell has sought Sheriff Roy C. Baker's help in backing up the county by watching for anyone taking the rock and making them return it if caught hauling it away.

Hodges Will Ask Aid For County Erosion Problems

Randolphe Hodges, director of the State Board of Conservation and Bill Carlton, head of the newly formed division of beaches and erosion of the Department of Conservation joined Rep. William E. Owens and County Engineer Fred L. Bell in a tour of Martin County beaches from Jupiter Island on the south to Jensen Beach on the north last Wednesday.

At the conclusion of the tour which took two hours, Hodges said he certainly would recommend some form of state aid to the county and requested a complete report from Bell.

The party, along with Jupiter Island Town Manager Richard Tuggle, inspected the revetment walls on Jupiter Island and the sand dredge operation there, now shut down for the winter. "Revetments seem to me to be the most practical answer I've seen to the erosion problem," Hodges commented. "I like what I see to what they are doing."

He asked numerous questions about the newly-developed walls, built by Dickerson, Inc.

The group then went on to the Bridge Rd. to look over a bridge almost completely washed out by the hurricane.

At Bridge Rd., where the county has a public beach, Carlton commented he hoped the state was going to cooperate with the county in building a revetment wall.

The county had already applied for aid in putting the wall there.

Hodges explained that the State Budget Commission has not yet released any of the $500,000 appropriated for erosion control by the 1965 legislative session but that tentatively a schedule had been set up.

The group then looked at the beach south of the House of Refuge, studied Stuart Beach and stopped for a short while at Jensen Beach pavilion.

Hodges commented that he felt sure he would recommend aid for Martin County, probably based on the amount of local funds to be matched and he told Bell about the reports and application the latter he would need.

Fishing Guides Sent To Outdoor Writers

The Outdoor Writers Association of America will hold its annual convention at Port St. Lucie Country Club and Villas in June 1966. The Stuart Chamber of Commerce has mailed individual copies of the Resort & Fishing Guide to all members of the association so that they might preview what they may expect here.

Complete resumes of outdoor recreation in Martin County were furnished to club officials several months ago, according to the Chamber.

One hundred Guides were sent recently to the American Society of Travel Agents Convention in Hong Kong through arrangements with the Florida Development Commission. Florida Governor Haydon Burns spoke before this group and presented a new package tour plan from the west to Florida.

Boy Hurt When Bike Hits Car

Morgan Sprott, Jr., 9, received a mild concussion when his bike collided with a car on Sunny Acres Rd. at the intersection of Hickory Avenue late Thursday, according to Sheriff Roy C. Baker. The boy is the son of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Morgan Sprott of Jensen Beach.

Driver of the car was Mrs. Sam Harless who was not charged.

Deputy Sheriff Jamie Mills, who investigated, reported that the boy was riding another boy on his bike when he crossed the intersection without stopping and ran into the side of the Harless car.

One Killed In U.S. 1 Accident

A Miami boy, Norton Howe, 16, died instantly as a result of an automobile accident at the intersection of US 1 and Indian Avenue at about 9:15 a.m. Sunday.

The boy was one of a group of surfers who had driven to this area to surf at Stuart Beach. The youths were nearing a cut-over road to Ala to reach Hutchinson Island when their car was struck by a car in the southbound lane of the four-laned highway.

Driver of the Miami car was Allen Rabnil, 17, who was taken to Martin Memorial Driver of the other car was Edith Segerston, 73, of Jensen Beach. She was charged with driving on the wrong side of the road.

'Mike' Wants Absentee Bridge Ticket

"Mike" Friedrichs, writing from St. Leonard, Maryland, has contacted Jensen Chamber president Al Palmer with the request that she be sent a book of tickets for the bridge dedication.

The resident of Ocean Breeze Park, an activecivic leader during the winter months in this area, wrote "My husband and I will not be there for the dedication of the new bridge, but would like to participate by purchasing one of the books of tickets (donations to the fireworks fund)."

"Mike" mentioned that though Mirror editor Dick Campbell was the first to buy a book of tickets,..."I'll wager the book I am buying will be the farthereat away from the Jensen Beach Bridge,...unless some other snowbirds have the same idea."

She and "Gus", her husband, have spent the summer on Chesapeake Bay, and "we are quite anxious to get back to friendly Jensen Beach, so we are planning to get there a month earlier than last Fall."

Bell: Mosquito Swarm Is Due

County Engineer Fred L. Bell warned on Tuesday that residents of eastern Martin County may expect a new invasion by flutebinson and Jupiter Island mosquitoes.

According to Bell, there is definitely a possibility that swarms of mosquitoes will leave pools and clogged ditches on Wednesday to plague citizens along the seaboard areas of the county.

Bell stated that because of a shortage of funds, there will be no more spraying. Emergency Federal funds had been used to pay for a $970 aerial spray contract with Bert Clements, Indiantown, in a post-Hurricane Betsy project. The project was considered effective.

Bell said that continued flooded areas on the island and ditches which could not be repaired because of high water conditions, have bred more mosquitoes, and a study made on the island on Monday and Tuesday revealed larvae so thick on the waters they could be scooped up by handsful.

Bell stated that Mark Witham, director of the Mosquito Control District, was very much aware of the problem but could not get draglines and other repair equipment into the damaged areas because of high water.

He said that in some places where there was up to two feet of water immediately following Betsy, the level has dropped to ten inches now, but is still too high to do effective work.

As soon as the mosquitoes show up, Witham will start fogging equipment in eastern county areas, said Bell, but it is "not expected to be as effective as the ditching program or the aerial spraying.

Two representatives of chemical companies are due in the county at 2 p.m. Thursday to demonstrate chemicals which could be used on the islands with no damage to fish.

The minnow population in the pools on the Island continues high, Bell said, but the larvae population is so high the fish can't eat them fast enough to be effective.

"We can't kill them, or we'll be in more trouble," said Bell.

Any spray or surface material containing DDT or Paris green would be a distinct danger to the fish population, according to Bell.

He also said he could not estimate the length of the stay of the new mosquito population.

A survey team, under the auspices of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, failed to show up in the county Tuesday, the day they were due.

"They're probably delayed by survey work in other counties," Bell said, adding that he expected the team to show up Wednesday.

Bell returned two days early from the Miami Convention of county commissioners, engineers and other county officials belonging to the state association. He returned to Stuart for the expected survey job Tuesday.

Stuart Accepts F.E.C. Check; Sewer System Plan Delayed

The Stuart City Commission accepted conditionally a check for Florida East Coast railway taxes for the years 1962, 63 and 64 totaling $3,875.88 at its meeting Monday night.

If no penalties or interest were figured in, the check was within $50 of the amount owed for the three year period, City Manager Joe N. Crowder pointed out and within $610 of it if penalties and interest were considered.

"The railroad has agreed it will seek a refund if the court holds it is due one, and will make up the difference if the ruling goes against it," Crowder said. He said both City Attorney T. T. Oughterson and City Clerk Mrs. Callie McCrary had agreed that the city could accept the partial payment.

"We used 80 per cent of the assessment on the railroad that the State Railroad Assessment Board called 100 per cent, so we should be close," said Crowder.

The starting date of a $111,622.75 sewer main and street improvement project in Bessey Addition and two Pine Manor streets was extended for 30 days to await possible financial aid from the Housing and Urban Development regional office at Atlanta. Crowder said aid for the sewer main portion of the contract might be available according to word received from J. P. Harris, regional director of community facilities.

The 30 day extension of time was agreed to by the successful bidder, Walter Crowell of Dickerson, Inc.

In other business, an off-premises beer and wine license was granted to Lil General Store at 801 North Federal and to Stuart Tackle Shop at its new location at the intersection of Federal and South Dixie south of Roosevelt bridge.

Crowder reported that the addition to the Stuart Youth Center was progressing well and would be completed on schedule.

Hobe Sound Will Discuss County Redistricting Plan

Redistricting will be the ...ain topic of discussion at ...he Hobe Sound Civic ...ub's meeting on Monday ...t 7:30 p.m., according to ...rederic G. Hindle, presi...ent of the group.

In late summer, the county ...ommission deferred action ...n adoption of a redistricting ...lan until Nov. 2.

"We're afraid they want to ...ake Hobe Sound, precinct ...ine, and put part of us in ...artinDale's precinct nine," ...aid Hindle.

As the districts stand now, ...istrict 1, which includes all ...f Jensen Beach, Rio, Sew...rd's Point and the North Riv...r Shores area, has 5,777 ...opulation, Precinct 2, all ...f Stuart east of US 1 and ...olden Gate and Port Sew...rt has 5,790.

District 3, which includes Port Salerno, Hobe Sound south county line subdivisions and much of the open land from the coast south of Port Salerno to the Sunshine State Parkway, and as much as seven miles west of there in the south county ...has 7,080 people, the largest district in numbers.

District 4 includes Palm City, Stuart west of US 1, Tropical Farms and wide areas as much as five miles west of the turnpike, has 3,863 people.

District 5, which includes everything west of Districts 3 and 4, including Indiantown and Port Mayaca, has only 2,110 people.

The district has approximately 335 square miles in it. Martin grade alone is 18 miles long within the district and the county from north to south borders is 17 miles deep.

First Mortgage Hearing Friday

A public hearing has been set for 1 p.m. October 1 to air motions and other moves in the receivership and possibly bankrupcy proceedings of First Mortgage Corporation of Stuart, which closed its doors over a week ago when cash to pay off depositors' demands was lacking.

Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge set the hearing at that time in order to give all parties interested sufficient time to come into court with completed moves to save stockholders and depositors as much as possible of the $1.5 million in apparent shortages.

Judge Trowbridge named Richard Stone, of Miami, receiver of four companies controlled by R. C. Fernon, who also controlled interest in First Mortgage, and was its president.

The Friday hearing will decide the future of William J. Lininger, court appointed receiver of the mortgage firm.

Special Hours

Special hours to enable qualified voters to register in addition to regular hours will be held according to Mrs. Isabel Evans, county supervisor of elections.

The closing date for county registration books is Oct. 2, with the books remaining closed until five days after the Nov. 2 election.

Mrs. Evans said her office would be open the regular hours of 9-12 and 1-5 Mondays through Fridays, and also on the following special hours:

Sept. 30, from 5 to 9 p.m., October 1, from 5 to 9 p.m. and October 2, from 9 to 12 a.m. and from 1 to 5 p.m.

All of the registrations will take place in Mrs. Evans' office in the courthouse annex.

Balloons Returned To Stuart

According to Stuart Lund, chairman of the Kiwanis Club Kids Day held Saturday, the first two balloons released at the annual project were returned Tuesday.

Two Fort Pierce girls, unidentified other than by address, found the first two balloons to be reported.

The two Fort Pierce girls were Joyce and Fonzie Knott of Rt. 2, Box 195. They returned the balloons by mail without saying where they found them.

The balloons were numbered 20 and 39 and carried the names of Christine Flores, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Flores, 200 Cortez Ave., and Susie Fulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fulton, Jr., of 376 Flora Drive, Jensen Beach.

Scout Leaders

There is an urgent need for Girl Scout and Brownie leaders in the Jensen Beach area according to Mrs. Rick Carroll.

Mrs. Carroll said financial backing is available, a meeting place has been found, and sponsors are willing to back the troops. Anyone interested in helping with the scouts are requested to contact Mrs. Carroll at 287-0401.

Blood Drive Falls Short Of Goal

According to hospital authorities, The Martin Memorial Hospital Blood Drive fell far short of its goal of 100 pints on Tuesday when only 53 pints were donated.

The one-day drive had been planned to build up a badly depleted supply of blood credited to Martin County donors at the Palm Beach Blood Bank.

Blood supplied to charity patients by the hospital at no cost was believed largely the reason for the low supply in the Martin County credit.

Words To Make Your Life Better

OPPORTUNITY

With hope and daring you are smitten,
You think there's no chance for you, son?
Why, the best books haven't been written,
The best race hasn't been run,
The best score hasn't been made yet,
The best song hasn't been sung,
The best game hasn't been played yet;
Cheer up, for the world is young!

Challenges? Why, the world is just eager
For things you ought to create,
In store of true wealth is still meager,
Its needs are incessant and great;
Don't worry and fret, faint hearted,
The chances have just begun,
For the best jobs haven't been started,
The best work hasn't been done.

Residents Warned

The Stuart Chamber of Commerce office has been notified that some out-of-town aluminum siding companies are attempting door to door sales in this area with unusual offers and high pressure techniques.

It is understood that some residents, including several elderly people, are signing contracts which are placing them in a position of obligation not fully understood by them at the time.

The Chamber advises that persons not sign complicated or unusual contracts without first having their attorney read it over. In the case of contracts in the open advertising, put off a decision, get other estimates and talk to qualified persons.

Safe Boating Is More Fun!

Boats Travel On Land, Too

Do you know of good boating water some distance from home? Well, you can trailer your boat to the happy spot with little additional effort. Some skippers even haul 30-foot inboard cruisers great distances in order to get greater enjoyment from their favorite craft.

As you might expect, there is a safe way and many foolish ways of hauling a boat on a trailer rig. And safe boating is carefree boating, according to the United States Power Squadrons, which has been conducting free classes in small boat handling for more than 50 years.

A trailer soon pays for itself economically, as well as in pleasure and convenience. With the boat available in the backyard or garage, many repair jobs can be done at home by the handy-man-skipper, and storage and docking fees are eliminated.

In buying a trailer, check its weight capacity, and make sure it fits the boat. That it affords proper support and balance and had sufficient braces in the right places. The car hitch may be a bumper-type for very small boats, but in most cases the type which attaches directly to the frame of the car is best. Common sense, if not State Law, demands that a safety chain be connected from the underside of the boat to the trailer in case something goes wrong with the hitch. Lights will be required at night, and heavy rigs call for a set of brakes for the trailer.

In driving the car and trailer, don't back up any more than is necessary. In reversing, remember that the stern of the boat will swing in a direction opposite to the rear of the automobile. Therefore, to turn the trailer to the right, swing your car wheel to the left as you back. Many skippers keep a duplicate hitch at the front of the car so they can drive with the trailer ahead of them as they launch the boat.

On the open road, go a little slower, and keep to the right. Your car won't have its usual fast pick up, and it will take longer to stop, so drive accordingly. A test drive will tell you exactly how differently your car and trailer rig will behave.

If no concrete launching ramps are available at the water's edge, be sure the beach is hard enough to support the car and trailer all the way to the water. If the trailer wheels sink into ooze, it could spoil the day's fun. With the trailer wheels in the water, pay out the winch cable until the boat is partially afloat. A gentle shove should send the boat water-borne. If the water is deep enough, start the motor and slowly back away from the rig.

A new world of adventurous boating awaits the trailering fan. For safer, more carefree days afloat, attend the free class in small boat handling offered by USPS. For information, write National Headquarters, United States Power Squadrons, P. O. Box 510, Englewood, N.J.

THE MASTER BOOM-BOOM--Bill Yurillo is shown working on a 70 foot bridge that will, with fireworks, open a drawspan as a part of the spectacular fireworks show to be held October 23 on the Jensen Causeway as a part of the bridge dedication celebration. Working in the background is Jim Pauly. The display is being built at the Jensen Volunteer Firemen's fire house. The Jensen Area Chamber of Commerce, the Jensen and Rio Fire Departments and the Jensen Beach Lions Club are raising money for the fireworks.

Conservation Club Fish Fry Friday

The Stuart Jr. Conservation Club will hold a fish fry on Friday, October 1 at the Stuart Youth Center from 4 to 8 p.m.

Fish, cole slaw, hush puppies, coffee and dessert will be served with Johnnie Mann as chef.

Boys 8 to 18 are invited to register for membership in the club.

Beach Report

by Jack Cammack

Since the last report and the aftermath of Betsy, Jensen Beach and Stuart are receiving large amounts of sand from Mother Nature and also from federal funds. Construction workers have filled in the south end of Jensen Beach with sand, fill and slabs of concrete to replace some of the damage done by Betsy.

Attendance at the beaches has been somewhat slow. However, weekends are coming back to normal.

Average surf temperatures have been between 82 and 86. The white flag has flown continuously except for Saturday which was a Red Flag Day.

The Jensen Beach will remain open throughout the winter season. However, the other two beaches will only be open on weekends and holidays in the near future. Safety Tip-When swimming in and around Florida waters, for the safety of yourself and your family, always swim where there is a life guard. Don't swim alone!

Sailfish Entry

Latest entry in the Stuart Sailfish Tournament was a 23-lb. 2 oz. channel bass caught on the Roosevelt Bridge by Elwood Lewis of Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Golfers Score Holes-In-One

Two Martin County golfers made holes-in-one last week at Martin County Golf and Country Club. Dick Bohner of Sewalls Point used a No. 3 iron to score on the eleventh hole while playing with his wife, Trude.

Al Allen of Stuart used a driver for his tee shot on the third hole. He was playing in a foursome with Ed Higbee, Charlie Zihlman and Ernest Smith.

Bowen Heads Program On Bridge Dedication

The program for the dedication of the new bridge over the Indian River in Jensen Beach has been submitted to Tallahassee, it was reported at Monday night's meeting of the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber and the Fort Lauderdale district of the State Road Department have been cooperating on a big celebration on the Causeway October 23rd.

The bridge will be named for County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha and the dedication speech will be given by Floyd B. Bowen, Chairman of the SRB.

Rep. William E. Owens will be Master of Ceremonies. Also taking part in the ceremonies will be Chelsie J. Jenerchia, District Four board member, and Albert E. Palmer, President of the Chamber.

Co-chairmen of the day are Philip M. Baker and Mrs. Willard Bowman, secretary of the Chamber.

The day will include a kids' fishing tournament sponsored by The Jensen Beach Mirror, from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The Lions Club will hold races for the youngsters from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

The dedication ceremonies will start at 1:30 p.m.

The Martin County High School Band, 60 strong, will perform at the ceremonies under the direction of Lenoyne Roll.

There will be boat races for amateur sailors from 3 to 5 p.m., and a barbeque by the Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen from 4 until 7 p.m.

At 7 p.m., under the able direction of Bill "Boom-Boom" Yurilla, fabulous fireworks will be displayed. This project is handled by the Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen, also.

From 8 p.m. until 11 there will be a dance for young adults and teens held on the Causeway dance floor.

In other business the Chamber asked the SRD to designate Indian River Drive as Alternate AIA in view of the fact that the name A1A has been given to the Hutchinson Island road, now open through both St. Lucie and Martin Counties.

The Drive has been designated Temporary A1A.

The Chamber board of directors also set up a system of presenting plaques to past presidents, and Richard Campbell and Frank Forsberg were named to carry out this project. It was noted that there are eleven past-presidents.

Presentations will be made at a membership dinner in November.

The Chamber board volunteered to sell soda at the P.T.A. carnival at Hallwood this year, with profits going to the P.T.A. of Jensen Beach Elementary School.

Phil Baker was appointed to investigate the incorporation of the Jensen Area Chamber as a non-profit civic club. The Chamber is not now incorporated.

A letter was to be written by the Chamber president Al Palmer to Rep. Paul A. Rogers protesting the condition of the St. Lucie Inlet, and asking that action be taken to make the inlet more safe.

edistricting Is Off To A Loud Start

e re-districting issue voided at the county mission meeting held Thursday morning with both Commissioners Frank A. Wacha and Timer Powers saying they would discuss the subject privately before acting it publicly.

A date was not set for the discussion but it was indicated that action might be taken at the October 12 meeting of the group.

Commissioner Ed Miller and Powers were named to a committee by Wacha June 8 to study the re-districting problem. However, Commissioner Miller has been on vacation in Europe and is not expected to return until October 11.

Since the committee had not reported to Wacha, he submitted a plan of his own which has caused a heated discussion.

Powers said he would have a plan ready by November 3, the day it was due.

Prime objections voiced to Wacha's plan are the switches in District 4 and 5, which would start in Eastern Martin County and run in two big belts, nine and eight miles deep, to Lake Okeechobee.

Western Martin County people are protesting because they fear they will not have representation on the board and that future commissioners will be elected from coastal areas. Hobe Sound residents are protesting because they don't want to be included in Indiantown and western county areas.

Commissioners in Martin County are elected by all county voters and represent all the people on the board in most matters with the exception of the special taxing districts in which the local commissioners has full authority in the budgeting and expenditures.

Wacha's plan would put 4,583 people in his own district, No. 1; 4,640 in District 2, made up of Stuart and Hutchinson Island; 4,569 in District 3, made up mostly of Port Salerno and surrounding area; 4,494 in District 4, all of Palm City and a nine-mile deep belt west to Lake Okeechobee; 4,591 in District 5, all of Hobe Sound and the south county subdivisions west to the lake in a second belt, this about eight miles deep.

SRD Projects Up For Bids

County Engineer Fred L. Bell was notified Monday that three State Road Dept. projects will be put up for bid in the near future.

The Fort Lauderdale office of the SRD informed Bell that bids on the drainage project on SR 707 at River View Cottages will be opened November 1.

Also on the agenda is the calling for bids on the widening of Jensen Beach Causeway road to match the new bridge on the same date.

After the first of the year, the Pratt & Whitney Access road will see bidding. It was announced that plans are 20 per cent completed and will be ready as soon as engineers in the district office can complete them.

Schwarz Files Legal Brief With Federal Court

According to Attorney Elton Schwarz, who filed new papers with Judge J. Edward Hoyston, referee in bankruptcy in Federal court at Fort Lauderdale, he is satisfied that everything possible had been done to protect the depositors and stockholders in First Mortgage Corp of Stuart and its subsidiaries in Fort Pierce and Vero Beach.

Mr. Schwarz had just returned from Fort Lauderdale where he had filed a lengthy petition on behalf of A. O. Hunsinger, individually and on behalf of other stockholders and creditors of First Mortgage.

The petition sought to gain leave to intervene or to get dismissal of the petition in bankrupcy filed by R. C. Fernon on behalf of First Mortgage Corp. last Thursday.

The petition was based on the fact that the circuit court here through Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge, had named a receiver, that he, William J. Lininger, had qualified and obtained $250,000 bond and that the bankrupcy proceeding sought by Fernon had delayed and confused the issue.

The petition charges conspiracy on the part of the defendant Fernon, also his wife, Dorothy Fernon, and Fred Koepp, the latter of Tampa, to defraud the minority stockholders and investment certificate holders of First Mortgage, and that the debts and liabilities are not dischargeable in bankrupcy because of the possible continuance of a conspiracy to defraud.

Both Lininger and Douglas E. Wendel, West Palm Beach retired FBI man who was named as custodian of the books and records, as well as, for the time being, the assets of First Mortgage, called on Schwarz Monday morning, then both went to the firm's office, entering through the back door.

Locks had been changed on all doors to prevent anyone having access to the books which could be altered by anyone who knew what was transpiring, warned Schwarz.

Oysters R North Of Inlet

According to Salt Water Conservation Agent Rolland C. (Boots) Byrd on Tuesday, there is only one open area in all of Martin County for the taking of oysters.

"It is the area north of St. Lucie Inlet, east of the Intracoastal Waterway channel in the Indian River, to the north county line," Byrd said.

Persons who take oysters in the legal area must be careful not to take clams, be warned, since an experimental bed of clams is in the same area and is being watched by the Department of Conservation.

Fishermen Can Help

A call for all "oldtimers" of the area to help in the planned Kid's Fishing Tournament sponsored by The Mirror on October 23rd was made Monday night by Al Palmer, president of the Jensen Beach Area Chaibber of Commerce.

Palmer said that fishermen of the area would probably enjoy the opportunity to bait hooks, watch over the youngsters and help to run the tournament, which will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on the new fishing pier at Frank Wacha Bridge.

Persons interested in joining in the tournament can register their name and address at the office of the Chamber of Commerce.

Prizes for the event are being furnished by Palmer's Variety Store, and hot dogs and cold drinks for 500 are being provided by Publix Markets in Stuart, according to Mirror editor Dick Campbell.

Big Week Downtown

This weekend is a big one for the merchants on U. S. 1 in downtown Stuart, and it is a big weekend for local people.

Three big openings are being held, as the announcements in the Mirror bring out the first local showing of Pontiac, Rambler and a massive showing of new boats and motors.

Amity Buick-Pontiac is showing the complete line of Pontiacs, with a carnival atmosphere of free refreshments and guided tours of the various models of 1966 Pontiacs. Amity will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

At Chason's Garage, the 1966 Rambler will be shown as free refreshments and sales explanations of the new eight features are given. Chasoff's showing will be from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Stuart Tackle and Marine joins the showing with what manager Herman Reitz says is "one of the largest showings of boats and new Evinrude Motors in all South Florida by a private dealer." STM will have thirty new boats, twenty new motors and twenty Gator trailers on display.

For a real show in town, downtown Stuart has it this weekend.

EUP--Pictured above are some of the more than one hundred surfers ded from as far south as Miami to the Stuart Beach where ten foot waves rolled in. work slacks of Harold ster, 48, of Seminole Stuart, were found on ch near Peck's Lake rth Jupiter Island by Sheriff Walter Conner ay afternoon as the search continues for three bodies missing since Saturday when the charter boat Marybob II overturned in St. Lucie Inlet.

Gross found the ragged and torn slacks, with some filled pockets, around noon. In one pocket was Shuster's wallet containing money, pictures, business cards and his social security card.

After telephoning Sheriff Walter to report his find, Gross returned to the beach to continue his search.

Shuster was mate on the charter boat Marybob which was owned and skippered by Capt. John Herrimann, 40, who is still missing.

Sheriff Roy C. Baker said Tuesday the search would continue as long as it appeared there was a possibility of finding the three missing bodies.

Social Security Amendments Allow Higher Exempt Earnings

This is the 3rd in a series of columns by R. C. Gohrke, Jr., social security district manager in West Palm Beach, telling what the social security amendments of 1965 mean to you and your family.

Many people who continue to work after they become entitled to monthly social security benefits will benefit from a liberalization of the retirement test in the 1965 amendments.

First, the exempt amount—the amount of earnings a beneficiary can have in a year and still receive all benefits during the year—was increased from $1,500 to $1,680. This change also means that even if a person's earnings exceed $1,680 during the year, he may still receive a $10 payment for any months in which wages are $135 or less.

Second, a smaller amount of benefits will be withheld when the beneficiary works and earns over $1,500 in a year. Previously, $1 in benefits was withheld for every $2 of earnings between $1,200 and $1,700 in a year. On earnings above $1,700, $1 in benefits was withheld for every $1 of earnings. After 1965, $1 in benefits will be withheld for every $3 of earnings between $1,500 and $2,700. Benefits will be withheld on dollar for dollar basis on earnings above $2,700. These changes will be effective for taxable years ending after 1965.

For example, a man and wife receive a combined benefit of $150 a month, and he works and has earnings of $2,700 in both 1965 and 1966. Their total possible benefit, if it were payable, would be $1,800 each year. For 1965, the couple would actually receive benefits of $550 ($1,800 less $1,250 — $250 withheld for the $500 of earnings between $2,200 and $2,700 and $1,000 withheld for the $1,000 of earnings above $1,700.) For 1966 they would get total benefits of $1,800 ($1,800 minus $800 of the $1,300 of earnings between $1,500 and $2,700). If his earnings were $2,750 for each year, the couple would receive total benefits of $800 for 1965 and $1,150 for 1966.

Another change in the retirement test concerns royalties received in or after the year in which a self-employed person sitting age 65 on a copyright or patent obtained before the year the person is 65. These earnings will no longer count for purposes of the retirement test. This change is effective for taxable years beginning after 1964.

I suggest that anyone having any question about their status or about under the social security law, write, phone or visit the West Palm Beach district office located at 718 S. Dixie Hwy. The telephone number is 833-8461.

Skeeter Problem

The County Commission has asked County Engineer Fred L. Bell to make a reappraisal of the county's mosquito control district and methods of eliminating the bugs.

Commissioner Jack Saunderson said he doubted the effectiveness of ditching on the islands along the coast to control mosquitos.

"I have long been an advocate of aerial sprayfing, I am not in accord with some of the stuff the State Board of Health believes about ditching and I think the mosquito menace of the past two weeks tends to prove I'm right," said Saunderson.

He requested Bell to study overhead in the mosquito control district methods of larviciding and spraying, "even if we lose state funds."

Expenditures of the Mosquito district through September 17 included $41,152.63 in general use; $19,521.13 in State No. 1 fund and $12,173.02 in State No. 2 fund. Both state funds had cash balances over that, totaling about $10,000.

Commissioner J. H. Bruner said he planned to fog two or three times a day in District 2.

Bell said the reason the mosquito control district didn't get to cleaning older ditches was because new ones were being dug on Hutchinson Island as fast as possible. He added that the old ones were more vulnerable to flooding which happened during Hurricane Betsy.

In other business, Bell asked and the commission agreed unanimously to commend members of the zoning and planning board for devotion to duty and work completed in the fiscal year.

He said members of the zoning board had completed the revision of Jensen Beach zoning from a local code to inclusion in the county wide code; Hobe Sound changes in the same order, a wide revision in Palm City and that the board was readying a plan to include Indiantown in county-wide zoning.

Members of the zoning board are Frank Forsberg, chairman; Donald Ward, Paul Siefker, Richard Pryor and Howard Haid. Bell is the zoning director with George Grimm as his assistant.

Bell asked the board to advertise the proposed amendments to C-1 business zoning, which would permit construction of hotels and motels in these districts. The board agreed to do it.

Bell also requested that adoption of the new Southern Building Code and amendments be advertised for a public hearing. He said the County General Contractor's Board had recommended the adoption of the code. The board voted to do so.

Book Collection Donated

John Snure, Jr., former reporter for the news department of Radio Station WSTU, gave Martin County Public Library his entire collection of books when he left for Washington, D.C., according to F. Lee Heist, public relations chairman for the County Library Association.

The collection includes numerous historical reference books, treatises on the cold war which involve International relations and an extensive list on Abraham Lincoln.

Snure was obliged to resign his local position and return to Washington because of ill health.

Heist said there were about 300 books in the collection, all of them of value to the library and its patrons.

Two out of three traffic accidents — and nearly three out of four traffic deaths — occur on two lane roads. Last Memorial Day weekend, 474 Americans died in traffic accidents. All but 12 of these deaths were on two-lane roads. Modern, four lane highways drastically reduce accident, injury and death rates and result in lower insurance rates. Yet 42 percent of Florida's primary highway system is classified as "poor" or "critical" by engineers. The $300 million Highway Improvement Amendment provides the means for constructing 1241 miles of new, four lane major route improvements. Projects were selected on the basis of traffic volume, safety hazards, condition of present facility, area economic consideration and other sufficiency ratings prescribed by the Florida Highway Code. Provision is included for the state to assist counties in buying rights-of-way on a 50-50 basis. One third of the rights-of-way has already been purchased. Florida's tremendous traffic growth has outrun the pay-as-you-build policy. The 1965 Florida Legislature voted overwhelmingly in favor of this emergency program. You can assure Florida of an adequate primary highway system now by voting for Amendment #4 on November 2nd.

He requested Bell to study overhead in the mosquito control district methods of larviciding and spraying, "even if we lose state funds."

Expenditures of the Mosquito district through September 17 included $41,152.63 in general use; $19,521.13 in State No. 1 fund and $12,173.02 in State No. 2 fund. Both state funds had cash balances over that, totaling about $10,000.

Commissioner J. H. Bruner said he planned to fog two or three times a day in District 2.

Bell said the reason the mosquito control district didn't get to cleaning older ditches was because new ones were being dug on Hutchinson Island as fast as possible. He added that the old ones were more vulnerable to flooding which happened during Hurricane Betsy.

In other business, Bell asked and the commission agreed unanimously to commend members of the zoning and planning board for devotion to duty and work completed in the fiscal year.

He said members of the zoning board had completed the revision of Jensen Beach zoning from a local code to inclusion in the county wide code; Hobe Sound changes in the same order, a wide revision in Palm City and that the board was readying a plan to include Indiantown in county-wide zoning.

Members of the zoning board are Frank Forsberg, chairman; Donald Ward, Paul Siefker, Richard Fryor and Howard Hall. Bell is the zoning director with George Grimm as his assistant.

Bell asked the board to advertise the proposed amendments to C-1 business zoning, which would permit construction of hotels and motels in these districts. The board agreed to do it.

Bell also requested that adoption of the new Southern Building Code and amendments be advertised for a public hearing. He said the County General Contractor's Board had recommended the adoption of the code. The board voted to do so.

Book Collection Donated

John Snure, Jr., former reporter for the news department of Radio Station WSTU, gave Martin County Public Library his entire collection of books when he left for Washington, D.C., according to F. Lee Heist, public relations chairman for the County Library Association.

The collection includes numerous historical reference books, treatises on the cold war which involve international relations and an extensive list on Abraham Lincoln.

Snure was obliged to resign his local position and return to Washington because of ill health.

Heist said there were about 300 books in the collection, all of them of value to the library and its patrons.

Chairman Frank A. Wacha of the County Commission has announced that bids will be let in November by the State Road Department for the widening and resurfacing of the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Bids will also be let in November for the relaying of the water problem on State Road 707 in Jensen Beach in the vacinity of Sunny Acres Road.

At the present time it looks as though the Pratt Whitney Road bid-letting will take place right after the first of the year.

STOP HIGHWAY SLAUGHTER!

VOTE FOR 4 LANES
CHANGE THIS ...TO THIS

Two out of three traffic accidents — and nearly three out of four traffic deaths — occur on two lane roads! Last Memorial Day weekend 474 Americans died in traffic accidents. All but 73 of these deaths were on two lane roads. Modern, four lane highways drastically reduce accident, injury and death rates and result in lower insurance rates. Yet, 62 percent of Florida's primary highway system is classified as "inferior" by engineers. The $300 million Highway Improvement Amendment provides the means for constructing 1241 miles of new, four lane major route improvements. Projects were selected on the basis of traffic volume, safety hazards, condition of present facility, area economic consideration and other sufficiency ratings prescribed by the Florida Highway Code. Provision is included for the state to assist counties in buying rights-of-way on a 50-50 basis. One third of the rights-of-way has already been purchased. The 20% normal traffic growth has outrun the pay-as-you-build policy. The 1965 Florida Legislature voted overwhelmingly in favor of this emergency program. You can assure Florida of an adequate primary highway system now by voting for Amendment #4 on November 2nd.

Inlet Claims Anew

The St. Lucie Inlet has been noted as a very dangerous inlet for many years. Last week the treacherous inlet claimed four lives, adding to its toll of dead over the years.

The U. S. Corps of Engineers, through the cooperation of Rep. Paul Rogers and the Martin County Commission, recently had the inlet dredged out, supposedly deep enough to make it safer. The dredge had no more than pulled out of the inlet when local fishermen, sport and commercial, began complaining that nothing had been done.

When the MaryBob broke up last week under the pounding of the inlet's furious sea, only one man made it to safety. The four deaths attributed to the inlet should make the Corps of Engineers aware that half-way measures do not do the job when they are dealing with human life.

The most important aspect of the MaryBob is that an experienced captain and his mate seemingly could not stop the ground swells and treacherous currents at the inlet from taking over the boat and breaking it up. If the deaths could have been attributed to an inexperienced captain, we would have not felt as sure that the inlet needed a major overhaul.

Many times in the past ten years we have heard of boats going through the Ft. Pierce inlet, 20 miles out of the way, in order to avoid the St. Lucie Inlet. This should prove the need for work on the inlet.

The most experienced words on the quality of the inlet come from local sport and commercial fishermen...the people who use the inlet almost daily. "It's a killer", said one this week.

We urge Rep. Rogers to bring about emergency clearing of the St. Lucie Inlet. This must be done through the U. S. Corps of Engineers, who must realize now that the job contracted was not enough to make the inlet safe.

It is too late to bring back the many who have died in trying to go through the inlet. It is not too late to save the many who will use the inlet in the future.

Where Pioneering Never Ends

As every school child learns, the railroads were among the greatest of the forces that built and unified this vast nation. The lines of steel, stretching at last from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, brought civilization with them.

Those who pioneered in railroading were certainly among the master builders of world history. And those who follow them today have an equal vision and a comparably vital mission. President Loomis of the Association of American Railroads put it well when he said, "Without detracting from the great deeds of railroad pioneers, it should nevertheless be recognized that the new railroader is looking at excitedly inviting technological opportunities and shipper transportation needs with open, fresh eyes and is increasingly oriented toward meeting these with more competitive services at more competitive prices. He is the vital catalyst in utilizing all the inherent strengths in the rail form of transportation and the new techniques of market research in blazing a brighter trail to the transportation future."

Most of us have little knowledge of the technological progress that has been taking place in railroading under modernization programs costing a billion dollars a year and more. To take but a single example, in 1964 the industry bought 65,000 new freight cars. Just this figure does not complete the story. The new cars have an average capacity of 70 tons, compared with 50 tons for those being retired. Some of the cars are highly specialized to provide you most service--such as a triple-deck rig which can carry 15 automobiles, and a giant hopper capable of handling the output of 40 acres of tobacco.

On the railroads, pioneering, in the broad sense of the word, never ends.

National Forest Products Week

The forests are one of this nation's greatest natural resources. They are the home of almost limitless wildlife. They are a source of recreation and solitude in a busy and driving world. And they provide us with literally thousands of products which contribute in myriad ways to the freedom and enhancement of modern living and working.

National Forest Products Week is to be observed during the October 17-23 period. And this, most certainly, is an honor that is richly deserved. The Week's purpose is to focus national attention on the importance of forest products to the public. It is an importance that can hardly be exaggerated. All of us, in many more ways than most of us know, share in the forests' bounty.

The demand for forest products is gigantic and growing. Yet, once a tree is cut it cannot be replaced with new growth for 20, 50, even 100 years or more depending on species and locality. That problem has been solved by planned reforestation. Tree farms, large and small, are going concerns in all parts of the nation. They produce a perpetual series of crops. Today the nation is actually growing more trees than are cut.

Advanced forest management, that looks generations ahead, guarantees that we will never exhaust our trees, or lack for the enormous flood of products that come from them. The magnificent forest heritage that nature gave us will always remain.

Government Has Its Hands Full

One of the important developments of the moment, of which much more is due to be heard as the months wear on, is a swiftly growing belief within and without Congress that none essential and avoidable government spending and projects must be severely curtailed and in many instances eliminated. The reason for this is that the massive increases in the cost of conducting the Viet Nam war have thrown all the past budgetary predictions into a tailspin. Unlimited domestic spending plus military spending on the Viet Nam scale can add up only to a new inflationary crisis.

It should be noted that the advocates of rigid economy include many people who favor the domestic programs in question, yet realize, that we simply cannot afford them now.

An excellent place for the government to start trimming its sales is in fields where tax-paying private enterprise is able and willing to do any needed job. The prime example is electric power development. While the press of other and more dramatic news has drawn attention away from them, various proposals are in the works which would put the government farther and farther into the electric power business, on a tax-free and tax-subsidized and otherwise favored basis of operation. Not one of these is necessary--there is not one of a practical and needed nature that the investor-owned industry would not undertake.

The government, all must agree, has its hands full now with enormously complex and costly efforts that only government can deal with. Let it stick to them.

Unbridled Monopoly Power

The unions have been using the last ounce of their political power in an effort to bring about a major change in the Taft-Hartley Act. That change is to eliminate section 14(b), which authorizes the states to enact Right-to-Work laws. If the effort is successful, every worker in every industry will have to join and pay dues to a union, regardless of his wishes and beliefs, or lose his job.

We will see what happens. But if Taft-Hartley is to be changed and amended, there are certain other steps which urgently need to be taken. As the Los Angeles Times put it, "It should be amended to prohibit discrimination by unions on the basis of race, color or creed. It should be amended to prohibit the use of dues for political purposes. It should be amended to provide for secret balloting in union representation elections. Union leaders would fight most such amendments to the bitter end. But equity, fair play, and just plain common horse sense demand that the one change not be made without the others."

The unions, with their power and special privileges, want to have their cake and eat it too. They seek unbridled monopoly power which cannot be countenanced in a free nation--if that nation is to remain free.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

Last week Martin County lost an employee who was dedicated to his job, more than many of us realize.

Jesse Griffin, as we all knew him, was our County Park Superintendent. There was hardly a week end that Jesse did not tour our lush-ing beaches and parks as early as 5 A. M. to make sure everything was in working order and clean for the hundreds of folks that would use the facilities during the day. This I am sure was beyond the call of duty. The hundreds of campers at Sandsprit Park knew him and the fine job he did with what he had to work with. After 30 years of service to Martin County, as Park Superintendent, I would like to suggest that Sandsprit Park be renamed "Griffin Memorial Park" in memory of a wonderful conscientious worker for all of Martin County.

Yours truly,
Albert Ely Walker

To the Editor:

It was indeed a noble act for the Jensen Beach sponsor such a worthwhile service for our people again this year.

Mosquito Fight Still On

County Engineer Fred L. Bell said early this week that the county Mosquito Control District had started work on Hutchinson Island "knocking down" the tops of spoil banks bordering mosquito control ditches in order to permit vehicles to fog and larvicide in the wild areas.

"We need to get in and do some work," Bell said.

He said ditches on Jupiter Island were in bad shape, but those on Hutchinson Island were getting back to normal with the recession of flood waters.

Bell said the study will be continued.

Emergency Cases At Martin Memorial

LIVE.....and love it by DICK CAMPBELL

The Grownups' God

My son is eight years old, and has knowledge of the world and life in general that would amaze anyone. I guess all parents are amazed at the eight-year-old. This is the time when children discover reason as a part of life. They place a pure sense upon all that is to us quite complex.

"I went to church with Duke," Ricky said to me. "We had a lot of fun."

"That's fine," I said.

"Uhhh. Mother won't let me join Duke's church."

"Well, you see, Ricky, Duke is an Episcopalian. You are a Methodist," I said. I could see that I was going to get in trouble with that one.

"Well, we sang the same songs and studied the same things in Sunday School. And Martin was our teacher and he's real nice. And I can't see why I can't join the church and be with my best buddy."

"I'm sorry, Rick, but we don't belong to that church. We go to our church. He goes to his church," I said.

"What is bad about Duke's church?" Ricky asked.

"Let me see," I said, groping for the right words. "There are Republicans and there are Democrats, see," I said and his brow furrowed. "Remember the last election, when President Johnson was elected to office?"

"Yes," Ricky said unenthusiastically.

"Well, President Johnson was a Democrat, and he ran against Senator Goldwater. The senator was a Republican. Now, neither man was bad. They both believed in our country and they wanted to do the best they could for it. They just wanted to do it in different ways. Do you understand that?"

"I guess so," said Ricky, but I could tell he had absolutely no idea of what I was speaking about.

I looked up. In a way praying for an answer that would satisfy an eight year old. "What is the difference, then?" Ricky said.

I thought very hard on this one. Then, it came to me.

"Ricky, you and Duke are what I call pure. You think of all things as simple. The difference between our church and Duke's church is made up by grownups. They are what we will call grownup differences.

"When you grow up, I don't think you will even know what the difference is. But as long as you believe, and as long as you go to church regularly, you'll make out all right.

"In the meantime, you should go to your father's church, and, if you want, from time to time, visit Duke's church, or any other you wish.

"God didn't make the difference, Ricky, grownups did. That is why there are so many different churches. You know how grownups are."

Ricky smiled. "Oh, I see now," he said. And I really believe that he did.

Florida's new State Superintendent of Public Instruction is 50-year-old Floyd T. Christian, who served for the past 17 years as County Superintendent of Pinellas County.

Christian, a life-long school man, took office October 1 and took the formal Oath of Office on Monday, October 4. He was named to the top school post by Governor Haydon Burns, to succeed State School Supt. Thomas D. Bailey who retired for health and business reasons.

He is a graduate of the University of Florida, where he starred as an athlete and was named to Florida Blue Key. He holds AB and MA degrees from the Gainesville University) and has done advanced work at Peabody College and Columbia University.

Christian is married to the former Margaret Littlejohn of Clearwater. The Christians have three children, Mrs. Claude E. Leslie of St. Petersburg, Floyd Thomas Christian, Jr., a student at the University of Florida, and Robert Rick Christian, 14, a junior high school student.

Rogers Says Castro Selling Dope U.S.

Congressman Paul Rogers said recently that communist Castro has become the chief cocaine peddler in the Western Hemisphere, selling much of the narcotic in the United States.

The Florida Congressman said, "The problem has become so prevalent that it appears cocaine has replaced sugar as Cuba's chief export to the United States since 1960, when the Congress cut Castro's sugar quota".

Rogers' statement came during a speech delivered to an annual conference of the International Narcotics Enforcement Officers Association held in Miami Beach.

The Florida Congressman also stated that burglary and larceny are two crimes more closely linked with drug abuse, as addicts use these methods to finance their expensive habits.

He said that not only was South Florida a channel for Castro's cocaine traffic, but that U.S. manufactured pep pills and other stimulants and depressant drugs are involved in an increasing number of violations in this area.

Speaking on new legislation recently enacted by the Congress as an effort to curb drug traffic, he said the new law sets stiffer penalties for sales or possession of the drugs, as well as prohibiting sales to those under 21. The law also allows agents to carry guns

Officials Study Weed Control Problem

Multi-million dollar weed control problems in Florida waterways and in the Panama Canal Zone have drawn together officials of both areas in studies of manatees (also known as sea cows) to eat aquatic vegetation.

The weed problems are strikingly similar, according to Ed Dall, Executive Director of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District.

Dall and seven other state officials, together with an associate professor from Florida Atlantic University, returned from the Canal Zone this week after a five-day tour. The visit included a trip by small boat into the interior of the Isthmus of Panama where six manatees are penned in a 7 1/2 acre jungle lagoon.

For more than a year, the FCD has been sponsoring a study of sea cows in Florida, directed by Dr. Peter Sguros of Florida Atlantic University. Six manatees have been at work eating weeds in a Ft. Lauderdale canal since May 7, 1964, and Dr. Sguros reports that the main item now to be studied concerns the animals' breeding and reproduction.

Sguros said he was especially interested in the birth of a sea cow reported recently in the specially-fenced lagoon off the Chagres River in the Canal Zone.

"Large lakes and water areas tributary to the Panama Canal create weed problems which are greater than those experienced in the canals of the FCD, though the types of weeds found in both Florida and the Canal Zone are similar," Dall said.

The lieutenant governor of the Canal Zone, Col. H. R. Parfitt, explained that rafts of hyacinths and other weeds can foul the rudders of ships transiting the Panama Canal and have even caused ship collisions. As a result, the U. S. Gr currently spending about $1 million a year to control weeds and mosquitos there.

The FCD is now spending approximately $200,000 a year to control weeds—but costs are expected to rise to $500,000 a year after the Florida project is completed —unless some new or better method of control is discovered. Other weed control efforts in Florida run the state's costs to more than $1 million per year.

Riley S. Miles of Kissimmee, Chairman of the FCD Board, stressed that it is too early to judge whether or not manatees may provide an answer, or a partial answer, to weed problems in tropical and sub-tropical waterways.

Early indications point to a great rate of weed consumption by manatees, but aquatic weeds also grow and spread at an alarming rate, he noted. The balance between numbers of sea cows and acres of weeds has yet to be determined with accuracy.

Those making the trip to Panama, in addition to Miles, Dall, and Dr. Sguros, were: FCD Vice Chairman Robert E. Searle of Coral Gables, Board members T. R. (Tommy) Tomlinson of Melbourne, and Robert W. (Bob) Padrick of Ft. Pierce; Vernon Sikes, Assistant to Governor Haydon Burns; Zeb Grant, Director of Operations and Maintenance, and Tom Huser of the FCD staff.

A smash hit on Broadway as a musical by Rodgers and Hammerstein, Universal's screen version of "Flower Drum Song" is backgrounded against the colorful streets of San Francisco's famed Chinatown. The magnificent cast is headed by, from left to right, Jack Soo, Nancy Kwan, Miyoshi Umeki and James Shigeta. Also starring in the Ross Hunter color production, in association with Joseph Fields, are Juanita Hall and Benson Fong. This will be playing at the Lyric Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 6 and 7.

EVINRUDE FOLDING 3 HP LIGHTWIN — New from Evinrude for 1966 are three models of the 3 hp motors that have the lower units hinged to fold in half for stowing in their own plastic carrying case. The angle drive Lightwin, the heavy-duty Yachtwin and the oiling drab Ducktwin are the three models. The Lightwin shown here weighs only 37 pounds and is 38 inches high from skeg to top. When folded it is 15 inches shorter. It can easily be stowed by loosening two swivel screws on the lower unit and folding the lower unit up into a special groove in the lower shroud, where it locks in place. Stowed in the carrying case for compactness and neatness, the motors look like a piece of luggage.

OLD-YEAR OLD LOGGERHEADS--Bill Allowat, Curator of the Martin County House of Refuge Museum, releases one of over 20 one-year old loggerhead turtles to return to the ocean after being raised in tanks at the Museum. The conservation program of the House of Refuge includes a scientific study of the turtles and studies their habits and insures their ability to grow for the future.

BABY TURTLES--Bill Allowat holds some newly-born loggerhead turtles that will grow in the Martin County House of Refuge Museum over the next year, to be released at one year old to swim in the sea. The turtles faced extinction until the House of Refuge program insured their living through the first year.

Endorsement Is Delayed

Commission Ponders Bond Issue

Endorsement of the governor's $300 million 20-year bond issue for construction and reconstruction of Florida primary roads was delayed here last week by the Board of County Commissioners.

Chairman Frank A. Wachs pointed out that seven or eight county commissions had endorsed it and had forwarded requests for similar endorsement here.

Commissioner J. H. Bruner said he felt the idea was a progressive one although he didn't agree with the whole package. He pointed out that Martin County's bridges had been built under similar plans.

Commissioner Elmer Powers said he questioned the efficiency of bonding for road construction and felt the board should not be swayed by requests from other boards. "We don't know much about this whole thing," he added.

Commissioner Jack Sunderson said he was in accord with the program.

It was pointed out by members of the press that both Rep. William E. Owens and Sen. John McCarty were opposed to the bond issue.

Wachs said he felt it was ridiculous to oppose since Martin County did a similar thing in getting its bridges.

A discussion on the subject and formal vote was delayed until the next meeting which is set for October 12.

Inlet Tragedy Claims Four

Four lives were claimed early Saturday by the treacherous St. Lucie Inlet when a 28-foot charter boat, the Marybob II, capsized and threw five men into the high swells.

Surviving the ordeal was Dr. Allen Silverman, a 26-year old Orlando dentist, who drifted with a portion of the boat about a mile and a half south of the Inlet. He then made his way ashore on the northern part of Jupiter Island which was completely deserted.

The body of Dr. Silverman's father, Larry W. Silverman, 61, of 1035 Washington Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y., was recovered from the surf about a mile south of the Inlet about 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Still missing and being sought are Orwin Lieberman, 43, 2115 Alamanda Dr., Orlando, Capt. Bob Scrimsher, about 65, of Port Salerno, skipper-owner of the charter craft, and Hal Schuster, 48, of Seminole Street, Stuart, mate on the Marybob II.

According to Brunig Mooke, owner and operator of the Fishinol, the boat left the dock about 7:30 a.m., and at 8 a.m. a small outboard boat came to report that a boat had overturned in the Inlet.

Scrimsher, an old New Jersey charter boat hand, was known locally as a careful skipper, and had been running the Marybob II out of the Fishinol since Oct. 1962.

The Sheriff's department was notified, as was the U. S. Coast Guard at Fort Pierce. Rough water both outside and inside the reef made early operations difficult.

Early on the scene were the Cartnne, Capt. Louis Landy Capt. Ray Young of the Spray II, another charter boat; Capt. A. Whittcar, Gannett II, a charter boat; and a bit later Capt. Jack Whittcar, Hobo.

Dr. Silverman was able to give an account of the disaster.

"The swells looked 15 to 20 feet high as we neared the Inlet. The tide was running out fast, and we were maybe 100 yards into the rough water when a big one broke the front window under the flying bridge.

"Scrimsher tried to turn around, and another one hit us and flooded the cockpit, and then we broke in half," he said.

Later he qualified this by saying that the break-up was a separation of the superstructure, including the flying bridge, from the lower hull portion of the boat.

"I saw Dad and Lieberman and the other two thrown into the water, and then I found myself drifting along with some part of the boat.

He was picked off the beach about 10:15 a.m. after he had walked almost to the south beach at the inlet.

Two helicopters from Miami and Orlando, also assisted in the search.

At about 1 p.m. the hull portion of the Marybob II was sighted about two miles south of the inlet where it had washed ashore.

Final Hearing In Lorenz Suit

According to Ray Lorenz of Jensen Beach, who questioned the right of the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund to grant leases to treasure hunters, Judge Hugh Taylor of Leon County Circuit Court, has set a final hearing in the case for November 15. The suit was filed in Leon County last spring.

Lorenz is represented by Carroll Dunscombe, a Stuart attorney. The suit, which was filed initially May 11, was dismissed on its first hearing by Judge Taylor on the ground that it had a technical error for not naming the U.S. as individuals.

Dropped from the suit was County Judge Mallory L. Johnson, who had been named as a defendant by Lorenz. The latter alleged that he should be sued here in lieu of a part of entry.

At Friday's hearing, Judge Taylor permitted the State Board of Antiquities to intervene as a party to the suit.

The board was given a week to file motions or answers. Lorenz had tried to exclude the board from the suit on the grounds that the board came into being only June 23, by Legislative action.

The judge felt it should be a part of the state in the suit, he said.

Also dismissed by Judge Taylor was a motion to exclude Martin County Historical Society as a defendant, which holds a ten-year lease, No. 1681, to search for treasure and profit from it. Lorenz contended that the lease bar him from search for treasure in that area, about four square miles off the House of Refuge.

Norman Scott, leader of Expeditions Unlimited, is at present under contract to search for Spanish Plate Flota gold here, but has been rather inactive since early in August at this time each of the equipment was laid up for engine work.

Scott announced at the time that the four wrecks that had been located were not worthwhile commercially. Three were World War II ships, the fourth a 1748 ing boat.

Here are 8 built-in quality features, many not even found in Cadillac.

1. Every car we sell has two braking systems, instead of one, like our big Cadillac. In addition, of all the other U.S. built passenger cars, has Standard dual hydraulic brakes. 2. Coil spring seats in every car. (Like fine furniture), Cadillac thinks they're better, too, but they only put them in their most expensive models. 3. A Ceramic-Armored exhaust system. Longest lasting on any U.S. car. 4. Ambrate that roll on ball bearings. Not even Cadillac goes that far. 5. Surprise power. Take our Rambler Classic, for example. Even its standard Six is bigger than Fairlane, Chevelle, Buick 225 and Corvair. Want more? Our Rambler American suspension every standard 6-cylinder engine car in its class. (That includes Corvair, Valiant, Falcon, even Mustang). 6. Optional bucket seats (Standard on Rogue, Rebel, and 770.) that recline on BOTH sides, who else gives you that kind of comfort? Nobody. 7. An optional his and hers automatic transmission that mounts in a sports console. You can shift, she can set it on automatic. 8. Deep-Dip rustproofing. We don't just spray it on. We dunk it right up to the roof. See why we're ready to call the Big 3's hand? Come see the facts, and think twice about your next new car. Our Giant-Killers are giving some very friendly deals.

Safe Boating Is More Fun!

Boating Courtesy

Boating is a lively, happy sport. And laughing skippers and crews always wave to other boats as they pass. This common sight is reassuring proof that courtesy is not dead in the world.

Perhaps because people enjoying themselves on the water are happy, they also are willing to greet others cheerfully, to help boatmen in need, and to observe the amenities of good boating.

Courteous boating is safe boating, and courtesy is one of the most important subjects taught in the free piloting classes sponsored by units of the United States Power Squadrons, national educational boating organization.

For instance, its simple courtesy to slow down when you pass a fisherman. And such courtesy mikes for safe boating, because dumping someone overboard could bring disastrous results. Its also only simple courtesy to slow down in anchorages, especially at dinner time, when meals are spread before other skippers and their crews.

Gentlemanly boating habits pay off in happier, safer days afloat. And its so easy! Here are just a few ways to tell an experienced, courteous skipper from a new or selfish one:

1. The boating "hot-rodder" buzzes other craft, swimmers, piers, anything for a "thrill."

2. The "hog" anchors in a channel to fish, or ties up to government buoys and navigation markers.

3. The "hoot" ties up to private or yacht club piers without asking permission first.

4. The thoughtless skipper makes fast to the gas pier, then goes away and leaves the boat unattended, preventing others from getting gas.

5. The "crazy" skipper anchors so close to other boats that he fouls their anchor lines and bangs into them when the wind blows up.

You can see that courtesy and safety go hand in hand. The best rule is to always be considerate of the rights of others. Wearing softsoled shoes on your own boat and when visiting others is an example.

Flag etiquette is a fairly rigid system which has developed over the years. The yacht Ensign or American Flag may be flown from the bow staff. Special signals such as the meat flag, cocktail flag, etc. are flown from the starboard spreader of the mast. USPS members sometimes fly some special flag that the spreader, although most of those use the stern staff.

A good boatman always is quick to assist another vessel in person in distress. This includes little acts of courtesy such as sharing your gasoline supply or helping repair the other fellow's motor.

For further information on the many aspects of safe boating, write or USPS for the date of a class in your area. The address is Coast Guard Auxiliary, Power Squadron, P.O. box 70, Englewood, N.J.

Anchorage Gets "Go Ahead" For Dredging Project

The Martin County Commission gave permission to the Anchorage Marina and Yacht Club to take dredged material from its own channel to fill within the bounds set up by the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund April 16.

Don Johnson, appearing for the owners, said the board approval was needed at this time in order to get the project underway before the winter season arrived.

Johnson said there was a question of a 16-foot easement to the county, but that it was being studied by an attorney and would be left as is in the project.

Bear Hunts

The special bear hunts being held in the Apalachicola and Osceola National Forests are off to a very successful start.

The special bear hunts will continue through November 6, for a total of twenty-one special three-day hunts. Reports from both areas indicate an abundance of bear and the 1965 hunts are expected to exceed last year's total harvest of 29 bears.

No Increase In Stuart Tax Election Is Set

The Stuart city commission, for the fourth straight year, this week adopted on a tentative basis, for advertising and hearing purposes, a budget under which no tax-levies will be increased.

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, under the new budget, revenues of $638,138.23 could be expected in the coming fiscal year, an increase of about $15,000 over last year.

The budget includes moderate raises for police and firemen, some other minor additions, and sufficient extra to purchase a new trash truck and complete payment on other equipment.

When the budget is originally tendered July 1 there the overall tax levy is expected to be set at five mills on the dollar and a half mills for debt service in the city over and two mills in the county, the latter two, the matter of dividing the city for debt service.

Crowder said there has been no change in the operating budget in six years.

The city is regarded as one of the best run in Southeast Florida.

More of the predicted income comes from cigarette taxes, $134,000, than from advalorem taxes, $122,498. Utility taxes account for $58,000 of the total.

Resolution 807 was adopted by the commission to set up the primaries on November 23 and the annual election, December 14, and change the site of city elections to the Stuart Youth Center to provide more comfort for poll workers and voters, who often have been cold in the open-front firehouse at mid-winter elections.

November 7's county election will be held in the firehouse, as advertised, but probably county elections in Precinct 4 will be held at the Youth Center.

The next commission meeting will be held October 18, but no meeting will be held October 25, at which time board members will attend a municipal association convention.

PTA Meets Monday

The Jensen Beach P.T.A. will meet Monday, October 18 at 8:00 p.m. at the school cafeteria.

A skit entitled "Reflections of You" will be presented, according to Mrs. G. W. Snipes, Jr., program chairman. Guest speaker for the evening will be Mr. Peterson of the Fort Salerno Elementary School who will speak on the Pioneer School.

All parents are urged to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Don Gale Returns

A former school teacher in the Martin County schools, Don Gale, has returned from Ecuador, where he has been associated with a U. S. Cultural Center for the past two years.

Gale graduated from the University of Minnesota with a Bachelor of Arts degree and taught Spanish and history at Martin County High School. He spent a year at Cornell University before going to Ecuador.

THIS IS A NOZZLE--Troy Taylor, 16 1/2 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Taylor of Westwood, seems to be chief for a day and points out the shiny hose nozzle on the front of one of Jensen Volunteer Fire Department trucks. Troy visited the Fire Department as part of a group from the Troy Tots Day Care Center in Jensen Beach.

Acts Against Unauthorized Trips

The County Commission agreed Tuesday that county officials and employees who send out of county conventions or other activities had better obtain prior approval or permission of the commission, otherwise they will be expected to pay their own expenses.

The commission accepted a resolution setting a new policy after a civil defense official attended a session at Las Vegas, Nevada, then asked permission upon his return. Also, similar moves have been made by the County Agriculture Department.

It was pointed out by the members of the board that John W. Keller, veterans' agent, personnel from the county clerk's office, and others invariably obtain permission first.

Keller will attend a meeting of the Mental Health Association, a four-county meeting held at Vero Beach October 21. He requested at least one commissioner to accompany him.

According to Keller, Rep. William E. Owens and Sen. Irlo Bronson will attend.

Permission was granted Keller to also attend a veterans' service officers' school on November 3 to 5 on the Florida West Coast.

Tooker Credited With Victory; Wins Supreme Court Decision

The U. S. Supreme Court ruled County Attorney Dan Tooker on Monday that the Florida East Coast Railway petition to overturn a Florida Supreme Court decision had been denied.

Details of the ruling were vs, but Tooker said he felt it meant the Alice Ave., Rio line was finally won by the county and since the ruling came from the country's highest court, the decision would be far reaching in Florida.

Previously, the FEC charged counties and municipalities for the cost of constructing warning signals and other mechanisms at Fide crossings, had been saving the right to designate where they could be located and had been forcing to counties to acquire at their own cost, the land on which to construct them.

Tooker, who fought the case from its beginning in Circuit Court here about four years ago said, "All that is now."

The County Attorney received the news in the form of a telegram from John F. Davis, clerk of the U. S. Supreme Court late Monday afternoon. He said an order would follow.

Tooker predicted many road grade crossings in Martin County on the FEC and the Seaboard Airline which has not been involved in the controversy.

Following the filing of a writ of certiorari by the railroad, Tooker appeared before the U.S. court on July 21.

Tooker maintained at the time that the U.S. court had no jurisdiction over the Florida courts and that a substantial federal question had not been raised. It also pointed out that the Florida Supreme Court acted in favor of the county by 5 to 3.

Initially filed here in January, 1962, it was ordered out of court by Judge C. Fletcher Trowbridge for incorrectness in April, 1962. The suit was re-filed on May 8, 1962 and was tried early in December after many attempts to compromise failed.

Judge Trowbridge ruled in favor of the county on February 19, 1963, saying that the county had the right to condemn an easement at Alice Ave., which the railroad had closed without notice December, 1961.

The land, containing .114 acre, was bought for $200.

In the State Supreme Court Chief Justice B. Harris Drew, Justices B. K. Roberts, Campbell Thornal, Stephen O'Connell and Richard W. Ervin held for the county and backed Judge Trowbridge's ruling. Justice Elwyn Thomas dissented "because the court is without jurisdiction."

In the fight, Tooker met many attorneys including chief council for the railroad, John B. L'Engle; the law firm of Parker, Jordan and Marking; Harold Colee, Jr., and H. T. Cook of St. Augustine; David W. Peck and Roy H. Steyer of New York, the latter on the U.S. Supreme Court level.

The New York law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell were also on the high level.

Earlier estimated costs of the grade crossing were the land taking at $200, the cost of building the fill roadbed

SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED--to the fire fighting equipment of the Jensen Beach Fire Department in the form of a fire screen, a 75 foot wall of water 25 feet high, which protects buildings and firemen. Chief Randolph Spinney demonstrated it to the children of the Jensen Beach Elementary School last Thursday during a fire drill.

Questions And Answers About Newspapers

(Newspaper readers and the general public often have questions about newspapers, questions about newspapers, news coverage, and news policies. This periodic series will provide information important to you as a newspaper reader. You are invited to send in your questions about newspapers.)

1. In what way are newspapers and readers "Partners in Freedom"?

Ans. Newspapers defend the rights of individuals against entrenched power or arrogant abuse of public office. They fight to keep doors open when public business is being transacted, and support justice by insisting that every individual be treated equally before the law.

2. How do newspapers perform public service?

Ans. By skillful and thorough disclosure of bad situations, revealed so that citizen action can correct them; by reasoned, logical advocacy of good things to be acquired for the community; and by keeping a vigilant eye on the public business of a community, newspapers insure against wrongdoing and inefficiency.

3. Do good newspapers ever take a stand which is unpopular with many of their readers?

Ans. Many newspapers have fought for causes they believed right, suffering advertising and circulation boycotts. They were willing to risk the existence of their own publication for a just cause in the public interest.

4. Are good newspapers willing to challenge the sources of organized power?

Ans. Newspapers in Washington, Nashville, Des Moines and Portland, Oregon carried on the most arduous, painstaking and conscientious investigation of the Teamsters Union, investing much time and money in the cases. The list of racketeers exposed is a long one.

5. Are good newspapers interested in protecting the consumer from fraud?

Ans. Every year, newspapers reject millions of dollars worth of advertising which is misleading and fraudulent. They also disclose the facts behind many rackets and racketeers for the public good.

6. Why do newspapers perform these public services?

Ans. Good newspapers know that it is their duty and their responsibility to do all they can to improve their communities. Run-down, corrupt, unprogressive cities will have newspapers which are not doing public service. The honestly-run, progressive, growing cities where people delight to live.

7. What is the responsibility of the newspaper reader?

Ans. This troubles the conscientious publisher and editor. In our kind of society there can be no substitute for good newspapers. Can there, then, be any substitute for the receptive and conscientious reader? A great deal would seem to depend on the answer, since we need both if our society is to remain free, open and independent.

Martin Has 10,707 Voters Registered

Mrs. Isabel Evans, Supervisor of Registration announced last week that there are 10,707 registered voters in Martin County, a substantial increase.

She also commented that the 1965 session of the Legislature had "done an excellent job of clarifying and updating election laws."

Mrs. Evans said some of the improvements in methods included the special card to be issued to the illiterate, blind or handicapped to permit aid to voting.

She said she was sending letters to explain the new law to those she felt needed help and hoped others would come to her office.

The new rolls will be used in the Nov. 2 election but on November 10, voters will be removed from the rolls if they have not used their prerogative to vote in the past two elections, including the one on Nov. 2.

There are 7,154 eligible freeholders on the rolls who may vote in the school millage election on Nov. 2. Mrs. Evans said she felt there might be some confusion because of one change in the law that permits those who pay the new trailer tax to become freeholders.

Adding to this, Tax Collector Alvin N. Andrews will not be sending out the tax bills to trailerites until the end of October.

Receipted bills must be presented by those wishing to vote as freeholders a few days later. Even though billed, if the tax is not paid, the new taxpayers will not be permitted to vote.

The four mills being suggested for approval by the school board may be approved, disapproved or the voter may suggest any millage from one to 10 on the machine.

Total registrations by precincts are as follows:

Precinct 1, Jensen Beach, Democrats, 1582; Republicans, 312; Independents, 14, total, 1468.

Inlet Report Tells Story

The proposed St. Lucie inlet report, as made by the U. S. Corps of Engineers, shows the inlet, artificial, opened 73 years ago by local interests in 1892.

This report is available from the U.S. Corps at Jacksonville for $2.

The Corp investigation was under the direction of Joe J. Koperski, chief of the engineering division at the Jacksonville District office.

The cost for the whole job runs between $1 million and $2 million. If the project is agreed upon from the county level up, the cost will be paid by the Federal government, relieving local interests of all but a small share and will cost an estimated $4,000 annually.

Taken into consideration are offshore breakwaters, one northeast of the inlet, a straight line unit off the "bathtub" reefs, the other just south and running to the east with a break south, from the present north jetty.

There would be a south jetty running from the tip of the point just south and east of No. 4 buoy and it would run eastward to a point south of the middle of the present north jetty.

The access channel from the sea would run straight to the Crossroads. Under the maintenance project, the present meandering channel would be maintained without many changes, at 100 feet wide and six feet deep.

The channel would be deeper, up to 10 feet, but not much wider under the million dollar plan.

The Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife of the U.S. Dept. of the Interior as well as the State Bureau of Conservation, Division of Salt Water Fisheries, and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, U.S. Dept. of Interior all objected in the suggestion of spoil areas at the south side of the inlet, protesting that it would be "injurious to fishing interests."

Several other comprehensive plans are presented in the report but are too lengthy to be reviewed.

Local fishermen say improvement of the inlet would increase their annual commercial catch figure.

The report goes on to say that the Peck Lake Inlet, which closed August 23, 1963, was broken by a severe storm in March, 1962 and threatened to close the economically valuable Intracoastal Waterway entirely, necessitating its closing.

Many objected to the closing because, in spite of an added eight miles for boats going to sea, the inlet became popular with all craft going offshore in anything near rough water and small boats in all water.

The reports seems to indicate that over a period of not too many years, additional Federal participation in the overall improvement plan could be considered.

School Board Discusses Prayer In Schools

The Martin County Board of Public Instruction held its regular meeting Tuesday morning with Mrs. Jeanette Odom opening it with a prayer.

The board stated that the omission of a prayer before the Clewiston football game was an oversight on the part of both school officials and the county ministerial association and that future games would be opened with a prayer.

The board adopted a new amendment which eliminates all prayers from the classrooms of Martin County in accordance with a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

The new policy states that "The United States Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional the Florida law which requires the teacher to 'Have, once every day, readings in the presence of the pupils from the Holy Bible without sectarian comment.'"

However, the ruling does not forbid the participation of students in patriotic exercises such as the pledge of allegiance to the flag in which God's name is used.

It does not forbid teaching about religion as a normal part of the study of history, literature or other subjects.

The concluding paragraph of the amendment states, "The schools are not required to be and should not be silent about God...have a responsibility to present knowledge about religion and to assist students to develop an understanding of the role which religion has played in the growth and development of our nation."

In another policy change, credit requirements in both junior and senior high schools were altered including, in high school, English, three; Math, two; science, two; social studies, two; physical education, one.

Bid openings for additions to various schools will be opened at a special meeting to be held Nov. 1 at 10 a.m.

In other business, the board appointed Mrs. Betty Jean Harrell as maid at the Jensen Beach School and the appointment of Jack Smoke as director of the Federal 89-10 law on elementary and secondary schools.

Free literature on water management, public recreation, conservation, and salinity abatement is available on request to: FCD, P. O. Box 1671, West Palm Beach.

Eagle Burning On October 14th

Every year the night before the Ft. Pierce game, there is a traditional Eagle burning or bonfire, held on the practice field behind the Jr. High. Thursday night, the 14th, the Eagel Burning will be held.

Two years ago Ft. Pierce made a touchdown in the last second but the Tigers retaliated last year with a victory of 25-0.

The spirit is running high this year, and the students and team have not let the 19-0 loss to Lake Worth last week get them down.

Local fishermen say improvement of the inlet would increase their annual commercial catch fieure.

The report goes on to say that the Peck Lake Inlet, which closed August 23, 1963, was broken by a severe storm in March, 1962 and threatened to close the economically valuable Intracoastal Waterway entirely, necessitating its closing.

Many objected to the closing because, in spite of an added eight miles for boats going to sea, the inlet became popular with all craft going offshore in anything near rough water and small boats in all water.

The reports seems to indicate that over a period of not too many years, additional Federal participation in the overall improvement plan could be considered.

School Board Discusses Prayer In Schools

The Martin County Board of Public Instruction held its regular meeting Tuesday morning with Mrs. Jeanette Odom opening it with a prayer.

The board stated that the omission of a prayer before the Clewiston football game was an oversight on the part of both school officials and the county ministerial association and that future games would be opened with a prayer.

The board adopted a new amendment which eliminates all prayers from the classrooms of Martin County in accordance with a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

The new policy states that "The United States Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional the Florida law which requires the teacher to 'Have, once every day, readings in the presence of the pupils from the Holy Bible without sectarian comment."

However, the ruling does not forbid the participation of students in patriotic exercises such as the pledge of allegiance to the flag in which God's name is used.

It does not forbid teaching about religion as a normal part of the study of history, literature or other subjects.

The concluding paragraph of the amendment states, "The schools are not required to be and should not be silent about God...have a responsibility to present knowledge about religion and to assist students to develop an understanding of the role which religion has played in the growth and development of our nation."

In another policy change, credit requirements in both junior and senior high schools were altered including, in high school, English, three; Math, two; science, two; social studies, two; physical education, one.

Bid openings for additions to various schools will be opened at a special meeting to be held Nov. 1 at 10 a.m.

In other business, the board appointed Mrs. Betty Jean Harrell as maid at the Jensen Beach School and the appointment of Jack Smouse as director of the Federal 89-10 law on elementary and secondary schools.

Free literature on water management, public recreation, conservation, and salinity abatement is available on request to: FCD, P. O. Box 1671, West Palm Beach.

Eagle Burning On October 14th

Every year the night before the FL Pierce game, there is a traditional Eagle burning or bonfire, held on the practice field behind the Jr. High. Thursday night, the 14th, the Eagel Burning will be held.

Two years ago FL Pierce made a touchdown in the last second but the Tigers retaliated last year with a victory of 25-0.

The spirit is running high this year, and the students and team have not let the 19-0 loss to Lake Worth last week get them down.

The Garden Club of Stuart, beginning its 30th year, met Monday, October 11 with Mrs. Edward H. Schmidt of Delray Beach as guest speaker. "Say Yes to Herbs in Florida" was Mrs. Schmidt's topic.

The District 10 Annual Meeting of Federated Garden Clubs will be held in Boca Raton on October 29. Those interested in attending are requested to contact the president, Mrs. Arnold W. Gesner.

A letter was read from Mr. Fred Bell, county engineer, commending the Garden Club for the beauty and design of the plantings immediately adjacent to the city limits.

Mrs. Charles Munch introduced Mrs. J. A. Papp, a new member.

Those wishing Garden Club calendars may contact Mrs. Joseph Cress, Ways and Means chairman.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Philip B. Williams, Mrs. Garnett Kegley, Mrs. Edward Rogers, Mrs. Howard Reiner, Mrs. Ross Witham and Mrs. Max Zeller.

Firemen Of The Year

David Franklin Plaster, 29, a Jacksonville fireman, has been selected Florida's First Fireman of the Year, 1965.

THANK YOU

Thank you to the people of Martin Memorial Hospital and to all my friends for the cards and letters, and a special thanks to my "white angels", and Mrs. Burke and my roommate, Jane, for making my stay in the hospital so pleasant.

Berdie Roberts

He was selected from among candidates for the outstanding fireman citation from throughout Florida. During his five years on the force, Plaster was cited for heroism in rescuing two city workers from a gas-filled sewer and for heroic efforts during the recent Roosevelt Hotel fire.

Michael Zarella, a large scale farmer in the Tropical Farms area purchased just under five square miles of farmland from Bessemer Properties, Inc., a Delaware corporation, for $385,000.

HAS ANYONE SEEN THAT FOOTBALL?--Not shown in the picture, the ball was well over the heads of these Tigers and Trojans as they played last Friday Night's game at Lake Worth. Stuart lost to the Trojans by a score of 19-0.

Don Stiller Named Tiger Of The Week

Don Stiller, a Senior, was chosen "Tiger of the Week" for the Clewiston game.

Choosing the player for the honored position is up to the coaches. They watch for the one boy who tries harder than the rest, the one that gets the best results from his efforts.

Every member of the team has to call the player who receives this recognition "Mr.". Because of this, every team member tries to do his very best to help win the game.

Martin County High Students Commended

Letters of commendation for their high performance on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test given last spring were received by two Martin County High School students.

Among the 38,000 students across the nation recognized for scoring in the top two per cent of students completing high school in 1966 were Mary M. McCormick and Arthur H. Speedy.

Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. McCormick of 110 Atlanta Avenue, Stuart and Arthur is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Huber Speedy of 408 Madison Avenue, Stuart.

The two students rank just below the 14,000 semi-finalists announced last month.

Miss McCormick hopes to study at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. to become a medical records librarian.

Arthur hopes to become a space engineer and to attend the science engineering school at Florida State University at Tallahassee.

Inlet Report Tells Story

The proposed St. Lucie Inlet report, as made by the U. S. Corps of Engineers, shows the inlet as artificial, opened 73 years ago by local interests in 1892.

This report is available from the U.S. Corps at Jacksonville for $3.

The Corp's investigation was under the direction of Col. J. Koperski, chief of the engineering division at the Jacksonville District office.

The cost for the whole job runs between $1 million and $2 million. If the project is agreed upon from the county level up, the cost will be paid by the Federal government, relieving local interests of all but a small share and will cost an estimated $4,000 annually.

Taken into consideration are offshore breakwaters, one northeast of the inlet, a straight line unit off the "Bathtub" reefs, the other just south and running to the east with a break south, from the present north jetty.

There would be a south jetty running from the tip of the point just south and east of No. 8 buoy and it would run eastward to a point south of the middle of the present north jetty.

The access channel from the sea would run straight to the Crossroads. Under the maintenance project, the present meandering channel would be maintained without many changes, at 100 feet wide and six feet deep.

The channel would be deeper, up to 10 feet, but not much wider under the million dollar plan.

The Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife of the U.S. Dept. of the Interior as well as the State Bureau of Conservation, Division of Salt Water Fisheries, and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, U.S. Dept. of Interior all objected to the suggestion of spoil areas at the south side of the inlet, protesting that it would be "injurious to fishing interests."

Several other comprehensive plans are presented in the report but are too lengthy to be reviewed.

Local fishermen say improvement of the inlet would increase their annual commercial catch figure.

The report goes on to say that the Park Lake Inlet, which closed August 23, 1947, was broken by a severe storm in March, 1962 and threatened to close the economically valuable Intracoastal Waterway entirely, necessitating its closing.

Many objected to the closing because, in spite of an added eight rifles for boats going to sea, the inlet became popular with all craft going offshore in anything near rough water and small boats in all water.

The report seems to indicate that over a period of not too many years, additional federal participation in the overall improvement plan could be considered.

School Board Discusses Prayer In Schools

The Martin County Board of Public Instruction held its regular meeting Tuesday morning with Mrs. Jeanette Odom opening it with a prayer.

The board stated that the omission of a prayer before the Clewiston football game was an oversight on the part of both school officials and the county ministerial association and that future games would be opened with a prayer.

The board adopted a new amendment which eliminates all prayers from the classrooms of Martin County in accordance with a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

The new policy states that "The United States Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional the Florida law which requires the teacher to "have, once every day, readings in the presence of the pupils from the Holy Bible without sectarian comment."

However, the ruling does not forbid the participation of students in patriotic exercises such as the pledge of allegiance to the flag in which God's name is used.

It does not forbid teaching about religion as a normal part of the study of history, literature or other subjects.

The concluding paragraph of the amendment states, "The schools are not required to be and should not be silent about God...have a responsibility to present knowledge about religion and to assist students to develop an understanding of the role which religion has played in the growth and development of our nation."

In another policy change, credit requirements in both junior and senior high schools were altered including, in high school, English, three; Math, two; science, two; social studies, two; physical education, one.

Bid openings for additions to various schools will be opened at a special meeting to be held Nov. 1 at 10 a.m.

In other business, the board appointed Mrs. Betty Jean Harrell as maid at the Jensen Beach School and the appointment of Jack Smouse as director of the Federal ESEA law on elementary and secondary schools.

Free literature on water management, public recreation, conservation, and salinity abatement is available on request to: FCD, P. O. Box 1671, West Palm Beach.

Eagle Burning On October 14th

Every year the night before the Ft. Pierce game, there is a traditional Eagle burning or bonfire, held on the practice field behind the Jr. High. Thursday night, the 14th, the Eagel Burning will be held.

Two years ago Ft. Pierce made a touchdown in the last second but the Tigers retaliated last year with a victory of 25-0.

The spirit is running high this year, and the students and team have not let the 19-0 loss to Lake Worth last week get them down.

Garden Club Meet

The Garden Club of Stuart, beginning its 30th year, met Monday, October 11 with Mrs. Edward H. Schmidt of Delray Beach as guest speaker. "Say Yes to Herbs in Florida" was Mrs. Schmidt's topic.

The District 10 Annual Meeting of Federated Garden Clubs will be held in Boca Raton on October 29. Those interested in attending are requested to contact the president, Mrs. Arnold W. Geezer.

A letter was read from Mr. Fred Bell, county engineer, commending the Garden Club for the beauty and design of the plantings immediately adjacent to the city limits.

Mrs. Charles Munch introduced Mrs. J. A. Papp, a new member.

Those wishing Garden Club calendars may contact Mrs. Joseph Cress, Ways and Means chairman.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Phillip R. Williams, Mrs. Garnett Kegley, Mrs. Edward Rogers, Mrs. Howard Reiner, Mrs. Rose Witham and Mrs. Max Zeller.

Firemen Of The Year

David Franklin Plaster, 30, a Jacksonville fireman, has been selected Florida's First Fireman of the Year, 1965.

THANK YOU

Thank you to the people of Martin Memorial Hospital and to all my friends for the cards and letters, and a special thanks to my "white angels", and Mrs. Burke and my roommate, Jane, for making my stay in the hospital so pleasant.

Berdie Roberts

He was selected from among candidates for the outstanding fireman citation from throughout Florida. During his five years on the force, Plaster was cited for heroism in rescuing two city workers from a gasfilled sewer and for heroic efforts during the recent Roosevelt Hotel fire.

Michael Zarella, a large scale farmer in the Tropical Farms area purchased just under five square miles of farmland from Bessemer Properties, Inc., a Delaware corporation, for $281,800.

HAS ANYONE SEEN THAT FOOTBALL?--Not shown in the picture, the ball was well over the heads of these Tigers and Trojans as they played last Friday Night's game at Lake Worth. Stuart lost to the Trojans by a score of 19-0.

Don Stiller Named Tiger Of The Week

Don Stiller, a Senior, was chosen "Tiger of the Week" for the Clewiston game.

Choosing the player for the honored position is up to the coaches. They watch for the one boy who tries harder than the rest, the one that gets the best results from his efforts.

Every member of the team has to call the player who receives this recognition "Mr.". Because of this, every team member tries to do his very best to help win the game.

Martin County High Students Commended

Letters of commendation for their high performance on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test given last spring were received by two Martin County High School students.

Among the 38,000 students across the nation recognized for scoring in the top two per cent of students completing high school in 1966 were Mary M. McCormick and Arthur H. Speedy.

Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. McCormick of 110 Atlanta Avenue, Stuart and Arthur is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Huber Speedy of 408 Madison Avenue, Stuart.

The two students rank just below the 14,000 semi-finalists announced last month.

Miss McCormick hopes to study at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. to become a medical records librarian.

Arthur hopes to become a space engineer and to attend the science engineering school at Florida State University at Tallahassee.

Inlet Report Tells Story

The proposed St. Lucie Inlet report, as made by the U. S. Corps of Engineers, shows the inlet as artificial, opened 73 years ago by local interests in 1892.

This report is available from the U.S. Corps at Jacksonville for $2.

The Corp investigation was under the direction of Joe J. Koperski, chief of the engineering division at the Jacksonville District office.

The cost for the whole job runs between $1 million and $2 million. If the project is agreed upon from the county level up, the cost will be paid by the Federal government, relieving local interests of all but a small share and will cost an estimated $4,000 annually.

Taken into consideration are offshore breakwaters, one northeast of the inlet, a straight line unit off the "Bathtub" reefs, the other just south and running to the east with a break south, from the present north jetty.

There would be a south jetty running from the tip of the point just south and east of No. 8 buoy and it would run eastward to a point south of the middle of the present north jetty.

The access channel from the sea would run straight to the Crossroads. Under the maintenance project, the present meandering channel would be maintained without many changes, at 100 feet wide and six feet deep.

The channel would be deeper, up to 10 feet, but not much wider under the million dollar plan.

The Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife of the U.S. Dept. of the Interior as well as the Sanibureau of Conservation, Division of Salt Water Fisheries, and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, U.S. Dept. of Interior all objected to the suggestion of spoil areas at the south side of the Inlet, protesting that it would be "injurious to fishing interests."

Several other comprehensive plans are presented in the report but are too lengthy to be reviewed.

Local fishermen say improvement of the inlet would increase their annual commercial catch figure.

The report goes on to say that after Peck Lake Inlet, which closed August 23, 1963, was broken by a severe storm in March, 1962 and threatened to close the economically valuable Intracoastal Waterway entirely, necessitating its closing.

Many objected to the closing because, in spite of an added eight miles for boats going to sea, the inlet became popular with all craft going offshore in anything near rough water and small boats in all weather.

The reports seems to indicate that over a period of not too many years, additional Federal participation in the overall improvement plan could be considered.

Walter Bauman Finds Family After 50 Years

Connie and Walter Bauman, presently staying with Dr. and Mrs. Charles Behringer in New York, have much to tell of their experiences in Europe this past summer, according to a letter received from them this week by The Mirror.

Walter's brother and sister, though born in Scotland, returned to Germany with their parents just prior to the First World War. Walter came to America.

Years passed and, as is often the case, he lost touch with them. After the Second World War he tried to locate them through the Red Cross and private channels, always ending in a blind alley. The last known address he had was Dresden, and since that city had been practically obliterated in 1945, it was assumed the family had perished.

The thought persisted that someone must surely have survived, and when in Germany in 1961 he discovered a cousin in Hannover who told him the good news that both brother and sister were alive and living in a suburb of Dresden. Unluckily that year it was impossible to get into East Germany, and the best he could do was to talk with them on the telephone.

This year, armed with visas and other documents, Connie and Walter drove across the East German border into Berlin and finally Dresden where they spent six happy days with the brother and sister whom he had never expected to see again. He was even brash enough to buck the East German officials and secured a special permit for his sister to visit West Germany for a four-week vacation! Now his dream is to get her into the United States.

After Germany Connie and Walter visited Denmark, Holland, Belgium and finally England where Connie visited her folks.

The Baumans expect to return to their home in Palm City this week.

The new plot was sold by Russell M. Wright, individually and as trustee, and his wife, Dorothy C. Wright, of Detroit for a purchase price of $65,000.

Arthur G. Gudra, Jr., president of Martin Motels, Inc. could not be reached last week because he was on his way from Memphis, Tenn. to Hot Springs, he local agents said he had plans for the new purchase at present.

County Asks Alternate A-1-A Designation

At the request of the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce, the County Commission, at its meeting on Tuesday, adopted a resolution asking the State Road Department to designate Indian River Drive, from Jensen Beach to Fort Pierce, Alternate A1A. It is now designated SR Temporary A1A and, in parts, SR 707.

On Hutchinson Island, signs will be erected at the northeast and southwest corners of the intersection of A1A and Jensen Beach Causeway, showing Jensen Beach and Rio across the causeway to the west.

The Alternate A1A designation on Indian River Drive would include Sewall's Point Road to Oceanway, just west of the St. Lucie River Bridge, named for Evans Crary, Sr.

By resolution, the name of Detroit Avenue in the Town of Ocean Breeze Park was changed to Ocean Breeze Drive, as requested by Mayor Harry H. Hoke.

Griffin Memorial Is Tabled

The County Commission postponed action for two weeks Tuesday to permit the public to inform them how it felt about the naming of a park for the late Jesse Griffin, park superintendent for 18 years, and a county employee for 30 years.

Most of the development work at Sandcrit Park, a camper's paradise on Manatee Pocket, Fort Salerno, was accomplished by Griffin, Albert Walker, Rio, had suggested to the board that Sandcrit Park be named for Griffin.

Commissioner Jack Sanderson said, "I would like to know how the public feels."

FIREWORKS

The Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen, under the direction of William "Boom-Boom" Yurilla, have just about completed the display of fireworks that will offer the most extensive pyrotechnic show South Florida has ever seen, at 7 p.m. October 23, during the big Jensen Beach Area celebration of the dedication of Frank A. Wacha Bridge.

According to local firemen, plans have been completed for holding the fireworks, and according to Randolph Spinney, Chief, the famous firemen's barbeque will be served from 11 a.m. until the entire day's activities end.

Incumbents Seek Re-election For City

Incumbents Jack Hartman, Mayor William P. Todt and Vice-Mayor Arthur E. Sims have filed for re-election for city commission posts.

Each is nearing the end of second terms on the board.

No other candidates have appeared at this time. Candidates may file through November 8 if warranted, there will be a primary on November 23 and the general election will be held Dec. 14.

City Judge Harry F. Dyer, who has 21 terms in the office, will also seek election.

He has served since 1939, when he succeeded T. T.

Oughterson, who resigned the position to become county prosecutor.

Gluckler Is Cited

Two conservation award on behalf of the Florida Wildlife Federation and the Roosevelt Foundation to Palm Beach and Martin County recipients were announced belatedly by Robert T. Ball, president of the Indian-Lucie Rivers Restoration League.

Cited were Ed Gluckler, Post-Times bureau chief in Martin County, of Stuart, and William and Gwen Lee, as a husband and wife team of Jupiter.

Certificates and medals were presented for work and writings in connection with the Jupiter Estates subdivision additions in the Loxahatchee River.

Oyster Take Limited

The county commission, at its Tuesday meeting, acted by resolution that a two-bushel limit per person be placed on the taking of oysters in legal, state-approved beds.

The issue was raised by Commissioner Jack Sanderson, who stated that local beds will be depleted in short order unless a limit is placed on the number taken.

The motion resulted in a unanimous vote.

The complete schedule of events is listed on this page.

Co-chairmen of the day are Philip M. Baker and Mrs. Willard Bowman.

Construction of the structure spanning the Intracoastal Waterway between State Road 707 at Jensen Beach and A-1-A on Hutchinson Island was started May 7, 1964.

Work on the $765,999 bridge, which is 932 feet, and the two-lane roadway approaches to the bridge included removal of the old wooden existing bridge. The new structure is equipped with an electrically-operated double-leaf bascule span.

Scott Construction Co., Inc., of Thomasville, Ga., was the contractor on the project.

The completion of this new facility, referred to as the Jensen Beach Causeway, is another in a series of construction projects designed to provide a continuous route for State Road A-1-A while providing easy access to neighboring communities neighboring communities.

In late July and early August this year, work was completed on the construction of this vital state route in St. Lucie County. The highway was constructed from the Martin County line north 10 miles on Hutchinson Island at a cost of $1,013,026.

On February 27, Chairman Bowen was the chief speaker at the dedication of the Sebastian Inlet Bridge. The construction of this $745,000 structure and a $528,600 project to construct a 6.2 mile portion of A-1-A south of the bridge made it possible for a motorist to drive from Fort Pierce to Cape Kennedy without returning to the mainland.

The State Road Department will soon initiate work on the segment of A-1-A north of this bridge.

During the recent session of the Florida Legislature the Martin County delegation introduced a resolution, passed unanimously by both houses, designating this bridge on State Road 707-A as the "Frank A. Wacha" Bridge.

Audubon Calls For Mass Support To Save The Loxahatchee River

Martin County conservation, service, sportsmen's and social clubs and organizations were called upon by the Martin County Audubon Society to attend a mass meeting of club leaders as soon as it can be set up to fight for the preservation of the Loxahatchee River.

The call was made at a meeting of the directors of the Audubon Society held on Tuesday night.

Earlier, Mrs. Wilbur Forrest, local Audubon leader and a director in the Florida Audubon Society, and Mrs. Edna Hazelwood, president of the local society, had led a move under which the state society protested the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District and U.S. Corps of Engineers long-range plan to make a drainage canal of the Northwest Fork of the Loxahatchee River, in Martin County, and bordering the Jonathan Dickinson State Park.

Delegates said they would seek the aid of Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson if necessary, to prevent the ruination of the river.

The directors also voted to send a letter to Gov. Haydon Burns and state and federal officers in the House and Senate, protesting the "senseless project, in view of the hundreds of millions of dollars being spent for preservation and conservation." The vote also endorsed the state and national stands on the Loxahatchee.

Riptiders 'Gasp' For Director

Riptide Players "last gasp" search for a director will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Shuffleboard Clubhouse on East Ocean Blvd. in Stuart.

Lack of a director has hindered the development of plays, and lack of a director of experience keeps most of the players from taking part.

Owens Is Praised

According to John Marr, President of the Florida Mobile Home Owner's Association, the Association has sent Representative William E. Owens a letter commending his stand on Amendment #5 which will be voted upon by the electorate in the coming election. If approved, this Amendment will set up for mobile homes a plan of equal taxation throughout the state, based on the length of mobile homes.

Mr. Marr states that at the present time mobile home owners do not benefit from tax exemption privileges and are obliged to pay personal property taxes, which they consider to be unfair and excessive taxation.

According to Mr. Marr, it is contended that adoption of Amendment 5 by vote on November 2 will restore revenues to the state and county governments and relieve present taxes which, he says have discouraged the development of the mobile home industry in the state.

Stuart Budget Is OK'd

At a brief meeting Monday night, the city commission adopted a $436,188 budget on two readings as Emergency Ord. 404, and set the tax millage for the coming fiscal year at five mills for the entire city, plus 2 1/2 mills for debt service in old town and two mills in annex.

City Manager Joe N. Crowder had given the budget to the commissioners last week for study.

A group of Negros, who attended the meeting, asked the city to provide a cemetery for them, and the commission voted unanimously to do it.

An area in the southwestern part of Fern Hill Cemetery was set aside for them. There will be a 26 foot roadway for an entrance, and room for 672 individual graves. The group was informed that the graves could be purchased as singles or doubles, for four, six or eight caskets.

According to Crowder, the corner markings will be put in and the area will be ready for use in two to three weeks.

Backed unanimously by the commission was the planning board's unanimous decision of October 13 to recommend no zoning change at a triangular lot at East Ocean, Martin and St. Lucie Blvds., a top residential zoning area, to C-1 business, as requested.

October 27 Is Set In First Mortgage Suit Actions Here

A hearing has been set for October 27 by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge in circuit court, of all interests in two suits involving R.C. Fernon dominated companies.

The hearing will involve not only the First Mortgage Corp. of Stuart, against which A. G. Hunsinger, a minority stockholder on his and other stockholders' behalf by Attorney Elton Schwarz, but also the collateral suit filed against other Fernon companies by the Florida Securities Commission.

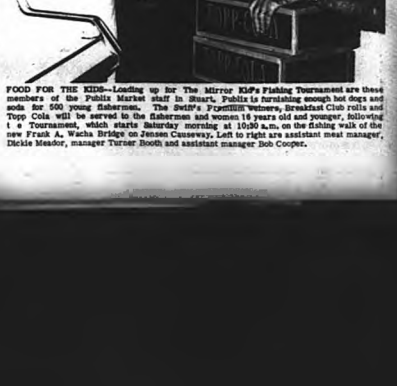
Included are Commmer Credit Corp., Indian River Loan Co., Central Factors, Inc., Tower Credit Corp., and Florida Financial Co.

Attorney Robert J. Randolph of Stuart, and the Miami law firm of Walton, Lantaff, Schroeder, Atkins, Carson and Wahl, representing the Fernon corporations under suit by the state, moved 'that the hearing be set ahead to October 27 for all matters. Monday had been the date originally set for a hearing on motions for dismissal on the long list of defendants.

The motion filed in the state case alleged the court lacks jurisdiction, both on the defendants and on the subject, that the venue was improper and that it failed to state a cause of action.

The motion filed by the same attorneys in the Hunsinger suit, adds a fifth ground, that the First Mortgage Corp. is being handled under the jurisdiction of the bankrupcy court.

All other interested attorneys of record were notified by Schwarz in a notice filed late Monday.



FOOD FOR THE KIDS—Loading up for The Mirror Kid's Fishing Tournament are these members of the Publix Market staff in Stuart. Publix is furnishing enough hot dogs and sods for 500 young fishermen. 64-65 Annuals Finally Arrive

The 64-65 High School Annuals (Macosh) finally arrived last Tuesday (12th) six weeks late.

The annuals were supposed to come in sometime in the middle of August, however, the staff put in a dedication page for Jane Raphel and then they were to arrive around the first of September.

When they were shipped Hurricane Betsy helped them get lost in New Orleans, to the dismay of the Macosh staff.

The shipment got to the High School Tuesday and here was an Annual Sign-them.

The annual itself is quite a pretty product of lots of hard work. The cover is royal blue. On the front there is a gold embossed seal with the school letters in a shield with wings set in the downward curves on top of the shield. Above the wings is the lamp of eternal light.

The name of the annual, MACOSH, derived from the words Martin County Senior High, is below the seal in white raised letters.

Linda Kruse, a four year art student, designed the cover.

STRIKE A POSE--Painters of the Nettles Cove Surfing Association take brush in hand to pose for the Mirror camera as a brief respite is taken to allow one of the coats of paint in the new clubhouse to harden on the walls. The members are, needless to say, quite proud of their artistic handiwork.

Surfers Club Readies Meeting Room

The Nettles Cove Surfing Association is painting up and fixing up a clubhouse. Donated for the use of the area young men and women by Warner Tilton, the clubhouse is located across from the present post office on Commercial Street in downtown Jensen Beach.

The members of the club have been painting and designing the interior of the club with bright and colorful paint, and hanging pictures of surfers on the walls.

Heading the club is Lee Smith, as president. Mickey Merwarth and Larry Anderson are the other officers. All are from Stuart.

The club has 30 members who pay $2 a month in dues. The dues are used for picnics, to pay for films on surfing and to buy shirts with the club name on them.

With both teams undefeated going into the game, Stuart junior varsity interrupted its winning streak by losing to the Vero Beach Braves with a score of 25-14 in last Wednesday night's game.

On Saturday morning, October 23 at 8 a.m., the Ashton Society will meet at the garage area of St. Joseph's Novitiate in Jensen Beach for a field trip along the new A-1-A road in Hutchinson Island.

TOUCHDOWN!--Tom Wyatt, Martin County High School's football team captain for the game with Ft. Pierce last Friday is pictured as he scored the only touchdown for the Tigers who were defeated by the Ft. Pierce team.

The Junior High Youth Fellowship of the Jensen Beach Community Church is having a pool party Sunday at the Sun and Palms Motel from 2:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Surfing

By Mickey Merwarth

Technically speaking, surfing is a sport in which the participants ride a buoyant object down waves. Surfing is a one hundred percent outdoor sport which keeps me near the ocean, but surfing means more than that to me. Surfing is traveling to different parts of the country in search of "that wave". Surfing is cuts and scratches, aching muscles and weary, fatigued surfers. Surfing is a feeling of power over Mother Nature, her ocean and her waves. Surfing is an ancient Roman game, in which I am the gladiator and the wave is the lion. Sometimes I win, sometimes the lion. Surfing is escape from the hectic run-amuck world and its problems of today. Surfing is a feeling of freedom, freedom from all those who call for me. I could go on for hours talking or writing about surfing, but I won't, not now. I'm going surfing.

THE LONG AWAITED DAY FINALLY ARRIVED--as students of Martin County High School are shown waiting their turn to pick up their copies of the high school year book, the "Macosh". A "signing party" was held Wednesday night at the school to enable the students to autograph the books.

Reg Walkers Return

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Walker have returned from a four months' vacation on Montgomery Lake in Yulan, New York.

During their stay, the Walkers had many visitors from New York and New Jersey visit them at their cottage. Most were railroad acquaintances from the Pennsylvania line.

While in New York, the Walkers were introduced to Dr. Robert Burns, a dentist from Jackson Heights, N.Y. who has a home in Barryville, N. Y. While visiting Dr. Burns' trophy room, Reg saw a Maine bear, several antelope caught in Wyoming and a sailfish. On examining the sail, he noticed that the certificate read, "Stuart Sailfish Club". It was a 6 ft. 6 inch sail caught from the boat "Teeper" with Capt. Dick Anderson in December, 1956. Also a coincidence was the fact that the certificate was signed by local dentist, Dr. Dale Hipson, then president of the Stuart Sailfish Club. Dr. Burns plans to come to this area this season and will stay with the Walkers.

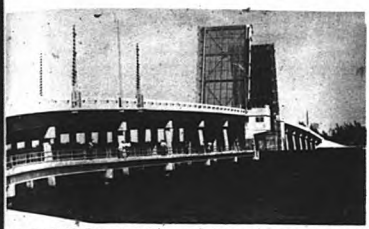
Frank A. Wacha Bridge Was Dedicated Saturday As Thousands Throng Causeway In Celebration



THE NEW BRIDGE--This is the bridge that was dedicated last Saturday in an all day celebration. Crowds estimated up to four thousand jammed the causeway during the day long program.

This Is The Man

Frank A. Wacha

Frank A. Wacha is a graduate of the University of Florida, Class of 1948, and was associated with a West Palm Beach firm of Himes and Himes, certified public accountants. In 1950, when he received his C.P.A. certificate, he started looking for an office. In 1951 he opened an office in Jensen Beach, and the next year he opened his Stuart office. In 1952 he became a partner in Himes and Himes and ten years later bought out their Stuart interest. He now operates as Frank A. Wacha, C.P.A.

Wacha is 42 years old and was born in New York City. He was a Signal Corps soldier who received his training in Florida. He spent two years with the Signal Corps in Africa and Italy during the war.

Interested in politics for many years, Wacha became active in Martin County in 1956, and was Chairman for two years, 1958-59 of the Martin County Democratic Executive Committee. In 1960 he was elected as County Commissioner from Jensen Beach for a four-year term.

Wacha has served as chairman of the County Commisston for the past five years.

He is married to the former Sara Jane Overby and resides in Jensen Beach.

Sun Breaks Through As Ceremonies Start

The welcome sun warmed the crowd of more than 500 persons who attended the dedication ceremonies last Saturday on the Causeway to name the new Frank A. Wacha Bridge.

Plans had been made for an elaborate ceremony with guests from the State Road Board, prominent officials, representatives from many civic groups, veterans' organizations, and dignitaries from Martin County and surrounding counties. The weather, which could have been a factor, smiled suddenly as the ceremonies started at 1:30 p.m.

In his dedication address, Floyd Bowen, Chairman of the State Road Board, said, it was a fitting tribute to the "outstanding civic service performed by the young man for whom it was named." Bowen praised Wacha and commended him for his leadership in Martin County.

Chelsie J. Senerchia, District Four Road Board Member, introduced Bowen, Hon. William E. Owens, Martin County's representative in the Legislature, was Master of Ceremonies, and was presented to the audience by Albert E. Palmer, Chamber of Commerce President, who made the welcoming address.

The Invocation was given by Wacha's Pastor, Rev. Donald Schroeder, Redeemer Lutheran Church in Stuart.

In his response, Wacha said, "To say thank you, I'm deeply gratified doesn't sound like much, but it must tell you that I'm sincere and thrilled." Wacha spoke extemporaneously, using no notes. He also said, with a smile, "I don't feel that dead or that great that this bridge should be named for me." He pointed out that many persons were involved in the planning and construction of the bridge, and that his associates on the board of County Commissioners were also to be recognized.

Wacha gave credit to two commissioners who had "gone along with me; Jack Saunderson and former Commissioner Jack Williamson." He also praised Commissioner Herb Bruner and other Martin County officials who had assisted him in his work as Chairman of the County Commission.

He thanked the Martin County High School Band, under the direction of Lemoyne Roll, which provided music for the occasion and also paid tribute to those who had planned the day, the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce, the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department and its Auxiliary, which provided the food for the crowd, and the Veterans' groups which took part in the ceremonies.

The people of Jensen Beach dedicate this issue to Eugene Grimm, commander of the American Legion Post of Jensen Beach, who passed away during the day, of activity on Jensen Beach Causeway Saturday.

IT IS WITH PRIDE--Floyd Bowen, chairman of State Road Board, shook the hand of the man of the day, Frank A. Wacha, as he dedicated the Frank A. Wacha Bridge in Jensen Beach last Saturday. Bowen said, "It is with pride that I introduce to you, Frank A. Wacha," and the hundreds who watched the dedication felt that pride.

HAPPY MISSUS--Sara Jane Wacha was the proudest woman of the day as she participated in the dedication of the Frank A. Wacha Bridge Saturday. Her comment..."I just can't say, I'm so happy."

WITH THESE SCISSORS--Sara Jane Wacha had the honor of cutting the ribbon to officially open the new Frank A. Wacha Bridge. The bridge was expected to be completed for the big day last Saturday, but lack of State Road Department acceptance of the final bridge (due to a faulty crossarm that is being fixed) kept the bridge closed to traffic. Left to right are Al Palmer, president of the Jensen Beach Area Chamber of Commerce; Floyd Bowen, chairman of the State Road Board; Bill Owens, state representative; Mrs. Sara Jane Wacha, chairman of the State Road Board; Bill Owens, state representative; Mrs. Sara Jane Wacha, ribbon cutter and wife; (partially hidden) Willie McCain, chairman of the St. Lucie County Commission; Frank A. Wacha, chairman of the Martin County Commission; Jack Williamson, former county commissioner; Chelsie Senerchia, District Four SRB member; Jack Saunderson, county commissioner.

MAN OF THE HOUR--Friends gathered around Frank Wacha, center, as he was congratulated on the dedication of the Frank A. Wacha Bridge last Saturday on Jensen Beach Causeway. Wacha stayed suited up for a short while following the big event, then changed to help firemas Bill "Boom-Boom" Yurillo set up the fireworks display for the evening.

Dedication Of A-1-A Is Coming Next Saturday

State Road A-1-A will be formally opened by a ribbon-cutting and appropriate ceremonies. These ceremonies will be held in the vicinity of Jaycee Park in Fort Pierce, at 2:30 P.M. Saturday, October 30, 1965.

The opening of this highway, which connects St. Lucie County with Martin County along Hutchinson Island, will finalize many years of planning and untiring effort of many past boards of County Commissioners as well as the present board and efforts of many citizens.

It should also be specifically noted that this project could not have been accomplished without the cooperation of past and present State Road Board Members who saw fit to include this highway in the State Road Department Primary Road budgets. The total length of the project from Seaway Drive south to Martin County is 14.50 miles at a cost of approximately $1,558,190, State, city, St. Lucie County and adjacent county officials are invited to attend these festivities as well as the general public, and a detailed program will be furnished at a later date.

Official dedication ceremonies of the new north bridge in St. Lucie County, the D. H. "Banty" Saunders Bridge, will take place at 11:00 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 30, at the east end of that bridge.

These festivities are being sponsored by the St. Lucie County Board of County Commissioners.

Over 200 Anglers Take Part In Tournament

At least two hundred youngsters took part in the first Jensen Beach Mirror Fishing Tournament, held last Saturday morning on the Jensen Beach Causeway as a part of the Frank A. Wacha Bridge Dedication program. Billy Hardin won top honors with a 15 1/2 inch flounder, winning a rod, reel and line in the prize-packed event.

The scene was one of organized confusion as the children, from two to sixteen years of age, took a cane pole and line and tried to catch fish from the new fishing piers alongside the new bridge.

Following a hectic hour and a half of fishing, the youngsters lined up for hot dogs and sodas as the judges made up the list of prize-winners. There were eleven winners, including one-year-old Joyce Rathgeber of Stuart.

Following is a list of winners and prizes:

1. Billy Hardin, 1 3/4 lb. flounder; 15 1/2 inch, Largest Fish; won an Aristocrat Rod, Reel and Line.

2. Second largest fish, William Andrews; 11 1/2 in. croaker, 5/8 lb; won a Hurricane Rod.

3. Smallest fish, Philip Romarin, 3 1/2 in., 1/6 lb., 10 gr. Minnor Bucket.

4. Longest Fish, Ron MacKenzie, 11 in. Jack, 3/4 lb.; won a Tackle Box.

5. Shortest Fish, Connie Tucker, 5 1/2 in. 1/8 lb., won a Floating fish knife.

6. Oddest fish, Bruce Thomson, rock fish; won a Reel.

7. 3rd Largest Fish, Paul Bruen, a toad, won a gaff hook.

8. 2nd Longest Fish, Randy Kuhn, 7 3/4 in. snapper; won a Zara Spook Lure.

9. 2nd Shortest Fish, Danny Priore, 6 1/4 in., won a "Bang O Lure".

10. 3rd Longest Fish, Jamie Walker, 7 1/4 in. panfish; won a Rebel Lure.

11. Last one off the Pier, Little Joyce Rathgeber, age 1, a line.

The prizes for the contest were donated by Palmer's Variety Store. Fishing line, hooks and weights were donated by The Snook Nook, and the hot dogs, rolls, and Topp Cola were donated by Publix Market in Stuart.

Mirror staffers Ossa Campbell, Alice Hickey and Mary Lou Hendry handled registration and serving of food, which members of the Martin Wahl, while Marie Yankovich, Jackie Wortham, Lee Smith and Jan Hyde of the Nettle's Cove Surfing Association, baited hooks and helped in the tournament. Ransom Tilton assisted in replacing lost lines and hooks, and Gene Kasper was official weights and measures judge.

Shrimp for bait was donated by Johnny Crawford of the Snook Nook.

Other youngsters catching and entering fish were Richard Grinar, Rod Cassidy and Ricky Christiansen. Others caught fish but did not enter them, and some lost fish on broken lines and lost hooks.

Everybody got in the act at the Mirror fishing tournament last Saturday.

Wacha Praised

The following is a resolution prepared by Martin Wahl, presented to the Jensen Beach Lions and passed by them, praising Frank A. Wacha for bringing about the building of the Jensen Beach Bridge, now known as The Frank A. Wacha Bridge.

Wahl writes: "In 1949 when we settled in this community, there were no street lights, no sidewalks, no fire department except a water pistol that Fredicksons had in their back yard. No Chamber of Commerce, no police force and all respects to our former County Commissioners, there was no one really fighting for what was supposed to come to our district.

This district, I feel, was very fortunate the past several years, not having any civil strife, as the town had fine cooperation with inviting the colored group to participate in the Jensen-Rio United Fund, and the Jensen Elementary School accepting colored children without any incident. Many old-timers have passed on, Mr. Pitchford, Fredickson, Gideon, Johnson, and many others.

Then we had the beachcombers, Capt. Lewie, Freddy, and others. As the years went on, there seemed to be a change in the town of Jensen. An urge to put the town on the map. Very seldom the remark is made like, "Where is Jensen Beach?" "Oh, 3 miles north of Stuart." Everybody seemed to know where Stuart was. Now more and more advice is asked of the Town of Jensen and things are changing for the better.

The biggest change is in the making this coming Saturday, Oct. 23, when a new bridge is being dedicated banners to the Club which he had collected during his recent travels.

The committee in charge of arrangements consisted of Chairman Ed Miller, Wally Gardner, Martin Wahl, Carl Tyroff, and Chester Homan.

A community sing followed the meeting.

that we all know will be a benefit to the economy and welfare of this area. Most of us remember the struggle we had many times getting across the old Jensen wooden bridge. For an example, in 1949 part of the old bridge was washed away by a hurricane and no way whatsoever to cross over from the island or to get over as a few residents were living there. Of course, you could swim over or get over by boat. This old bridge was not only for fishing but people liked to go there and meet someone to talk to. But the town saw the need for a change and the old bridge was replaced piece by piece and eventually the last part is done, and something the town can be proud of.

"Lady Bird may have the distinction of originating the beautification plan, but there is one that started this plan long before 1965. It is paying off and at this time I would like to present the one that had foresight in seeing the need for many things and especially the new Frank A. Wacha Bridge, Our County Commissioner, Frank A. Wacha.

"Therefore; I hereby resolve that we all give a rising vote of thanks to our County Commissioner."

TRAVEL BANNERS---Bill Weiss presented the Jensen Beach Lions Club with several banners which he collected during his recent trip.

Jensen Bridge Dedicated In 1926 With Picnic Lunch

When the Jensen Beach Bridge was dedicated on Armistice Day, 1926, the program began with the words, "Armistice Day is an occasion of Thanksgiving for victory—a celebration, and a memorial." And the dedication was a happy event, celebrated by many from the newly created Martin County, from St. Lucie and from Palm Beach counties.

The flag was raised at Jensen Beach and at Stuart at sunrise on the big day. The ceremonies, according to a faded program given to The Mirror by pioneer Mrs. Arnold Taube of Jensen Beach, was handled by the Harold Fraser Post Number 62 of The American Legion in Stuart.

The people assembled at 10 a.m. and Commodore Stanley Kitching presented a ribbon to the Town of Jensen Beach. The mayor, Ernest L. Rhoad, accepted for the town.

The names of the people involved form a brisk insight into the history of the county, for many have served and third generations now active in building the county. Some went on to become well known names in Martin County community life.

Commodore Kitching has many descendants in this area including Langley Robertson and former Stuart mayor John Taylor's wife. Former mayor Ernest L. Rhoad's wife still lives in Stuart. Mrs. (W. B. Tilton is his sister, and all the Tilton children and grandchildren have made their marks in the county. Ramie Heaton and Mrs. Ralph Hartman of Stuart are daughters, two of eight, of the Rhoads.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony by the Legion post followed, led by Commander E. J. Smith, Jr., then the county judge. His wife was a teacher in Martin County schools and still lives in Stuart.

The post chaplain was Leon Ashley, father of Dick Ashley, Stuart insurance man. His wife is still living in the county. He followed the program with a prayer.

After the Stuart band played "America," the program was turned over to Ralph Hartman, Sr., longtime Stuart postmaster, whose sons, Jack, former Stuart mayor and present commissioner, and Ralph, active civic leader, have carried on in their father's image.

Following Hartman were J. B. Smith and Ralph Mahr, about whom there is not too much information.

A march to the bridge with both the Legion, Auxiliary, dignitaries, band and children from the Jensen Public Free School then took place. The band took a position on the bridge facing the beach while the Legion and Auxiliary formed on both sides of the bridge with the children forming a circle in front of the group.

Warner B. Tilton, still a prominent realtor and Charlotte Heilker, sister of Thomas Heilker, county building inspector, officiated at the presentation of National and Post colors.

Miss Heilker still resides on Indian River Drive and is employed at Tri County Gas in Stuart.

Following the presentation of the colors, the band played several selections and the children from the school sang.

A picnic luncheon began at noon time with everyone bringing baskets of lunch. Coffee and lemonade was furnished free to those attending.

After lunch, Jim Stuckey presented an Athletic Program for citizens of all ages. There was a 100-yard dash for men; a 50-yard dash for ladies; a 100-yard dash for boys from 14 to 16 years of age; a 50-yard dash for girls from 10 to 14 years of age; thread and needles race for ladies and gents (six on each side); 50-yard race for fat ladies; 100-yard race for fat men; Bandage race, 50-yards; 100-yard 3-legged race for many 50-yard 3-legged race for ladies; 100-yard wheelbarrow race; 75-yard baby race; 100-yard dash, open to Legionnaires only; egg and spoon race for ladies, 100-yards; Tug of war between Jensen and Stuart (8 men on each team); 100-yard handicap race for men of 50 or over, one foot handicap for each year over fifty.

Prizes were awarded by Mayor Rhoad after each event.

Forty years have elapsed since the original dedication and last Saturday's gala celebration was also a happy and memorable occasion. It is a real milestone in the progress and growth of Jensen Beach and Martin County.

INDIAN RIVER SCENE--Typical of the many exciting potential development sites on the Indian River is this home of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Wiegand, of North Indian River Drive. The new bridge to the ocean, and the opening of A-1-A to Fort Pierce has opened all of unDEVELOPED HUTCHINSON ISLAND to future homes, hotels and business for all builders.

County Commissioners Built Bridges In Bold Political Moves

Jensen's new $790,000 tuarie span dedicated on Saturday is the culmination of a $4,950,000 program to gain access to the ocean beaches.

On October 30 a ribbon-cutting ceremony will open officially A1A along the coast from Ft. Pierce to Stuart.

When the Stuart and Sewall's Point bridges to the ocean were built in 1954, it appeared that it would be some time before a modern Jensen bridge would be built. However, with the aid of the Martin County Commission, the State Road Department and the Florida Development Commission, a plan began to emerge.

In 1955 and 1956, two causeways were filled, leaving three sections of the old wooden bridge. Later, relief spans were built at both ends. An 80-ft. concrete span was built on the west bank in early 1962 and east bank in early 1962 at a cost of $23,000. The State Road Department loaned the county trucks and other equipment with which to move sand donated by Sam Rhodes, local contractor, to use as fill for the remaining 600 feet.

A modern 600-ft. concrete bridge was built in 1962 and 1963 at a cost of $250,000 after the county urged the State Road Department to loan enough funds from the secondary road money.

The original bond issue which built the two other ocean access bridges was in the amount of $2,200,000. The bond contract ran for 30 years and tied up all of the 80 per cent of the 5th and 6th cent gasoline tax due Martin County for road construction. After refunding the estimated cost of the Jensen bridge to almost half, the County Commission with Frank A. Wacha as chairman, re-examined the bond contract and found that the bonds had been issued on the basis of gas tax figured on a census of 1950. The 1960 census proved that Martin County had doubled its population and meant that probably more tax monies would be received from the sale of gas.

With the aid of a bonding firm in Miami and State Road Department Member, John Monahan, the County Commission established the fact that Martin County would receive over $10,000,000 from the 5th and 6th cent portion already designated to the $2,200,000 bridge-bond issue. This discovery reduced the tolls on the bridges and allowed sufficient money for other roads and bridges in Martin County.

The first bond issue was supervised by the Florida Development Commission at Tallahassee and were helpful in refunding the first issue with a new one which eliminated the tolls and made only that portion of the gas tax necessary to pay off the first two bridges left to be paid. This left some $800,000 available for the Jensen Bridge.

This strategy paid off in that we now have three beautiful bridges to gain access to the ocean beaches and to put the finishing touches on it, we now have A1A on the Island completed all the way to Fort Pierce.

Burns Hails New Bridge In Jensen

The following is a letter received from Hon. Haydon Burns, Governor of the State of Florida:

"I share the pride of Martin County's citizens on this day when you gather to dedicate the Frank A. Wacha Bridge.

"The Martin County Legislative Delegation, during the recent session of the Florida Legislature introduced a bill, passed unanimously by both houses, officially designating this 932-foot structure in honor of your County Commission Chairman.

"This bridge, spanning the Intracoastal Waterway and connecting the fine community of Jensen Beach to State Road A-1-A on Hutchinson Island, is a tribute both to Mr. Wacha and the many people who live here in Martin County.

"Only a few months ago Martin County turned out to honor former Road Board Member John Monahan by naming a bridge in Indiantown in his honor.

"Today you are honoring one of your fellow citizens, a man who has served you well as Chairman of the Martin County Commission. Without dedicated commissioners like Mr. Wacha and a commission such as you have here in Martin County, bridges such as this would never be constructed. A close, working relationship between a county commission and the State Road Department is a necessity before these lasting monuments of concrete and steel can become a reality.

"Mr. Wacha has long been recognized on a state-wide basis for his work as Chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee of the State Association of County Commissioners. He also serves this influential organization as a director.

"I wish I could be with you on this significant occasion, but I know Road Board Chairman Floyd Bowen and your Board Member, Chelsie Senerchia, will represent me most ably on this day."

A PLACE TO GROW--Sailfish Point, in the center of the photograph, and all of Hutchinson Island, at right, gives Martin County a place to grow, The photo above, one of the few aerials available, is old, taken eight years ago, but due to the lack of water and the lack of easy access, the island has been at a standstill in development. In the past two years Southern Gulf Utilities has brought city water to the island, a marina was developed at the Tuscbay Properties development on the north end of the point, and the road has been continued north to Fort Pierce. The jewel of virgin land is ready for mounting. High-rise apartments, hotels and homes will soon bring prosperity to the island, one of the last pieces of undeveloped land in South Florida's Gold Coast.

Society Joins Conservation Fight

The Indian River Audubon Society has joined the fight against the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District and the U.S. Corps of Engineers over the destruction of the natural channel of the Loxahatchee River, and pollution of the waters.

A copy of the Cocoa chapter's resolution adopted October 22 was received by Mrs. Virginia Forrest on Monday.

The resolution points out the beauty of the river, its unpolluted waters and its value to recreation for boating enthusiasts as well as to naturalists. It also points out that the river is a natural drainage channel for an area which receives an annual rainfall of about 57 inches.

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson was asked last week to help local, state and national Audubon societies in their campaign to save the Loxahatchee.

Mrs. Edna B. Hazelwood, president of the Martin County Audubon Society said, "The proposed destruction of the beautiful Loxahatchee wild river in Martin and Palm Beach Counties, as proposed by the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Flood Control District, must be stopped cold."

"Destruction of natural values in this case for the private gain of a few at the cost of the many is irreversible," said Mrs. Hazelwood.

With 125 members present, the Woman's Club of Stuart voted unanimously to back the Audubon Society.

Fair Group Seeks Funds

A more concentrated drive for $750 necessary to construct a 1,600 square-foot quadrangle at the Martin County Fair grounds will be made this week according to Mrs. Barbara Grier.

Mrs. Grier said that checks may be made payable to the Martin County Fair Ass'n. and mailed to her at Box 127, Palm City.

Those contributing $5 will be entitled to sign their names in fair sized letters on the boards; $10 will get a larger sized signature and $25 will purchase the largest sized signature.

Stuart Chamber Membership Campaign

The Stuart Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual 5-day membership campaign November 9, 10 and 11, according to Ray Cooke, this year's chairman.

At the conclusion of the three days of work, O.C. "Jerry" Smith will again host the traditional steak or beans dinner.

Bob Cunningham and Jack Hampton will act as captains this year with forty volunteers being divided into two teams.

Prizes will go to workers through a point system based on calls completed, memberships signed up and amount collected.

Advance renewals by present members are encouraged by the chamber. As of Monday, 116 members had already renewed with $4,228.00 cash turned in.

Lear Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Lear were honored at a testimonial dinner party given by the residents of Bahama Terrace at Port St. Lucie Country Club.

Originally from Hampton, Va., the Lears came to Stuart in 1958 and began developing Bahama Terrace, an area located at the north city limits of Stuart.

Attending the dinner were: Miss Martha Burdine; Mr. and Mrs. L. Orville Cameron; Mrs. Lucille Clagett; Mr. and Mrs. Lindley Cummings; Mr. and Mrs. James Daley; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Donovan; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ewing; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall; Mr. and Mrs. V. L. McElvain, Dr. Owen McKinney; Mrs. Martin Rice; and Miss Joey Schwab.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. George Sanders; Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Sledle, Mrs. Margaret Schwab; Mr. and Mrs. N. Leslie Towle; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Vanderveer; Mrs. Jack Naverly and Mr. and Mrs. Howard West.

Geoffrey Sledle, toastmaster, said the dinner was given in appreciation for the many kindnesses extended by the Lears to the residents of Bahama Terrace in the past five years.

Milan's Celebrating Second Anniversary

The second anniversary of Milan's Restaurant in Jensen Beach is being held this Thursday, October 28th, according to Karl Jarvis, owner and manager. The event will be observed with a special dinner of roast top sirloin offered at a special price.

Many members of the staff of Milan's Restaurant have been employed there since the grand opening two years ago. All who were in Jensen Beach remember that event, when the parking lot was packed day and night for a weekend opening celebration. Flowers filled the newly constructed restaurant interior of the building.

The service, food and decor of the restaurant has brought praise from many Martin and St. Lucie County residents, who found the restaurant a fine place to dine. The restaurant was started in 1963 as a corporation, operated by Alex and Dolores Milan. Karl L. Jarvis, local real estate man, bought the interest of the Milans recently. He had been in the corporation, serving as president. Jarvis now plans to operate the restaurant, acting as manager from now on.

Jarvis said, "We plan to continue to serve the same fine food, with the same head chef, Teddy Lescrinier, and have 90 percent of the staff on hand in the kitchen and the dining room."

Alex Milan has taken a position with Grumman Aircraft, Jarvis said but will continue to act in an advisory capacity to the restaurant.

Halloween Party

The Junior Womans Club of Stuart will sponsor a Halloween Costume Party Saturday, October 30 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Womans Club Building.

There will be a fish pond, ring toss and other entertainment with soft drinks, popcorn and cookies for sale.

Prizes will be awarded for the funniest, prettiest and most original costumes for pre-school and school age children.

Young Ballet Students Display Form And Grace

RELEVE--Mrs. Cynthia Cook instructs April Tomasi and Renee Gamble in this pose in ballet, a balance feat that offers strength and poise to the legs, torso and arms.

Ballet Training At Imperial Is Personalized

Chela Jacobo sat in her office chair behind a desk piled high with dance programs, legal pads with doodles, forms and names. One leotard clad leg was braced upon the edge of the chair as the other pointed out in practiced grace.

"I do not know what is thought of the ballet at present," Miss Jacobo said in her strong Columbian accented English. "But I do know this, the ballet taught at Chela Jacobo's Imperial Studios is designed to be taught to individuals, even in classes."

Miss Jacobo told of the Imperial system, which makes it possible for each child to receive individualized personal instruction, even though they are taught in a class. The bulging thighs and leg muscles which are sometimes known as "dancer's legs" are a thing of the past, as are harmful stresses and strains on the back, knees, ankles and toe joints.

The new concept of ballet training is that ballet is modified for individuals. The program was developed through a non-profit organization in Palm Beach, called Academy Royale Theatre Inc.

The Academy Royale helped to make this work possible by sponsoring a group of scholarship students for the experimental training program, and by providing data and the advice of Psychological and Medical Authorities.

It is now a matter of record. All twelve of the scholarship recipients had individual physical problems to overcome, yet each and every one of them achieved a standard of work which permitted and enabled them to follow professional careers . . . four of them even being accepted into major ballet companies. Of these four, it is interesting to note that two of them had been told by famous ballet experts that they were definitely not ballet material, and that they should not contemplate a classical ballet career!

Since the original experimental group, the teaching principles have enabled many others who also started with physical problems to enjoy professional careers in record time. The ratio of results has been so extraordinary that teachers and students are coming from all over the world to study these principles, and the new approach to ballet training has won widespread acclaim and recognition . . . and so a new concept of training has emerged . . .

In layman's terms it simply means that:

(a) The extreme ballet positions are modified for the bone and muscle structure of the individual.

(b) Special therapeutic non-ballistic exercises are employed to help the student achieve faster, safer and greater degrees of physical progress.

RIGHT TOE OUT--In this position, the dancers learn the first in a series of poses that lead to a walk that is filled with form and poise. The teacher, Pamela Axton, is Miss Martin County of 1965.

CROISE DEVANT--Miss Pamela Axton explains this ballet position to students Sandy Britton and Karen Bohner. The ballet form is one of the most highly praised methods of improving the poise and carriage of people of all ages.

County Value Is Up To $160.5 Millions

After certification of the county tax assessor's roll on Tuesday morning, as voted by the County Commissioners, the new roll was sent to Tallahassee.

Web Ordway Injured In Boating Accident

Injured in a boat crash early Sunday morning was Web Ordway, 63, Stuart's Ford dealer.

While on his way to the Sun Parlor to fish, his 18-foot outboard crashed into No. 23 marker on the Okeechobee Waterway, a quarter mile east of the Florida East Coast bridge over the St. Lucie River.

The accident occurred when Ordway was moving a radio on the seat beside him and glanced away. The wheel turned just enough to hit the marker.

Ordway was thrown against the wheel, broke his glasses, and received a laceration on his arm. He was able to make his way to the marker and climb up on it until a boat with doctors aboard rescued him.

After being examined thoroughly by the doctors, Sheriff Roy C. Baker said Chuck Hawken, a student, brought Ordway ashore to the hospital for treatment. He was later released.

The boat overturned in the crash and the motor fell off the stern but it was tied to the marker to be picked up later in the day.

Herman Reitz, Dr. Carl Fogt and Mike Fogt salvaged everything.

County To Seek Experimental Station

An erosion control experimental station is being sought by Martin County, according to Fred L. Bell, County Engineer, who said a building is available to house the facility, a substation of the Division of Beaches and Erosion of the State Dept. of Conservation.

In talking about his conversation with William Carlton, director of the division, Bell said, "They might even experiment with cutting grasses."

No commitments have been made to the state department but it was felt that the county commission would back the offer.

The sub-station would be the former bridge-tender's house on the main causeway at the west end of the new Frank A. Wacha Bridge.

There was a question of whether to use the facility for the spiny lobster study being undertaken by Ross Witham, for the Dept. of Conservation. The building could accommodate either purpose, according to Bell but it was believed the erosion experimental station would have priority.

Carlson said he was familiar with colitic argonite which is being used by Dolin Carbide Chemical Corp. and is found in the Bahamas. He said it might be tested here if the experimental facility was set up here.

Statewide Golf Matches

Plans are being made for two major statewide golf championship matches by the St. Lucie Country Club. The Club is also preparing for the Perry Como Amateur Thanksgiving weekend.

Bob Murphy of Nichols, Fla., a 22-year-old University of Florida senior, heads a field of 200 men and 120 women for the fourth annual Perry Como event November 25-28. Murphy is current National Amateur and Florida state amateur titlist.

For the second year in a row, the Florida High School Activities Association will play its state tournament at the 36-hole golf course on the St. Lucie River on April 14-15.

The following weekend, on April 21 to 24, the invitational tournament of the Florida State Golf Association is scheduled.

Orlando Evans High's Linda Morris, who beat Catherine Duggar, Ft. Lauderdale St. Thomas Aquinas, in a playoff, will be back to defend her girls' medalist honors in the prep event.

The Pensacola Escambia High girls' team is expected to return to bid for its fifth straight state title.

Fort Lauderdale High won the boys' team championship last April with a state record 581. Medalist Bob Barbarossa of the Flying Ft's his graduated.

The FSGA's member invitational, a 72-hole event, will attract close to 400 men from around the state. Both the 7,010-yard Ballyhaura and 6,617-yard Jaycee courses will be used.

WHEN WILL IT BE?--Five candidates will vie for the honor of being Miss MACOSH 1966, at Martin County High School. They are, left to right, Frances Kotse, Bonnie Sue Brown, Lillie Mae King, Danette Baker and Linda James.

Martin County Voters Nix 4-Lanes; OK Trailer Tags

One-third of the registered voters turned out in Martin County to vote almost exactly two to one in opposition to Gov. Haydon Burns' $300 million road bond program in a special election.

Only two of Martin County's 15 precincts voted in favor of the road bond referendum, Precinct 11 in Little Dixie, and Precinct 13 in Booker Park. Both are totally Negro precincts.

The Governor's program was favored 45 to 15 in Precinct 11, and 35 to 6 in Precinct 13.

The County favored the four mills recommended by the School Board, but every figure on the ballot received at least three votes. No write-ins were recorded.

Twenty-five per cent of the freeholders turned out to vote. Voting for the four mills were 1103 freeholders.

Voters tallied votes for the following millages: zero mills, 266; one mill, 68; two mills, 169; three mills, 69; five mills, 22; six mills, 9; seven mills, 4; eight mills, 3; nine mills, 13; and 10 mills, 27.

There were no write-ins.

Eligible to vote in the freeholder portion of the election were 7,154 voters, not counting any who presented tax bills at the polls. Of them, 1,753 voted.

Of the 10,707 registered voters, 25.3 per cent came out, about half again as many as the most optimistic predictions.

Concerning the amendments, the county voted 1,747 to 877 for the 5th, 1 amendment on the district court of appeal.

On Amendment No. 2, the vote was 1,482 to 877 for the Lake County judge.

Amendment No. 3, for the Palm Beach County criminal court of record, the vote was 1,358 to 798.

The road bond issue was 1,024 for, 2,043 against.

Regarding the trailer tax amendment, which would tax trailers as motor vehicles, voting ran 1,553 favoring to 1,396 against.

Results in all precincts but one were tallied and recorded by 8:15 P.M. The exception was Port Salerno which ran half an hour later than other precincts.

Mirror Wins Five FPA State Awards

The Jensen Beach Mirror won five state awards for journalistic excellence in the 1965 Florida Press Association newspaper contest for 1964-65, according toRichard E. Campbell, editor and publisher. The awards were presented at the 86th annual awards luncheon of the Florida Press Association held last weekend at Winter Park.

In addition, Campbell was one of four weekly newspaper editors named to the board of directors of the newly combined daily and weekly newspaper association.

The Mirror won two second place, one third place and two honorable mention awards in the contest.

The Mirror's editorial campaign for tighter restrictions on aluminum siding and patio additions to mobile homes, which was one of the moving forces in gaining a new "zoning code" for Martin County zoning, won second place in the state contest. The award was made in the "Best Safety Editorial" division.

The enthusiastic action of the Mirror in February won a second place award for "Best Use Of Color".

The division of "Best Promotion" of a newspaper in a community gained a third place award for the Mirror. This division was for overall performance during the year.

The Mirror won honorable mention in the best editorial on the free enterprise system contest with its editorial on the Florida Power and Light Company rate inquiry to Miami. Another honorable mention award came for best advertising promotion.

Committee Named To Study County Building Licenses

A board to study and recommend reciprocity problems being experienced by the building trades in connection with licenses was named on Friday.

Named by the county commissioners to the special committee were Henry Crace, chairman of the Electrical Contractors Board; Milton Mathers, chairman of the Plumbing Contractors Board; and Ernest Higbee, chairman of the General Contractors Board. Also on the board will be Fred L. Bell, County Engineer, and Dean Tooker, County Attorney.

The board also adopted a resolution setting a new fee for taking special examinations given by the boards.

At present, Martin County has reciprocity agreements only with the City of Stuart, City of Fort Pierce and St. Lucie County Boards on examinations and licenses. According to one board member, Palm Beach County refuses to discuss reciprocity.

The problem of special meetings of the county commission was questioned by Commissioner Timer Powers on Friday morning, he termed them "inefficient" and "costly".

"May I preface my remarks by stating that at any time there is an emergency in this county, and it is deemed necessary, then I am all in favor of holding an emergency meeting---at any time, at any place, under any circumstances and most willing to meet for any planned workshops, conferences or committee meetings," he said.

He also stated, "A commissioner should be allowed time to study matters of business for what he is paid for the people".

Chairman Wacha pointed out that, "In order to have a special meeting, we must have a quorum. Just tell the secretary when she calls that you aren't going to show up."

Powers requested the Board to consider his suggestions.

In other business Wacha was authorized to sign documents which will extend a grant from the State Library Board, $1,693 a year, to Martin County Public Library.

The county clerk was authorized to transfer $600 from the Parks Account in District A budget to a new account which will be used as a control account for Langford-Hall Park.

The Park will be purchased from the association now owning it for the $600, a move which was made when it became desirable to change the name of the park.

The 20-acre park will become a county park. It had been given to the association by Frances Langford and Jon Hall.

Following the meeting, Chairman Wacha congratulated Fred Bell on his two-year service to the county.

Redistricting Meeting Held

The special meeting of the Martin County Commission Wednesday morning reached too late to meet The Mirror deadline. The results of the meeting were not available for press time.

As many plans have been presented, it was doubtful to several commissioners that a plan would be accepted at the morning meeting Wednesday. The commissioners admitted that no one plan had been favored, and that no compromise of the almost ten plans submitted in a flurry of headline making moves by individual commissioners had been reached Tuesday night.

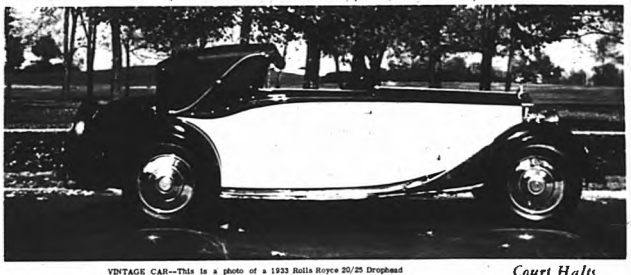
Commissioners Serve On State Committee

According to a list received in Martin County on Tuesday, all but one of the County Commissioners have committee jobs in the State Association of County Commissioners of Florida.

Frank A. Wacha, Board Chairman, is a director at large whose term expires in 1966. He is also on the legislative finance for counties committee, one of the special state committees, and is a member of three standing committees, including finance and budget, legislative, and taxation and revenue, of which he is chairman.

Attorney for the committee of which Wacha is chairman, is Dean Tooker.

Commissioner Ed Miller is a member of the standing agricultural committee; Jack Saunderson is a member of the standing Civil Defense Committee; and Commissioner Timer Powers is a member of the standing zoning, franchise and utilities committee.



VINTAGE CAR--This is a photo of a 1933 Rolls Royce 20/25 Drophead Coupe which will visit the Martin County area on Sunday, Nov. 7. The owner is E. D. Bisch, 100 Eaton Drive, Fort Pierce. Approximately 25 to 30 cars are expected to participate and will meet at Milan's Restaurant in Jensen Beach at Noon.

HER BROOM AND BOTTLE WERE INSEPARABLE--as Grace Lee Hurley enjoyed the festivities at the Halloween Carnival at the Jensen Beach School.

Taibl Files

Intention papers were filed at City Hall on Tuesday by George Taibl, Stypmann Blvd., Stuart, in the first new filing for a city commission seat.

He will run against incumbent Jack M. Hartman who is seeking re-election.

Taibl, a Stuart resident for 11 years is a former insurance man and former policeman in Long Island, N. Y. For a while he was a member of the Stuart police department and for nine years has been with the Stuart post office.

Taibl is a service station owner, a member of St. Joseph Catholic Church, the Stuart Chamber of Commerce, is a World War II Navy veteran, is married and has two children.

Mayor William P. Todt, Vice-Mayor Arthur E. Sims and Hartman filed for re-election shortly after the filing period opened. Each is nearing the end of a second term in office.

Also seeking re-election is City Judge Harry F. Dyer, who had 21 terms in office.

NEW PARKING FACILITIES--are in the making at the Martin County Public Library as workmen are pictured black topping the area. Increased usage of the library by residents has made the new facilities necessary.

Court Halts Fernon Meet

R. C. Fernon of Jupiter Island, whose bid to vacate receiverships in five corporations in which he is an executive officer was lost in circuit court October 29, was stopped from making more forced bankruptcy affidavits filed with motions filed by the Florida Security Commission and submitted to Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge.

One of the affidavits said a directors meeting of Tower Credit, which is on the American Stock Exchange, New York, was planned for Tuesday at Tampa before the order stopped it.

Under the new order, all defendants, officers, agents, directors and especially Fernon, were restrained from holding directors' meetings of any of the companies, or filing new suits in any other state or in Federal courts, without specific permission of the local court.

The Tower Credit meeting was planned for Tuesday night, it was said in the affidavits.

MACOSH Candidates Chosen

The five MACOSH candidates were announced at an assembly October 29 at Martin County High School.

The candidates who will vie for the honor of being Miss Macosh 1966 are: Frances Kotze, Bonnie Sue Brown, Lillie Mae King, Danette Baker and Linda James.

The faculty chooses five senior girls who best represent the senior class for beauty, personality, intelligence and school spirit. Then, the girl who is to be Miss Macosh is chosen by an unbiased judge who sees only a snapshot.

Because of the inconvenience of the summer delivery, the annual staff decided to have the annual delivered sometime in May or June. The seniors who go away to college won't have to worry about not receiving theirs.

As soon as building operations at the Youth Center are complete, a definite starting date will be announced. Thursday afternoons will be available about the middle of November. To the many who cannot play evenings, this game should be appealing. It will operate under the auspices of the Youth Center, under the same franchise as the Stuart Duplicate Bridge Club with Jay Mann directing.

MACOSH Candidates Chosen

The five MACOSH candidates were announced at an assembly October 25 at Martin County High School.

The candidates who will vie for the honor of being Miss Macosh 1966 are: Frances Kotze, Bonnie Sue Brown, Lillie Mae King, Danette Baker and Linda James.

The faculty chooses five senior girls who best represent the senior class for beauty, personality, intelligence and school spirit.

Then, the girl who is to be Miss Macosh is chosen by an unbiased judge who sees only a snapshot.

Because of the inconvenience of the summer delivery, the annual staff decided to have the annual delivered sometime in May or June. The seniors who go away to college won't have to worry about not receiving theirs.

MCHS Plans Homecoming

The 1965 Homecoming Game will be played against Miami Military Academy on November 13.

The Student Council, as is customary, will make the float carrying the top four candidates. This year the Senior Class, Sophomore Class, Pep Club and Spanish Club will also have floats in the Homecoming Parade.

The top four candidates, all from the Senior Class, are: Rose Leighton, chosen by Student Council; Danette Baker, picked by the Key Club; Frances Kotze, the M-Clubs and Lillie Mae King will represent Belle Lettres.

The other candidates are: Sara Munch and Linda Baker, Senior Class; Jane Garley and Linda Rein, Junior Class; Sandy Rhodes and Patti Irons, Sophomore Class; Jnanell Prevatt, Sr. Art Club; Linda Mattern, Sr. Annual; Rachel Fenton, Jr. Band; Dianne Means, Sr. Beta Club; Tish Taylor, Sr. Cheering; Dianne McGuinness, Sr., D. C. T., Margie Wall, Sr., Chorus; Laverne Bowers, Jr., F.T.A.; Judy Harris, Sr., French Club; Nancy Melrose, Sr., Latin Club; Susie Shelton, Jr., National Honor Society; Joanne Coulter, Sr., Science Club; and Janice Weiss, Jr., Spanish Club.

The student body, for the second time in Martin County School's history, will vote for the Homecoming Queen. The Queen will be crowned during half-time at the MMA game.

The Senior Class is sponsoring the Homecoming Dance after the game.

Electric Water Heating is super-safe

Install an Electric Water Heater anywhere — and forget it. Enjoy carefree peace of mind . . . completely automatic. Flameless . . . so it doesn't need vents or flues to carry off products of combustion. Clean as a light bulb.

With all its advantages, an Electric Water Heater (like a flameless Electric Range) costs less, is cheaper to use — average price paid per residential kilowatt hour actually 31% cheaper than just 10 years ago. See the modern Electric Water Water Heaters at your appliance dealer, plumbing or electrical contractor.

Langberg Receives D.C. Merit Award

Jon Langberg, 10, who has danced for years in the area, much of it for charity benefits, has received a merit award from the Dairy Council of South Florida.

The son of Mrs. Jonne Langberg of Jensen Beach started at age 6, and though very young he already was determined to become an expert in Spanish dancing and ballet.

This year, John, a fifth-grader in St. Joseph Parochial School, and his younger brother, Michael, are the first Imperial Ballet students in the area to receive Niagara scholarships to continue their dance study. Jon has appeared on TV, studies piano and is a member of the school band.

The Dairy Council has a continuing program to honor meritorious young people in Martin County.

Parking Ticketed

State Patrol officers and deputies of the Sheriff's Department began putting tickets on automobiles parked over the white line on the south side of Commercial street in Jensen Beach this week as a crackdown on parking in the middle of the street began.

Many complaints of local citizens, long used to parking on the south side of the street across from Jensen Beach Bank, were received by the Chamber of Commerce and the Sheriff's Department.

The State Road Department lined the busy street with double yellow lines this summer. Since that time, cars parking on the south side of the street from the Chamber of Commerce building to the Fredrickson building have been violating the law, parking over the solid white line, forcing traffic to cross the yellow double line into the wrong lane of traffic.

The public was urged to see to it, many parking lots available, and north street parking, rather than risk being cited for traffic violation, by County Commissioner Frank Wacha.

GROUND BREAKING CEREMONIES--for a new $45,000 underground South Florida CD Emergency Operations Center in Jonathan Dickinson State Park were held last Friday morning with U.S. Rep. Paul Rogers making a special visit. Left to right are, contractor, Howard Cook of Palm Beach County; Rep. Paul Rogers; County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha and Rep. Emmett Roberts of Palm Beach County.

New Redistricting Plan Is Complete

The Martin County Commission adopted a re-districting plan last Wednesday after rejecting six in a heated discussion.

The plan, which was originated by Commissioner Jack Saunderson and approved by Commissioner J.H. Brunner, was adopted by a 3-2 vote with Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha and Commissioner Tiner Powers opposing it.

The plan, which was first rejected and then adopted, gives Powers a district which is county wide from the west county line to the east county line; from the shore of Lake Okeechobee to the Atlantic Ocean beaches on the southern reaches of Jupiter Island.

Beginning at 9:30 a.m., the adoption came about at 11:50 a.m.

Only 3,448 of the county's population will be in district five although it has approximately 410 square miles of the county's 559 square miles in it.

Commissioner Miller's District Four would include Stuart west of U.S. 1, about half of the Hanson Grant, and all of Palm City and west to a north-south line from three to eight miles west of the turnpike from the North County line south eight miles. It is estimated to contain 4,304 people.

District 3, which is Saunderson's district, would contain Hobe Sound and Jupiter Island north of the north boundary of Jonathan Dickinson State Park, all of Gomez Grant, all of Salerno and the south side of St. Lucie subdivisions, a portion of the Hanson Grant out Shake Road and almost to the river in Tropical Farms. The area contains 3,717 people.

Brunner's District 2, will include East Stuart, the airport, part of Golden Gate, Sewall's Point, part of Port Salerno, all of North Stuart, and west of U.S. 1 in the extreme north west jog in the county's North River Shores area, with the population listed at 4,684.

Wacha's District 1 would include Jensen Beach and Rio as far west as U.S. 1; Sewall's Point, all of Hutchinson Island in the county, with a population estimated at 5,781.

It was pointed out that the new plan splits Precincts 18, Tropical Farms; Precinct 8, Palm City; Precinct 8, Hobe Sound and Precinct 7, Port Salerno.

Veterans Day To Be Observed

Martin County Barracks 854, Veterans of World War I and Jensen Beach Legion Post 181 and Auxiliary will participate in ceremonies on Veterans Day, Thursday, November 11 at the Jensen Beach Community Center at 10:00 a.m.

Guest speaker will be Rep. William E. Owens who will give the memorial message.

The Jensen Beach Post urges everyone to fly the flag on this memorable day.

Langford Park To County For $600

Martin County will take over the 20-acre Langford Park in Jensen Beach, maintain it, and offer the residents of this area another recreation area under the terms of an agreement with the park association that includes payment to the group of $600.

County Commissioner Chairman Frank A. Wacha had the check for $600 in his pocket Tuesday, and said that he planned to give it to the park association.

The 20-acre area in south Jensen Beach was donated to the people of Jensen Beach by Frances Langford and her husband under orders that it be kept for the use of the people of the Jensen Beach Area. The agreement was that $1,000 a year be spent on keeping it up and keeping the property. The association has kept the agreement, adding many facilities to the park.

Recently, the association, which has been kept alive with donations of local people through the United Fund and by public spirited citizens giving service to the park, leased an area of the park to the county for $1 a year. The county maintained the baseball park, ironing three park softball, little league and pony league, and fast pitch softball games to be played on regular weekly basis.

Several shuffleboard courts have been built on public subscription by the association. They are limited to a regular night session of games in played there. Another area is paved, planned for tennis courts, [illegible] and new spectator stands, plus rest room facilities, have been provided, or are under construction by the county.

The Langford Park Association will serve as an advisory board to the county in use of the park, according to Wacha.

HOW ABOUT THAT?--Local residents flock over a 1913 Model T Ford at the recent outing of the Vintage Automobile Club of the Palm Beaches, held in Martin County last Sunday. Antique autos from as far as Miami and Cape Canaveral came to the rally, which featured a parade from Milan's Restaurant in Jensen Beach, through Stuart to the Elliott Museum. Looking at the car are Jim Friend, Dr. Richard Fenlon, Tony Fiocki and Hugh Wachs.

TWO WORLDS--Valerie Saxon at right portrays a pirate with her glittering hairdo and sweatheart costume, as contrasted to Astronaut Ramona Smith whose hairdo portrays the flaming jets of the rocket. Both girls are from Fort Pierce and modeled at the Hairdressers' Charity Ball at Port St. Lucie Country Club Saturday night.

Back To School Night For Parents Nov. 15

The Jensen Beach P.T.A. will sponsor a "Back to School Night" for parents of children in the school on Monday, November 15 at 8 o'clock p.m.

After a short business meeting, parents are invited to visit the classes of their child or children. The teacher will give a short talk on the methods of teaching, what is expected of the child, and what he or she hopes to accomplish.

Parents having more than one child will have ample time to attend another class after spending some time in each.

In the past the program was an "open house" with children attending but this year's program is planned for parents.

Refreshments will be served.

New Precincts To Be Set By County

Voting matters were taken up by the county commission Tuesday as the board moved to set up new precincts as necessary under the new districts.

It was moved to advertise the new districts and County Attorney Dean Tucker was asked to write legal advertising for the new set up.

The board adopted the new plan November 2.

The pay for election poll workers was raised from $1 to $1.25 per hour.

United Fund Executives Meet

The Executive Board of The Jensen Big United Fund will meet Friday afternoon at four p.m. at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce office on Commercial Street, according to Richard E. Campbell, president. The organization of the 1966 drive will begin at the meeting, and a nominating committee will be named for new officers.

Campbell said that the annual meeting of the group will be set by the officers at that meeting.

I GUESS SO--Doris McCollam of Fort Pierce portrayed "What's New Pussy Cat" in costume and hair styling at the Hairdressers' Ball last Saturday night at Port St. Lucie Country Club.

Asks Voice In Hearings

D. C. Glover, an employee of the Florida East Coast railway, requested the county commission to notify the railroad of any plans to discuss the road prior to the Dec. 15 hearing of the Public Utilities Commission at the Court House.

Glover was told by Chairman Frank A. Wacha that the matter would be discussed at the Nov. 23 meeting of the commission.

A special agent for the railroad, Richard Denmark, had approached the commission Monday night about the same subject.

Until a meeting can be arranged, the city commission agreed to postpone action on a resolution which would request better railroad passenger service.

Denmark was also notified by the city commission that it intended to appear before the Public Utilities Commission sitting here.

County Asks Engineers "What Gives?"

At Tuesday's meeting, the County Commission agreed to request an answer to a letter written to the U. S. Corps of Engineers, Jacksonville District, several months ago, inquiring about future plans for Lake Okeechobee and control of flood waters after the levee heights are raised.

Ed Mapp, who lives near the St. Lucie Canal locks, had asked the commission to back a plan seeking flood gates at the Lake end of the canal. The commission had asked the Corps and FCD to let their intentions be known.

So far no response has been received, according to Chairman Frank A. Wacha.

Wacha told Mapp he would write the Corps and FCD to ask what recommendations would be made.

Miami Realtors Get 700 Copies Of Mirror

The Miami Board of Realtors sent their thanks to the Stuart Board of Realtors this week for the 700 copies of The Jensen Beach Mirror Bridge Dedication issue.

In a letter to M. F. Nelson, public relations chairman of the local board, J.A. Stone, president of the Miami group, said that the newspapers would be distributed among the members at the general membership meeting.

The Stuart Board sent over 2,500 copies of the Bridge Dedication issue to all Realtors in South and Central Florida. The Realtors from Titusville and Orlando to Key West received copies of the issue to promote the development of waterfront Hutchinson Island properties.

IT'S FRUIT CAKE TIME AGAIN-- and local citizens are again working hard to sell the cakes which will benefit the Martin County Association for Retarded Children and the Occupational Center on the riverfront. Shown, left to right, are Lorraine Ron Hanson, Police Chief Jesse Taylor, Lee Cason and Carl Turner.

Bicycle Safety Program

The Junior Womans Club of Stuart will sponsor a Bicycle Safety Program November 13 at 10 a.m. at Julian Parker Elementary School.

The film "Pin on Feet With a Bicycle", a Walt Disney production, will be shown. Police Chief Jesse Taylor will give a short talk and roadeal on bicycle safety will be distributed to the children.

This program is open to all children in the county and should be encouraged by parents, according to the Jr. Womans Club.

Mrs. Frank Zorn, chairman of the Public Affairs Department of the club, is in charge of the project.

Salerno Problems Are Aired

Diagonal parking places will be laid out at the Port Salerno Post Office area, according to county commissioner Jack Saunderson. Assisted by Sheriff's Deputy Jack Curry, Saunderson told the county commission that the parking problem has increased in Port Salerno with the season, and asked that the parking be temporary until the street widening program, already appropriated, is completed.

This area has long been the cause of many minor traffic accidents. Many people involved in these accidents have stated that they thought the east side of the road was a double-lane thoroughfare.

Holiday Inn Size Increased

Arthur G. Quinn, Jr., president of Martin Motels, Inc., announced Thursday that pre-construction plan changes call for increasing the size of the dining room and meeting hall area to 1,700 square feet as ground was broken for the new Holiday Inn motel and restaurant in Stuart.

Originally planned at1,200 square feet, the dining room area will be capable of seating from 300 to 400 people, he said.

Tradewinds Reopen Soon

According to Edward T. Hallicy, The Tradewinds Restaurant, East Ocean Blvd., at Broadway in Stuart, will re-open under new ownership and direction as near December 1 as possible. Hallicy has been in the restaurant business in New York and Miami.

Hallicy received his early training in restaurant work in the Howard Johnson chain and in Gil Clarke's Seafood House in Bay Shore, Long Island. He also has been with the Yacht Club Restaurant in Port Salerno.

Hallicy, son of a local advertising man, has also been in the newspaper advertising business and worked for Newsday on Long Island and the Melbourne Times in Florida.

The building, including the restaurant, and the land on which it stands will be purchased by a newly formed group who has incorporated.

Wacha Bridge Is Now Open

The Frank A. Wacha Bridge which was dedicated on October 23, was opened for traffic at 8:30 Friday morning for the first time.

Most everything has been completed and is in top shape, according to Wacha, except for some minor electrical work under the bridge along the fishing walks.

Under construction since June, 1964, Wacha said he was "relieved and happy" to make the announcement.

After the dedication ceremonies had been set for October 23, it was impractical to re-set the date so State Road Department officials went ahead with the plans although the bridge was not quite complete.

Scott Construction Co. of Thomasville, Ga., the contractor on the bridge portion of the overall project, drove the test pile June 4, 1964 soon after it had won the contract with a low bid of $766,000.

The Wacha Bridge was the last of three bridges built at Jensen Beach.

Financing Discussed At Realtor Meeting

At a recent meeting of the Stuart Board of Realtors a program was presented by Bill Cooke of Alico Financial Corporation of West Palm Beach on the latest changes in FHA and VA financing.

It was pointed out that the new FHA laws were designed to help the small town. For example, central sewer and water systems are no longer necessary.

Subdivisions previously considered too far from town may now qualify for FHA financing.

The mechanics of obtaining commitments, submitting of contracts and guide lines for purchaser qualification was covered by Mr. Cooke.

Cromwell Tells M-H Story

Guy N. Cromwell, president of Martin County Mental Health Association and Dr. Walter H. Stokes, retired psychiatrist, reported on a meeting held at Vero Beach on the use of Federal matching funds at the Mental Health luncheon held at Martin Memorial Hospital last week.

Cromwell said Federal funds would match local funds on a 50-50 basis and for staff salaries, 70 per cent, when mental health facilities are constructed.

FEC Taxes May Be Paid Soon

Florida East Coast Railway's 1962 and 1964 taxes are expected to be paid in a few days, according to County Tax Collector Alvin N. Andrews.

He said 1962 taxes due amounted to $36,853.28 plus interest and penalties up to November 1 of $11,055.30 and that 1965 taxes due were $38,114.18 plus $2,286.85 in interest and penalties.

Fred O. Dickinson, state comptroller, said at Tallahassee, according to Andrews, the railroad agreed Friday to pay $1,900,000 in over due taxes to the counties along its right-of-way.

The total expected is $98,306.3L. The railroadhas paid the 1963 tax bill and also paid the City of Stuart in full recently.

She suggested other helpful acts that would be appreciated by the patients.

The Auxiliary members accepted the challenge and then voted to buy a new electric typewriter for the hospital and set as their next goal, a lift for the patients.

Powers Won't Meet To Pass New Precincts

A special County Commission meeting, called for 9:00 a.m. today, Wednesday, making new precincts under the new change of county commission districts, may be averted. In getting it to be only three on its agenda, it takes a 4-1 vote, by law or general agreement of the commissioners, to adopt a precinct change. Because of "no" of Tuesday night, only four members were expected to attend the meeting.

Late Tuesday, Commissioner Thner Powers, who devised a memo to the commission stenographer, said he had received a mail notification of the meeting but he would not be able to attend because of a prior business appointment.

Powers said, "The regular board meeting is a special meeting only yesterday, (Monday). I called the county attorney to verify the emergency of this special meeting and determine if the regular agenda could just as well be considered at our next regularly scheduled public meeting on Nov. 23."

Mr. Tucker (County Attorney Dean Tucker) advised me that the law requires that all changes in precinct boundaries must be advertised for four consecutive weeks before adoption and that the Nov. 23 meeting would allow ample time," he continued.

"Therefore, may I reiterate my concern for the continuation of these so-called emergency meetings and suggest this matter be tabled until our next regularly scheduled public meeting on Nov. 23," he said.

For weeks Powers has been calling the special meetings "unethical and costly."

Attending the meeting will be Commissioner Ed. Miller who stopped a precinct change move at the Monday special meeting when he decided to make the fourth vote in favor of the changes.

The meeting probably will be held although no other items appear on the agenda.

Port Salerno A1A Study Expected

County Commissioner Jack Sanderson stated he was expecting James Thaxton of the State Road Department here this week to make a study of A-1-A in the Port Salerno area.

According to Saunderson, money from the State Road budget has already been appropriated for the widening of A-1-A through the area's shopping district.

The present roadway, a two-laned thoroughfare, is 24 feet in width, with an additional 20 feet paved on the East side. Saunderson stated that the additional 20 foot strip is the real bottleneck of the area. This area, he said, is quite confusing to visitors and also local residents because it gives the appearance of having an extra lane on the northbound side, when it really is parking area. It is not unusual to see cars traveling north, two and sometimes three abreast, and this creates a real traffic hazard for our area.

Saunderson stated he would discuss with Thaxton the widening of this section, an additional ten feet on the west side, and also arrange diagonal parking for both sides of the roadway. He also stated it may be necessary to initiate a proposal for a median strip to solve the problem.

The Annual Christmas Program of the Jensen Beach Elementary School will be held Thursday, December 16th at the School, at 7:00 P.M., according to an announcement by the P.T.A. committee at Monday night's meeting.

Parents and friends are invited to attend the Christmas Program.

ANOTHER SALE--P.E.Y.O. members Alberta Raynor and Sue Gilliard are pictured above selling Milton Carlton of Port Salerno a subscription to The Mirror. The subscription drive is a part of the Port Salerno Youth Organization Drive to raise money for their building fund. The Drive is continuing this week. (See story on this page.)

The South Pacific float will feature the top four candidates, Danette Baker, Lillie Mae King, Frances Korse and Rose Leighton. One of these four, chosen by popular vote of the student body, will be crowned homecoming queen at 7:30

Zoning Meeting Postponed

The regular meeting of the Martin County Planning and Zoning Board has been postponed from Thursday, November 18, to Wednesday, November 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the Martin County Courthouse. This is due to the fact that several of the Planning and Zoning Board members are attending a conference of the Florida Chapter of the American Institute of Architects in Clearwater, Florida.

All business that would regularly have come up on the November 18th agenda will be taken up on November 24th, according to Frederick L. Bell, Zoning Director.

Fernon Bid Will Be Heard

Aired at a public meeting of creditors November 24 at 2:30 p.m., will be bankruptcy proceedings initiated by R. C. Fernon, president, of First Mortgage Corp. of Stuart, on Sept. 25, after A. O. Henninger, as a certificate holder and stockholder, filed suit against the firm.

The meeting will be held at the Palm Beach County Courthouse in West Palm Beach. Heard will be Fernon's plan to pay unsecured creditors 100 per cent in full of the amount of their claims in 50 equal installments, to start 30 days after confirmation and monthly thereafter.

City Is Sued

A second trial before Judge C. Preffer Trovillion in which the City of Stuart is the defendant and Mrs. Eunice C. Love and her son, John T. Love, a minor, are plaintiffs started Monday before a six-man jury.

The suit ended in a mistrial on May 19, 1965 when the jury could not reach an agreement. The Love suit was seeking $150,000

Grumman Plans Plant Addition; 50 Added

In an announcement made by Arthur Melrose, Stuart facility manager for Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., he said between 50 and 60 employees would be added at the start of 1966.

Last January 17, E. Clinton Towl, president of the manufacturing concern said "As long as Grumman is in operation, Stuart will get a share of its work." He also added that new work programs would be routed this way as possible. At that time, Grumman had 130 employees here.

Last Thursday there were 175 persons employed at the local plant.

Fred Hawkins, manager of the company's community relations department, visiting here for a few days from Bethpage, New York, announced that a new 40 by 140-foot one story concrete building for the storage of parts and equipment will be started the first of next month. It will be situated just northwest of the hangar type building there now, and in the area between that and the larger hanger.

One of the biggest parts of the new program will be the modernization and reconstruction of the AO-1 (the Army Mohawk) an all weather observation plane of medium weight and turbo prop power plants. This will warrant the hiring and advance training of a group of electronic technicians, electronic equipment assemblers and aircraft mechanics.

Under the modernization program, planes will be flown here and will be a major part of the total work load here. It is expected to continue through 1968.

The construction of wings, panels, tails and other "flats" in the EZA Hawkeye has already been started here. The EZA is a two-engine turbo prop job, Hawkens said. It is an "early warning of attack" radar plane.

Modifications are being made here on the S2E Tracker, an anti-submarine plane, and will see some research work along the coast, Hawkens said.

According to Hawkens, training cadres were sent here from Bethpage to train local people in the work and that their work was "fine."

VETERANS DAY WAS OBSERVED--at Jensen Beach last Thursday as the Veterans of World War I, Barrack 854 and Auxiliary participated in Memorial Services, Taking part were, left to right, Commander Charles J. Diffendal, Featured speaker, Rep. William E. Owens and Chaplain, Phil Kirse.

According to acting President Elaine Thompson, The Mirror subscription drive has been quite successful, with an initial start of $250 being raised for the organization. Miss Thompson further stated that the Club will continue accepting subscriptions in an effort to reach the goal of $1000.00.

She asks that the citizens of Port Salerno area support their youth in this venture. Anyone wishing to help the organization in its fund raising drive may contact Miss Thompson or E. C. Blackman at the Port Salerno Grocery.

Jensen-Rio Plan UF Drive

Plans for the eighth annual Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund drive were made at an executive board meeting of the UF Association held November 12 at the Jensen Area Chamber of Commerce building.

The annual general membership meeting was set for December 9 at 8 p.m. at the Jensen Community Center, at which time officers and directors for 1966 will be elected.

Also, at the general meeting, all organizations wishing to participate in the 1966 drive, will be asked to have a representative present as well as a budget request for funds.

President of the UF Association, Dick Campbell, named Zola Swarthout chairman of the membership committee with Mrs. Marie Miller and Alex Wilson as members.

The drive for funds will be held from January 3 through the 10, with the Kick-Off Breakfast to be held Jan. 3 at 8 a.m. at 1313 Federal Highway's Outrigger Restaurant.

The United Fund Association includes residents of Jensen Beach, Rio and Mars Hill. It was started in 1958 with a goal of $4,500.

Since that year the UF drive has gone over the top in every fund drive.

The incoming president for 1966 will name committees for the 1966 drive. The new board will review all organization requests and set a goal at the general membership meeting on December 9.

McQuigg Speaks For Conservation

Speaking before the annual meeting of the Martin County Audubon Society on Tuesday, at Manatee Yacht Club in Port Salerno, John L. McQuigg said, "You can't have good fishing and the destruction of vital estuaries like tomlands. Good bottomlands for spawning and nursery grounds. Fishing. You can't have one without the other. So somewhere along the line, a decision has to be made--hopefully before too much more is lost."

He denied he was against progress and development, stating "the conservationist really is. Indeed it is basic to my story that preparation for the sound growth of Florida carries with it the need and the obligation to protect our bottomlands, or we will not make the justifiactory and high-quality growth to which our natural resources entitle us."

He explained that there are other ways than dredge-and-fill to develop property, and that there is no other way to provide spawning and nursery grounds.

Since the bottomlands are owned by the people, their rights and interest should take precedence over the rights of private profit at public expense, he concluded.

Other conclusions by McQuigg are: that conservationists should educate constantly that bottomlands are valuable and that when necessary, should be sold only at a price that represents their true value to the public, and only in absolute minimum quantities;

That there should be a requirement for an ecological survey prior to any sale, since there are rare bottomlands worth little, or sterile;

That severe engineering restrictions should be imposed, dredging discouraged, access channels dragglined rather than sucked from the bottom, tidal flats and mangrove growth, islands, pristine areas be set aside and worked into the scene with imagination;

That bulkhead lines be minimum, area wide and should follow natural shorelines, perhaps the one foot below mean low water.

Statistics

During his talk before the Martin County Audubon Society Tuesday evening, John McQuigg cited the statistics.

According to state figures, in 1963, Florida's commercial fin-fish production was worth $20,990,109, with shellfish an additional $21,-331,218.

Including live shrimp, bait had a value of $5,529,446, that other per cent of the population owning one or more, has 4.8 of the nation's recreational boats, Florida's sales are estimated at $125,-040,000.

Fuel and upkeep, based on low guess of $200 per year, multiplied by 385,000 recreational craft, $7,000,000.

Tourism is a $5.5 billion annual industry, according to Florida Development Commission; 31 per cent of the visitors come for fishing, (the figure is higher among repeat visitors), an additional 18 per cent come for boating, but conservative estimate puts value to economy at $775,000,000.

Using educated estimates, out-of-state boaters spend an average of 11.3 days, average expenditures of $244.-35, multiplied by 110,000 people known to come by boat, shows an annual expenditure in the category of $26,878,500.

Jensen Beach Pays Homage On Veteran's Day

GUEST SPEAKER--Rep. William E. Owens gave the Memorial Message at the Veterans Day Program held Thursday, November 11, 1965 at the Jensen Beach Community Center.

Conservation Group Heads Statewide

The formation of a County Conservation Committee consolidates the efforts of conservationists, to form a state-wide organization to fight for conservation principles. A letter was sent over that name to members of all local conservation clubs.

The letter, dated November 9 reached conservationists last Thursday. The motto of the committee is "To represent Martin County, Florida, in a United Front, dedicated to the Wise Use of our County's Natural Resources."

"Panel Members" listed on the letter head were: Robert T. Bair, president of the St. Lucie and Indian Rivers Restoration League; Mrs. Virginia Forrest, as director of the Florida Audubon Society; Mrs. Edna Hazelwood, president of the Martin County Audubon Society; Mrs. Gwen Lund, Jupiter; John L. McGuigg, director of the Audubon Society and of the Rivers League and the Izaak Walton League chapter; Charles H. Kindred, president of the Florida Division, Izaak Walton League; H. W. (Bill) Newsome, president of the local chapter, Izaak Walton League and William O. Simpkin, president of the Stuart Sailfish Club.

The letter is a follow up to the October 28 panel discussion at the Woman's Club building at which the panel members discussed the problems of conservationists, and to the Fort Myers Conservation Week program at which formation of a 200,000-member conservation organization was initiated.

MEMORIAL SERVICES--were held on Veterans Days at the Jensen Beach Community Center in memory of local veterans who died in the last year. Conducting the services are Sergeant-at-Arms John Hilliard and Conductress Josephine Doring of the Veterans of World War I Barracks 854 of Jensen Beach.

INTRODUCING GUESTS- at the Veterans Day Program held last Thursday was Phil Kirse, who was Chaplain as well as being Chairman of the Memorial services.

An Arundel Rumble Over Fishing Signs

Because County Engineer Fred L. Bell felt the Arundel Bridge over the St. Lucie Canal was too narrow for safe fishing, he ordered a few "no fishing on the bridge" signs erected on the structure.

Speck anglers have been puzzled by the signs. It seems, however, that night fishermen have been unplugging the bridge lights so they could "conserve" power for lights they lowered to the water level to attract the fish and then forgot to put back plug covers or re-lighting bridge lights.

"We didn't mind the power loss so much, but we needed the lights on the bridge," Bell said.

"No fishing" signs were put up but didn't last long because of complaints.

New signs erected say, "Fish at Your Own Risk."

It has been pointed out that the light plugs are being watched by the Sheriff's department and anglers are requested to leave the light plugs alone.

Grader Goes Wild

A motor grader-scraper with a locked steering mechanism, kept on turning to the right Wednesday and ended up destroying a telephone pole and the wires on it at the intersection of SR 710 and SR 76 near Indiantown.

Owned by Big Chief Construction Co., and driven by Jack W. Phillips of Ft. Pierce, the grader received damages estimated at $100 and did $250 in damages to wires and the pole which belonged to the Indiantown Telephone Co.

There were no personal injuries according to Deputy Sheriff Frank Prevatt, who investigated.

W. B. TILTON PRESENTS
Words To Make Your Life Better
CONSCIENCE
It is a great source of encouragement to man to feel that he has conscience on his side. He does not feel it necessary to stop at every stage that he may build up a labored argument as to the truth of the positions which he has laid down or announced; he is not compelled to be forever busy with the process of demonstration, as though what he uttered had no self-evidencing power, but must be fenced about with an array of credentials, or he could not otherwise look to gain assent to its truthfulness. He knows that the work which he does carries with it its own proof. It goes straightway into the recesses of the mind, and there enforces truth, however unwillingly recognized, and however speedily forgotten, of its being precisely such as the Almighty might be expected to send. -Melvill.

An Electric Water Heater gives precious peace of mind
...it's cleaner, faster, cool-to-the-touch...and cheaper, too!
Install it anywhere and you can forget it! Needs no attention completely automatic. No open flames, no constant burning pilot light. No fumes or odors. Doesn't need vents of flues so there's no heat wasted.
An Electric Water Heater like a flameless Electric Range is cheaper to buy and cheaper to use, too, because the average price per residential kilowatt hour is actually 31% cheaper than just 10 years ago!
It's cheaper then ever to go ALL electric than to use it in combination with flame-type fuels and it adds to the joy of modern living.
See the modern Electric Water Heaters at your appliance dealer, plumbing or electrical contractor.
MRS. C. H. MIDDLETON SAYS:
"What I like most about my electric water heater is that it is very compact, clean, and so convenient. Doesn't need to be relighted and there's no pilot light to go out."
MRS. BILLY TURBEVILLE SAYS:
"I've had experience with flame-type fuels but could never stand the odor and excessive heat. With my electric range (also electric water heater, clothes dryer, etc.) I am free of both these problems."

Grumman's Growth Is Welcome

Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., of Bethpage, L.I., New York, and Stuart, Florida, has taken another step forward, bringing more jobs, greater growth, and the sound industrial growth necessary to the future progress of Martin County to our area.

Fifty to sixty jobs will be created under the expansion plan of Grumman, with a new 40' x 140' long, one story, concrete building being added to the complex of Grumman at Witham Field in Stuart. This means that fifty to sixty electronic technicians, assemblers and aircraft mechanics will be hired to work on the latest project, the reconstruction and modernizing of the all-weather observation Mohawk (AO-1) of the Army.

Grumman has increased its force of skilled technicians and engineers from 190 in January, to 275 this week. Now that number will be increased to over 300.

The number of jobs created in service for these employees are generally figured at four jobs for every new one in industry. This means that in service type jobs, such as super markets, dry cleaning, laundries, drug stores, restaurants, and others, approximately 200 new jobs will be created outside the Grumman plant.

It is certainly a pleasure to watch the growth of a sound industry in Martin County. Asking for no favor, Grumman has grown as it was able. No special concessions were demanded to get Grumman located here. With each new step in the development of the Stuart facility, Grumman asks no special favors.

We are reminded of several attempts to establish industry in the county. In all events, those demanding the gigantic concessions usually ended up somewhere else. Grumman asks nothing, and receives the full support of the people of this county.

The 2500 local residents who came to the dedication of the new building last January attest to the popularity of the Grumman plant and its people. Local manager Art Meinzer is held in high esteem by the people of Martin County, and the employees of the plant are now an important part of community life.

We concur with the three words of county commission chairman Frank A. Wachs when he learned of the new boost for Grumman. "It's just great."

Beauty Comes In First

The beauty of the Loxahatchee River will be preserved, Rep. Paul Rogers told the Martin County Historical Society that he was opposed to the rape of the tropical river by Corps of Engineers draglines at the group's annual meeting last Thursday night.

The opposition of Rogers to the project to turn the river into a shipcanal to the sea brings the engineers' plan to a halt.

There is a place for progress and drainage, and the Loxahatchee River is not it. Anyone who has seen the lush, winding river will readily admit that it is a thing to be preserved. The outcry of rage by conservationists certainly saved the beauteous stream, for proponents of land development had gone too far.

We salute the many individual groups that took part in the campaign to stop the Corps of Engineers in their plan. We also urge them to continue to unite conservation forces to search each and every attempt to change the landscape of Florida.

Intelligent protest has added new weight to the cause of the conservation movement. The support of our congressman comes at a time when it can best be used. We thank Paul Rogers for his interest and his championing of beauty, which, to the race for progress, came in first.

What Would The People Say?

For a good many years, this nation has been moving in the direction of a welfare state. Of late, the pace has been greatly increased. And we've probably gone a long way farther along this dangerous road than most of us realize.

The people have had no chance to vote on the specifics that are involved in this. The laws are imposed from on high. The people, of course, vote for their elected officials. But, all manner of considerations, other than welfare state programs, can determine their choice. And sometime, come election time, have little or nothing to say about the cost—in money and in lost liberties—that welfare statism involves. This statism, the evidence does indicate that the American public is definitely not—repeat not—in favor of total dependence on the government. For example, a late Gallup Poll dealt with a proposal that has been in the news in recent times. It is that the government should guarantee all a ..... among ..... income of doling out welfare and relief payments. The Gallup Poll's results: 19 per cent favored the idea; 67 per cent (well over three times as many) opposed it; 14 per cent had no opinion. The percentages, naturally, varied among different groups, depending on such factors as income, education and race. But in no group, Dr. Gallup reported, was there majority support in favor of the scheme.

We might witness some surprises if the people were able to vote on the seemingly endless stream of welfare state measures as they appear in Congress.

No Alibi For Lawlessness

All manner of excuses are given for the waves of juvenile delinquency that continually poison this country. It is said that some way, some how, society has failed these errant young people and so society must take the bulk of the blame. How about parents?

A man who is a real authority on crime and its causes—Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI—holds a very different view. In his words, "Teen-agers and their parents have been subjected to a backhand theory which condones rebellious conduct against authority, law and order, or any regulatory measures which restrict their whims, wishes, desires, and activities. This astonishing belief has spread into the schoolroom, the living room, the courtroom and now into the streets of our nation in the form of wild, drunken travels.

"No doubt society has failed our youth, but not in the way many seem to think. Rather, the dereliction has been in the failure to teach them the meaning of discipline, restraint, self-respect, and respect for law and order and the rights of others. Consequently, the lesson now is both painful and costly."

The surest way to turn the juvenile delinquent 'to' today into the hardened adult criminal of tomorrow is to pamper him. The foremost right and duty of society is to enforce the law under representative government.

The Decay Of Castro

When Fidel Castro announced that Cubans who didn't like it at home would be free to go to the United States if they so chose, eyebrows were raised. Shortly afterwards, he said he would not only allow them to go, but would aid in their emigration. What, the common question was, could the Cuban dictator have up his sleeve?

That cannot be fully answered now. The Castro mind is subtle and devious, and there may be some surprises coming. But one answer seems to contain considerable logic.

It is that those Cubans who hold Castro's brand of communism and what it has done to their island are a needless burden on his distressed economy and that the intelligent course is to be rid of them.

Whether that is true or false, Cuba and her economy are in woeful shape, a recent issue of Time magazine devoted a long feature article to the current situation there under the revealing title, "Cuba: The Decaying Revolution". One passage reads: "What has happened to Castro is disappointment, disillusion and decay. After nearly seven years of power, the grandiose dreams are wilting. Gone is the hope of a swift socialist transformation to make agricultural Cuba a Caribbean industrial colossus; the Cuban economy is in tatters, back where it started as a one-crop sugar producer....Cuba today is populated by a sullen, listless people..."

All that is presently keeping Cuba alive economically, Time goes on, is a Russian dole which runs to about a million dollars a day. In return for that, the Kremlin demands and gets the kind of political rule it wants—which, of course, is largely political rule Soviet style.

The magazine recounts the changes, all dismal, that have taken place. Havana was once among the gayest of the world's cities and a tourist mecca. Now all is dridness. Prices in many instances are sky high, and the massive effort at industrialization that Castro inaugurated seems to have been an astronomical failure. To make matters worse, in some years the sugar crop has been small and now world sugar prices are at a fraction of former levels.

The rot is apparent throughout the economy. The state of the nation's railroad system has been described as "desperate". Breakdowns of equipment of all kinds are frequent and lengthy, due mainly to a lack of replacement parts. As an example, Time says that Cubana Airlines has three British-made four-engine planes, but often just one of them flies; the other two have to be used to supply parts. And what automobiles are still in operation are "rolling relics" at best. On top of all this, price inflation has drastically reduced the people's buying power.

How does Castro maintain himself? It is done by brute force. He has, says Time, a 200,000-man army with high quality Russian equipment. Occasionally, an anti-Castro guerrilla band will attempt revolt; it is put down with the utmost ruthlessness. And the army, so far, has been totally loyal to him.

Meanwhile, the U. S. watches Cuba carefully and follows a policy of containment. Time quotes an anti-Castro Cuban as saying: "I think the U. S. is letting us stew in our own juice for a while."

To the Editor:

"It Pays To Be Better - Editorial" Rings A Lot Of Bells.

It has been my privilege and pleasure to have enjoyed "The Mirror" since you started publication - thru a very dear friend of mine - A Bell Bottom Trouser - from THE BLACK GANG of U.S.S. FRANKLIN.

So you only acquired - five pieces of spinach - not of seven.

You know something - ever with ten pieces of spinach - and if you had a new Lead Quarter - Poor Bob would give you a beer.

This is America - Marching On - and not whistling Dixie.

Robert Kennedy, we read - wants to give Blood to the Soldiers of Communism in Vietnam - Who's Shopping Him? - He's Now From The CIA.

In Phila, Evening Bulletin tonight - I read where a 19 year old AMERICAN SOLDIER shouted to three Communists charging his position shouting American cuss die - the American Soldier shouted "I'll Meet You In Hell" - the American jumped up and with his Automatic Weapon blew off the head of 1 communist, emptying his gun, then he smashed in the head of number two with the gun's Butt, then he grabbed the barrell of the gun and swung it like a baseball bat at the third Communist - but a bullet from an unseen weapon - slammed into the American's back - and as he dropped said "Our Father" - and that was as far as life in this world would permit. Even in Elephant Grass 9,000 miles from home - he committed himself to The God of us all. Even while - Bearded - Long Haired Miss Fits - Screws - Don't Take me - I'm Educated.

So this is America today. I wonder what it would be like if the man - I voted for - would have made it?

Don't you think it is about time we started playing this game of War for keeps in the Good Old Fashioned Way - and Stop - making The Drop Outs expendable.

It pays to be better - Here and Hereafter.

Keep up the good job being done with "The Jensen Beach Mirror" success is not an easy road to travel.

Yours very truly,
Lonnie Baker

Palm City Road Traffic Ban Not Enforced

At last Monday night's City Commission meeting, Joe Geary of Riverview Drive, ... voiced complaint on Palm City Road near Poppleton Creek.

Geary also said the school bus stops twice within 300 feet of Poppleton Creek bridge and jeopardizes the lives of all pupils in the bus by doing so.

"The way cars speed and pop over that bridge will cause a serious accident some day. The bus should not be permitted to stop there," he said, adding that attempts to get the school department to make the change had been futile.

Geary was told that the signs prohibiting trucks were not particularly enforceable and that no enforcement drive had been made.

United Fund Ass'n To Meet December 9

The annual meeting of the Jensen Beach-Jupiter United Fund Association, Inc., will be held December 9 at the Community Center. This date was set at the meeting of the Executive Committee which was held last Friday.

Mrs. Zella Swarthout was appointed Chairman of the Nominating Committee by Richard E. Campbell, President. She will be assisted by Mrs. Edwin Miller and Al Wilson.

Letters are being sent to organizations asking them to present their budgets if they desire to participate in the United Fund Drive this year.

First Mortgage Creditors Promised Payment

In a letter to creditors of First Mortgage Corp. of Stuart, R. C. Ferson made a bid to them to give up their status as secured creditors by signing a consent and proof of claim changing their status to unsecured creditors in exchange for his promise to pay all creditors and certain notes 100 per cent in full in 50 equal monthly installments, the first to be made in 30 days after confirmation.

Soon after the U.S. Mails delivered the letter to the secured creditors, it was widely circulated around Stuart and Eastern Martin County.

There are approximately 700 secured creditors and about 30 unsecured creditors at the present time.

The First Mortgage Corp. of Stuart, in the letter, referred to the firm's financial difficulties, referred to A. O. Hunsinger, a stockholder and certificate holder who filed suit in Circuit Court, and called his move "unfortunate." Ferson said it stopped all business, including collections of mortgages.

Ethan Schwarz, attorney for Hunsinger, denied this and said that the Florida Securities Commission suit was being prepared and was ready for filing when Hunsinger's suit was being prepared.

On the docket, one is No. 4189, and one No. 4194.

In other moves, Richard B. Stone, who was named as receiver for the main corporations in the Ferson circle, but not First Mortgage, asked a fee of $6,000 monthly as receiver. He is a Miami attorney.

Judge Trowbridge issued that the job has cost Stone $12,000 since his appointment, and that he is doing the work for Ferson executives who were receiving between $10,000 and $12,000 a month.

Three more Ferson firms were added to the state's case against First Mortgage of Stuart, including Crown Management Corp., Continental Finance and Loan Co., and Ferson Foundation, Inc.

Judge Trowbridge on Nov. 3 enjoined Ferson from making any moves with any of his companies after officials supplied affidavits that he was attempting to put them into bankruptcy.

On Friday Schwarz moved to consolidate all cases, but Judge Trowbridge said there would be too much confusion.

The pre-Christmas season parade has been sponsored by the club in recent years.

Mrs. Daryl Marshall is chairman of another club Christmas project under the direction of the Youth Observation Department, and will collect used toys for the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department for Christmas.

Chairman of the collection drive is Mrs. Bob Cunningham. Mrs. Lloyd Ellerson will be chairman of a drive to collect trading stamps for WITU's project of Christmas toys for needy children.

A Christmas party with gifts for the children will be held at Sundial Training Center at Ft. Pierce, according to Mrs. Hampton. The club now sponsors two children at the present time and will soon sponsor the McKinley Cottage for boys age girls.

Marty And The Moose

This little story concerns Marty Kottasch on Key Lime and a young moose in Montana. It seems that this young moose spent several years of his life in the foothills of the Rockies in North Western Montana. Unhappily for him, Marty Kottasch's son's father-in-law shot the moose, then really started to travel. Right across the United States to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, then to Amherst, Va., next to Chillicothe, Pa. and lastly a long trot south to Ocean Breeze Park. As Marty said, "The moose's rump travelled farther than the whole moose probably did all its life. While Marty was grilling a part of said moose was sizzling merrily away in the pressure cooker on the stove.

22 Pounder

Elmer MacKenzie on S. Fifth caught a nice Snook the evening of the 9th. Elmer was fishing along with light tackle about 7:30 p.m. on the "25 cent" bridge when the snook struck. Unable to land the fish since he got someone to hold the pole while he phoned for help. Very shortly Roy Blogger and Charlie Long arrived with a snatch hook and the snook was hauled up on the bridge. I say they started for Ocean Breeze early this month but on account of car trouble had to return home. They both sprained her ankle so it will be two weeks before we can travel. Hope all are well.

Movie Schedule

The picture for next Sunday evening is "For Love or Money", starring Kirk Douglas, Mitzi Gaynor and Gig Young. United World Films describes it as follows:

"An engaging romantic affair packed with hilarity and sprinkled with surprises. This comedy concerns a marriage-resistant, lawyer-about-town. In a series of laugh-provoking incidents Kirk Douglas is retained to find husbands for a bevy of three beautiful daughters. Needless to say, Kirk gets enamorously entangled in his own web. (108 minutes, Color, Mature) Film Masterpiece". These Sunday night movies start at 7 o'clock sharp and all Ocean Breeze residents are invited to attend.

Shuffleboard League Meet

Ben Bolthaus, manager of Ocean Breeze Shuffleboard Club, informs us of participants of the regular meeting of the Indian River shuffleboard League which was held at Fort Pierce on Thursday, November 11.

Representatives from Ocean Breeze, Stuart, Fort Pierce, Vero Beach, Port St. Lucie, Whispering Creek and Trailer Haven attended. Whispering Creek and Trailer Haven withdrew their teams from competition leaving five districts only to compete for honors in the Indian River League for the 1965-66 season. Due to the fact that five teams makes an odd set up, permission was granted Ocean Breeze to enter two teams, thus making an even six team league. Games are expected to start December 1 and end the last Wednesday in February, 1966. A schedule of games will be mailed to each team.

New shuffleboard arrivals during the past week are L. Brammer, George Reed and Dick Pitman, all looking for competition. Plans are being made by the Central Club Manager for district tournaments to be held at the home courts of each club through the season. There was only one four game winner in the Round Robin matches this past weekend, namely, Sun Miller, making a total of four since starting two weeks ago.

We received a letter from R.A. Baillie dated November 9th in which he says they started for Ocean Breeze early this month but on account of car trouble had to return home. They both sprained her ankle so it will be two weeks before we can travel. Hope all are well.

Joseph W. Reid

13 Star Flag Displayed

On November 11, Veterans' Day, your reporter's attention was drawn to a very unusual flag that was displayed at a trailer on Sixth Avenue.

I called and talked with the owner, Joseph W. Reid, and discovered this flag had a very interesting history. Mr. Reid served in the United States Navy from March 24, 1915 until he retired with the rank of Senior Lieutenant in November, 1947. After retirement from the navy Mr. Reid took a position with the Hoffman Laboratories, Los Angeles, where he worked for several years. Retiring permanently in 1958, Mr. and Mrs. Reid bought a travel trailer and travelled quite extensively until a friend Milton Sage recommended Ocean Breeze and here they are on Sixth Avenue.

Referring to the flag, Reid says he was in the New York Navy Yard in February, 1916 when, among other items, some old flags were being destroyed by burning. He asked if he could have this flag and took it home. Recently, his son, Joseph W., Jr., got interested in this flag and undertook to look it up in his college library. These interesting facts were discovered:

Quotes from "Flags of the U.S.A." by David Eggenberger, Chapter XX, "A More Perfect Union".

"What did these pioneering national flags look like? Unfortunately, few actual banners have survived and most contemporary records omit detailed descriptions of the national ensign of the period. It is certain however that there was little uniformity in these early flags". "Most of the flags of the Army and of government agencies were made by private contractors who took considerable latitude in designing and arranging the stars". "One of the many misapprehensions about the first stars and stripes is that the stars were commonly arranged in a circle. "There is no evidence to show that the circular arrangement of stars was ever popular". "The Navy, on the other hand, manufactured its own flags and soon settled upon rows of stars arranged 3-2-3-2-3. This design of the combined crosses of St. George and St. Andrew" (The English flag) "became the most popular method of placing the stars in the canton of blue until the addition of two stars in 1795 rendered the old arrangement impractical."

The next flag, made official by law in 1795, had fifteen stars and fifteen stripes (for the two new states of Vermont and Kentucky). In 1818 the number of stripes was reduced to 13 by law. According to this, your 13 star design, if it is the same as the above illustration, was made some time between 1777 and 1795. This is older, incidentally, than the Fort McHenry flag in the Smithsonian Institute in D.C., which was made in 1814 and bombarded in that year by the British. According to law, when the flag "is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning".

Your reporter noticed that the New York Navy Yard had replaced the burning facility at the staff end of this flag in March, 1911. The date is plainly stamped. Incidentally, Joseph Jr. is now employed by the government as Computing Engineer at Phoenix, Arizona. After my interview with Mr. Reid, I read an article on an early flag in the November 12 issue of Time Magazine, page 81.

Camera Club Underway

Eighty nine people attended the first Camera Club meeting of the season on Thursday, November 11th. The Stiles showed the color slides of their European trip. Mrs. Stiles giving the commentary. This was their first attempt at taking slides and the presenting of them in public, for which Chairman Cliff Ogle congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Stiles, and the audience showed their approval in the usual manner. Marty Kottsch followed with a series of slides illustrating the development and processing of the Alberta Tar Sands, as they have been called for many years. This project is being undertaken by the Sun Oil Company and this company has invested many millions of dollars to tap this vast oil reserve.

Next Thursday the Camera Club takes pleasure in announcing that Cliff Ogle will show a movie film that he made of the World's Fair last summer. Immediately following this movie, the workshop will be in the nature of an instruction of ways of improving your color slide photography. This will be illustrated by slides.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McKissack from Newcastle, Pa. are visiting Mrs. McKissack's brother, Harold Dixon on Hibiscus. The McKissacks are taking a month's tour of Florida and the Bahamas looking for a retirement home.

Pumps

The gasoline pumps in front of the park office were opened for business on Monday, November 15th. These are now owned and operated by Harry Wilks. Two grades of gasoline will be sold as well as kerosene and lubricating oil.

'Mr. and Mrs. Wilder Weeks

Weeks' Travels

Mr. and Mrs. Wilder Weeks on Cocos St. had some interesting trips with their trailer this past summer. Wilder was particularly interested in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, Canada.

The Canadian Trailer Parks are well run. They are clean and located in some of the most scenic spots. Cape Breton Island is not large but there are a dozen trailer parks scattered around the island. Wilder continued, "We were there in August. The weather was fine but cool. We left our trailer and drove to various parts of the island. Sometimes our road followed the side of a mountain overlooking the ocean. The scenery was very rugged. Everywhere we went the Scottish accent was quite noticeable. Although Cape Breton is an island, one can drive from the mainland over the longest rock filled causeway in the world."

After leaving the island, the Weeks followed the coast down. At one place they were able to pull right down to the water front and park their trailer. At Ellsworth, Maine, they saw clams advertised for two dollars and a half a bushel so Wilder couldn't resist the temptation to buy a bushel. Wilder says he and Mrs. Weeks did a lot of travelling this summer and enjoyed it but it is nice to back in Ocean Breeze again.

Y'all Come

The Saturday night dance crowd is increasing each week but there is still room for more, Harry announced that next Saturday, November 20th, there will be a Barn Dance. He didn't elaborate, but knowing Harry as we do we can look for something new - and a big crowd so come early.

EIGHT CLUB MEETS--Mrs. Cecile Harlow on Skipper entertained the "Eight Club" at her home Monday afternoon. The same original eight ladies who formed the club are starting on their fifth winter season. Powder Puff Game At IRJC Set For Nov. 29

Tradition continues to be established at Indian River Junior College. For the second year in a row, the Freshmen women have challenged the Sophomore women to a Powderpuff flag football game. The site of this second annual conflict will be Jaycee Field in Fort Pierce. The time will be 8 P.M. under the lights on Monday, November 29th.

Football practice for the coeds is the extra curricular event that seems to take precedence these days. Sally Sample of Ft. Pierce, is captain of the Sophomore team with Steve Young and Chuck Bowen forming the coaching staff. The Frosh captain, Judy Lisle of Stuart, has chosen to have her team coached by Tony Leffler and Eddie King.

Tickets are being made by Carolyn Duncan. They will go on sale Monday.

The Major Domo for the event is Ernest Lacey, Maintenance Head at IRJC, with Charles E. Bowen as faculty assistant. Referees will be faculty members W. Holt Harner, Ellen Seaber and Dean Robert Garis, and John K. Brown will be head lineman.

Half-time show will feature the Stage Band and the IRJC Twirlettes.

American Russian Classes Compared

The problems of American Democracy classes put on an assembly program Wednesday comparing the free choice of individuals, and the educating system in the Russian Schools and ours.

The third and fourth period P.A.D. classes each represented a classroom. Fourth period was the American class. After they had said their pledge and had the moment of silence, the mechanics of voting for a student council representative were gone through.

Third period came in next as the Russian class. The students found their ideas about how to dress and act from a Russian magazine - U.S.S.R.

The class came in formally and waited for the teacher. When she finally arrived she explained that a representative would be democratically elected, for he would march in the May Day Parade. Since one boy Igor Ivinsky, had one of the highest records in the class he would be elected. After instructions from the teacher, they voted him in unanimously.

Though some of the program sounded the Russians, another part did not. Three questions that had been asked of and answered by Russian students were taken from the U.S.S.R. Magazine. The questions asked were: "What do you want out of life?" Russian #1 answered, "I want interesting work that will be meaningful to the Soviet Union. I want a socially productive activity." Russian #2 answered, "I want to go to college and return to my factory and become a specialist and win the respect and confidence of the people around me and be of greater benefit to people."

The two American students both wanted a college education, a solid job and healthy and happy children.

The next question was; "How did you do on the college entrance test?" Russian #1 answered, "I make a low grade on the test that determines if I go into industry or on to school. I did not score high enough to go on to school. I will go to work in a shoe factory at the end of a term. I am ashamed for myself and my family. I am dumb and not unlike a donkey. I will try in the factories to work to the best of my abilities every day so that my superior classmates may have comfortable shoes to wear."

The American student admitted not doing too well, but pointed out that she was going to study harder and take the test again.

The last question asked was; "What do you do for recreation?" Russian #4 answered, "I belong to the young Pioneers and we exercise and read great literature by Russian authors." Russian #6 answered, "I study music at the conservatory every day after school for five hours. I passed a test and my lessons are free. I will take another test later and if I pass it, I will learn to play another instrument."

The American students said that when they got some spare time they liked to sport, play records and dance. One girl said that she was learning to play a guitar, but she didn't have to take a test to learn.

The program was brought to a peak by two debates from the American class. This week the much discussed topic of Viet Nam was debated. Next week free speech will be tossed about.

The students were assigned to the debate and to the affirmative or negative view. Though they might not have really believed in the viewpoint they were to stress, they discussed and pointed out the fallacies of the other side's idea without any apparent strain.

The negative was debated by Johnny Mascha as follows:

There are in truth two main reasons why we are becoming ever more deeply involved in Viet Nam. First is the proud refusal to admit a mistake, to admit the failure of an attempt begun 10 years ago, to make South Viet Nam a pro-American and anti-Chinese state.

Second we're in Viet Nam at the express invitation of the South Vietnamese government. But we're fighting also for the millions of people in the other threatened lands beyond, people who haven't the power to defend themselves from the Chinese and whose lives, safety and freedom depend on the strong arm of the policeman which only we can provide.

The United States is quite unable to police the world, and it is dangerous to profess and pretend that we can be the policeman of the world. How many more Dominican Republics can the U.S. police in this hemisphere? How many Viet Nams can the United States defend in Asia?

In making Viet Nam the test of our ability to protect Asia, we shall in fact provide revolutionary China with just the enemy it needs in order to focus popular hatred against us - a white, rich, capitalistic, great power. We are allowing ourselves to be cast in the role of the enemy of the miserable and unhappy masses of the emerging nations.

Viet Nam remains the wrong war in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Rose Leighton expressed her views in the affirmative.

We have learned at a terrible and brutal cost that retreat does not bring safety and weakness does not bring peace. It is this lesson that has brought us to Viet Nam. This war is guided by North Viet Nam, and it is spurred by Communist China. Its goal is to conquer the south, to defeat American power, and to extend the power of communism. The Vietnamese have asked our help. We have given it. As leaders of free world I feel it was our obligation to help these people who were and still are on the brink of losing their freedom. They have taken the risks and made the sacrifices linked with our commitment. If the Communists are not stopped in Viet Nam it will be harder and tougher to try somewhere else.

Teach--in professors, intellectuals, and artists have been shouting "Hands Off Viet Nam." A slogan is not a policy; and they have not said what, exactly, they would do if they were sitting behind Mr. Johnson's desk. If he (Johnson) simply pulled out all American troops, as some of his critics urge, he would not only be betraying an ally (and who would ever trust us then?) but he almost certainly would be turning over all of Southeast Asia to the Chinese. I don't think the free world could endure the impact from a loss such as this. In conclusion, I'll say, so far as I can see, our intervention in this trouble spot is the least dangerous and ultimately the least costly of any of the alternatives.

Residential Directors are Ben Regli, Ernest Rodenbaugh and Bill Page. Chamber Manager will be Col. Hale.

Seal Story Seekers Answers

Here's one way inquiring minds get answers. Several weeks ago there appeared in the third grade Weekly Reader an article about baby seals. These little fellows are washed ashore off the coast of Norwich, England. The people there look after them until they can do for themselves.

After reading this article the children of Mrs. Carol Schwartz's class at Port Salerno Elementary School had many unanswered questions. Where do the seal pups come from? How long do the people look after them? What do they eat? Are they friendly? And many more. Now, where would they be able to get these answers?

Someone suggested writing a letter. They didn't know anyone in Norwich, but decided to write the Mayor. He passes the letter on to the Curator of Natural History Museum and this was their answer.

"There are two species of seal native to Britain, The Common and the Grey Seal. Both seal pups are likely to get washed ashore, being carried away from the sand banks, where they are born, by strong currents.

They are kept in the Seal Nursery at Snettisham. The seals are fed on a diet of two parts of cow milk to one part of whale oil and a little cod-liver oil. After they have sufficiently recovered, usually a few days, they are returned to the sand banks from whence they came.

Grey seal pups are about 3 feet 6 inches in length when they are five days old, but grow very quickly in the first few weeks of life. Common seal pups are smaller. Common pups quickly become tame and seem to enjoy human companionship, but Grey seals are more wary. Either species may bite if startled, but they are not naturally vicious animals and often exhibit a considerable amount of intelligence."

The prompt reply in answering their letter has motivated these young minds to the point where all they want to do is write letters to every place imaginable to answer every question imaginable.

Mosquito Films Shown At Port Salerno School

Arthur S. Kidwell, of The Florida State Board of Health held a special assembly program at the Port Salerno Elementary School on October 29 for the sixth grade class.

Two films were shown to the group entitled, "The Enemy In Our Home" and "The Biology and Control of Domestic Mosquitoes."

Highlighted points of the films were to impress everyone with the importance of helping to get rid of the breeding places of the mosquitoes. Yellow fever mosquitoes breed in containers such as flower vases, discarded tin cans, bottles and other containers.

Principal Walter Peterson stated that this was one of several programs planned this year as part of the Health and Safety curriculum. The school won national recognition for its programing last year.

Ack-Ack Shells Found

Found on the H-P Hoods & Sons Wood-Martin Grove, about eight miles west of the turnpike in Central Martin County were three 20-mm anti-aircraft shells in poor condition.

A front-end loader, cleaning spoil dumped by a dragline cleaning the sides of a canal, picked up one on Friday in a load of shell and marl.

According to Sam Croft, foreman of the groves, two more were found Monday. Croft interrupted operations until the area was checked for other ammunition.

An ammunition man in the U.S. Marine Corps years ago, Croft recognized the shells, which were turned over to Deputy Sheriffs Jim Mills and Slater Gross.

Pieces of wood found in the area indicated that more shells might be located nearby.

SHE IS BACK--The Chanticleer returns from a 15,000 mile trip to Europe, Africa, and the Near East, passing under the Indian River Bridge. Aboard were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evinrude, who were treated to a "Welcome Home" Party by over 200 local people.

Rogers Inspects Site For Ocean Research

U. S. Rep. Paul G. Rogers, a member of the House Subcommittee on Oceanography, inspected two possible places for oceanographic work in this area in a two-hour visit Tuesday.

Rogers met with Ray Roberts, science teacher at Martin County High School, who is a director of the Florida Oceanographic Society and one of the originators of a plan to teach marine sciences in the high school.

Others in the group were Bernard Richenback, who offered a boat for use in off-shore research at his own expense; Rose Pfaltzgraff, executive director of the local Committee of 100; Ali Raphel, local charter boat skipper and owner; Clinton Perry, representing James C. Hand interests; Stephen Schmidt, former director of the local museum, now in a similar position in Palm Beach County; and David B. Irons, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Stuart.

Also present was Bud Lockrie, Rep. Rogers' administrative assistant.

The old Hand mansion on Krueger Creek has been offered as a home for scientists while working on oceanography in this area.

On Tuesday, the Commission voted to lease at practically no charge, the former bridge-tender's house on the Jensen Beach Causeway to the State Department of Conservation for use as a base for the department's oyster lobster research program, being conducted in this area by Ross Wilson of North River Shores.

Rep. Rogers said he was delighted with the interest shown in oceanography here.

He also said a conference would be held shortly after the new year to work out a compromise between House and Senate bills passed on the subject of oceanography.

Precinct Plan Adopted By County Commission

At Tuesday's County Commission meeting, the board adopted a precinct plan for Martin County with Commissioner Ed Miller abstaining from voting.

The other four commissioners voted on the plan which was submitted two weeks ago by County Supervisor Isabel Evans.

The precinct plan and the previously adopted restrictive plan were both amended after Chairman Wachs read a letter from the Town of Jupiter Island requesting that they be permitted to remain entirely within one district and precinct. Earlier survey had cut the town in two parts. The change kept it in District 3 and Precinct 6.

Another change moved the polling place in Precinct 1, West Stuart, from the Old Fellows Hall to the old Methodist Church building.

Legal advertising of the entire change will be published in the county's three weekly newspapers next week.

People at the commission meeting included Mrs. J. B. Hussey, Port Sewall, who asked that "as clear as possible" descriptions be made of the areas affected

Gunn Quits As Chairman

Henry Gunn of Jensen Beach, at a meeting Monday night, tendered his resignation, effective at once, as Chairman of the Martin County Republican Executive Committee, due to lack of time and the press of business.

The new chairman of the committee, elected by the balance of the board, is Dr. William G. Myers, a Hobe Sound physician.

Chairman of the committee to set up a New Year's Eve open house was William Murfin, Stuart and Hobe Sound druggist.

Road Closure Requested

The County Commission was asked to advertise the closing two roads in Fort Salerno, at its meeting this week.

One was the north end of DeSoto Street, where a new culvert was necessary to correct poor soil conditions, and the other was the east end of Cleveland.

Requested was a statement of ownership of a 150' by 50' piece of land of property from the county to Manatee Yacht Club, where it would permit more parking.

Commercial interests will have to apply personally to the Martin County Commission for permission to raise flowers in the Indian River.

Dean Tooker, County Attorney, pointed out that leases were made through the state only with county approval.

JB Fire Dept. Needs Chassis

Advertising of bids on a 1966 International chassis for the Jensen Beach Fire Department was asked at this week's meeting of the County Commission.

Greens Fee Schedule Set

A new greens fee schedule for the Martin County Golf and Country Club was established Monday. A resident annual fee of $10 plus $2 a day of play was made to avoid criticism of local people who feel the course is being supported by the County.

The County Commission transferred $6,000 to the Golf Course account to assist the club in building an equipment storage house.

Maintenance of the Club runs to $3,000 a month.

County Barn Burns In Spectacular Fire; One Dead

Man Dies In Flames Of Exploded Tanker

A man's life was lost when a welder's torch set off an explosion in a 8,000 gallon tanker at the county barn last Thursday afternoon, practically wiping out the county's road and park departments.

The fire that followed the explosion caused at least 50 other smaller explosions as gasoline tanks of vehicles, barrels of oil and other flammable materials. The fire endangered the Standard Oil Co. bulk plant, causing most of the fire fighting equipment in the county to be brought out.

Vernon Davis of Little Dixie who was welding the tanker-trailer tank truck, died after running a few feet from the place where he was working.

Clifford K. Raulerson, county superintendent of public works, said all men had been warned regarding the welding on hot equipment. He said the asphalt was at about 155 degrees, but said it been cold, it would probably not have exploded.

The Stuart fire station received the alarm about 3:20 p.m.

A dozen fire trucks from Stuart, Port Salerno, Palm City and Jensen Beach fought the blaze before the facility was leveled.

The fire was out at dusk but smoke still permeated the air in the city.

In addition to the tank truck, three pickup trucks, three mowers, two tractors, and a dump truck were destroyed. Two other dump trucks were damaged.

After the initial explosion, a northwest wind, estimated at about 10 miles per hour, fanned the blaze into an inferno within minutes.

Darkness set in before an inventory of equipment could be made so the estimates of the loss were tentative. Unofficial guesses set the loss at as high as $200,000.

A private car near the building was burned as well as the county building inspector's sedan which was parked behind the barn.

In the burning building, one pulled to safety, were the county's two fire trucks.

Hubert Hagood was knocked down by the explosion as he drove a new Dodge truck from the burning building.

When the fire struck, at least 10 of the county's trucks were out on jobs so were saved.

At the scene at the time of the explosion were Dewey Chasen, Monterey Section Tommie Weiler, Jensen Beach, fire building inspector; Hubert Hagood, Palm City; Harold Sanders, Palm City and William Epps, Hobe Sound.

Sanders was treated at Martin Memorial Hospital for first degree burns on his right forearm and then released.

Hagood said he was standing about 25 feet from the tanker when it exploded.

A 5,000 gallon capacity gasoline tank which was under the building and two 1,000 gallon capacity oil tanks a few feet south of it failed to explode.

At the scene were County Commissioners Frank A. Wachs, J. H. Bruner, County Engineer Fred L. Bell and County Attorney Dean Tooker.

Hundreds of spectators lined the Florida East Coast tracks.

County Engineer Fred L. Bell said Willie McCain, Chairman of the St. Lucie County Commission, called him and offered "Any piece of equipment you want, just call us and it will be placed at your disposal."

Former county commissioner, Arnold Bauer of Port Sewall, offered the use of two buildings in the Monterey Section "free of charge" of water and electricity."

The Martin County Commission and local insurance agents moved swiftly last Thursday to put the county public works department back in action.

The Martin County Association of Insurance Agents met at the Taylor-Ashley Agency on Colorado Avenue to discuss claims.

Joseph C. Finley, Jr. representing the C.D. Arbogast Agency, had a $12,900 check for the county at the time the meeting was called.

Pointed out at the meeting was the fact that there was a complete lack of running inventory of equipment and that fire insurance on county records at the court house is inadequate. It was also brought out that storage facilities are inadequate which would cost the county many times the cost of the insurance premium should a fire of any destructive force break out.

No claims will be paid on Civil Defense equipment owned by the county because there was no listed values placed on it by the county.

County Attorney Dean Tooker, who represented the county at the meeting, tried to get agreement for more than $5,000 on contents of the building, was told by Finley every effort would be made to favor the county, but that inadequate and incomplete records would work against the county.

BARN BURNING- The county barn was a mass of billowing clouds of smoke, visible for up to ten miles, and a white hot inferno of flames as the galvanized metal cover held the heat in until the structure was ready to collapse. Within a minute after this photo was taken by Mirror cameraman Howard Haid the structure tumbled down. One man was killed by the explosion of a truck he was welding, the start of the disasterous fire.

Savanna Road Is Boosted

The long awaited extension of Savanna Road from Jensen Beach to Rio got a boost from the county commission Tuesday as $50,000 was transferred to pay for preliminary plans and engineering of the road. Plans for the road, according to county engineer Fred Bell, give a route along the section line from the existing road's end at Legion Heights, in Martin Blvd. in Rio, then following the railroad tracks to link up with Rt. 707 just north of the railroad crossing.

No crossing is involved at present, but the curve at Martin Blvd. indicates a future grade crossing into downtown Rio.

The transfer of funds was from a $250,000 allocation to Citrus Blvd. in western Martin County, as explained by Commissioner Chairman Frank Wachs, "which we couldn't spend in this fiscal year." Wachs noted that all rights of way for Citrus were not given, and that $100 million of the road was not yet completed, whereas the Savanna Road rights of way were already lined up.

Elmer Powers, in whose district Citrus Blvd. lies, asked that the funds be taken from the Pratt Whitney Road, but was told that the contracts to build the road were set to be let in January.

The vote for the transfer of funds was 3-2, with Ed Miller and Powers opposing.

Farm Bureau Elects Directors

The Martin County Farm Bureau elected twelve directors in its annual session Thursday night at the Levi M. Johnson Agricultural Center.

On December 9, the directors will meet to elect a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer from their number.

Elected were Bruce Bidding, Tiner Powers, George Oliver, Levi M. Johnson, Rep. William E. Owens, Albert Krueger, Jack Norris, Jack Williamson, Dick Kelly, Dean Smiley, Tom Clements and Ed Gluckler.

A meeting of all cattlemen in the county has been set for next Tuesday at the agricultural center to discuss the pending brucelosis program the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture wants to initiate here.

HOME ON LEAVE- Seaman Randy Tilton left Saturday following a week's visit with his family in Jensen Beach. He just graduated from eight weeks training at boot camp at Cape May, New Jersey. He is being assigned to the 3rd Coast Guard District in New York.

Michael Hicks Wins Election

At the annual district meeting held last weekend at Vero Beach High School, Michael Rand (Randy) Hicks, 16-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Hicks of Indiantown, was elected governor of District VIII, Cooperative Education Clubs of Florida.

There were eight candidates for the office. Randy was praised by Edgar F. Norton, coordinator of the DCT program at Martin County Schools, for the "manner in which he maintained himself during the campaign and the election itself."

Anglers Sign Up

Dr. Rudy Steinhauser, Jr., of Jupiter, who won the 11th annual Light Tackle Sailfish (Release) Tournament in 1964, will be back to defend the title, according to Wm. O. Simpkin, president of the Stuart Sailfish Club, sponsoring club of the famed tournament.

The genial surgeon will fish from the Schizo, his own craft.

The tournament will be held Dec. 10 through 13, and will be based as usual at Sunrise Inn, and a lost day is just that...lost for good.

Points are recorded for the lightest line, 20-lb., and for releases, over heavier tackle and non-releases, except in cases of injured fish. There are many day prizes, and a prize for the longest fish caught in the tournament.

Do-it-yourself rules, under which anglers may get no help from the skipper through backing down, maneuvering, because engines are thrown out of gear when the fish is hooked.

Woman's Club Discusses Books

The Woman's Club of Stuart met last Wednesday and presented a program entitled, "Around The Table With Books."

Participating were Miss Jean Roos, moderator and panelists Miss Helen L. Funnell, Mrs. C.R. Vandervoer, Mrs. W. Ira Williams and William Ong.

The panelists covered 20 books including the theatre, archaeology, travel, politics at home and abroad, humor and love. Programs printed by the Pioneer School for the Handicapped were available for the audience.

Mrs. W. J. Donovan and her committee served refreshments after the meeting.

Math Teacher Is Suspended

A junior high school math teacher instructing modern algebra to ninth graders was suspended by Thomas L. Crook, the superintendent of public instruction effective last Monday.

The suspension was made on the recommendation of Joseph McCoy, principal of the junior high, who charged "gross insubordination and disrespect to duly constituted authority in the presence of a parent of one of your students."

The teacher is James M. Parrish who has had nine years of math teaching in the county schools and in on a continuing contract.

Parrish has retained Atty. Alton S. Beasley to represent him.

Crook said, "His teaching ability is not in question. I am concerned with the disrespect shown to McCoy and other teachers."

The charges will be placed by Crook before the board of public instruction on November 29, and Parrish may then submit his resignation "in order to prevent any blemish on your record," wrote Crook.

"In the alternative, you may request within 10 days of the date of the letter (Nov. 18) a public hearing, and should you choose the latter course, such request for hearing must be in writing directed to the Board....you will be notified within 15 days of receipt of your request that time and place of such public hearing," Crook added, in closing.

Words To Make Your Life Better

THANKFULNESS

What a gift it is to be born with an outlook toward the bright side of things! And if not so by nature, what a triumph of grace to be made thankful through a renewed heart! It is so much more comfortable and rational to see what we have to be thankful for and to rejoice accordingly, than to have our vision for ever filled with our lacks and our needs. Happy are they who possess this gift! Blessings may fail and fortunes vary, but the thankful heart remains. The happy past, at least, is secure--and Heaven is ahead.

They Were There When Needed

Quick action on the part of the fire departments of Martin County made the disastrous fire at the county barns less of a menace to property than it was. It also pointed up the fact that this county has some of the finest firemen in the state of Florida.

They were there when they were needed. Through the action of the fire department, the Standard Oil Company bulk plant, next door to the county barn, was saved, and the danger of exploding gasoline tanks, throwing flaming fuel over a wide wide area, was averted.

What does it take to face a fire, knowing that tanks with highly volatile gasolines are ready to explode in your face? These firemen know.

We are proud of the firemen of Martin County.

To this praise is added nimble and plentiful to the law enforcement officers of Stuart and the Sheriff's Department, who kept traffic moving smoothly during the several hours long fire.

We Enter The New Age

The announcement of a $300 million nuclear generating plant by Florida Power and Light Company moves Florida into the nuclear age, an age of wonder already shown in the development of Cape Kennedy.

The practical use of nuclear energy, use for peace and the betterment of mankind, rather than use for destruction, makes us feel that perhaps there is a glimmer of hope in the application of intelligence in human beings. For too long, man has moved toward his own demise, concentrating more on weapons for wiping out the world, rather than exerting more effort to build this sphere in one piece.

Florida Power and Light's generating capacity will be raised more than 8% in the next five years by the use of this energy. Florida follows New York, Illinois and Massachusetts in the development of power by nuclear generation.

The investment of FPL in this plant will be enormous, costing 50 percent more than a conventional unit. The increased cost will be offset by lower operating cost in the long run.

This points up the need of private enterprise to have capital for reinvestment, and also shows the demand for a profit motive [illegible] business. We have often questioned the arbitrary method of regulation of power rates by government, and have been opposed to any fixing of rates that do not take into account the updating of equipment and reinvestment of funds to plant facilities.

Atomic power has come to Florida in a peaceful way. It is a practical power, produced by private enterprise, for the betterment of the people. We salute forward-looking Florida Power and Light Company.

The BIG Story

A few weeks ago, when an auto overturned on a quiet residential street in Chicago, a 10-year-old girl who saw it raced indoors, snatched a box camera, photographed the overturned car, and offered the photo to a Chicago newspaper.

Next day the photo was published, a check was issued to the girl, and another young American had experienced the thrill that only practicing journalists know—beating pals for reporting, in print, pictures, or broadcasting, about contemporary individuals and events of interest and importance.

As those of us who call ourselves journalists can attest, there is no other thrill like it. Bob Considine, columnist and feature writer, puts it this way:

"I wouldn't exchange jobs with any titan or tycoon in the land. Gathering, phrasing, and dispensing news and ideas is the world's most enchanting job."

Further, no task is more important in a democracy, for without information—prompt, accurate, comprehensive—self-government would perish. This is why Thomas Jefferson said:

"Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter."

This also is why editors and publishers have fought, suffered, and died to resist private or governmental pressure to twist or suppress news and why this fight is never-ending.

Yet, a growing talent shortage has plagued American journalism in recent years.

The field is booming: daily newspapers; weeklies (suburban newspapers, and non-urban); general magazines; "trade (industry and professional) magazines; house organs; books, radio-TV; public relations and advertising; journalism teaching; and other branches.

Whole new specialty areas have sprung up, such as the culture beat, urban, military, and foreign affairs, religion, politics, and science writing; pay and fringe benefits have risen; the number of colleges and universities offering journalism training has multiplied; journalism scholarships are up.

But relatively few young people are aware of this. As a result, a backlog of opportunities of unprecedented dimensions exists.

Indeed, last fall Executive Director Paul S. Swensson of the Newspaper Fund, Inc., estimated that the gap between job opportunities and journalists available to fill them now is so great (10 or more jobs per graduate) that by conservative estimate, at least 5,000 new journalists a year will be required to fill existing jobs—a total of 25,000 in the next five years. This is far more than are now being graduated and fails to allow for new opportunities continually being created.

This is the "big story" in journalism today; an almost infinite variety of challenging opportunities which appeal to idealists and others, alike. You can place first priority on a comfortable living or on serving your fellow men. Either way, journalism can satisfy your desires, if you train for it.

If you are a student contemplating a career or you know one, write to, contact your local newspaper or state newspaper association for further information, or write The Newspaper Fund, Inc., Box 300, Princeton, N. J., 08540, or Sigma Delta Chi, National Professional Journalistic Society, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Journalism has a place for you and thousands of other Americans—a fulfilling and rewarding career—and not in the front row of history. You only live once. Why settle for less?

NEW SCHOOL FLAG—Ernest Varvil, Principal of Jensen Beach Elementary School, accepts a new American flag for the school cafeteria from Mirror Editor Dick Campbell. The flag was donated to the school at last week's PTA meeting when the editor noted the old flag in the cafeteria was worn and dirty.

Correct Addresses

Letters and packages addressed incorrectly are giving the Jensen Beach Post Office a fit, according to postmaster Lil Kendall.

Kendall asked the Mirror to publicize the fact that many local residents are giving their home address to receive mail, when they have a post office box, and the mail is delayed and is a harrassing element to delivery men and the mail office sorters.

With the population reaching the 8,000 mark in the winter season, Kendall urged local people to use proper return addresses on mail and asked all to get proper addresses on packages for local delivery.

Local Firms Receives Plaques

At the 3-day 49th Annual Meeting and Business Conference of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce which met last week in Hollywood, Gov. Hayden Burns presented plaques Burns presented plaques to industrial firms which were built or expanded during the year. Grumman Aircraft and Outboard Marine Corporation of Stuart were invited firms.

The theme of the conference was, "Florida Geared to Growth".

LIVE.....and love it — by DICK CAMPBELL

Thanksgiving? Or Thanksliving?

The great day of Thanksgiving, symbolized by the hardy pilgrims sharing the celebration of an abundant harvest with their Indian brothers, has come again. Marinac only by an early Christmas commercialism. Thanksgiving heralds a good year past and hope for the future.

Monday morning, Fred Stragal gave me a poem, which I would like to use as the theme of our column this week. It is entitled "Give Thanks", and is an original work composed by Eugene on Sunday.

"When you're sick, and tired of trying, and you stand at odds with fate;
When you feel your spirits crying out in bitterness and hate;
When you see the dreams you've cherished fall to ashes in your heart;
When you think all hope has perished,
Brother, that's the time to start thankin' God for eyes to see with, lips to sing for, hands to help.
Friends to love you, just to be with;
Not for fame, and not for gold,
When you think you've reached the bottom;
When you think you've drained the cup,
Still give thanks. There's folks around you, half as lucky, looking up.

This is a year of plenty. It is a year when the tables of most will be piled high with the feast provided by their labors. We are lucky to live in a land that gives us the opportunity to prosper, to live and to build a life, rather than a living.

This should also be a year renewed thinking of the future. The independence of the pilgrims can reawaken a spirit of individual responsibility and achievement in our people. It can also bring more to a deeper understanding of the beautiful goodness of God, and dedication to freedom for all mankind.

This should be a Thanksgiving of living in the United States.

Mrs. Murray Elected To Adv. Committee

Mrs. Rosaleen Murray, manager of the Stuart Chamber of Commerce, was elected to the Advisory Committee of the Florida Travel Council at its annual meeting in Hollywood last week. The Committee is composed as a division of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of uniting private enterprise in the promotion of the travel business throughout the state.

Garden Club Sponsors Lighting Contest

The regular monthly meeting of the Jensen Beach Garden Club was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Community Church on November 7th.

Mrs. Rollin Reynolds conducted a discussion on fall bulbs, including their growth, care and blooming possibilities.

The Christmas meeting on December 19 will be held at the home of Mrs. Barbara Ferson. It will be a "plant exchange" among the members and their friends.

Mrs. Fred Morris displayed a Thanksgiving arrangement and gave many ideas for Christmas wreaths and table decorations. Mrs. Morris, an accredited judge, also pointed out the uses of croton foliage and other plant materials of the area.

The club will sponsor the "out of doors" lighting contest for Christmas season. Those wishing to participate should contact Mrs. Willard Weiss and Mrs. Basil Vincent.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Jack Best, Mrs. Barbara Ferson, Mrs. Ethel Nodine and Mrs. Edward Perkelis.

County Garage Work Delayed

Last Thursday G-A Contractors Inc. started work on the new county garage, however on Friday the work had to be suspended because of a fault in the plans, according to a source close to the court house.

It was believed that the fault had to do with the figuring of columns of steel, but the exact nature was not described.

According to the informant, corrections were expected prior to Monday.

Commissioner Jack Sanderson returned from Starke in the meantime, where he said he managed to purchase pipe piling at 9¢ a foot, and one car from the CB stockpile as bargains.

Not By Bread Alone

Some years ago, in a book published by Channel Press, Inc., J. C. Penney, head of the great merchandising system that bears his name, said, "We are living the world's greatest nation. We're the mightiest, we're the wealthiest. Yet we are not the first to attain that top spot in the world among the nations of the world. One nation after another has made the long struggle upward, stood for a period of time, some longer than others, on the pinnacle of national greatness and power, and disappeared down the other side.

"Some of those nations we have with us yet. Others are not more than mummified relics on the desert of time.... It's important that we of the United States keep this in mind. This power which is ours today is not necessarily permanent. This wealth is not necessarily enduring. It can disappear within the lifetime of some of those who read these lines...

"Because we hold today the position England held fifty years ago, the position so many other nations held before her, it behooves us that we ask ourselves where we'll be fifty years from now...and whether we're going to be as spiritual as well as industrial, moral as well as economic. For neither men nor nations can live by bread alone."

Vast material advance can itself be an agent of destruction, if we lack the character to deal with it wisely. It can lead to lethargy and indifference to the enduring values which are the mark of a free, proud and independent people. It can lead to growing dependence on a supposedly beneficent government—and thus to the undermining of fundamental liberties. The years ahead—perhaps just a relatively few years—will demonstrate what kind of a people we now are.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

Christmas Clubbers Get Paid Off

Fifteen million Americans saved one billion, eight hundred and fifty million dollars in 1960 Christmas Clubs and are now receiving checks from some 10,000 banks and savings institutions.

Most members of the club gave several reasons for joining. Among them were, the ease of putting aside a small sum each week; the convenience of Christmas Club as a method of saving for taxes, insurance, etc., the freedom from unpaid bills after the holiday is over.

As in past years, the Corporation made a study of how the members will use the money and estimates that:

38% or $703,000,00 will be used for Christmas Purchases,
32% or $573,100,000 will go into savings and investment,
12% or $240,500,000 will pay local and federal taxes,
6% or $111,000,000 will clear up year-end bills,
12% or $222,000,000 for miscellaneous expenditures.

The new record in both membership and dollars saved again demonstrates that thrifty Americans want to prepare in advance for the year's biggest holiday.

Chorus To Present Open Air Concert

A thousand bright young voices again this year will sing the music of Christmas in massed chorus and open air concert December 12 at Chastain Park, Lake in West Palm Beach.

Fifteen school choruses from Lake Worth to Vero Beach will take part in the third annual hour-long presentation of "A Thousand Voices Sing the Music of Christmas." The concert starts at 2:30 P.M.

A total of 28 numbers are on the program this year, ranging from modern Yule selections "White Christmas" and "Winter Wonderland," to "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear," and the "Hallelujah Chorus."

The Indian River Junior College stage band, directed by Lou Maser, will accompany the chorus.

Stan Doyle, conductor, has bachelors and masters degrees in music from the College of Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati. He is accompanist for Palm Beach County Community Chorus and is organist choirmaster of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Lake Worth.

Fish Are Plentiful

Drum, margate, ladyfish, as well as the usual yellowtails, pompano, blues, Spanish mackerel and an occasional channel bass and snook ALL in the surf, in the widest possible variety in months, is amazing!

Baby sailfish playing around so close to shore they could be seen by boats right at the sea buoy off St. Lucie Inlet.

Big kings so close-in they get mixed up with the Spanish Macks, which are schooled up chasing glass minnows, and big, too.

There continue to be large schools of blues migrating along the coast, southward, but many seem to be milling around here and up the rivers.

Bells plentiful and extremely active either on the gills and kings good offshore

Pensioned Veterans Income Questionaires

M.T. Dixon recently called to the attention of all veterans receiving pension benefits from the Veterans Administration, including widows and dependent parents, that the income questionnaires will be dispatched this year with the November benefits check from the Treasury Department. Smaller envelopes will be enclosed for the use of the beneficiaries for return of the 1c cards to the Veterans Administration.

Dixon announced that the formats of the income questionnaires have been completely revised this year, retaining only the essential items for completion. The separate forms, previously used for veterans and widows in receipt of pensions under the current law, have been combined into a single one.

Dixon further said that the instruction sheet for the completion and return of the income questionnaires have been eliminated and the individual instructions now appear on one side of the questionnaire cards. In this manner, Dixon said, each recipient will receive only instructions that pertain to the particular form received.

Dixon warns all veterans, widows and dependent parents that these cards must be returned promptly, and he further urges the recipients of these cards to seek the assistance of qualified veteran service officers, veterans service organization Contact Representatives or members of his staff now in the State Service Office, in the St. Petersburg VA Regional office, or by writing him at P. O. Box 1427, St.

TV Cable Service Firm Interested In Area

The Stuart City Commission and a representative of a television cable service firm met at city hall last Friday in a preliminary discussion.

It was generally agreed, unofficially, that the city would take action through a wrapping letter-of-intent in the near future to permit the firm to initiate both a marketing and engineering survey in the area.

"Many legal matters have to be ironed out, and many decisions must be made, but this is the first step which must be taken," Stuart City Manager Joe N. Crowder, Victor Oristano, president of WWSW, Wheeling, West Virginia, who had asked for the meeting along with Atty. Evans Crary, Sr., pointed out that if cable television were installed here, the initial investment could run from $200,000 to $400,000 and that to invest that much money, "anyone would have to be on sound ground."

According to Oristano, cable community audience television is 19 years old, is in about 1700 communities in the United States and these facilities are owned by about 1,500 companies.

"These systems are as good as the company and the people want them to be, but in Florida, here, one must use the best of all equipment because of the humidity. The number of channels to be made available is another factor," Oristano said.

He also pointed out that up to 12 channels might be available including a locally-broadcast educational TV channel for use in both the schools and at home.

Representing the city in the discussions were Crowder, Commissioners Arthur Simms, Ray Cooke and Jack Hartman; City Atty. T. T. Cogbarn and Public Works Director and Assessor Ed Giesecock.

Three counties, Dade, Broward, and Palm Beach contain more than 75 per cent of the total population of the 11-county Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District. The three have more than 1.8 million

MCHS Band "Superior"

Sixty-two Martin County High School Band students spent Saturday evening in Belle Glade at the Florida Bandmasters Association (District VIII) Marching Band Contest. This year the band again received a "Superior", the highest rating obtainable.

Each band is judged on marching, playing and general effect, according to LaMoyne E. Holl, director of the band.

In addition, the band must undergo a rigid inspection of uniforms and equipment. Every judge awarded the band a "Superior" rating.

On March 23, 1961, the band will participate in the Concert and Sightreading division of the district contest. By attaining the "Superior" rating in Concert and at least an "Excellent" rating in sightreading, the band can qualify for State Contest to be held in May.

Charles Yates has been selected as D. C. T. student for this week. Charles is a student learner at Stuart Auto Supply employed as a stock boy. His duties include checking in stock and keeping the supplies in order. Asked why he elected D.C.T. he replied, "The training I receive will afford me something to fall back on in case of need."

Charles' chief hobby is collecting postage stamps and is interested in basketball and other sports. Charles graduated from Martin County High. Charles plans to attend Massey Institute of Technology studying mechanical drafting and then enter business for himself.

Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Yates and lives in Jensen Beach. He was born December 29, 1947 in Greenville, North Carolina and moved here with his family in 1960.

City Wins In Damage Suit

After a three day re-trial, Judge C. Fletcher Trowbridge ended the case of John T. Love and his mother, Mrs. Estelle C. Love who were seeking damages up to $150,000, with a directed verdict for the defendant, the City of Stuart last Friday.

The case ended in a mistrail last May with a hung jury. The suit came about through a collision between a motor scooter on which Love, then 18 years old, was riding with a friend and a city truck. The accident occurred in September, 1963.

Hurricane Claims Approved

County Engineer Fred L. Dell reported last Friday that $50,738 in claims for Hurricane Betsy losses, filed through Civil Defense to obtain Federal and State assistance, had been approved by J. L. Buchanan, Southeast Florida CD Director.

Of the total approved so far, $650 was approved for debris clearing and $4,000 was approved for dike and ditch repairs by the Mosquito Control District.

Lobster Industry Comes To Port Salerno

LOBSTER POTS--Jerri Moree, wife of lobster fisherman Paul Moree, is shown beside some of the new lobster pots they hope to have in operation soon.

What appears to be a new industry has made its way into the confines of Port Salerno. Lobster fishing has taken a foothold in the guise of an enterprising gentleman who is actively engaged in this new venture. Unlike some of the other types of fishing done in this area, Lobster fishing is seasonal, running from August to March of each year.

Paul Moree and his wife, Jerri, are now living in Port Salerno, coming here from Riviera Beach five weeks ago. Moree was born in Riviera Beach and has been a commercial fisherman most of his life. He started lobster fishing four years ago in the Palm Beach area, and decided he would try the area off the St. Lucie Inlet in search of new grounds. During August of this year, he set out his pots in this area and being quite successful, he decided to stay.

Moree claims this area is virtually virgin territory for lobstering.

In discussing income from this type of work, Moree related that it was capable of producing excellent revenue, with a little hard work. During the last four weeks, he has produced over 9000 lbs. at the going rate of 55¢ per pound, and this is a lower rate per pound than usual. The normal rate, he explained, is about 65¢ and goes as high as 95¢.

Moree stated there is plenty of room here for more lobster fishermen and suggested that anyone who is interested in getting started in this area contact him as he will be more than willing to discuss it with him.

Not all the picture is entirely rosy...Since August 1 of this year, Moree has, as he described it, "been wiped out three times." During Hurricane Betsy, he lost his entire string of 130 pots, and twice since then he has lost over 100 pots due to northeasters. The daily loss of a few pots is common, as he calls it. Other boats in the vicinity will cut off a few of the marker buoys by running over them, and a few will be lost to theft. The pots cost money to make or buy. To make your own, the average cost per pot would be $5.00, and if you should buy your pots, the average cost is $6.00, not including the line and marker buoys.

Currently, Moree has built his string of pots to a total of 150 and is completing 75 more that he hopes to put in the water this week. Asked how many more he intended to use, he stated that what he had now would be sufficient, and would keep him busy every day tending them.

Asked what he does during the off season for lobstering, Moree replied that he keeps quite busy, building and repairing new pots for the coming year. Also he and his wife are quite interested in shellcraft and spend a good deal of their time building shell displays. Their pride and joy is a beautiful floral design, natural shell wallpiece that hangs on their living room wall. This particular piece of shell work, according to Jerri, is valued at $250.00.

Fishing Lines

From Port Salerno

By Marti

Commercial; Mackerel fishing off the St. Lucie Inlet was rather sparse last week. The majority of mackerel caught was during the day, using the new modification nets. Average catches per day was 200 to 300 pounds per boat. A few of the larger mackerel boats fared better one night taking 2000 to 3000 pounds per boat off Jupiter.

The commercial fishermen report that blowfish and pompano have not shown in any quantity as yet, though land line fishermen are catching a few. They attribute the scarcity of blues and pompano to the current warm weather and say that a good cold snap would increase activity.

The commercial men also report that sharks and giant manta rays are causing them considerable trouble in the fishing grounds, destroying nets.

We wish "Buddy" Gillard lots of luck and a good season, after many weeks of rebuilding his sea skiff, Sea Spray. Glad to see him back in operation.

Starting at the Salerno Crabmeat Co. reports that local crabbers are catching medium size crabs, but the quantity is small. Shedstaes that cooler weather would improve the crab catches also.

Sportfishing; On the sportfishing scene, the headboat Kingfisher IV sailing from the Salerno Shipyards reports red snapper are plentiful. Captain Locke says it's snapper time and also reports a few fair size groupers being caught. He is currently fishing the 8 mile reef off the inlet.

Captain Louis Luss of the Charter boat Cartuse sailing from the Fishing Hole reports that off shore fishing looks good. Saturday's charter produced one sailfish released and a nice catch of dolphin, blackfin tuna and bonito. He stated Silver mullet was the bait of the day.

Your reporter asks that anyone having fishing news items for this column please phone 287-5573 between five and seven any evening.

Commissioner Commends Volunteers

Out of town at the time of the County Barn Fire, Commissioner Jack Saunders of Port Salerno stated he wished to express his thanks for a job well done by the volunteers in keeping the fire contained to the barn area. These men, he said, were faced with an exceptionally hazardous situation and I personally think they did a terrific job.

Firemen Purchase Land $13,500

Robert Johnson, President of the Port Salerno Volunteer Fire Department, announced this week that the department has just completed a purchase agreement for the land immediately adjacent to the present Firehouse location. Johnson stated that the purchase was made in order to expand the present building, and that the department would distribute a beautification project in the unused portion.

Johnson stated that the fund raising drive had brought in approximately $4,000.00 to date, and this was used to secure the property on down payment. The balance of the mortgage is scheduled to be paid in three equal installments over the next three years.

Johnson stated that this was a big step forward for the department and Port Salerno, and wished to thank everyone that has contributed so generously.

OCEAN BREEZE NEWS

...ceanBreezers Boat To Fort Pierce

...sized party of "Jensen-...d and "Ocean Breezers' ...vantage of Mr. and ...Fred Meyers' gener-...ffer of a boat ride to ...rt Pierce Saturday after-...n. Evidently other Ocean ...ers had the same idea ...about half way we met a ...ge lineload of other resi-...ts of our Park returning ...me. They had preferred ...arly morning time.

...e docked at Simonsons ...d found a table had been ...set for the 20 persons in our party, and we nearly cleaned out Simonsdeer's supply of fried chicken.

Returning after dark gave us an experience few of us had enjoyed before, Captain Fred had our sympathy for while we reclined in easy chairs and chatted, he had to keep a close watch for marker buoys which are none too plentiful. All agreed the trip was very enjoyable.

Fishing Is Great

Fishing has been good this past week, according to the stories we hear. Ruth and Lloyd Osborne were fishing in the Inlet last Thursday and caught 116 pounds of fish. They returned the next day and caught 80 pounds.

Luther Weeks and Irving Keith were fishing a little farther in and caught 110 pounds of sheepshead. I also talked to two persons who caught snook by bridge fishing. Tom Clancy caught two 18 pound snook, and Jim Amburn on East Almond got a 24 pound dandy. All these snook were caught on the "25 cent" bridge.

Barn Dance A Success

Harry Hoke surprised most of us again. This time the walls of the club house were successfully camouflaged by panelling to resemble the interior of a barn. The floor space for dancing was a little restricted due to the many extra chairs required to seat the unusual number of onlookers. However, no time was wasted between dances, and it looked as if everyone who wanted to dance had his or her wish. Even your reporter had to add to the confusion by getting into one square dance.

A welcome break came when Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller served what Harry calls his special "Turkey Sandwich with a Hole" and coffee. (To the uninformed), Doughnuts and coffee.)

Ruth always saves the best dance records till the last, so the floor was kept hot till closing time.

Round Robin Winners

The Round Robin matches for the past week-end produced five winners. On November 20, the four game winners were Charlie Sepples, Jean Fisher and Nana Moore. Sunday, November 21, M. Schumann and Sam Koslow took the honors.

If possible we will have a picture of all winners through November in our next edition.

Houchins Return To Ocean Breeze

Don Houchin, Art Instructor, is back on the job again this season. Don's home is in Toronto, Canada, where he spent 30 years of his life teaching commercial art at the Central Technical School. This summer, for a change of scenery, Don and his wife, Agnes, drove to central northern North Dakota where they visited relatives and friends for about five weeks.

Don conducted his first Art Class Monday, Nov. 15, This was more in the nature of an organizational meeting. There are ten beginners this season, so his plan will be somewhat similar to that of last year. He will start from the beginning and gradually work upward.

Clarence Garn received the news that his brother, Harry, passed away Nov. 16, Both Jennie and Clarence flew up for the funeral and expect to stay over for Thanksgiving.

Pleasure Cruise Turns To Tragedy On Yarmouth Castle

...e McKissocks pleasure ...e becomes a gruesome ...ory.

...arold Dickson, who lives ...Hibiscus in the duplex ...partment, tells your re-...rter of his sister's tragic ...perience on the Yarmouth ...astle.

...rs. McKissock and her ...ond, Earl, were on a ...ek's vacation in Florida, ...er had booked a return ...p to Nassau. The cabin ...er were allotted was the ...ne from the bow on the ...ward side of the prom-...ade deck. There is always ...nsiderable excitement the ...st night on board, so the ...cKissocks did not retire to ...eir stateroom till about ...idnight. A number of pass-...ers were partying in the ...unge and making considera-...le noise, so that the added ...ise, which started ...bout 1 A.M. disturbed the ...cKissocks but did not ...ken them. Then Mrs. Mc-...issock said, "I smell ...oke". McKissock rushed ...to his stateroom door and ...und it to find the corri-...r filled with dense smoke, ...d was immediately evident that there was no time to lose, so clad only in their pajamas, they attempted to reach the stairway to the boat deck. However, the smoke was so chokingly thick that they had to cover their faces with handkerchiefs and crawl on the floor to the stairway. These stairs were so steep that before retiring Earl had suggested that they go up and down twice in order to familiarize themselves with the steps. This practice proved very beneficial and helped them reach their allotted lifeboat early, Evidently the lifeboats had not been used for a long time, for the davits jammed and the men couldn't lower the boat. Many of the ship's crew were foreign and could not speak English which added to the confusion.

Earl insisted that his wife go in the next boat, and he pushed her down in the bottom of the boat, and the boat was lowered to the water. It became more evident that the men had had no practice with the boats, for they were unable to handle the oars. Their boat actually turned around, heading back to the burning ship. However, the men eventually got together and pulled the boat a safe distance from the ship.

Earl McKissock had insisted that his wife go ahead. In the meantime, unable to find members of the crew, he gathered a group of men together, and between them they managed to launch the life rafts over the stern of the ship. These rafts are big and can accommodate a lot of people.

The evacuation of the ship took a long time, so the people in the boats and on the rafts did not have to wait very long until the Bahama Star arrived. By this time, the fire was burning fiercely, mostly in the center of the ship. Luckily for all concerned, the sea was quite calm.

Mrs. McKissock's boat was one of the first to reach the rescue ship. One man had his hand on the gunwale of the boat when it bumped into the side of the ship and he lost four fingers. The boatload of people were brought aboard through the freight doors which are closer to the water.

"The crew of the Bahama Star was very good to us," Mrs. McKissock said, "I was still in my pajamas and bare feet. They served us hot coffee, and I was given a blanket and a pair of shoes to wear on my feet. Our ship stayed till all living persons were rescued, then proceeded to Nassau which was about fifty miles away. We didn't stay long at Nassau and were taken to Miami by plane to the Everglades Hotel."

I asked Harold Dickson how long his sister stayed at the hotel, and he told me that they had to stay for two days as several matters had to be settled. The Coast Guard questioned them regarding the disaster, and also Earl had to list all their losses. He, incidentally, is quite a photographer and had one thousand dollars worth of camera equipment.

They returned to Ocean Breeze briefly to say goodbye to the Dicksons and then returned to their home at Newcastle, Pa., cancelling their anticipated Florida tour. Mrs. McKissock said that although they lost all they had in the fire, they were very thankful that their lives were saved.

Men's Singles Now Under Way

The Men's Singles Tournament got underway at 9:30 A.M. November 22, With 46 entries, this tournament will take two or three days to play off. Some surprising upsets occurred the first day which we will treat in detail next week.

The final results also will then be published.

The Annual Christmas Tournament is under discussion but no definite program has been arrived at to date.

Some of the players in the men's singles now under way.

'Morning Glory' Club Meets

...e party was held at the ...ome of Peggy and Claud ...urks last Wednesday, November 17. The occasion was the first meeting of the full membership of the "Morning Glory" Bridge Club. Peggy tells us that their club was organized seven years ago.

A group of ladies, namely Tess Myers, Trudy Chilhas, Peggy Burks and Lillian Towers, asked Myrt Huntington to teach them bridge. Myrt agreed and it became their custom to meet once a week in the morning. Later they found it more convenient to change to the afternoon, also as time went on they took in new members till now there are twelve. One member, Gladys Gilbert, was married last summer so the club presented her with a gaily decorated money tree.

Coming Events

Shuffleboard

The Indian River League shuffleboard games start on Wednesday, December 1. We have two teams this season called respectively "Ocean Breeze" and "Ocean Breezers".

On Dec. 1, the "Ocean Breeze" team plays at Vero Beach, and the Port St. Lucie team meets the "Ocean Breezers" here at our home courts. As usual, residents are asked to leave the shuffle court parking space for our visitors.

Camera Club

The Camera Club meeting, due to Thanks giving, will not be held Thursday. A program of slides or movies will be arranged for Thursday, Dec. 2, when all are invited to attend. Over 100 attended the meeting on Nov. 16, which is very good for so early in the season.

Movie

The movie for Sunday, November 28th, is th technicolor. Starring are Rock Hudson, Gina Lollabrigida, Sandra Dee and Bobby Darin. UnitedWorld Films describes it thus:

"A charming, song filled, romantic comedy of a millionaire New Yorker who comes every September to rejoin his sweetheart at his Italian villa. Unbeknown to him, the villa is operated 11 months a year as a hotel, with his housekeeper pocketing the profits. Fun, laughs and romantic complications ensue when he unexpectedly arrives in July, 112 minutes. Wide screen technicolor, International film classic."

Few people travel by train, but it will be interesting to those that do to know that when Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cook arrived, Joe asked the conductor, and he stopped the train at Jensen Beach station so they could get off.

LeDucs Describe Upper Peninsula

The Upper Peninsula of Michigan has always had an appeal to Henry LeDuc, so last summer it was included in their itinerary. Being a dead end, as you might call it, not many people travel that way.

The LeDucs first stop was at the Porcupine Mountains National Park. I asked Florence LeDuc to tell me about it, which she did. "The Porcupine Mountains can't compare with our western mountains for size, but they really are mountains and there are rivers, waterfalls, lakes and just about anything you'd expect to see in such an area." She continued, "One beautiful lake, the Lake of the Clouds, is really worth the hike to see. Yes, you have to hike, for there is no car road as yet. Leaving the park we travelled northward up the peninsular. The country is rugged and very scenic. The automobile road ends at Copper Harbor, at the very northern tip of the peninsular. Our plans were to visit Isle Royale, 48 miles out in Lake Superior, so we caught the 8 A.M. ferry boat from Copper Harbor and in four hours we landed at Rock Harbour. We registered at the Lodge and found the accommodation and meals excellent. There are moderately priced housekeeping units, also free accommodations for campers. The latter was filled up. The whole island is a National Park so no timber-cutting is allowed. All buildings are surrounded, except on the lake or bay side, by tall trees.

Mr. Mrs. LeDucs

No cars are allowed on the island but trails are plentiful and the hiking is very rewarding, for the island is continually cut up by scenic bays and lakes. Henry wanted particularly to photograph a moose. Moose are supposed to be very plentiful, but the only moose we saw was a stuffed head of a very large moose hanging on the lodge wall, so Henry took alm with his trusty camera and shot his moose, well, at least the head of it."

I asked Florence how the weather was. She continued, "Cold. Very cold. It was mid-July, and in the middle of the day the air would warm up to 60 or 70 degrees, but the nights were quite chilly. A program of movies was put on each evening by the National Parks Service in the lodge, which was comfortably heated. We returned the second day to Copper Harbor. Lake Superior is a cold lake and we appreciated the warmer conditions as soon as we returned to the mainland."

RACKED NETS--Port Salerno Fisherman, Ed Johnson, stands beside idle mackerel nets put on the racks to await the outcome of the strike. Fishermen from Palm Beach to Fort Pierce have quit fishing Spanish mackerel until the fish companies increase the price per pound.

Mackerel Fishermen Strike Price Slash

Last Saturday, mackerel fishermen from West Palm Beach to Fort Pierce went on strike against their local fish companies in an effort to combat a price cut on Spanish mackerel. Leading the wagon the general strike were fishermen contracted by East Coast Fisheries and Hudgins Fish Company of West Palm Beach, Independent fishermen from Port Salerno and other scattered East Coast areas joined in the lay-off.

At the beginning of last week the price per pound was at twelve cents, reducing to ten cents by Saturday and threatened to drop to eight cents in the next couple of days.

Mackerel activity increased greatly during the first of last week and the season was on. Commercial boats from here and the Fort Pierce area were reporting catches up to 20,000 pounds per boat, with an estimated overall catch in this area of better than 150,000 pounds. The fishermen indicated that the influx of so many marketable fish was partly responsible for the price drop.

One local fisherman, James B. Shelton, related that this sort of thing was not unusual at this time of the year. He stated that when the fish were plentiful, as now, the fish companies cut their prices and filled their freezers in order to market the fish at a greater profit when the fish were scarce. He further stated that he knew a little about the business as he, his father and two brothers owned a fish house in Port Salerno a number of years ago, known as the Shelton Fish Company. Their fish house, incidently, is now known as the Manatee Marina and Yacht Club. Shelton said that this situation has existed for years without anyone doing much about it, and if the fishermen will hold their ground now, to maintain a stable price, it will help pave the way for settlement of future problems as they occur.

Asked how or what the mackerel fishermen are doing now while the strike lasted, Shelton related most of them are still fishing but for other varieties.

Blue fish, though still somewhat scarce, are bringing twelve to fourteen cents per pound, pompano brings seventy-five cents a pound, and spots, croakers, weakfish and whiting are bringing sixteen cents per pound.

Shelton said that the fishermen are reporting fair catches of these fish, and if is enough to keep them going until the mackerel mess is settled.

Zoning Goes To Hearing

Solve Mail Theft

The theft of two mail bags from a contract U. S. Post Office Department truck has been admitted by two juveniles with long records for stealing and breaking into homes on Jupiter Island.

D. R. Perkins, Jr., a postal inspector from West Palm Beach found one bag Nov. 13, and the other bag was recovered by Perkins and Martin County Deputy Sheriff Henri Herbert.

Some mail was still inside the second bag which was found Monday night when the 14 and 16 year bidboys were apprehended. They led the officials to a hideout about 100 feet from U.S.1 in a ditch beside a dirt road running between U.S.1 and A1A in the Gomez section.

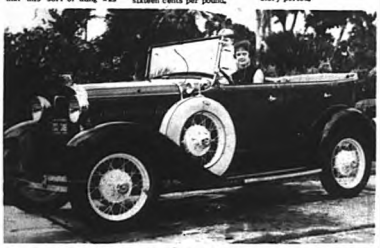
According to the boys, they took the bags from the truck, which had run out of gas south of Port Salerno. Mail was discovered scattered in the area several weeks ago.

Perkins found more than 400 pieces of mail, some of it burned, with the pouch thrown on top of the ashes, evidently to extinguish the fire.

Letters, checks and utility bills were found on the ground. Some mail has been returned to senders, others to the dead letter office in Washington, D.C.

According to Perkins, no checks have been lost.

The mail robbery had been billed as "the biggest theft of U.S. mail in recent years in Southeastern Florida."



IT WAS TOPS--This 1930 Standard Phaeton Model A Ford won first place last weekend in National competition at Ormond Beach's "Birthplace of Speed" meet with over 160 cars representing 20 states in competition. Plumbing Truce Is Gained

An agreement to "split the cost" of one plumbing code violation and agreements as to future work on the job ended a four-day work stoppage on Tuesday at the Indiantown Labor Foundation, Inc., Sheriff Pete Lee said Wednesday project for non-profit farm labor.

"The problem is not right, under the Southern Building Code, although the plumber said it was done by actual plans," County Engineer Fred Bell said. "The County says the plumber and architect must agree, but the architect will not do so. He said when the recommend meeting ended.

The problem was finally settled when the contractor and plumber agreed to split the difference as an estimated cost of $800 it will cost to redo a series of vents.

Travel Council Elects Murray

Elected to the Advisory Committee of the Florida Travel Council at its annual meeting in Hollywood last week was Mrs. Rosaleen Murray, Manager of the Stuart Chamber of Commerce.

The next meeting will be held in West Palm Beach in January, at which time shore erosion will be presented as a major problem of tourism.

Cited for their building and growth in the past year by Gov. Haydon Burns were two local firms, Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. and Outboard Marine Corp.

THEY MEAN IT- New "No Parking" signs went up this week on Commercial Street in Jensen Beach. Motorists had complained about being ticketed for parking where they "have always parked before", ignoring the white line, and the line of traffic that was impeded. Even local wags helped the situation with their own signs to help out winter visitors.

ounty Insurance Overhaul Planned

A meeting held Tuesday the Martin County Comission found all five members present to discuss and ve an expanded insurance verage plan for county ildings, contents, includ- valuable documents and ks.

Commissioner J. H. Bru- had been working with nty Attorney Dean Took- on insurance problems, nted out that court house urance had almost ex- ed before the notice was eived, so a 30-day binder placed just prior to ration.

on asked to approxi- the amount of increased nce costs, Chairman Wachs said he did know at the present time. urance man, R. V. Johnon, an agent who was pres- at the meeting, stated the cost would be approximately the same or a little more.

Since the fire at the county barn recently, insurance agents have been critical of the county's insurance practices, Two more checks were turned over to the Commission when Ransom Tilton, Jensen Beach Realtor and insurance man, gave Wachs checks for $1,450 and $795 for vehicles lost in the fire.

How much insurance to carry on law books in the library must be decided, The present coverage is $15,000, but the books are valued at $50,000.

Johnson suggested that the buildings be surveyed and appraised, and the commission accepted the proposal.

The county also agreed to set up a new base for insurance and give an adequate list of appraised values, also get 60 days notice on billings.

Commercial No Parking

"No Parking" signs were installed on the south side of Commercial Street in Jensen Beach this week as the State Road Department bowed to requests for the signs as more motorists were ticketed for blocking the narrow south lane of traffic by parking in the street.

The signs are from the railroad tracks to the Fredricksen building.

Oil Heats Commission Meet

At the special County Commission meeting Tuesday afternoon, County Attorney Dean Tooker answered three questions posed by County Commissioner Ed Miller, one about the legality of a $6,000 for construction at the public, countyowned, golf course; and the second about the expenditure for air conditioning repair equipment at a cost of over $2,000, without bids; and the third, the legality of purchasing gasoline for the Port Salerno Fire Department through the Saunderson service station.

According to Tooker, all three are legal, the first by local legislation, the second by emergency rules, and the third by the fact that Saunderson is not an agent for Gulf Oil. Tooker pointed out that Saunderson permits the fire department to use tanks on his property at no charge. Also, Saunderson makes no profit in connection with this action.

Saunderson replied to Miller in a three-page, handwritten statement.

In part, he said, "We could install gas tanks and pumps at each fire house, but it would cost the county $1,000 to $1,500 per installation. In addition, gasoline seems to disappear or evaporate faster when so many people have access to the pumps."

He accused Miller of going out of his way to create dissention and to "plant seeds of suspicion in the minds of the public."

He also stated he felt that Miller was "plastering his comments all over the papers," but he complimented the press for "their fairness and their methods of reporting and publicizing such situations."

Saunderson advised Miller to "find something to run on" if he wanted to run again, and he continued, "he certainly can't run on his record of accomplishments for Martin County."

Before the meeting ended, Commissioner Timer Powers requested the Board to consider meeting every Tuesday instead of two Tuesdays per month in order to eliminate the need of special meetings.

So. Gulf Plans Tank

The receipt of a letter from Mortimer Meyer, vice-president of Southern Gulf Utilities, Inc., on Monday eliminated the question of Hutchinson Island and Sewall's Point water project storage tank on Sewall's Point.

According to Meyer, use of water on the island was progressing so slowly there is no need to store water at this time. However, he said, the firm will proceed with plans to build the tank and is checking with the State Board of Health.

Words To Make Your Life Better
TOMORROW
Today is the wise man's day; tomorrow is the fool's day. The wise man is the man who, when he sees what ought to be done, does it today. The foolish man is the man who, when he sees what ought to be done, says, "I will do it tomorrow." The man who always do today the thing they see ought to be done today are the men who make a success for time and for eternity. The men and women who put off until tomorrow what ought to be done today are the man and women who make a shipwreck of time and of eternity.

New Trial Requested

A third motion for a new trial has been filed by Roland M. Lelle, attorney, of Fairfish and Farrish, West Palm Beach, and Elton Schwartz, local attorney, in Circuit Court on behalf of Mrs. Eunice C. Love and John Love, her son, plaintiffs.

First tried in May, the case was dismissed when the jury failed to agree. It was re-tried last week and ended in a directed verdict for the defendant, the City of Stuart.

According to Lelle, there were errors in the directed verdict, in the finding against the plaintiff, in Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge's refusing to allow the jury to decide the case, and in his refusal to read to the jury the doctrine of "last clear chance."

At the close of the second trial, the plaintiff's attorneys had said they would seek a new trial, go to the appeals court, or both.

Stuart Lions Held Thanksgiving Eve Dinner In Salerno

The Stuart Lions Club held a Thanksgiving Eve dinner and meeting at Pendoras Restaurant in Port Salerno, with Lion President Charles Sipos presiding. Guest speaker for the evening was Lion Deputy District Governor, O. A. Jones, Jr., of Deerfield Beach. Jones is a candidate for election of the coming year's governorship.

President Sipos announced that plans were completed for the annual Lions Club Light Bulb Sale to be conducted on December 6 and 7. The purpose of this project is to raise funds for the Lions Club Welfare and Blind Assistance activities.

'Heard About' Hidden Harbour

Each week sees more of our folks coming down from the cold North. This week's arrivals were Ross and Charlotte Bryan from Elkhart, Ind., Mae and Dolly Woodward and a guest from Toronto, Canada.

We had a wonderful Thanksgiving Day dinner provided by the Park, and after all the turkey and goodies were consumed, we spent the rest of the day swimming and playing shuffleboard.

Fishing has seen quite an increase this past week with most everyone catching their share. John Owens and Birch Chambers caught 50 nice fish and 75 the following day of Spanish mackerel. Fred Bagley, Stan Gaynes, Dr. Tracy Wilson, Bill Murray, Warner Stafford and some of the rest of the boys are doing real well, too.

The Park is organizing a shuffleboard tournament with three other parks competing and it looks like a great meet. Dr. Moore of the Senior Shuffleboard Activities was here for a very informative meeting. He explained the fundamentals of shuffleboard to our residents and now all we need is lots of practice... Right, Tony?

Some birthdays were celebrated here last week for Olive Owens, Harold Knowles, Harvey Hartman and Nell Amsden. Happy Birthday and many more to all of you.

Want to offer congratulations to Ted and Peg Hagney on their new addition to the family, a nice visit from their son, Ted, and his lovely wife-to-be.

Everyone thinks Mabel Wilson is a card shark and only baiting us for the kitty. Just kidding, you are doing fine.

Stan and Zara Rootes are planning a beautiful bedspread in back of their mobile home to keep the birds from looking in... We all know better, and it's lovely.

Major and Bea Irwin really enjoy mobile home living. They have their 50 foot home to live in here, and as an air-stream traveler to roam about in. It's the Go Go Generation, so have fun, kids.

Birch Chambers and wife have just celebrated their first year with us here at the park. Congratulations, old timers.

That's about all the news I have for you at this time. I'm sure someone will say soon "Have you heard about" and I'll tell you all about it next week.

Fishing Lines From Port Salerno

by Marti

Commercial:

The cold snap up north last Monday brought increased activity on the local fishing front during the last week. Large schools of Spanish mackerel showed off-shore at Fort Pierce as the week began. Mackerel boats from Port Salerno and the Palm Beaches reported tremendous catches. Some boats reported as high as 30,000 pounds on board, and an estimated 150,000 pounds or better was netted by the boats. Some mackerel is being caught off the St. Lucie Inlet in the vicinity of the Hole. Most of these mackerel are being caught by handliners at the rate of two to three hundred pounds per boat. Mackerel from this area is running from one to one and a half pounds apiece.

Blue fish are still spotty with no large catches being reported here by netters, although handliners are reporting fair catches. Pompano is still scarce though one commercial boat reported taking five hundred pounds on the south end of the Stuart reef. The pompanos are rather numerous at Sands Pier being taken by surf-casters using sand fleas for bait.

SPORTFISHING

Captain Locke of the headboat Ring Other Four reports fishing is fairly good last week. He reports three sailfish were caught by bottom fishermen during the past week. Good catches of red snapper, wahoo and red grouper were caught also. Locke says fishing was rather difficult due to strong north running tides making it hard to keep bait on the bottom. He incurrently dashing the tide and eight mile reefs off the Inlet.

Captain Lovie Lane of the charter boat Carlina reports fishing quite good during the last week. Captain Lane only sailed two days and reports three sails caught with one released and two kept for mounting. Quite a few kingfish and dolphin were taken, and he reported nice catches of kings and blackfin tuna three miles south of the Inlet.

We want to welcome back Captain Lane's mate, Wayne Miller of Caledon, Michigan, here for another season in our area.

Fire Destroys Small Boat At Port Salerno

Last Sunday, the Port Salerno Volunteer Fire Department answered a call to a boat fire, located at Hillers Creek. Fire Chief Jack Saunderson stated the boat was a total loss and that the fire had swept the boat by the time the department arrived. Chief Saunderson said that trucks One and Two answered the alarm and the department used the new foam nozzle from the new truck to extinguish the fire.

He reported this was the first test of the new foam nozzle and that it performed quite satisfactorily.

Saunderson reported no estimate as to the amount of loss or as to the cause of the fire. He stated the motor had been removed and only the boat was lost.

Firemen answering the call were Fred Brownlee, A. B. Cole, Joe Johnston, Claude Davis, Ed Johnson and Sat Lee.

Fire Dept. Auxiliary To Hold Fish Fry

Lois Saunderson, President of The Port Salerno Fire Department Auxiliary stated the organization would hold a fish fry dinner on Sunday, December 12, from 12:00 Noon until 4:00 p.m. The dinner will be held at the Port Salerno Fire House and every one is welcome.

Mrs. Saunderson stated that advance tickets are available from any member of the Auxiliary or may be purchased at the door.

Proceeds will be used to purchase items needed by the organization and to help in the beautification project on the property recently acquired by the Fire Department.

Mrs. Saunderson also announced that the Christmas Fund Pot will be placed in the downtown area one week before Christmas, and that all proceeds collected will be used for the Firemen's Annual Christmas Party held for the children every Christmas Eve in downtown Port Salerno.

Horseshoe Point Pioneers Club Rummage Sale A Success

Mrs. Anton Steigler, chairman of the Horseshoe Point Pioneers Club Rummage Sale announced that the response to their project has been a huge success. The sale was conducted in the downtown Port Salerno area, with building space donated by Mr. Henry Grien.

Mrs. Steigler wishes to thank the many friends and members of the Club who helped, and a special thanks to her committee of Mrs. Anthony Victor, Mrs. William Fagg and Mrs. Karl Markwordt.

Port Salerno Personals

Jolly Rogers, Chairman of the Port Salerno Chamber of Commerce, has asked that all newcomers to our area please come in to the Chamber Office and register. He says we'd like to know where you're from, if you plan to stay, if we can help you, but mainly just to say hello.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles West of Guilford, Miss., and their family were Thanksgiving guests of Mrs. West's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Howes.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Corbett and their two children, Donnie and Donna Marie, are now residing in their new home on Darling Road.

Bucky Blackman, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Blackman, spent the Thanksgiving Holidays hunting in our area and reports the ducks are plentiful. Bucky reported a kill of two ducks Thanksgiving Day.

PSYO Adults Meet Wednesday

Youths To Meet Friday

Chairman of the Port Salerno Youth Organization, Howard L. Haid, has called a special meeting of the adult members of the club to meet Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Port Salerno Fire House. Haid said the meeting would concern the recent fund raising drive and that steps would be taken at this meeting to formulate plans to begin construction of the Youth Center.

Haid asked that all members who have attended previous meetings, please strive to attend, and he suggested they bring a friend who is interested in this program. Haid stated the meeting would be open to any other members of the community that wished to attend and lend their help to the project.

Haid also said the youth group would hold a regular business meeting on Friday, December 3, at the Fire House. The purpose of this meeting will be to complete plans for Christmas activities in the area in which the organization will participate. Plans will also be completed for a Pre-Christmas dance to be held Saturday, December 11, at the Port Salerno Fire House.

Directors Meet At Pioneer Occupational Center

The Board of Directors and Trustees of the Pioneer Occupational Center met for a luncheon and business meeting at the Center in Port Salerno Tuesday.

The group elected Mrs. Catherine Vanderveer as the organization's secretary for the first item on their agenda. The purchase of a new adding machine was approved, and plans were formulated for the raising of funds for the Center with notice of all donations received for the organization as being tax-deductable.

Donald Bowen was appointed chairman of ticket sales for the Variety Show. Tickets will go on sale Wednesday, December 1, and Bowden related that ticket sale outlets will be released as soon as possible.

A special building committee was appointed to investigate the area in order to locate a larger site for the Center, due to the growth and expansion of activities of the Center, a larger site will be necessary in the near future.

UF General Meet Thursday Evening

Officers and Directors for the Eighth Annual Jensen Beach United Fund Association will be elected Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Community Center in Jensen Beach.

All fund-raising organizations meeting to participate in the drive's kick-off have representatives present and will present budget requests, said Dick Campbell, United Fund president.

Following the appearance of the organizations, the election will be held.

A slate of members will be presented by the nominating committee which is composed of Zole Swarthout, chairman, and members, Mrs. Edwin Miller and Steve Wilson.

The newly elected president will appoint committees, name the fund drive chairman and, with the new board, review budget requests and set a goal for the 1966 drive.

Last year's drive goal of $7,500 went over the top as has every drive since the organization was formed in 1958 when the goal was $4,500.

In addition to allotment of funds to various agencies, the UF last year purchased three chairs for Martin Memorial Hospital for $285; purchased medicine for a cancer patient, and earmarked $500 for the proposed Mars Hill Community Center.

The 1966 drive will be held from Jan. 3 through Jan. 10.

Agencies participating in the "One For All and All For One Drive" include the Jensen Beach Senarians, (free ambulance); Jensen Beach Community Center; American Red Cross; Mental Health Association; Crippled Children and Adults Assoc.; Retarded Children's Assoc.; Animal Rescue League; Boy Scouts; Girl Scouts and the Cub Scouts, as well as the Jensen Beach-Rio-Mars Hill Community Emergency Fund.

The "Kick-Off" breakfast will be held Jan. 3 at 8 a.m. at a local restaurant. The Mars Hill "Kick-Off" coffee will be held Jan. 3 at 8 p.m. at the Methodist Church in Mars Hill.

Those residents who participate in the UF drive by giving, are automatically members of the UF Association and are urged to attend the general membership meeting.

Chamber Starts Drive

A membership drive was initiated Monday night to bring some 100 members to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

J. Fred Silvers, Membership Chairman, and Dick Campbell distributed about 100 cards to various Directors who will call upon businesses and individuals in the area to solicit their membership in the Chamber.

None of these firms have, over the years, failed to renew their membership. The drive is expected to last about a month.

In other business at the Directors meeting, the Chamber took steps to incorporate as a non-profit institution, and the Articles of Incorporation were approved by the Directors and will be filed with the Secretary of State, Tom Adams. The officers and directors of the Chamber will be the officers and directors on the incorporation papers.

Recent new members include: Gene Kasper, Jack Hall, Smith Trailer Service, Publix Markets, Jax Mobile Homes, Jim Stewart Jeweler, and Palmetto Realty.

Schools Win Loot

According to Jack Simonse, financial coordinator for the school system, Martin County schools were approved for a $41,915.40 fund under Title I of the Federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

Simonse received word approving the program by telegrams from the Federal-State coordination office in the Department of Education in Tallahassee.

Earmarked for payment of this was $17,000 and orders of materials may start immediately. The program will start Jan. 3 and will continue until the close of the school year in June, according to Simonse.

Under the Act of Congress, Title I includes financial aid to areas where there are high concentrations of low income families, the latter described as "family income of below $2,000 annually."

Yule Light?

People in Martin County who plan a Christmas Light Display can call The Mirror at 287-3216 and have the name and address put on the list for all to see.

The list of participants will be published in the newspaper on Thursday, December 23, to point up the places to see on a night drive. We hope to make this a Christmas tradition, having addresses listed so that people taking a night drive can see the lights can follow the route to see the yule decorations.

THE QUEEN—Miss JENNY LEONHAM, 12, daughter of Mrs. Adeline Leonham of Port Sewall, was crowned Miss Stuart Junior Orange Bowl Queen Tuesday night at the Stuart Yough Center. Crowning the Queen is Cathy Wyatt, Jensen Beach, last year's runner-up in the contest. The Queen's court, girls who will compete on an even basis with the Queen in Miami's Junior Orange Bowl Queen contest, are Miss Nancy Meyer, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Meyer of Port Salerno, and, at right, Jacque Fenick, 13, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard G. Fenick of Jensen Beach.

Boy Scout Troop To Be Organized In Jensen Beach

Efforts to organize a Boy Scout troop in Jensen Beach are under way, according to Richard Campbell, editor of The Mirror.

Campbell was appointed neighborhood commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America by the Gulf Stream Council, with authority to organize a local troop, replacing Gene Grimm, who passed away recently.

This week, three of five troop committeemen were selected by Campbell, and the Jensen Beach Community Church has agreed to sponsor the first troop for Jensen Beach.

"There will be no effort to recruit boys until we have an organization that will be able to handle them," said Campbell. "We want a troop that will offer trained leadership, with a complete list of men who are willing to work on scouting. Then we will be able to get the boys and do something for them."

Ages of boys in the Scouts are from 11 years to 14 years. Campbell said that he is looking for two more committeemen, and men who are interested in being Scout leaders.

Checks Stolen

According to Sheriff Elly C. Baker, Baker Boat Yard in South Jensen Beach was entered Monday night. The only loss reported was a book of the Yard's imprinted checks.

Baker warned that businessmen should be on the lookout for these checks, as they are stolen.

The Jensen Beach Choir, under the direction of Mrs. George Tabb, will sing "Surely God Is In This Place," and "In Fellowship With God."

Rev. A. Sydney Lowrie, Interim Pastor in 1962, will offer the prayer of Dedication.

Rev. Newton M. Tweedy, present Pastor, will close the Service with the Benediction.

Refreshments will be served in the Fellowship Hall, and all interested persons are invited.

In an emergency special session Tuesday afternoon, the county commissioners voted unanimously to seek bids for a new asphalt transport (tank) truck to replace the one lost in the county fire. These bids will be returnable Dec. 28 at 9:30 a.m.

According to County Engineer Fred L. Bell, the county has been unable to obtain another truck from cooperative city, county and state entities offering loans of equipment to the county, and he further stated that the entire highway road construction and maintenance program is being jeopardized by the lack of the equipment.

Present at the meeting were Chairman Frank A. Wache, Commissioners Ed Miller, Jack Saunderson, Tiner Powers and Bell.

Lillie Mae King

She was a member of Future Nurses and a Candy Striper in 10th grade and is a member of Future Teachers Assn's. Teacher Reinstated

James M. Parrish, junior high school math teacher returned to his job Tuesday morning, prior to the school board's reinstating him later in the morning.

Supt. of Schools Thomas L. Crook recommended acceptance of Parrish's resignation from duties under a continuing contract and then recommended he be rehired under an annual contract.

The board voted 5-0 in favor of the reinstatement with Henry Gunn making the motion.

Parrish was suspended on November 19, effective November 22 for "gross insubordination" and "disrespect to duly constituted authority in the presence of a parent of one of your students."

Alton S. Beasley, attorney for Parrish, said the real reason Parrish was suspended was because he is a strict teacher who told his more than 100 modern math students they would have to settle down and do some studying.

Parrish failed 48 of his students in a six-week marking period when they did not study.

Crook said at the time there was no question of his teaching ability. "He is a good teacher," said Crook.

Crook also said that Parrish had no blemishes on a nine-year record of teaching here.

MISS MARTIN COUNTY--Pam Axton won the title in September and will represent Martin County for the next year on many occasions as she did in Saturday's Christmas Parade.

IRJC Now Fully Accredited

Dr. Marvin King announced from Richmond, Virginia last week that "Indian River Junior College has been voted into full membership of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. This means that Indian River Junior College is fully accredited for all academic endeavor."

Dr. King indicated that the achievement of this goal by the college terminates five years of hard work by all members of the college faculty and staff.

The college has been accredited by the State for the past five years and was granted "early recognition" by the Southern Association in December of 1963. At that time, the college was one of three colleges so honored in the Southern Region, Indian River Junior College was recommended for accreditation as a result of a VisiNg Committee inspection by the Southern Association. This visit took place April 5, 6 and 7 of 1965. At that time, the college was commended for its outstanding efforts in providing quality college education for the students served in this area.

An institution which is fully accredited is a quality institution and offers quality education to students, according to Dr. King.

Words To Make Your Life Better
FAILURE
There are few positions in life in which difficulties have not to be encountered. These difficulties are, however, our best experience. We learn wisdom from failure more than from success. We often discover what will do by finding out what will not do. Horne Tooke used to say that he had become all the better, acquainted with the country from having had the good luck sometimes to lose his way. Great thoughts, discoveries, inventions have very generally been nurtured in hardship, often pondered over in sorrow and established with difficulty.

Watsons Visit Europe

Vergie and Jack Watson spent most of last summer touring Europe. our reporter interviewed Mrs. Watson and she told of many wonderful experiences some of which I will pass on to our readers.

"We bought a Volkswagen in Heidelburg, Germany, at the Volkswagen Factory and drove to Switzerland, Austria, Italy, Spain, Great Britain, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Germany. We were travelling for five months and we covered 15,000 miles. The regular travelled tourist routes did not appeal to us so we seldom drove on the main roads. This way we were able to see just how the people lived and were able to study local conditions. Also, we very seldom stayed at the large, popular hotels but chose the smaller hotels on the outskirts of cities and sometimes several miles from a city. Particularly in Britain we were able to find accommodations at private homes. Some people make a practice of having a spare room or two to rent to "overnighters". Breakfast is also provided."

I asked Vergie did they not have language trouble in Europe. She said, "No, we got along fine. We got so used to making signs and were able to convey her meaning to various Nationals quite well." I asked Vergie which was their most outstanding experience. She fought for a minute, then replied slowly, "We had so many thrilling experiences, travelling the secondary roads as we did, we really saw some breath-taking mountain scenery." I asked how far north did they get. Mrs. Watson replied, "To the farthest north town in the world. We followed the Norwegian coast up to the little town of Hammerfest on the northern tip of Norway. Many deep fiords were encountered. These we crossed by means of ferries. One day we had to use the ferry five times. We crossed the Arctic Circle and had to travel some seven or eight hundred miles further through a lot of bleak country with little sign of life, to reach Hammerfest. We were very fortunate in our timing for we arrived there on the longest day of summer. The sun at about 1 A.M. was nearly as high as the sun would be here at 1 P.M. The sun was so bright we had to use the curtains when driving and the hotel rooms were equipped with black out arrangements over the windows so the room could be darkened when their guests wanted to sleep. The centrally heated hotel was very comfortable. The temperature outside was cool but not unpleasantly so. Strangely the country right here did not appear so bleak as farther south. Of course there were more people and quite a number of Lapanders and also some herds of reindeer were seen. The reindeer did not appear very wild." Jack came in at this point and I asked him what kind of clothing the people wore and how could he tell a Lapander from the others. He said, "About the same clothing that we wear. The Lapander is easily distinguished by his high cheek bones and the general Mogul appearance of their countenance. They are very similar to our North American Eskimo." Jack continued, "We returned by way of Lapland, Finland and Sweden and spent the remainder of the summer travelling about the countries of Western Europe. We found it quite enjoyable to revisit some places we had seen earlier in the summer under spring conditions. The cooler fall weather reminded us we should be getting home so we headed for our port of entry, Amsterdam. We had become quite attached to our Volkswagen so we loaded it on the boat and drove it from New York to Ocean Breeze where it's still wearing the German license tag. Mrs. Watson concluded, "Our trip was very enjoyable but we had slept in so many different beds, 73 to be exact, that it was a real treat to settle down in our own beds that we are used to".

HOME WILL BE JENSEN--Master Sergeant Roderique Lewis and his wife and son plan to make Jensen Beach their permanent home after spending 21 years in the Army. Sergeant Lewis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lewis.

Visitors

Bill Baum's son Robert was visiting here last week. Bob works at the San Francisco airport as a meteorologist. His job is to brief pilots on the weather over the Pacific Ocean. While here he attended the meteorologic convention at Miami Beach and gave a lecture on hurricanes affecting the West coast of North America. He and his dad did some fishing while here. Bob has now returned to his home at Menlo Park near San Francisco.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Olinger entertained for her close neighbors from Fifth Avenue for coffee November 30 at their new mobile home on Arborvitae.

Doctor and Mrs. Carrol Rolfus visited their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Theodor Rolfus over the Thanksgiving Holiday.

Dr. Rolfus, Sr. was taken to the Stuart Hospital December 2 with an infected leg.

Mrs. Willis Cadwell is home again after spending eight days in the Indian Memorial Hospital with pneumonia. Mrs. Cadwell says this is the first time in their many years of married life that they have been separated.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox have sold their former home on Broad and Seventh to Helen L. Silvers of the Jensen Trailer Sales. Mr. and Mrs. Fox now live in Ocean Breeze Drive in the mobile home they bought from Mr. and Mrs. Takis. Mrs. Fox is feeling much better after being hospitalized on her return trip to Ocean Breeze.

NEWLYWEDS ARRIVE--Dr. and Mrs. Joe White have arrived at Ocean Breeze.

Doctor Joe White arrived in the park December 2, with a lot of luggage and a gal by his side. Joe introduced the lady as your reporter as "My wife, Margaret". Joe's former place of residence was Fawes Island, New Hampshire. This summer while at a square dance there he met and danced with this lady. They had such a good time as square dancing partners that they decided they might as well make it permanent. They were married August 21, and went to Quebec Province, Canada for their honeymoon. On their way down they spent Thanksgiving at Joe Junior's home at Stanhope, N. J. and have now taken up residence on the corner of Sixth and Banyan.

Movies

The movie for next Sunday night, December 12 is "If a Man Answers" starring Sandra Dee, Bobby Darin and John Lund. The story combines romance and comedy in equal portions and the happy task of this frothy production tells of a young girl's problems with love. First how to trap the man she's decided to marry and then how to keep his attention focused on her. The way she solves her problems could start a revolution among young married couples. 7:00 P.M.

Men of All Trades Live In The Park

We have men from all trades and professions in Ocean Breeze Park. For instance, Frank Howard on Cypress in the "New Part" tells us he has worked with horses for the past 25 years. He worked as groom at the Brandywine Stables in Delaware. The last three or four years he was farm manager. As it is now necessary not to keep race horses in the very best of health, much of his time was spent in caring for sick horses. The owner of Brandywine is Mr. Donald Hoff who married a Miss Dupont. 18 to 20 horses are kept in farming. He also breeds his own stock so keeps his own brood of mares and stud. Mr. Roff, is also president of the Delaware Track Thorobred Association. One of his horses, "Big Money" won the Preakness cup at Pimlico, Maryland some two or three years ago.

McLartys Visit Cape Kennedy

Mr. and Mrs. "Mac" McLarty on Hibiscus, drove to Cape Kennedy last Sunday. Mrs. Gladys McLarty was very enthusiastic about their trip and described it thus: "It is quite a long trip to Cape Kennedy so we made an early start. We entered at the South gate and circled the whole base. There were not too many other cars so we had no need to hurry. There is not the secrecy that used to be so evident. Three missles were on their pads.

Visitors were supposed to stay in their cars but this appeared to be for safety reasons rather than for secrecy. Some huge ten story concrete buildings have been erected which they call assembly buildings. Visiting hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sundays only. On our way we stopped at Eau Gallie to visit the M. O. Foxworths."

Camera Club

The attendance at the Camera Club meeting last Thursday, December 2, was very good. The slide showing by Art Shedd was followed by a 16 MM sound movie of the Bahamas.

Next week those who attend will have the opportunity to see and appreciate some good photography. Next Thursday, December 9, the P.S.A. Slide circuit slides are due to arrive. Ten camera clubs have entered five slides each to make up this set and the P.S.A. awards a first, second and third honor for the three best slides in the set. Following the showing of these slides we will have a set of prize winning slides from the Ansco Company. This evening will be a treat for photographers and anyone who appreciates good pictures.

Shuffleboard Standings

	Won	Lost	Points
Ocean Breezers	8	2	16
Ocean Breeze	7	3	14
Stuart	6	4	12
Fort Pierce	4	6	8
Vero Beach	3	7	6
Port St. Lucie	2	8	4

It is interesting to note that Ocean Breeze has two teams in the Indian River League, "Ocean Breeze" and "Ocean Breezers". The first games were played Dec. 1, and Ocean Breeze succeeded in winning over Vero Beach seven games to three, Port Saint Lucie played to Breezers here and the result was 8 to 2 in the Breezers favor.

The original Indian River league was formed some 15 years ago, a trophy being awarded to the club taking first place. If any team succeeded in winning three times in succession the trophy was theirs to keep.

The trophy now rests snugly in the archives of Ocean Breeze's Clement Hall.

Thursday, December 9, will be a red letter day for Ocean Breeze. On this day we play host to the several member teams of the Central East Coast District. The tournament will be for mixed doubles. Teams are expected from Melbourne, Vero Beach, Stuart, Fort Pierce, Port St. Lucie, Southgate and Midway. These matches will be concluded Saturday, Dec. 11, and the results will be published in the Mirror next week.

Arrangements are being made for the Annual Christmas Tournament on December 20, and will be all singles.

The next league games, December 15, will be as follows: Fort Pierce at Vero, Port St. Lucie at Ocean Breeze and Ocean Breezers at Stuart.

People's Eyes On The Sky

Eyes scanned the skies over Jensen Beach from about 4 P.M. until dusk Monday, watching what was believed to be a runaway weather balloon which gleamed high in the sky.

The strange sight sent hundreds to telephones and others to door yards to take a look.

A heavy cloud obscured the view towards late afternoon at which time it seemed to be drifting out to sea.

Sailfish Tournament Opens Friday

The 12th Annual Light Tackle Sailfish Tournament will begin Friday and run for four days through December 12, according to William G. Simpkin, president of the Stuart Sailfish Club and chairman of its tournament committee.

Simpkin conducted three clinics for "observers" this week, a group of about 75 men who will ride the sports fishing boats, peering sails off the coast idea.

The club keeps a running list for the observer corps, keeps a ratio of four observers to three boats to maintain a reserve in case of illness or other reason, according to Simpkin.

Rules for the tournament were explained to both old and new observers by Simpkin at the meetings.

Safety was emphasized, as usual, Simpkin reported that the U. S. Coast Guard will have a picket boat outside St. Lucie Inlet each morning and afternoon during the tournament and that Sheriff Roy C. Baker will assign his "navy" to patrol the inner inlet from the Crossroads to the outer inlet to keep it clear of anchored boats in the channel.

He also told the observers that there will be a weather committee made up of Capt. Linda Lunn and Capt. Jack Whitear, to be joined by as as yet unnamed skipper of a visiting boat, to check the weather each morning to provide good information on what to expect...or to recommend call-off for the day.

If there is to be fishing, no notice will be given any-

Boom Hits Line, Causes Blackout

A drag line boom that hit a low-power feed line to a tiny building in El Dorado Heights caused a total loss of power in the Stuart district of the Florida Power and Light Co.

The boom struck the line but the operator hardly knew it until the pole crashed, bringing with it a transformer.

Operator of the city's drag line was Horace Cochran of Fort Salerno, who was trying to reach some palm trees for Fort Superintendent William E. Ambler. Cochran was not injured.

The city's brush fire truck responded and extinguished the blaze.

John M. Law, Jr., manager of the Stuart district of Florida Power & Light said an area north and as far west of Vero Beach on SR 60, as it does was affected. Also, as far west as 32 miles west of Fort Pierce, and in Stuart, as far west as Westbury Farms, just east of Indiantown in Martin County.

Law said the majority of the areas had service restored within 22 minutes but the area which included El Dorado Heights, Krueger Estates and most of Palm Beach Road and side roads from it, were without power for up to three hours.

Within the period from 9:30 a.m. and early afternoon, one area after another was put back in service, Sewall's Point had power restored at 11:30 a.m.

Stuart police authorities reported no accidents during the "blackout" although traffic control signals were out of service at all intersections.

At Martin Memorial Hospital, most of the building went on stand-by power at once, according to a spokesman.

Port Salerno News

by Howard Lee Haid

PSYO Pays Off Lot Mortgage

Acting President Elaine Thompson announced this week that the Port Salerno Youth Organization had made the final payment on the lot mortgage in the sum of $273. She stated the final payment was made Saturday morning after the club moved by a unanimous motion to pay off the remaining balance at Friday night's meeting. Miss Thompson said now all effort could be directed to erecting the youth center building for which plans have normalized.

Miss Thompson reported that a full schedule was planned by the group at Friday's meeting. She said the organization would hold a bake sale next Saturday, Dec. 11, in front of the post office with all proceeds going to the building fund. She asked that anyone wishing to bake a cake or cookies for the sale may do so and bring them to the post office at 9 a.m., Saturday.

The Club will also begin selling tickets for a turkey raffle with the drawing to be held Dec. 24 in the downtown shopping area. Other items planned will be a youth dance to be held on the 11th, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Port Salerno Fire House.

Trash barrels will be placed in the downtown area in order to help keep this section clean. The group will help the firemen this year by helping to erect and decorate the tree, picking fruit and singing carols at the Christmas Eve program. A hay ride and dances, plus other entertainment, are planned during the Christmas holiday vacation.

Miss Thompson expressed the youths' appreciation to everyone that has contributed and helped in so many ways to give the club its start. She stated that with this kind of continuing support from the citizens of the Port Salerno area, the building, the club and its endeavors could not help but become an attribute to the community.

Fishing Lines
From Port Salerno

Fishing this past week has been at a virtual standstill due to the bad weather and rough seas.

There were a few spots, mackerel and croakers caught off Fort Pierce on Monday, and a few pompano caught in the river.

Blue fish are still scarce with a few being caught, but no large quantity. There are plenty of mackerel in the inlet, but a great many shark are traveling with them.

Talked with Captain Louis Lunn of charterboat "Cartune", sailing this week-end, he caught quite a few sailfish and king mackerel near the Gulfstream.

Captain Locke of Kingfisher IV reports there are plenty of red snapper and grouper. Two dolphin were taken Monday on his trip. Locke stated he is presently fishing the eight mile reef off the Inlet.

FRENCH? ITALIAN??--Daniel Maccario, with a wide variety of international interest, is shown here at the Casbah Lounge in Port Salerno.

French-Italian In Moroccan Atmosphere

Daniel Maccario, with the first name being pronounced as 'Dan-eel', adds an interesting variety to the fascinating Moroccan atmosphere of the Casbah Lounge at the Port Salerno Yacht Club. Daniel was born in Paris, France, of French-born parents, with an Italian last name of Maccario originating with his grandfather of Italian decent. And, as if to add a little more confusion, Daniel stated, "I am now a naturalized citizen of the United States."

Asked how he happened to come to the U.S.A., he replied, "It's a long story, but to keep it rather short... I served my apprenticeship at the famed Hotel Ritz in Paris and then went to London to work at the Claridge Hotel to study and learn English. I became quite fascinated with the English language and their way of doing things and wanted to continue my studies in an English-speaking country. My grandmother, residing on the French Riviera, had a cousin who owned a French restaurant in White Plains, New York, and she made arrangements for me to go there in December of 1951. I worked there until she closed the restaurant a few years ago, and then I took out on my own, working at various places throughout the country, spending last season as Maitre de at Lost Tree Country Club just south of here. I would like very much to manage, or if the breaks come right one day, own a restaurant. It, of course, would feature French cuisine as this is my specialty."

Daniel met his wife at Fishers Island, New York, in 1958, and they were married at her family home in Chester, Pennsylvania, in November, 1960. Daniel described his wife as, how you say it... "it cute little blonde". Daniel, his wife, Lillian, and three-year old daughter, Suzanne, are now residing in their home in Hobe Sound, which they purchased three years ago. Daniel stated he liked this area and hopes for something good to come his way so he can call this his permanent home.

Johnson May Be Gemini 7 Viewer

Lawrence E. Johnson, fireman apprentice, of Port Salerno is aboard the USS Wasp anti-submarine aircraft carrier assigned to the drop area of Gemini VII.

The Fleet Home Town News Center reported Monday that Johnson was aboard the Wasp, which had been assigned to backup duties for Gemini VI and for pick up duties in earlier projects.

The Wasp was in a shortdown range position during the shoot as a pick up ship in the event the flight was aborted, but moved out to the primary pickup area as soon as the flight was well underway.

Lawrence is the son of Johnny E. Johnson of Port Salerno.

Commissioner Asks Right Of Way Abandonment

County Commissioner Jack Saunderson has asked the county to abandon rights of way in two Port Salerno areas.

The first area to be considered is the Dellolo Street right of way between Bayview and Westfield Avenues. This is a dirt/sandy street between blocks 64 and 65 that has never been opened to traffic.

Saunderson stated he wished to abandon this street in order to correct a six-foot survey error in this section. He said he would request the area be resurveyed and property lines adjusted to correct positions. The remaining right of way would be returned to adjacent property owners. Saunderson also stated he was trying to find a solution to the same problem in the adjoining blocks between Bayview and Seminole Avenues. "We have no right of way there to abandon, and I don't know what course we can follow for this section, but I'm sure we can find some way to solve our problem," he stated.

Saunderson also proposed closing of right of way on Cleveland Avenue that crosses the railroad tracks between Crubie's and Shelton's variety store. Saunderson stated this crossing would never be used and felt abandoment of this road would provide more parking space in the downtown area.

Mustang To Lucky Shareholder

Jack Saunderson, Chief of the Port Salerno Volunteer Fire Department, announced this week that the Department will give away a 1966 Ford Mustang to the lucky shareholder this year. The drawing for the lucky shareholder will be held the last night of the Martin County Fair, as has been the policy during the past years.

Shares may be purchased from any member of the Port Salerno Volunteer Fire Department, and the proceeds will be used for Fire Department projects.

PSYO Advisors Calling For Block Pledges

The Port Salerno Youth Organization Adult advisors initiated plans to call in all pledges for building blocks that have been pledged for the youth center. According to organization chairman, Howard L. Haid, the month of December will be used to solicit block donations in order to begin construction of the building in January. Haid stated that the club, though low in funds, is exceptionally high in spirit and that by pulling together as a team, they are showing excellent progress.

In his report to the advisors at last Wednesday's meeting, Haid said the youths had managed to raise over five hundred dollars during the last thirty days and were becoming quite efficient as a group. He commended the fine cooperation shown thus far by everyone and said he looks to a great future for this club. He also reported the group is planning a full schedule for the Christmas season, relating the youths will sing carols, hold a bake sale, a turkey raffle, a hay ride, a dance, and place trash barrels in the downtown area in order to initiate a clean-up campaign. In concluding his report, he stated that though progress has been made, it will still require the cooperation of the community to see a successful and satisfactory utilization of the club.

Saunderson Issues Fire Warnings

County Commissioner Jack Saunderson issued fire warnings this week and asked that everyone be especially cautious with matches, cigarettes and trash fires. Make sure all fires are extinguished before you leave the area.

Saunderson recalled the rash of brush fires that plagued the county last spring and cited the same dry situation is facing us now. He commented that most brush fires can be avoided with a little care and reminded that they do endanger homes and property.

AUXILIARY FISH FRY IS SUNDAY

Lois Saunderson has announced that plans have been completed for the Port Salerno Fire Department Auxiliary fish fry to be held Sunday, December 12, from 12 Noon until 4:00 P.M.

Port Salerno Personals

Alberta Raynor was hostess for a Seasons Greetings party at her home on Westfield Avenue last Saturday evening. Records and games provided a fun-filled evening for all attending. The door prize of a record was won by Bill DePue.

Hartman Is Victor In City

Stuart City Commissioner Jack Hartman polled more than two votes to one for his challenger, George Tal-bi, in being reelected to his seat on the Commission Tuesday in the only race on the ballot.

Only 816 voters went to the polls in one of the quietest elections in the history of the city. Running unopposed, Mayor Bill Tod garnered 664 votes, A. E. Sims had 451 and City Judge Harry Dyer received 483 votes.

In the only battle of the day, Hartman defeated Talbi 541 to 253.

Studies Cable TV City Law

Laws of other communities were studied by the city administration members Monday night when ideas differed according to an applicant for a exclusive franchise for a television cable company and local ideas.

The commissioners received from City Attorney Dean T. Oughterson a copy of the plan used by the City of Oxford, which requires no cost of installation by the cable company; no television repair facilities; maintenance of certain standards of service.

According to City Manager Joe N. Crowder, the topic will be studied by commissioners and legal experts before adoption.

Advertised for public hearing by vote of the commission will be the change from H-1-A zoning to R-2 zoning on a triangular lot at the intersection of Martin St. St. Lucie Blvd., and E. Indian Blvd., recommended by the planning advisory board last week.

A similar change was held when Oughterson said the city had not accepted as mentioned by the original plat.

The plat was accepted by the county, that portion outside the city limits, but not by the city, within the limits, according to Crowder.

The owner, A. P. Krueger asserted the planning board had the plat was in good standing with the city, at the time the board took action, Dec. 1.

The city will contact the county about a 10-year lease for use of the Stuart Youth Center as a voting place, according to Oughterson, the lease had need of some modifications and had to be changed.

The commission will meet with the Animal Rescue League to try to make arrangements for dog and pet care services.

In the absence of Mayor William F. Todd, Vice-Mayor Arthur Sims presided. Present were commissioners Jack Hartman, Jay Cooke and Dan McClure.

Two In Orange Bowl Finals

Miss Stuart Junior Orange Bowl Queen, Miss Nancy Lenehan, 12, daughter of Mrs. Adeline Lenehan of Port Sewall, was a member of the Queen's Court last week at the Junior Orange Bowl activities in Miami.

Another of Martin County's lovely youngsters, Miss Jacque Fendrick, 13, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard G. Fendrick of Jensen Beach, also made the final grade when she worked her way up to the finals when the Queen was chosen.

There were 70 girls who competed in the contest.

Kickoff Set January 3

Al Palmer Heads Jensen-Rio UF

Albert E. Palmer was elected President of The United Fund of Jensen Beach and Rio last Thursday night at the Community Center.

Palmer will head the 1966 fund drive, which last year raised over $7,500 for twelve charities participating.

Elected drive chairman and first vice president was Jacqueline Hall of Rio. Assisting the drive chairman will be Reg Walker of Jensen Beach.

The drive will be kicked off at the annual breakfast Monday, January 3, at Seymour's Inn.

Other vice presidents include Marie Miller, Willard Bowman and Dick Campbell, who is immediate past president.

Ruth Bowman was elected recording secretary, Anita Wacha, corresponding secretary, and Martin Wahl, treasurer.

During the meeting, organizations wishing to participate in the drive made presentations of budgets and requests. The organizations included the Animal Rescue League, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Langford Park, Crippled Children, Mental Health Association, Pioneer Occupational Center, Retarded Children, Samaritan Ambulance, Community Center and the Mars Hill Community Center.

In the election, a list of directors was chosen for the coming year. They include past presidents William Weiss, Zola Swarthout and Warren G. Shipes, Jr., and Mike Friedrichs, Orlena Braun, Helen Richardson, Marion Techtchech, Frank Forsberg, Kitty Robertson, Edna Robbins, Hazel Heritage, Julia Porter, Ellen Chase, Don Wilkie, Mardee St. Clair, Rev. County Accepted Land Transfer

On Tuesday the county commission voted not to abandon an unnamed 14-foot street, lying between Blocks 1-5, Rio St. Lucie Terrace, Addition 1, in Rio, on SE-707, instead accepted an offer from John H. Wolfe and Mrs. Wolfe of half of a 15-foot half of Martin Blvd., including unfilled land to the river, and to swap for it a six-foot strip of the 14-foot street.

Represented by Attorney Harry Dyer, Glass family interests and members of the Rio Civic Club opposed closing of the 14-foot street which, they said, acted as a buffer zone, but voted not between what, and was a potential easement way for a $10 feet culvert to drain SR 707.

Appearing for the Wolfes, Attorney Robert F. McRoberts, Jr., argued that his client would also give an easement, and that half of a street 14-feet wide would be dedicated to public access to water, the other half, as an ordinary street.

According to Chairman Frank A. Wacha, the 14-feet could not be used for an accepted street, since county right-of-way must be a minimum of 40 feet. He stated he had studied the problem and favored the Martin Blvd. plan.

No easement had been offered by the Glass owners.

Buckle—Up For Safety

Among the topics of conversation at the county commission meeting on Tuesday were whether to require the fastening of seat belts on county vehicles, and what color to paint the county trucks.

According to County Engineer Fred L. Bell, his vehicle is the only one of all county vehicles which has seat belts.

Bell recommended some shade of green for the county trucks, as "The white trucks paint gives the drivers headaches; it glares too much," he stated.

Apparently the trucks will be painted green, but no action was reached about the seat belts. County Attorney Dean Tockey will investigate its insurance cost benefits.

Facilities Discussed For Conservation

Jensen Beach may win either one, two or no facilities of the Florida Department of Conservation, under recent moves and recommendations of the county commission and County Engineer Fred L. Bell.

Any or none could be in the former bridge tender's house at the east end of the westerly causeway island, owned by the county.

The county offered the house to the Conservation Department to house the local Florida lobster research facility.

When Bell returned from the firemen's protection conference at Pensacola, he reported that the Conservation Department was seeking a home for its Beach and Shore Division Research Division, a facility Palm Beach County could not supply, according to Bell. The Conservation Department was offered the same facility which had been offered to the lobster survey team.

Chairman Frank A. Wacha said there is hope for both facilities. A decision will be expected within a few weeks.

Another contract with the State Road Department was due for a change, according to County Attorney Dean Tookey, who said an addendum contract for right-of-way with the SRD would be returned and a new one provided, with new terms.

He got a commission vote to return the old, accept the new in exchange.

Anyone having a Christmas party is asked to call the Mirror office, at 287-1626. We will register the party and have a photographer at the party to take a picture for the "Christmas In Pictures" edition.

The special edition will be released December 23.

In that edition will also be the pictures of whatever Christmas lighting displays that it is possible to take.

Commissioner's Finances Predominate At Meeting

Much of the county commission meeting on Tuesday was taken up by bids, budgets and money transfers.

In order to make a $13,000 payment to G-A Construction Co., on the first progress report on the new county barn, $2,000 was transferred from the county road and bridge fund budget, and $11,000 from capital outlay and reserve. The new barn at the intersection of Indian Ave. and A-1-A in South Stuart will replace the one which burned recently.

Bids to advertise on a replacement pickup truck, half-ton, and three bids on the replacement asphalt tank truck, not due until Dec. 28, were voted by the board. The manufacturer of the types specified noted that it will honor the lowest of the bids submitted by three of its distributors.

The specifications were asked by manufacturer's name, Roscoe Mfg. Co., of Minneapolis, because of the make of the previous truck and the fact that similar equipment is used in this area. The county employees are, according to County Engineer Fred L. Bell, familiar with its operation. The bids were not opened.

John A. Miller, Roscoe's distributor, telegraphed the firm would start building the equipment on time.

A bill for $100 from Abstract Title Ins. Co. for use of abstracts in the Fruit Whitney Access Road right-of-way by Royal American Industries, Inc., was voted for payment.

Appraisals of land upon which the county barn stood varied so much the board voted to confer with the appraisers and the potential buyer, Law's Moving Co., and discuss the price. Prior to the fire, Law's had put a binder on the purchase of the land.

The board modified a newly adopted policy because of necessary trips on routine business, such as purchasing surplus equipment, etc.

Bids for the Jensen Beach Fire Department chassis for use in a fire vehicle were opened. Minton Equipment Co., of Fort Pierce was low bidder at $4,553.73. Next high bid was from Indian River Supply Co., $4,820.

It was voted to pay Ray Lieo Construction Co. the sum of $6,908.60 on the county jail addition progress re-

NATIVITY SCENE—The well-known Nativity Scene in the Jensen Beach Elementary Schoolyard on Indian River Drive is again lighted every night for the holiday season.

Hideaway Isles Thorn Leaves Commission Toe

In a 3-0 vote of the county commission board on Tuesday, a 3 1/2 year old argument was resolved. The board accepted the Plotter of Hideaway Isles, Inc., Walter Travers, Mrs. Travers and their son, George, to end the argument which was more political than legal or financial.

Originated in 1963, the so-called Crane Creek argument over the Travers promise to construct a bridge on West Murphy Rd. north of Palm City, was compounded by the Murphy Rd. bridge fire which has been termed an act of arson, but never proven.

Travers offer of Nov. 1 included the offer to sign a $8,000 promissory note by the principals except George Travers, who agree to pay $1,000 in cash, the latter due him in county legal fees resulting from his unsuccessful defense of Willis Porter, convicted murderer in circuit court, and the subsequent appeal to the State Supreme Court, at $500 each case.

Although Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge, in circuit court, had said he would favor payment if asked by Travers, the fees had not been paid and were held in abeyance by the commission.

The county filed a suit in circuit court to recover costs of building a bridge to replace a culvert installed in lieu of a bridge by Travers interests.

Archie Shelton was engineer when the bridge was built without wing walls, on his approval.

Manley Cullings, the second engineer, recommended wing walls not in the original specifications, and the county added them. One of the arguments was over the need of the wing walls and whether they should be charged to Travers.

In the meantime, Travers has moved to the Cape Kennedy area, and his son is a government attorney in Washington.

According to Dean Tookey, County Attorney, the settlement netted the county $375.86 more than it cost to build the bridge.

Travers' note is for a period of four months, and security was provided through the title to some lots in the Hideaway Isles subdivision.

Other road problems were taken up at the meeting.

Saunderson requested the commission to take quick action to close one of two roads he previously sought to close. The one on which he sought speed was a 60 x 50 road-end of Cleveland Ave., opposite Maurice Marine.

It was moved to advertise. A survey must be made before a closure on DeSoto St. can be advertised, according to Saunderson.

Also requested by Saunderson was that the commission provide an estimated $375. to haul the bulk of the Sea Hawk from the bottom of Manatee Pocket, but no action was taken pending further study because of questions of liens on the craft and other legal problems.

Ray Cooke made an offer, accepted by the commission, of $300 payment in kind through the Seattle Yank Co. in return for "the best of the burned-out tractors" left at the county barn fire site.

The board will investigate the question of legal aspects of accepting an offer of $75 and all the junk, in return for a clean-up job by Henry Grier on the balance of the barn site.

POST OFFICE PROGRESS—Workmen continue to put the finishing touches on the new Jensen Beach Post Office, due for delivery the early part of January. The net loss of 46 left a total of 1,856 voters eligible to go to the polls last Tuesday in the annual city election.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT
I am the Christmas spirit!
I enter the home of poverty, causing palefaced children to open their eyes wide, in pleased wonder.
I cause the miser's clinched hand to relax, and thus paint a bright spot on his soul.
I cause the aged to renew their youth and to laugh in the old, glad way.
I keep romance alive in the heart of childhood, and brighten sleep with dreams woven of magic.
I cause sugar loaf to climb dark stairways with filled baskets, leaving behind hearts aroused at the goodness of the world.
I am the Christmas spirit!

OCEAN BREEZE NEWS

by Tom Cook Phone 287-5312

CARD PARTY HOSTESSES--Hostesses Sea Barrett, Lillian Towers, Trudy Chibaas, Connie Hileman and Peggy Burks, entertained 100 Ocean Breeze ladies at cards in the Parish Hall of the Episcopal Church on December 9.

Christmas Flights

Many Ocean Breezers are flying north to visit relatives for Christmas. Here are a few:

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sandrol left Dec. 16, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Saunders at Sixth and Broad took them to West Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Smith will leave Dec. 18, and Colonel Sporrie is to leave Dec. 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Catherall are flying north on Dec. 20. They are to return Jan. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilder Weeks are leaving on Dec. 12 for Greenfield, Mass., where they will spend Christmas with the family. They are travelling by car and will return shortly after Christmas Day.

Gertrude Wickes leaves by train for Lincoln Park, N.J., on the 15th. Al follows on the 21st. He says he has more fishing to do yet. Gertrude is happily anticipating her re-union with her family particularly three granddaughters who will be home from college.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Reversdy are flying to N.J. with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Catherall for Christmas.

Are you or any of your friends going north for Christmas? I would like to know. Give me a ring at 287-5312. I'll appreciate it. Tom Cook, Ocean Breeze Reporter.

Slides Arrive

Last Thursday, Dec. 9, the Camera Club had a successful evening. Tom Cook showed slides of local interest for 50 minutes.

After a two-week relax period, there was a showing of 80 slides by Asaco demonstrating how far a photographer may go in advanced photography. No one left the hall after the first showing, which indicates all were interested.

Next week we have another set of Asaco slides which covers a branch of photography not commonly used, that of night photography. The expected P.S.A. slide Circuit slides did not turn up in time for showing this week, which rather upset our plans. However, they should be here the next day so we will show them next Thursday. A taped commentary accompanies the slides, stating not the good and poor features of each slide which should make the showing took any an enjoyable experience, but it should be educational as well.

The Asaco night photography slides are already here so they will be shown after the P.S.A. circuit slides.

Mr. Alex Dickey was scheduled to present some of his very good slides on the screen Dec. 16. He has graciously agreed to postpone his entertainment.

Fishing Is Good

Some people are complaining there are no fish here any more. "Well, it ain't the way I heered it". I only talked to a few fishermen this morning, Dec. 16, and I got this straight from the fishermen's mouths and you know fishermen don't lie.

On Tuesday, Luther Weeks and Irvin Keith were bottom fishing in the inlet and they got 153 pounds of blues. The next day Al Wickes caught 118 pounds of blues all by his little self. He was trolling, Luther Weeks and Maxwere successful in pulling in 120 pounds of bottom fish yesterday at the inlet, and as it goes, So don't let anyone tell you that Jensen Beach is fished out.

Two Canadians Arrive

A touch of frost is a good reminder to Canadians that it is time to head south. Floss and Stan Graber were no exceptions so on September 7, Stan coupled up with his travel trailer at Cochin in far northern Saskatchewan and started to follow the birds. Stan never travels in a straight line to any place, so from Calgary, after a lengthy visit with his brother, he hit westward stopping over night at Banff. Next morning he awoke to find four inches of snow on the ground and when he turned on the water faucet nothing happened. The water supply was frozen. Floss said, "Stan, let's get out of here". They travelled through Rogers Pass, which cuts off the Big Bend, and which the Grahers describe as most beautiful. Then through Kamloops to the Fraser Clinyon.

The old time hazardous one lane road which followed the steep cliff side to no more and numerous tunnels cut off the very sharp bends. Stan says the new road is good. Their next stop was Victoria on Vancouver Island, the capital of British Columbia.

Stan's father is in the Richmond Heights Hospital and they are glad to report he is doing nicely.

A visit with Pat and Julia Wingert at Grants Pass, Oregon, of course was a necessity as they are relatives of The Wingerts were residents of Ocean Breeze for several years.

On to Klamath Falls and Sacramento to call on friends. While here they called at the A.A.A. office to inquire about routes 16 and 49. The girl in the office said she thought the route should be good as she had travelled some distance that way.

As the Grahers discovered later, the lady hadn't travelled far enough. As Stan Graber said, "The road was pretty good till we came to Angels camp, the scene of gold mining operation of 1849." "Evidence of the time mining operations was plain to see. An old fire engine and scattered pieces of rusty mining equipment were lying around." "Half a mile farther the road suddenly began to drop away steeply. There were innumerable sharp turns where I had to apply the brakes hard in order to make the turn. At times it seemed there was not space enough for the car and the trailer to both make it. I tried not to look down into what looked to me at the time like the Grand Canyon." "Wait", I remarked, "You're here so you must have got to the bottom safely". Stan continued, "Yes, we made it, but by the time I got the car and trailer stopped at the bottom, every brake was smoking. This was the old Malones Camp of 1849 as I was told later. The River Stanislaus was just ahead and a very rickety looking old bridge, which had replaced the old ferry. A man came out of a shack and looked at us curiously so I asked him the way to Sonora. He looked all the more curious and asked me how the heck we got there. I pointed up the side of the canyon. The man shook his head and said 'No one comes that way'. I assured him we did but I couldn't convince him. He added that the only road to Sonora was across the bridge."

Evidently the bridge held for the Grahers got to Sonora where they were told many tales of gold rush days. One was the finding of a gold nugget in somebody's garden that weighed 28 pounds. Some were panning for gold but Stan thought more for quality and souvenirs than for profit. From here they drove to Calaveras, the Wingerts' home and then to Palm Springs where they experienced some of the recent heavy rains that deluged south California. They arrived in Ocean Breeze Nov. 29, at their mobile home on 10th St. after a trip of 6,500 miles from their starting point in Canada.

It. We hated to get off, but we had the feeling that seven stowaways would sure be noticed. There was much to do such as shuffle, deck tennis, trap shooting, movies, swimming, painting lessons, travelogues and exercises. Then we had tours in Tahiti and Bora Bora, dancers who came aboard from these islands and of course delicious meals, each better than the one before. Wayne won the coveted shuffleboard championship and came second in ping pong. Linda and Chris won a lovely prize at the costume party with their horses. Or, Mr. Brandon was an artist who painted some pretty fine pictures of Tahiti and Bora Bora. He offered them for sale for $450.00. Here's a thought for you, Tom.

"We rented a car in Tahiti and drove around the island which was extremely colorful. Masses of flowers in the yards of people who had little else. Even the washing on the lines was colorful. The town was disappointing as one thinks of Tahiti as a tropical paradise, and it is nothing but commercialism.

"Bora Bora was much nicer to my way of thinking. While Wayne took a tour in the sloop, I took the boys and children into the water. What a beautiful beach. Tropical fish were swimming about so you could watch them.

"The principle in most thatched huts and set up stands from which they sell beads, shells, carved drums, boats, straw hats, bags, etc. They are very friendly and speak readily French. This applies also to Tahiti and the currency is the same.

"We will look forward to hearing from you, and next time any of you are down in New Zealand, come and see us, or maybe it will be easier to wait two years and we'll come to see you.

"Sincerely, Joan, Wayne and children

Shuffleboard

The Central East Coast District of the Florida Shuffleboard Association has assigned Dr. Thomas J. Moore and his group, consisting of Harry Bonne, Lou Tuma, Fred Viland and Willard Pitts, to teach referees and players, also to organize various units for competitive shuffleboard in our district which extends from Jupiter to Cocoa. Those wishing to become referees in this district should contact the tournament director at Ocean Breeze Park.

The S.E.C. Mixed Doubles tournament, held at Ocean Breeze last week, created quite a lot of interest, and all seats were kept pretty well filled.

The next big event in the S.E.C. district is the Florida State Amateur Singles which will be played at Vero Beach December 16, 17 and 18. Art Johnson says there are 96 fine new courts at Vero.

The Indian River League games played last Wednesday, Dec. 8, achieved the following: Stuart 2, Ocean Breeze 8, at Ocean Breeze; Vero 6, Fort St. Lucie 3, at Fort St. Lucie; Breezers 5, Fort Pierce 5, at Fort Pierce.

I.R.L. games for December 22 are as follows: Fort St. Lucie plays at Ft. Pierce, Ocean Breeze plays the Breezers at home, Vero Beach plays at Stuart.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barrett, with Rawleigh Johnson and Mrs. Deal, took Aaron Deal to the Veterans' Hospital in Miami last Monday, Dec. 6, for treatment. They returned the same day, and Aaron is feeling much better.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hawkins had just arrived and were unpacking when I passed on Dec. 8 on the corner of Ninth and Broad. Gordon says there was frost every morning for the last week in North Carolina.

The Hands of Statesville, West Virginia, bought John Watson's trailer on Ocean Breeze Drive and will be moving in shortly.

Rawleigh Johnson on the River Front had a heart attack last Tuesday, Dec. 7, on the Stuart Golf Course. He will be confined to bed for the next three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Scott are back at their home again at Broad and Sixth. Before coming back they made a special trip through West Virginia and Kentucky to see the fall foliage. Walter says they didn't think Kentucky had too much to offer in the way of color, but West Virginia was quite colorful in places. They returned to their home at Cape May, N.J., before driving south for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Jenks moved from 23 Mango to 8 Melaleuca Drive and will make their home in the mobile Home which they have purchased from Mrs. Stoeizing.

Al Wickes has entered in the sailfish tournament which is from Dec. 10 to Dec. 13.

HAPPY-FISHING--Tom Clancy caught another nice snook and this big fellow weighed 34 pounds. As Tom and Al Langley lifted it out of the trunk of Clancy's car, an interested group gathered and asked the usual questions as to where and when, etc. Tom informed us that he caught it on the South Bridge (25 cent bridge) at 1 A.M. One man asked why he fished so late at night. Before he could reply, Nellie Cook volunteered, "He sneaks up on them and catches them while they're asleep." Now the secret is out.

Ogles Arrive

Many of you will remember Wayne Ogle and family who spent the month of October here, visiting Cliff and Gladys Ogle, their parents. Your reporters, Tom and Nellie Cook received an airmail letter from Mrs. Ogle, Jo, on Dec. 8, in which she says, "I was having some nostalgic thoughts of Ocean Breeze this morning so thought I'd drop you a line to tell you again what a pleasant time we had while there. It is nice to be back home but it makes for a nonsecure feeling to realize that another two years must elapse before we see our relatives and friends again. I can close my eyes and see the water, the bridge, Bay Drive and the lovely walks we had, and even the laundry room where we met so many people. We certainly had a marvelous visit.

"I wish we had some of your weather, too. Although officially it is summer here, the temperature is averaging 80 degrees. Apparently it has been the wettest November in 80 years. We left the cold after Florida's heat.

"Our trip back by ship was really marvelous and we enjoyed every second of

The Port Salerno Volunteer Firemen will erect the Community Christmas Tree this Saturday, according to Robert Johnson, President.

Johnson has asked that all available firemen participate in this project and he wishes to thank the Port Salerno Youth Organization for the help they have pledged.

Johnson also said the Christmas Eve program will start at approximately 6:30 P.M., and residents will be notified by the use of the siren which will announce the arrival of Santa Claus.

Home Room Mothers Christmas Party

The home room mothers will hold their annual Christmas Party for the children at the Port Salerno Elementary School this Friday. The children will be feted with a program and refreshments before being released for the coming holidays.

School is scheduled to resume on January 3, 1966.

Heard About Hidden Harbour?

How wonderful to be in Florida this time of the year especially when you read of all the snow and cold up North.

We are glad to see Lee and Ann Shurr move in from Jupiter, and we like their new mobile home. Lee is getting used to the water in his little Boston whaler along with catching fish.

Talking about fish, our boys here are still doing well. We are planning a fish fry next month, so we will want the catches to continue.

Bill and Bernice Murray spent last week touring the Islands in the Bahamas. We are looking forward to seeing some of the pictures they have taken.

Neil Amsden makes better time around the park on her bicycle than Barney Glenfield did on the race track. Sure nice to see these young people so active!

Lil Kossins has taken on designing coaches. She did such a nice job we're in the process of designing one for Walter and Ethel Gagnier who will be moving in soon.

With Tracie Wilson and Myron Umbach both being dentists, we celebrate national smile week every week in the park. The other day Tracie came in with a nice catch of ribbon fish for bait. He said, "Man, look at those nice teeth." You never relax from your business, doc?

When you see Martin and Sena Schaejerle walking around the park in the moonlight, you then know life isn't being wasted. I'm taking some real pointers from you and hope to put them in practice real soon.

We're all on pins and needles waiting for the Aldrich's coach to arrive. We'll be happy to have Mark, Edith and their daughter, Caroline, move in.

John Owens sure does a nice job at the recreation hall on Monday nights. His wife, Alice, pops up things sometimes.

"Doc" Myles always has a project going to beautify his mobile home. With Doc 'jinxing' on the outside and his wife, Viola, making the inside pretty. What a combination. Good housekeeping award to both of you.

Ernest Bacon and Lester Schultz have been working in their back yards. It looks real nice, so now put the shovels away and go fishing.

Stanley Rootes, are you building shelves in your utility room to hold your cigars?

Stan and Reggie, is it true you're really getting black jackets to go with the motor bikes?

Thanks for the smoked fish, Lou and Birch Chambers. We all enjoyed them.

It's nice to have Helen Stafford back again. Her operation was a success. Maybe now we can hear that organ music once more.

What's this I hear about Ada Thurgarland thinking about leaving the Woodwards next month. Can't we keep her with us somehow? Canada has had her long enough.

If you like happy people, meet Ross and Charlotte Bryan. She plays the organ very beautifully. Ross always smiles and tells everybody how happy he is to be here.

Sorry to hear Fred Hagney has a cold, Peg will take care of you, and too windy to go fishing anyhow.

All the girls here are starting to make nice things for Christmas. Will look real pretty around here by the holidays. May we at Hidden Harbour wish all of you A Happy Holiday, and hope you plan on driving over during the Christmas Season and saying "Hello!"

Volunteers Answer Fire Call Sunday

The Port Salerno Volunteer Fire Department answered a fire call Sunday at 1:00 P.M. Two trucks and firemen responded to a brush fire on Indian Avenue in Golden Gate. The fire was controlled in a relatively small area but near several residences and was quickly extinguished by the firemen.

Monthly Fire Commissioner and Port Salerno Fire Chief Jack Saunderson again issued warnings against brush and trash pile burnings. He stated that with the area being as dry as it is, it is extremely dangerous to burn at this time. Your homes and property may be at stake because of one little mistake, so restrict your burning until we have better conditions.

Fishing Lines

By Marti

The annual run of Spanish Mackerel off Port Salerno has finally materialized into full swing. The sharks that have been plaguing the fishermen have eased up somewhat in the "Hole" area and only a few scattered reports of nets being eaten by them was received this week.

The Port Salerno based boats have been reporting catches of five to ten thousand pounds per night, and the majority of "Old Time" fishermen state they have never seen quite as many fish as appear to be now off the inlet.

Some boats reported scattered catches of blues and pompano in fairly large quantities and they predict, providing the weather holds out, that fishing should continue to be excellent.

Captain Locke, skipper of the Kingfisher Four reports snapper and grouper are real plentiful in the area of the six-mile reef. He states the outlook for bottom fishing appears to be real good during the coming week.

Chamber To Meet Thursday

E. C. "Buck" Blackman, President of the Port Salerno Chamber of Commerce, has announced the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber will be held Thursday evening, Dec. 16, at the Port Salerno Fire House. Blackman stated the meeting was re-scheduled for this week due to conflicting meetings last week and he urged all members to attend.

Jolly Rogers, Chamber secretary, has reported a number of new listings of rental units and of visitors to the area have been received at the Chamber office and asks that anyone having rental units or any visitors not registered, please come in and do so as soon as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Judson, of Feinbora Restaurant, have announced the engagement of their son, Henry Craig Judson, to Judity Denay of East Fifth Street, Stuart. Henry is stationed aboard the Polaris sub-tender Canopus at Charleston, S. Carolina, and Judith is attending Modeling School in Miami. The couple have not planned a date for their wedding as yet.

Capt. and Mrs. Jim Brown of Westfield Ave. recently moved here from Merritt Island and reported a nice catch of fish from their boat Sunday. Eight kings, two dolphin and one sail made up the day's activity. The Browns stated they are here to stay and will be sailing their charter boat, the Marjim from the Salerno Shipyards.

Mrs. Rose Jackson and her two children, Kim, age two, and Cindy, age five, of Chicago, Ill., are visiting her sister, Mrs. Willie Lukens, and plan to spend the Christmas holidays here before returning.

Dave Strain of Fortescue, N. J., has arrived here to take over the helm as Captain of the Ondine II, owned by Mr. G. G. Woodruff of Jupiter Island and Chicago. Captain Strain will reside at 414 Palm Avenue, Jensen Beach.

Mr. James Wheelton, residing on Lincoln and Ninth Streets, will leave this week for North Carolina to visit his mother and sister. He plans to spend the holidays with his family before returning.

Noted with interest, Henry Crane celebrated another birthday this past week. Here's wishing you the best and hoping you have many more.

Mr. James Saunderson, of Lakeburn, N. J., and brother of County Commissioner Jack Saunderson, spent a one week's vacation here with his brother. This is the first time the brothers have been together for three years.

PSYO Bake Sale—Dance A Success

The Port Salerno Youth Organization's Bake Sale and Dance held this past Saturday night was quite successful, according to Elaine Thompson, acting President for the Club. Miss Thompson stated the Club netted over thirty dollars from the two events, and wishes to thank everyone for their cooperation.

Members of the Youth Organization will help the Port Salerno Volunteer Firemen this coming Saturday when they erect the community Christmas Tree in the downtown area. Members will also help in the picking of fruit for the Christmas Eve program, she stated.

Miss Thompson also advised that the trash barrels for the downtown area are in the process of being painted before they are installed, and she calls on the public's cooperation in using them to keep our town clean.

PTA Meet Dec. 16

The regular monthly meeting of the Port Salerno Elementary P.T.A. is scheduled for Thursday, December 16, at the Port Salerno Elementary School. President Willie Lukens, this will be a short business meeting, followed by a Christmas Program presented by the fifth and sixth graders. Refreshments will be served following the program. Accutron Is Not A Watch
But it will always give you the precise time of day.
All the parts that make a watch fast or slow - the mainspring, hairspring, balance wheel - have been left out of Accutron. The Accutron movement is electronic. It keeps virtually perfect time by vibrations of a tiny tuning fork powered by a battery. And comes with the first guarantee of accuracy ever given. So don't call it a watch.

New York Times Story Features Jensen Beach

This article appeared in The New York Times on Sunday, December 19, 1965, and was written by C. E. Wright.

An aerial photo of the new Frank A. Wacha Bridge accompanied the story, and credited to Mirror editor Dick Campbell.

"Two major highway improvements have greatly enhanced this area's convenience and attractiveness as a vacation spot.

"One is the $800,000 Jensen Beach Bridge, which connects this village with Hutchinson Island, across the Intracoastal Waterway. The other is the completion of State Route A-1-A for 14.5 miles in St. Lucie County so that it connects with A-1-A in Martin County. The latter portion was built a few years ago.

"These two projects are the culmination of a $5 million program carried out in the last several years to connect the Stuart-Jensen Beach area with the Atlantic Ocean. Two bridges from the southern end of Stuart to Hutchinson Island--they cross the Indian and St. Lucie Rivers--were built in 1958 at a cost of $2.2 million. Originally toll bridges, they are now free.

"For many years, the only bridge between the mainland and Hutchinson Island was an old wooden span from Jensen Beach. It cost $98,000 when erected in the 1920's. This was a toll span, but the tolls were removed after two years.

This part of Florida, although it was settled long before either Miami or Palm Beach, has had a slow growth and still retains what residents like to call "old-time charm." Both Stuart and Jensen Beach are quiet towns without any pretense of nightlife, but affording almost everything else that visitors expect to find in Florida. This includes miles of ocean beaches, river and ocean fishing, sailing, powerboating, water-skiing, skin-diving, golf and shuffleboard.

MOTELS AND BOATELS

"Many of the motels in this area, which includes the little villages of Rio and Port Salerno, cater both to motorists and boatmen. Some have their own marinas and operate their accommodations as "boatels."

There are a number of such facilities at Port Salerno, on A-1-A a few miles south of Stuart, and some at Rio, which lies between Jensen Beach and Stuart. There are also a number along the riverfront in Jensen Beach.

"Rates in both Jensen Beach and Stuart are generally quite reasonable. Typical of the boatel rates are these:

One-room apartment for two, $9 overnight; two-room combinations for three persons, $10 a night, $65 a week or $225 a month; two-and-one-half-room apartments accommodating four persons, $15 a night, $85 a week and $300 a month. A yacht club with 60 slips, a restaurant and cocktail lounge adjoins one such boatel.

"Fishing and boating are the most popular diversions for visitors, but there are also golf and bathing. Both Stuart and Jensen Beach have public beaches on Hutchinson Island.

"The Martin County Golf and Country Club's 18-hole course is open to the public and so, too, are the two championship courses at the Port St. Lucie Country Club, between Stuart and Fort Pierce.

"One of the things that distinguishes Jensen Beach is that trailer courts may not be far from millionaires' yachts. And not far south of Jensen Beach is a camping spot that has few equals in the state. It is in Sandsprit Park, at the confluence of the Indian and St. Lucie Rivers and the St. Lucie Inlet to the ocean. It is popular with fishermen and their families.

Many come to this area to partake of the tournaments staged by the Stuart Sailfish Club. The winter tournament runs from November to April, while the summer tournament takes over the remainder of the year.

"Thirty-six varieties of fish have been caught in these salt waters, while some of the best freshwater fishing in Florida is only 20 miles away at Lake Okeechobee. The St. Lucie River is good for both fresh- and salt-water fishing, as many species from the ocean enter the river through the St. Lucie Inlet.

"Many visitors go surf-casting from the beaches of Hutchinson Island. Others fish from the platforms of the new Jensen Beach Bridge. These platforms, about 100 feet long and six feet wide, are four feet above high tide and have concrete railings to protect the anglers. They are below the level of automobile traffic and are lighted for night fishing.

"A visit to this area is not complete without an inspection of the Elliott Museum and the House of Refuge Museum, both on Hutchinson Island and both operated by the Martin County Historical Society.

The Elliott Museum has a variety of exhibits, including antique automobiles. The House of Refuge, built in 1875 as a life-saving station, houses permanent and special exhibitions of nautical history.

"Outside the buildings are tanks containing sea turtles that have been hatched from eggs gathered on the beaches. Recently, year-old turtles were released into the ocean. Taking their place were about 100 green turtles imported from Costa Rica.

"Hutchinson Island, which extends for 15 miles from below Fort Pierce to a point south of Stuart, is still an almost unbuilded area. However, it recently got a supply of water from Stuart, which may encourage the development of motels, hotels and apartments."

Sails 18' Boat Across Atlantic Ocean From England

By Dick Campbell

Paul Johnson comes from a sea-faring family. Born on a 31 ton sailing ketch, Johnson was raised in a sailing family. He sailed down the river to go to school each day in Southhampton, England, and when he moved to the Shetland Islands he kept his interest in sailing alive in the waters off Scotland.

Recently, last July, Johnson pulled into Palm Beach after a harrowing trip across the Atlantic in an 18 foot ketch.

He pulled into Manatee Marina to repair his boat last Monday afternoon. It needs a little paint.

The 27 year old adventurer is an artist and pays for part of his sailing expenses by selling ink drawings wherever he goes. At present he is traveling with his fiancee, Miss Judy Godfrey, who met him in New York in August. She took the easy way across, on the Queen Mary. Since August she has been traveling on the boat with Johnson.

The hull of the boat was built in 1894, making this one of the oldest boats afloat. Minor repairs have been made to the superstructure, but the hull is intact. When Johnson returns to Scotland, he plans to put the boat in a museum and build a larger one for future adventures.

At the Manatee Marina, Johnson made the acquaintance of Jim Hutchinson, one of Martin County's outstanding artists, and Owen K. Murphy, art collector and owner of the marina. While there, he and Hutchinson exchanged notes on art and travel by sailboat, for Hutchinson had sailed into the Everglades to paint the Seminole Indians.

The trip across the Atlantic for Johnson was made in stages. First he went to England, then to Spain and Portugal. From there he navigated to the Canary Islands, then to Martinique and on to the Bahamas. From Nassau he brought the ship into Palm Beach. He then took the boat up the coast to New York to pick up Miss Godfrey.

He plans to stay in this area for a week, moving on to Miami, then to the Bahamas and on to either England or to Bermuda.

Johnson set a new world's record for crossing the Atlantic in a boat under 20 feet. His 39-day trip in the gaff ketch cut a full 30 days off the previous record.

The red-bearded young man has the ready grin of an Englishman and the weathered look of a seaman. He has sailed 18,000 miles in the small boat and loves he life.

ODYSSEY STOPOVER--Paul Johnson and his fiancee, Miss Judy Godfrey, both of the Shetland Islands, Scotland, sit in the comfort of the Casbah Lounge, following their docking at the Manatee Marina last Monday. Johnson has sailed his 18 foot ketch across the Atlantic Ocean and is stopping off here for repairs. With Johnson is local artist, Jim Hutchinson, and art collector, Owen K. Murphy, owner of the marina.

Zglinicki Suit Dismissed

Dismissed from circuit court on Monday, by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge, for "failure to state a cause of action", was a suit filed by Andy Zglinicki of Palm City, against the county commission in which he sought to force the county board to change certain minutes because, according to Zglinicki, they did not reflect the actions taken.

Zglinicki had walked out of a January meeting of the commission after hearing an argument between Commissioners Frank A. Wacha and Ed Miller over awarding a contract. The suit was filed April 7.

According to Zglinicki, he instituted the action in an effort to determine "the truth on what goes on at these meetings."

The plaintiff's attorney, Errol S. Willes, failed to state a cause of action, according to Judge Trowbridge. The Fort Pierce attorney said this was not the case and indicated he would file an appeal.

Representing the board is County Attorney Dean Tooker, who argued that the minutes had not been proven wrong. Zglinicki, early in November, had sought to obtain a writ of mandamus to change the records.

Plan May Be Contradicted

According to a letter received by Mrs. Edna B. Hazelwood, president of the Martin County Audubon Society and chairman of the Conservation Department of the Woman's Club of Stuart, the U. S. Corps of Engineers may not follow the plan to save the Northwest Loxahatchee River as a wildlife area, as had been hoped.

The letter from Randolph Hodges, director of the Florida Board of Conservation in Tallahassee, hinted that the plan might be contradicted.

Rodeo Feb. 26-27

All Saints To Have 2 Christmas Eve Services

Because worshippers annually have exceeded the capacity of this tiny, picturesque church at the 11 o'clock service, All Saints Episcopal Church, Jensen Beach, this year will hold two identical Christmas Eve services. The first will be at 8:30 o'clock and the second, the midnight "Christ-Mass" at 11. There will be special music with organ and-trumpet at each.

Christmas morning the Family Eucharist will be held at 9 o'clock. This will be a sung service with traditional carols and the Christmas sermon by the rector, the Rev. Norman B. Feaster.

The event, to which the entire parish family is invited, adults, children as well as visitors, will begin with a covered dish supper at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by the making of decorations for the church and the singing of carols after which all will go into the church to hang the greens in preparation for the observance of Christmas.

Wells Hively Presents Piano Recital Sunday

An event of more than usual significance and a rare treat for the music lovers of Martin County is scheduled Sunday afternoon December 26 at 4 o'clock when Wells Hively presents a piano recital in the parish hall of All Saints Episcopal Church, Jensen Beach. Mr. Hively, organist at All Saints, is an artist of great versatility whose virtuosity as a pianist is equalled by his skill and creativity as a composer.

As a composer, Mr. Hively's orchestra pieces, "Tres Himnos" (Three Hymns), Mexican inspired, have been played by symphonic groups in this country, and frequently broadcast. This work has been recorded by Mercury and another orchestral piece, "Summer Holiday", by Composers Recordings, Inc.

The "Florida Suite", that will close Mr. Hively's recital program Sunday, was written upon his arrival in Florida, the first year at Orsino Beach in 1938. In those days, he recalls, Elinor Village, now adjacent, had not been thought of and the beach north of the Coquina Hotel, stretched for miles, unbuilt upon, with sea, wind and palmetto scrub everywhere -- much as is Hutchinson Island today. In his music, Mr. Hively sought to capture the feeling of the sea, the wind, sand and the dunes.

Sunday's recital will include numbers by Beethoven and Chopin as examples of the Romantic school, and by Debussy and his own "Florida Suite" from the Impressionists.

The recital will be complimentary and these two phases of the art of music are being offered as a Christmas season concert to members of the parish of All Saints Church and to all music lovers in the area. At its conclusion, light refreshments will be served on the porch of the parish house.

Christmas vacation for students enrolled in Diocese of Miami schools begins at the close of classes on Wednesday, Dec. 22. Classes will resume on Monday, Jan. 3, 1966.

The St. Joseph Bazaar Committee wishes to thank all of the Parishioners for contributing to the success of the Bazaar. A complete report will be given at the next meeting of the St. Joseph Guild and the Holy Name Society.

Complaints Made In FEC Hearing

A new point of interest was brought out in the continuing series of hearings being held by the Florida Public Service Commission on passenger rail service on the Florida East Coast Railway Wednesday, according to one of several assistants to the commission on hand.

While en route from Jensen Beach to Fort Lauderdale last August, a local man was asked his name, address and next of kin by an employee in uniform on an FEC passenger train, he testified before the three man board.

Herbert Cameron, commission public relations man and assistant to the executive aide to the commission, said he had attended every hearing from Nov. 23 to date and probably would attend all hearings through January 7, when they end, but had heard no previous testimony to that effect.

Testifying to the "vital statistics" questions asked him on the train was Vincent Bocchino, Jr., who was the only one to appear who was questioned by the four attorneys, three commissioners.

Bocchino was called by the commission after County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha referred, in his request for added train service, testified that he "also felt that the practice of the railroad in taking vital statistics of people boarding the trains was not good," and he went on to tell about a "man who sat down beside a friend of mine," to ask the questions soon after the friend and his wife boarded the train in Stuart bound for Ft. Lauderdale.

"It would be better to put the man selling tickets in the stations and take and keep the information on vital statistics there," he said.

"As it was, it looked a little ridiculous to have the man asking the questions sitting beside the man he was trying to warn of an accident possibility," said Wacha.

William F. Simmons, miami attorney representing the FEC at the hearing, asked that the information be stricken as hearsay because Wacha said the information came from a friend.

"I'll get him here," snapped Wacha.

Wacha also told Simmons he felt th FEC really didn't want passengers, "if you have to stand in front of the train if you want to get on," referring to the flag stop.

Chairman Edwin L. Mason then asked Wacha if he could bring his "friend" to the hearing. Wacha left the meeting and returned in 20 minutes with Bocchino.

Bocchino told of "flagging down" the train in the rain at Stuart, of getting aboard with his wife, of seeing two men, both in uniform.

"One took our money, the other asked the questions, name, address and next of kin," said Bocchino.

"I thought he was joking, at first," said Bocchino, then he gave him his father's address in New York as next of kin, after hearing a warning about accidents.

Lester M. Combs, Stuart, whose radio station had difficulty in gaining access to the station until the State Supreme Court upheld Martin County Circuit Court in a grade crossing suit brought by the county at Alice Ave., tried to get Mason to answer a question about FPSC permission to operate a railroad, but he was ruled out of order.

City Manager Joe N. Crowder, on behalf of the city, told of lack of timetables, lack of ticket information and tickets and pointed out that the nearest regularly scheduled air service was at West Palm Beach.

Donald L. Bowden, president of the Stuart Chamber of Commerce, said that 86 per cent of its members had replied to questionnaires asking increased passenger service, and said the distance of 45 miles to West Palm Beach was "inconvenient."

The hearing, which was originally set for all day, ended at about noon.

Conservationists Adopt New Resolution

A new resolution has been adopted by the County Conservation Committee similar to the one passed Dec. 5 at the Leesburg meeting of the directors of Florida Wildlife Federation.

The re-written resolution points out the need for controlling surplus water and requests the U. S. Corps of Engineers to hold and store waters in Lake Okeechobee or elsewhere, so such waters may be directed to the region of Everglades National Park and other recreational areas.

The County Conservation Committee is made up of representatives of several dozen organizations in Martin County and is led by Robert T. Bair.

Federal Funds Asked For Inlet Maintenance

The St. Lucie Inlet will be kept free by a $4,000 maintenance project recommended by both the Jacksonville and Atlanta Division offices of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, if Congress approves and provides the funds, according to information sent to County Commission Chairman Frank A. Wacha by U.S. Rep. Paul G. Rogers last Wednesday.

The corps recommended that the initial project be maintained at a depth of 6 feet and a width of 100 feet from the Crossroads by yearly appropriations and projects costing an estimated $4,000, providing the county will see that the Corps has an available dock to provide supply facilities and agrees to see to it that there are the necessary spoil beds and areas.

The plan was part of the overall study plan released by the Corps several months ago. The main plan would have cost into the millions, but the Corp noted "local interests show no inclination, are unwilling to cooperate in the plan at this time."

It was pointed out locally that there were no funds available to match a million dollars of Federal funds.

Paintings Displayed At Tradewinds

Artists Ashore and Abroad has hung a representative collection of paintings from their gallery, at the sign of the pink palette on U.S. #1, at the new Trade Winds Restaurant. Lindemuth's sea scapes and still lifes have proven to be very popular. Mr. Lindemuth is a graduate of the Cleveland School of Art and will conduct classes in oil painting at the gallery commencing in January. Persons interested in signing up for this instruction should contact Artists Ashore and Abroad at 287-6151.

A few choice paintings from the brush of Amoroso enhance another wall. Mr. Amoroso is listed in Who's Who in American Art, Library of Congress and is a fellow member of the Inter-national Institute of Arts and Letters.

The paintings in the Trade Winds will be changed frequently under the direction of Lee White of Artists Ashore and Abroad.

Feds Forgive

Action on the part of the Stuart City Commission last Monday night may have saved the city $9,975 in some future claim by the Federal Housing and Home Finance Commission.

At the recommendation of City Manager Joe N. Crowder, the board voted to accept a Federal offer made under a 1965 act to forgive certain old debts of municipalities.

Crowder said the money had been owed from 12 to 14 years ago to draw plans for a new sewage treatment plant. He said the city couldn't afford the plans developed by the engineering firm, paid off the firm to get a release from the debt, but never repaid the Federal agency.

Jack M. Hartman asked about Bessey Addition sewer main plans for which the Federal agency planned to furnish funds, and was answered by Crowder that the city appeared to be near the top of the list, but that delays in the Southeastern District had developed.

Wacha Heads Commission

In a move made at Tuesday's board meeting, held a few days earlier than usual, Frank A. Wacha was re-elected chairman of the Martin County Commission for the fifth year. John F. (Jack) Saunderson was re-elected Vice-chairman.

The move was adopted by a 3-2 vote, with Ed Miller and Timer Powers opposing.

Miller protested that he felt the chair should be rotated every six months. Herb Brewer said that relations with other bodies, including the State Road Board, had improved immensely under Wacha's chairmanship.

"On his record, he should be re-elected," said Jack Saunderson. "When you have a winning pitcher, you don't put him in left field."

He added, "He's a public accountant and works right in town, as well."

In a vote that was not recorded loud enough to determine, Saunderson moved that all county employees be re-hired for the coming year.

The Courthouse was closed for the coming weekend, plus Dec. 31.

McCain Appeared

County Business Meeting Routine

A. R. (Willie) McCain, Chairman of the St. Lucie Board of County Commissioners, was invited to speak Tuesday at the opening of the commission meeting by Chairman Frank A. Wacha of the local board.

McCain expressed thanks to the board for its cooperation during the past year, mentioned the A1A project on the island and the Glades Cut-off Road project in Western Martin County. In an official report, he included the bid price of Dickerson, Inc., of Stuart and Ft. Pierce, $841,674.49, as approved by the State Road Department on Dec. 14. According to McCain, Chelsie Senerchia, District 4 SHR member, is pleased at the bid.

Wacha thanked McCain for attending the meeting and stated that Martin County appreciated the cooperation of the St. Lucie Board.

It was voted to pay the final payment, with interest, to the Fort Salerno fire truck which amounted to $1,367. A contract for an asphalt tank truck was awarded to Square Deal Machinery Supply Co. of Orlando, low bidder of three at $10,275. The other bids were $10,993.87 and one of $11,010.60.

Altered slightly were out-of-town travel policies to permit attendance at functions normally carried on by the office without specific permission of the board.

Authorized for public hearings in January were three zoning changes, each recommended by the County Zoning and Planning Board, one in St. Lucie Inlet Farms from A-1 to R3A, one an addition to a South Fork trailer subdivision, and the third to a commercial zone at Salerno Road and U.S.1.

Formally adopted by the board was a recommendation of its sub-committee to set the new price on the county land at the old barn site at $16,000, as agreed by the prospective purchaser and the county committee last week.

As required by law, if it is to continue, the board extended interim zoning for another year in all such zones throughout the county.

The board directed Fred L. Bell, County Engineer, and Dean Tooker, County Attorney, to take steps to see that a zoning violation by A. W. Pool on land he purchased from Vincent Brennan, be halted. A trailer was moved onto land not zoned for it.

SECOND PRIZE WINNERS—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Puck receive a $5.00 check from Fred L. Bell, County Engineer, as second-place winners in the Christmas decorations contest sponsored by the Palm Lake Park Civic Association. Honorable mention went to W. R. Bishop, Ernest A. Burford, John J. Duggan, Wm. Rouzoulet, Richard Severs, and John Taylor. Judges were Bell, W. L. Robson of Robson Groves, and Richard E. Campbell, Editor of The Mirror.

PAST PRESIDENT PIN—Mrs. Larry Tinon, Past-President of District 42 Florida Nurses' Association accepts a pin from the President, Mrs. Margaret Miller, at the meeting held this week.

SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENT—Miss Sally Henderson of Stuart, pictured above accepting a gift from Mrs. Margaret Miller, is the first winner of a three-year scholarship to Alexandria (Va.) School of Nursing. Mrs. Miller is President of District 42 Florida Nurses' Association.

Repair Crossing

Brewer Construction Co. had been hired by the Florida East Coast Railway to repair grade crossings in Stuart and one on Palm Beach Road.

City officials had been promised by the railroad that the crossings would be re-surfaced after they were torn up to permit new ballasting by railroad workers.

The work will be done at Colorado Ave., Seventh and Tenth Sts., First St. and Albany St., also.

Accident Caused Blackout

Christmas dinners by candle light can be romantic, but in Jensen Beach and surrounding areas north of Stuart on Saturday, it was a necessity.

A truck loaded with potatoes, driving south on Rt. 1, smashed into a station wagon which had failed to stop when entering Rt. 1 from the Jensen Beach Cut-off Road, then stopped when it crossed to the southbound part of the four-laned highway.

6 Years Of Death Recorded

During the past six years there has been a steady increase in accidental highway deaths, with the exception of 1963, but otherwise the climb has been steady since 1960.

The tally of deaths reads; 1959, nine; 1960, seven; 1961, eight; 1962, 11; 1963, nine; 1964, 13; 1965, with more important hours to go, 15.

Included in the county totals is the Sunshine State Parkway totals. The Turnpike had four in 1959, three in 1961, one in 1963, two in 1964, and nine in 1960, 1963 and 1965.

Drownings have taken one life in 1959; three in boats in 1960; two in 1961; two in 1960, one of them missing at sea with his boat; four in 1963, seven in 1964, and nine in 1965, so far.

Lives have been lost by fire, also. Two in 1959, two in 1961, one each in 1962 and 1963, and three in 1964. One life was lost by fire in 1965.

The following have been the murders in Martin County, by years: 1959, two; 1960, two; 1961, five; 1962, one; 1963, one; 1964, four; 1965, two. Most of these have been solved.

Plane accidents have taken the lives of four in crashes. Two were lost in 1964 and two in 1963.

Happy New Year

HAPPY NEW YEAR!- This photo of an accident that occurred last week at the corner of Palm Beach Road and A-1-A is a reminder of the record-high traffic toll over the Christmas weekend. The Mirror urges everyone to drive safely during this holiday weekend so that he may live to have A Happy New Year.

Highway Fatalities 15 In 1965

Martin County recorded a record number of fatalities on the highways in 1965, According to Sheriff Roy C. Baker, Sgt. James Cox of the Florida Highway Patrol, and other sources, the figure is 15, which was a record high in highway deaths for the county, and topped any previous year since 1955 when there were 16 killed in traffic accidents.

There are still many hours left in 1965!

These figures are compiled and published in the hope that drivers will be aware of the statistics and take warning. Drive carefully at all times.

There were 14 suicides during this period, an average of almost two per year. One death occured by falling from a bridge, two by suffocation, two electrocutions, one boarding a train, one by a falling drag line boom, one by cuts from a boat propeller, one from a fall off a ladder, three from accidental discharge of fire-arms.

The appalling count, by totals, is 74 deaths by accident on the highways in seven years, 11 murders and nine deaths by fire.

"S" Club Formed At MCHS

The Soroptimist Club of Stuart has organized an "S" Club in Martin County High School. This is a Service Club consisting of Juniors and Seniors. Faculty advisor is Virginia Hay.

The girls have set up their committees, and the first service project will be to man the Health Department's X-Ray Unit in January. The "S" Club will be presented with its Charter on January 16 by Lt. Gov. Mabel Peterson of Jacksonville. It will be a Tea from 3 to 4 P.M. Invitations will be issued to all Soroptimist clubs in the area, all "S" Clubs in the Southern Region, all dignitaries from the school and presidents of the various school clubs.

Novitiate Presents Christmas Pageant

The Novitiate of St. Joseph's Institute invited Ocean Breeze residents to an open-

...ge Pageant on Dec. 19, 80 quite a number of Ocean Breezers took advantage of this invitation. When we arrived almost half an hour ahead of time, John Tognert, Harry Wilke and Roy Daley were parking cars among the trees. It was a short walk to the bank of many hundred seats which had been laid for the occasion by several organizations. Bright spotlights mounted on trees illuminated the surroundings. At 8 o'clock, these lights were switched off and we were in darkness. The wind had died to almost a whisper. Expectantly everyone waited, then we became conscious of singing, a long way off; beautiful but rather eerie. Next on top of the hill to our left we noticed lighted fig-

...ures moving. These made a snake-like pattern as the procession moved in and out around the trees on the slope, ever getting closer. Soon we could make out black figures carrying lighted candles in red translucent containers, and the candle light reflecting up into the faces and white veils of the sisters. At first nothing but the lights, faces and veils were visible, then as the procession came close, the whole figures could be seen. The sisters and students were singing as they walked until they formed a group to become the choir for the pageant which followed immediately. The re-enactment of historical Biblical scenes leading up to the birth of the Christ Child were very well performed, and the clothing and lighting were very appropriate. The mild weather also helped to make the evening's entertainment very enjoyable and the Sisters of St. Joseph are to be congratulated for their production of a successful pageant.

All About Medicare

Mr. James B. Brinkley, officer in charge of the area office on Social Security in this district, will be guest speaker at our next A.A.R.P. meeting in the Club House on Thursday, Jan. 6, 1966.

After outlining quickly and in simple words the assorted features of the Medicare program, Mr. Brinkley said he would be happy to help or clarifying any questions you may want to ask.

Your chapter officers believe this to be an unusual opportunity to learn every detail of hospitalization, physicians services, operations, rest homes, etc. We will have a short business meeting starting at 1:30 P.M., and Mr. Brinkley will continue with his portion of the program immediately thereafter.

This meeting is open to everyone in the Park, and the officers of the Ocean Breeze Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons hope we will fill the Club House for this important event. Our treasurer and her assistants will be there to serve you.

Ocean Breeze Annual Election

There was a small turnout of electors at the Park election December 21. Ed Fritsch and Frank Brunyeels were elected as alderwomen, Mary Adrian was also re-elected, having served as alderman ever since Ocean Breeze was incorporated as a town. John Corliss was elected to the office of clerk.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS--Wickes' tree and star display and Wilke's "Santa To The Moon" display on North Sixth Street in Ocean Breeze Park are shown above.

Dr. Book Teaches Medical Self-Help

A medical self-help class is being taught in the Club House by Dr. J. E. Book. This course has progressed to the stage where it is not practical to take in new students. Not everyone is acquainted with Dr. Book, so our reporter had a talk with him and we pass on this information.

Dr. J. E. Book was born in Harrisburg, Penna., and is now living in Ocean Breeze Park. He is a graduate of Medical School at the University of Pennsylvania and has a private practice for 20 years, specializing in diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat. After that he became connected with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company and worked in their medical department at Baltimore, Md., until retirement in 1962.

During the Second World War he became interested in teaching medical subjects, at which he and Mrs. Book came to Florida three years ago he did not need much encouragement to take up this class of teaching again. During the past three years he has taught medical self-help courses for Civil Defense in Martin County. Recently he taught a seven-weeks similar course at the Martin County High School. This was the first time such a course had been taught there and was experimental in nature, it proved very successful.

At the present time he is teaching at Ocean Breeze Park and Martin Trailer Park. Dr. Book says he has a new class starting at Hidden Harbour Park Tuesday, January 4th at 7:30 P.M. Other courses are contemplated for the future.

The Homing Instinct

Do all wild creatures have the homing instinct? When you read these almost incredible happenings, you may wonder.

Clyde Redinger during his last summer wanderings, captured and adopted as pets three horn toads. As they then became part of the family it was up to Clyde to provide them with food and lodging. Feeding these little 'critters' the Redinger's soon found was not so easy. It immediately became evident they would not accept any dead insect but so long as the insect was alive they were not too particular what it was. Also seeing the whole idea of adoption was Clyde's, he began to realize the responsibility for providing for this addition to his family rested entirely on his shoulders. After four or five months, Clyde got real tired of catching flies and bugs for his little family. So one day he took a walk across the track and up over the hill with his little charges. Regretfully he released them and walked back home. As he glanced back he noticed the largest one started to follow, but a toad travels very slowly so he was soon out of sight.

Clyde became interested in shuffleboard and Lila her hobbies and gradually the pets were forgotten. Then one day almost a month later, who should come hopping along their walk but horn toad number one. Redinger says, "Toads can't jump so it would be impossible for it to cross the railroad tracks. The only way I can explain it is that when the toad reached the tracks he must have followed the tracks along till he came to the crossing to the Ocean Breeze dump and then followed the tracks on the other side till he came opposite our trailer, but how he knew which was our trailer beats me as he had never been allowed to run loose". In reply to my question as to what he did with his little friend, Clyde replied, "I picked him up and carried him back up over the hill and as I let him go I said, 'You know we love you and all that, but your daddy just can't catch flies for you any more, so from now on you are on your own and I hurried back home. This time I didn't look back".

A BLACK HORN TOAD--Shown is a toad found in the White River Indian Reservation in Arizona by the Redingers. The toads live among the black lava rocks while their red counterparts live in the red rocks.

Christmas Eve Tour Of Ocean Breeze

As is customary, we joined a group to tour our Park and enjoy the displays of colored lights. Beginning at the junction of the River Road and Hibiscus, we were immediately struck by the beauty and profusion of colored lights around the Circle leading up to the Park Christmas Tree, which looks bigger than any we ever had and is well-covered with many colored light bulbs. We drove slowly past the money cage and west on Broad, admiring the pretty displays of lights on the side streets. Coming to the intersection of Broad and Sixth, everyone said, "Oh!", as our car stopped suddenly right in the middle of the road. There was such a blaze of lights all around us so our driver parked the car so we could get a closer look. Santa Claus or someone had really been at work here, for every dwelling around the intersection had it's compliment of lights, so that the whole resembled fairyland.

I think every trailer in North Sixth had strings of colored lights on display but the bright lights at the far end of this dead-end street attracted us as we walked forward. Gertrude and Al Wickes' trailer, which takes up a lot of the end of this street, had about four Christmas trees with gay lights along the front of their porch and overhead a large Star of David in bright electric lights, made one even more aware of the Christmas Season.

The trailer owned by Carrie and Harry Wilke had it's customary festoons of lights, and in addition there was a display no one could miss. It was a simulated Gemini rocket all ready to blast off with Santa Claus looking out of the porthole. Their son, Don, was responsible for this imposing feature. Don has built some ingenious displays in past years but all agreed this one was quite in keeping with the times. Just as we were about to climb into the car we heard singing. A group of carollers from the Novitiate was treating the residents of Ocean Breeze to some good Christmas singing. Several Sisters and student girls comprised the group.

Someone said, "Let's go into the new section and see what they have to offer." We had nothing else to do so we drove to the far end, Melaleuca Drive and worked back, up one street and down the next. Most people had made an attempt to contribute to the brightening up of their homes, some were very worthy of praise, but after the glamor of Sixth and Broad we didn't expect anything sensational. In our opinion, Key Lime had the best display of lights in the New Section, but of course that is only our opinion. All agreed that Ocean Breeze Park was lit like it was never lit before.

HERE'S A BIG ONE--The Ocean Breeze Park's huge Christmas tree is decorated and lighted for the Holiday Season.

WAITING FOR SANTA--As usual, Ocean Breeze had a number of young as well as old visitors this Christmas.

Visitors

We listed some names of Ocean Breeze Park residents who were going away for the holidays, visiting relatives. Actually there were many more who were not listed. However, the relatives and friends visiting in the Park exceeds by far the ones who are away. It is quite impossible for your reporters to list the many visitors we have this Christmas much as we would like to. Nellie and Tom Cook would like to join the management in bidding all welcome, and we hope all our visitors will have a swell time and come back again.

These youngsters have had their party in the Club House and are now waiting for the climax, the entry of Santa.

Movie

The movie for Sunday, Jan. 2nd, is "The Wheeler Dealers", starring James Garner, Lee Remick, Phil Harris, Chill Wills and Jim Backus. It is a story of a fast-moving millionaire, a beautiful young stockbroker and a company that manufactures widgets. It is claimed to be a funny spoof on stock manipulations and Texas big shots. It is Cinemascope in color.

So many expressed their thanks and appreciation that we will be looking forward to seeing some more of the sample before too long.

The sound movie which followed was loaned by the Waters Travel Agency and was very appropriate for this time of year. It was entitled "The Land of the Bible."

There will be no Camera Club meeting next Thursday, Dec. 30.

Camera Club

The Camera Club meeting of Dec. 23 was very well attended in spite of the fact so many are away visiting their families. Almost one hundred persons were counted. Alex Dickey showed some of his slides entitled, "Scenic Spots of the Northwest". This is Dickey's first showing in our Club House.

Head Start Unused Funds Returned

A letter was sent to Sargeant Shriver, director of the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity, by Supt. of Schools Thomas L. Crook who broke his silence on Thursday concerning the Operation Head-Start problems created by charges of discrimination from Washington.

Crook acknowledged a letter from Shriver, which Crook and an associate referred to as a 'form-type' letter. According to Crook, in his letter, he had been assured by the four directors of the Head-Start program here that non-discrimination was not a problem, and that the program had been set up on the basis of Freedom of Choice, whereby parents could enroll their children in any one of five centers.

There were 269 pupils who participated in the project in this area, manned by two white instructors and 11 Negro instructors.

A check will be returned to Washington covering unused funds in the project in the amount of $15,116.40.

HIDDEN HARBOUR POSSADA--This group of residents from Hidden Harbour enacted an old Mexican custom with a Candlelight Procession through the Park on Christmas Eve, ending with an exchange of gifts at their Community Center.

Heard About Hidden Harbour

Well, Christmas time is here at Hidden Harbour. We started with the ladies all putting together beautiful flowered Christmas trees for each table. A lovely garland of pine boughs decorate our front door, extending welcome to all. Friday evening, Dec. 16, all the park residents came up and decorated our beautiful Christmas tree. Everyone putting something of their own on the tree. All admitted it was one of the loveliest trees they had ever seen. After the tree trimming, we sang Christmas carols. The organ was played by Helen Stafford and group singing was directed by Sena Schaeferle. We enjoyed the coffee and Christmas cookies and ice cream the management furnished.

Christmas Eve'at 7:30, we celebrated the Birth of Christ by observing an old South American custom, called the Christmas Posada, which is a re-enactment of the search of Mary and Joseph to find a birthplace for the Christ Child, and the following of the Star to Bethlehem. We started at the recreation hall, singing carols and lighting our candles; we stopped at each home and invited the residents to join in the Posada. It wound through the park, ending back at the recreation hall where we completed our ceremony. In this way, the birth of Christ was celebrated.

Christmas presents were exchanged, and Christmas goodies were furnished.

Christmas Day was big for all. The management put on the dinner at 2 P.M. Our menu consisted of turkey, ham, dressing, giblet gravy, mashed potatoes, string beans or peas, hot rolls, pie and coffee.

We, here at Hidden Harbour, take this opportunity to wish you all a Very Happy Holiday Season and A Happy New Year.

Kennedy Chauffeur Visits Here

A. L. Sears, better known to local residents as "Zip", had a surprise visit from his nephew, Cliff Sears, chauffeur for Senator Ted Kennedy, this past week. Sears is spending the holidays at the Kennedy Estate in Palm Beach.

Sears has been driving for Senator Kennedy since the Senator's release from the hospital about a year and a half ago. Sears stated he has been associated with the Kennedy family for about seven years, getting his start when a friend asked him to drive one of the automobiles south that year. During the subsequent years and until he acquired his present position, Sears, a LL on the Boston Fire Department, used his sick leaves and vacations to chauffeur for the family. Sears stated he found his present position most enjoyable and quite enlightening, and much preferred this job to any other.

Fishing Lines

By Marti

Winter fishing season is now in full swing. An exceptional large quantity of Spanish Mackerel is schooled off the inlet, and up until early last week, fishermen were averaging between six and ten thousand pounds per boat. Due to the large catches, the price per pound was slashed to six cents in some areas and local fishermen as well as those from surrounding areas decided to halt activities until the market price returned to ten cents.

Commercial handline fishermen reported some excellent catches of weakfish at the mouth of the inlet, and increased activity in blues and pompano. Some large catches of pompano were reported in the Vero Beach, Sebastian area and probably the fish are moving this way.

Sportfishing has been good to fair off the inlet, and nice catches of sails, red snapper, grouper and kings are being reported.

SANTA STRUCK!--This young lady, with finger to mouth and eyes all aglow, was one of many children who discussed Christmas wants with Santa at the Port Salerno Volunteer Firemen's Christmas Eve Program.

Bowden Resigns From Bank Depression

Donald L. Bowden, President of the Stuart Chamber of Commerce, resigned on Wednesday from his position as executive vice-president and cashier of the Bank of Stuart. He had been with the Bank before it officially opened in June, 1962.

From 1950 to 1962, he had been with the First National Bank of Stuart, except for a three-year service with the U. S. Marines in Korea.

Chairman of the Board Robert E. Greene said the resignation was accepted with regret.

Bowden is also president of the Stuart Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Martin County Cancer Society, and is a trustee of the Pioneer Occupational Center for the Handicapped at Port Salerno.

the kitchen. "Look what I brought", he shouted, dumping steaks and chocolates on the table, "Where is your mother?" They told him she was in the other room ironing. He rushed in and grabbed her around the waist, and told her about the wonderful steaks he had bought.

Edie smelled the beer on his breath, started to cry and told him he was drunk and she did not believe a word he said. He laughed and whirled her out to the kitchen. There on the table were the dandy bars, but no steaks. Edie started to cry again, she knew he was drunk.

Lonzo suddenly remembered the children; he ran to the backyard with Edie right behind them. They both came to a stop as they saw them at the little table near the water pump, where the children cleaned the fish he always brought home.

The children were looking at them and almost in tears they cried together, "Daddy, we don't know how to scale these!"!!!

Lonzo and Edie fell into each others arms and between laughter and tears, they decided not to eat the steaks tonight. Tomorrow was Christmas and their children were going to have the greatest ever.

Martin County To Pay Bills Due Hospital

According to County Attorney Dean Tooker on Wednesday, the state attorney general's office ruled that Martin County could pay bills for Martin Memorial Hospital totaling $13,547.52, all of which were dated prior to October 1, the start of the new budget and fiscal year.

At a Dec. 14 meeting of the board, the county attorney gave his opinion that the bills are not obligations until approved by the Indigent Board for payment, and that the board met in November and December to approve the bills.

According to Mrs. Dorothy Pierce, county clerk and auditor, the state auditor's office had warned that if the bills were paid, they would have to be charged to the 1964-64 budget, which would leave it overdrawn.

Moved and carried was a motion by Commissioner Ed Miller that the board approve the bills for payment in the amount of $9,463.04 from supplemental funds, and $3,084.48 from Hospital Service Funds to the Indigent, pending receipt of the attorney general's office.

Members of the hospital indigent board are; County Commissioners Timer Powers and J. H. Bruner; Dr. Neil Miller, Tri-county Board of Health doctor, and Lester M. Combs and Capt. Warren Cortliss for the hospital.

Know Your Newspaper Better

Equal to the Front Page . . .

That's what studies have shown about the Classified page! Yes, the number of readers who read the "want ads" on the Classified page is equal to the number of readers of the front page. Don't you yourself look at the classified ads every issue? If you are one of the few who doesn't, you are missing both news and opportunity.

Service and News

The classified page provides both. The service of who has what for sale, rent or trade, for how much and where. The news that all advertising carries about products, services, bargains. Just reading the classifieds is fun, and informative. We feel sure you must be a classified page reader . . . keep it up. But if you are one of the few who isn't, try it . . . this issue!
